If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

We gazed at the famous picture of "The Doctor" in silence that could be felt, and I tell you it fairly made me hold my breath and a lump come in my throat as I looked first at the suffering child and then at the kind doctor, with his grave face, and then at the father and mother in the background, and, as for Smart, I don't mind telling you I saw the water in his eyes and presently a great big tear rolled down his cheek as he said:

"Isn't that wonderful? I suppose as a tailor I should be looking at the style of the M. D.'s clothes; but, man, I'm human, and when there is a picture that appeals like that to the great heart of humanity, why, I just forget all about my trade and think only of my humanity. Come on," he added; "I can't stay longer to look at that, for it reminds me too much of a little one I lost. Here you are," he said—"here's something more in our line, Dr. Johnson waiting for an audience with Lord Chesterfield. Here's comedy, if you like. And now we may examine the clothes."—London Tailor and Cutter.

In Schurmann's "Secrets de Coulisses" is a picture of Ibsen at the summit of his fame. When Ibsen had completed a new play the Copenhagen newspapers announced the event with a great flourish of trumpets, and added: "The master will deposit his manuscript at the National theater at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning." At that hour the road between Ibsen's house and the theater was lined with people. The great man appeared with his precious roll of paper neatly tied up. As it slipped through into the letter box the public gave a great shout. The philosopher acknowledged the demonstration with a grave bow and retired within doors with the consciousness of having performed a glorious mission. Every one of his ordinary acts in public was accompanied by something of the sort, and even when he sat the curtains of the window were drawn aside so that his features might be visible to his admirers outside.

She Was Used to Storms.

The storm burst forth in all its fury. Great trees were torn up bodily by the roots, houses were unroofed or even wrenched from their foundations, women shrieked and rushed with their children to places of fancied safety, while strong men turned pale and vainly attempted to appear unconcerned. But in the midst of all this fury of nature one little woman sat cool, calm and collected. She did not appear to notice that anything out of the ordinary was happening. Now and then she raised her eyes from the book that seemed to absorb her, glanced around the room and went back to the literary love. Afterward we learned that she was a teacher in a primary school and that she hadn't heard or felt anything she wasn't accustomed to.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Shark Stories.

A shark is very tenacious of life, and Dr. Gunther, the ichthyologist, has pointed out in one of his contributions to the literature of his subject that "wounds affect fishes generally much less than higher vertebrates. A Greenland shark continues to feed while his head is pierced by a harpoon or by a knife as long as the nervous center is not touched."

A Norwegian antarctic explorer, H. J. Bull, gives a startling word picture of a shark's tenacity of life. This man eater was caught at the Iceland cod fishery. His liver, heart and internal arrangements were removed so as to put a period to his career, and the thus mutilated body was then cast into the sea. He simply gave a leisurely wag of his tail and swam rapidly out of sight.—Chambers' Journal.

Cause For Thanks.

The Rev. Moses Jackson was holding services in a small country church and at the conclusion loaned his hat to a member, as was the custom, to pass around for contributions. The brother canvassed the congregation thoroughly, but the hat was returned empty to its owner.

Br'er Jackson looked into it, turned it upside down and shook it vigorously, but not a copper was forthcoming. He sniffed audibly.

"Bredern," he said, "I sho' is glad dat I got mah hat back again."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Mr. Wagner's Nerve.

Wagner, the eminent composer, had the nerves of an acrobat. Once he was climbing a precipitous mountain in company with a young friend. When some distance up and walking along a narrow ledge the companion, who was following, called out that he was growing giddy. Wagner turned around on the ledge of rock, caught his friend and passed him between the rock and himself to the front.

Brain Work.

"Does your husband help you much around the house?" asked the neighbor.

"Well," replied the tired looking woman, "Josiah's work is mostly brain work. He keeps right busy thinkin up ways for me to economize."—Washington Star.

BUSINESS GOOD AT YEAR'S END

Recent Improvement Has Manifested No Reaction.

R. G. DUN & CO.'S REVIEW

Commercial Operations Generally Are Maintaining a Steady Volume—Steel Mills Get Orders for Next Six Months.

New York, Jan. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly review of trade says:

"The business year closed without reaction in the improving tendencies A better demand arose for money, aggregate payments through the banks continued their expansion, and trading defaults again were normal. Commercial operations generally have maintained a steady volume, and further encouragement was derived from new demands in the leading industrial and distributive branches. Snow storms interrupted marketings of breadstuffs and live meats, but crop reports indicate good conditions of growing winter wheat and rye, while low temperature advanced corn curing in Illinois and Iowa.

"Movements of raw materials for factory conversion remain adequate for current needs. The absorption indicates a slight increase in production of large plants and prices have shown more firmness in iron and steel, leather, hides, and lumber. Contracts for rails made further notable accumulation. There was also wider inquiry for cars, motive power, structural shapes, and wire products, while substantial bookings were entered for pig iron at better than recent quotations for future deliveries.

"The rolling mills, forges, and furnaces are now assured of activity in the next six months, and there are important specifications out for January closing. Implement and electrical factories remain actively employed, leather working is seasonably extended, and increasing interest is noted in belting, heavy machinery, hardware, sanitary, and brass goods.

"Despite prevailing high costs, retail trade here and at the interior has continued good for winter apparel and necessaries, and stocks now undergo rapid depletion. An increased number of country merchants attended the wholesale market for general merchandise. Mail orders for spring and summer wares made, as expected at this time, a moderate aggregate, and smaller business was done in reassortments. Estimates indicate that sales compare favorably in value with 1910 in dry goods, millinery, cloaks and suits, foot wear, clothing, men's furnishings, hats and caps, jewelry, carpets, furniture, fancy goods, house utensils and food products."

WIRELESS IN HIGH COURT

Body to Rule on an Action of Judge Rodey of Porto Rico.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Judicial action by wireless telegraphy while at sea is to be considered by the supreme court of the United States that its validity may be determined once for all.

The point arose in a suit over land in Porto Rico. Judge Rodey of the United States district court of Porto Rico directed an extension of time in which a "bill of exceptions" could be filed in the case and the question taken to the supreme court while he was on his way from Porto Rico to the United States. He sent the message by wireless and it is asserted while he still was within the three-mile limits of Porto Rico.

NEW TRIANGLE TRIAL

New York Prosecutor Consults Aids About Factory Indictments.

New York, Jan. 1.—There is every indication that Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the Triangle Waist company, in whose factory 147 lives were lost during a fire March 25, will be placed on trial again.

They were acquitted recently on an indictment charging manslaughter in connection with the death of Margaret Schwartz, one of their employes, but six similar indictments, charging manslaughter in the case of six other victims, are still pending against them and the district attorney is consulting with his associates as to whether a continuation of the prosecution is advisable.

Held as "White Slavers."

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Jan. 1.—Ray Raymond and a woman representing herself to be his wife were arrested at Cynthiana, this county, on orders of Prosecuting Attorney Sanford Trippett, charged with being "white slave" agents. They were bound over to the circuit court under $1,000 bail.

Woman Found Dead; Man Is Gone.

Red Wing, Minn., Jan. 1.—With a bullet hole in the head, the body of Mrs. Anton Schill, aged fifty-eight, was found at her home in Hay Creek. Her husband cannot be found.

SUICIDE OF BANKER'S WIFE

Grief Over Mother's Death Given as Cause of Self-Destruction.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, wife of the vice president of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, shot herself in the right temple at her residence, 3524 Prairie avenue. She was taken to Mercy hospital, where she died within a few hours without regaining consciousness. The day was the thirtieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Haskell's wedding and, at the time preparations were being made at the house for the celebration of the event.

A coroner's jury composed of wealthy men, made inquiry into the death at the Haskell residence. Its verdict was that Mrs. Haskell had taken her own life. The motive was given as grief over the death of her mother almost a year ago.

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE CHUM

Youth Holds Boy's Head Above Water Until Help Arrives.

Vincennes, Ind., Jan. 1.—With a remarkable display of braveness, Ambrose Dunkle, eighty-year-old son of Frank Dunkle, a printer, went to the rescue of seven-year-old Maurice Woodward, who fell into eight feet of water in the "soaking tank" of a glass factory. Dunkle laid down and grasping the struggling Woodward boy by the hand, in imminent danger of being pulled into the tank himself, held Woodward's head above water until men from the factory rescued both.

City Fireman Alonzo Woodward, father of the rescued lad, presented Dunkle a gold ring for his heroism.

FREDERICKS COMING EAST

Said To Be Bringing McManigal Confession to Indianapolis.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—John D. Fredericks, district attorney, has left for Indianapolis, Ind., taking with him much of the evidence collected here in the case against the McNamara brothers. Included in this evidence is said to be the original confession of Ortie McManigal, in which, it is asserted, the names of twenty labor leaders alleged by McManigal to have been connected with dynamiting outrages are mentioned.

It is understood that Mr. Fredericks will offer to the federal authorities in Indianapolis all the evidence gathered in the McNamara case. If the Indianapolis officials desire the exhibits—suitcases, dynamite clocks, etc.—now in Los Angeles, they will shipped east.

WELL KNOWN MINISTER

Restored to Health by Vinol

Rev. D. Schneider, who is a well known minister in Rice Lake, Wis., writes:

"I had a very severe stomach trouble last year from which I was kept in bed three months, I had engaged the services of a doctor, but to no avail. I then read of Vinol and determined to try a bottle. Before it was used up I was out of bed, and four bottles made me a well man. Vinol is a splendid medicine, and I can gladly recommend it."

Prominent men from all over the country do not hesitate to endorse this wondeful tonic.

For twelve years Vinol has been sold on the "money back" plan, and every year strengthens its popularity and proves by continued tests that it will do what we claim for it.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD PRIZE STORY CONTEST

1ST PRIZE "MAJOR" BY LILLIS A. HOWARD
2ND PRIZE "THE BLIZZARD" TRACY SUTFIN
THE PRIZE STORY FROM THE FIRST FOUR GRADES "MABLE BROWN'S CHRISTMAS" BY MARJORIE FIELD

Judges Mrs. O. A. Wright and Mrs. Hartbeck-Bidwell

MAJOR

Last spring a friend of mine gave me five duck's eggs. I got a crate and put some hay in it, and made a nice nest. The next thing I had to do was to find an old biddy, that wanted to hatch some little ducks. So I hunted around till I found one I thought would want some.

I put her on the nest, and put another crate over her to be sure that she would not come off, until she got used to her new home. Finally she settled down to work, and so I took the cover off.

I had to feed and water her every day for four weeks. One day I went out and I saw two little ducks' heads sticking out from under the old hen. The other three eggs did not hatch. So I took the old hen and her two little babies and put them in an old coop that had been used once for chickens, but this plan did not work at all for the old hen would not pay any attention to them. She would not try to hover over them and keep them warm, as any well mannered biddy should.

Maybe this was her first experience at raising a family, or maybe the little ducklings did not understand hen language. Anyway I decided the safest way was to put them in a brooder. They might become high feeling or stuck up, if just they two were brought up alone. So into the brooder they went with five hundred little chickens for company.

Little ducklings' feet are not made like chicken's but are webbed and made to paddle in the water, so they could not scratch for their food like chickens, and every day I had to give them a soft mash and a dish of fresh water.

They grew so much faster than the chickens that they soon ruled the whole flock, and their two quacks were louder than the five hundred peeps

When they were about half grown I found one dead in the run. The other one seemed lonesome for a few days, but soon got over it.

He was such a proud acting fellow that I named him Major. After a while all the chickens were moved from the brooder house, and Major was left alone.

His chief fun was to fight the hens through the wire fence. He liked to swim in the big water tank. One day he jumped into the barnyard, and all the pigs chased him. Mother happened to see him, and chased the pigs away and caught Major

Another time when he had been swimming I thought I would let him run around on the lawn, and watch him. Major turned around and walked into my lap and sat down, and began to pick his feathers.

He is now a great big duck and will have to be killed for Thanksgiving, as I do not want to sell him, and he will not live with the rest of the poultry without fighting.

THE BLIZZARD

It was as beautifnl a day as one ever wishes for in a Swiss village in the Alps about the middle of December.

It was just like a spring day out and they had had no snow yet as they usually have at this time of year.

In the village lived a family by the name of Ross. There were four in the family, father, mother and two healthy children: one was a boy of six years and a girl of twelve.

Mr. Ross was a sheepherder and he had about five hundred sheep to tend about 2 miles from home.

In the spring of the year in Switzerland the sheep herders take their sheep up the mountains for the green pasture. Mr. Ross had taken his sheep up in the spring and had been up there all summer; as he was watching his sheep he muttered to himself as he looked at the sky, "It is fine weather but I am afraid we will have a blizzard before the week is gone. It was just like this ten years ago when we had a blizzard and more than one person was frozen to death. Well it must be time Bessie and Charley are coming with my dinner, the dogs are barking for theirs.

Now we will go back to the Ross home Mrs. Ross is getting her husband's dinner ready for the children to take to him. When she finished packing his dinner, she stepped to the door and called, "Charlie and Bessie come in now and take your father his dinner." After they were all ready and their mother had given them the basket she said, "you children go right along and get back early, so I can take you to town and get you some leggings for I am sure it will be cold before long.

They reached their father with his dinner then sat down and fed the dogs and gave their pet sheep some sugar.

"Now children hurry home, for the sky is getting dark and I am afraid it is a going to snow," said their father after he had kissed and bidden them good-bye.

When they were a third of the way home it began to snow. The snow was just like a feather it was so light. Bessie said, "Come on Charlie we will run and get home so will not worry about us; you know she always does worry when we are out of her sight very long."

They had run probably ten minutes when Charlie stopped and exclaimed, "I can't run any more Bess, my side hurts me now." "Well we will have to run to keep warm as I am cold, it is getting awfully cold!"

The wind began to blow the feathery snow and they had to go more carefully because they could not see. Charlie stumbled and fell and hurt his knee, and begun to cry. They went a little farther and it snowed so they could hardly see each other they then took hold of hands so they would not get seperated and lost. They went on perhaps a quarter of a mile further, blinded by the drifting snow. At last Bessie said, "I just can't go any farther and we have lost our way too. Let us get up into those rocks, where we will be sheltered from the wind until it is over."

At home Mrs. Ross wondered and wondered why the children did not come. Six o'clock came and Mr. Ross had come home, still the children did not come.

"They are lost and I am going over to ask Judge Read if I can take his big Saint Bernard dogs to look for the children. You know they were the dogs that saved Albert Parker's children last year in the blizzard. Get some blankets and put some water on the stove to heat because they will be nearly frozen.

He went after the dogs and Judge Read said he would help find them.

The dogs when set loose found the track and soon found the children They wrapped them up in blankets Mr. Ross had brought and carried them home to the warm fire.

That night when they went to bed they thanked God for saving them from the deadliest peril of the Alps Mountains.

MABEL BROWN'S CHRISTMAS

Mabel Brown was a very rich little girl, and lived in Cleveland on South Pearl street, with her mother, father and brother. Mabel was twelve and her brother was ten

A week before Christmas they got a letter to go to their aunt's, to spend the holidays. Their aunt lived in Buffalo, and her name was Grace Turner. She wanted them to come a week before Christmas, so they started that day on the 6:20. When they got to the station, they found an automobile waiting for them. It was their Aunt Grace with her new auto.

The next day they went walking and saw a poor little boy crying, Mabel asked the little boy what was the matter. He told them that he and his sister and mother were very poor and could not have a Christmas tree, and his mother was sick.

Then Mabel went and asked her aunt, if she could have them come to their Christmas tree. Her aunt said yes, so she went and asked them if they would come. Their mother said no she could not walk. Mabel said, auntie will take you in her auto.

Then their mother said yes they would come. The next week Mabel's Aunt Grace came over after them in the auto. The woman's name was Mrs. Smith, and the little boy's name was Johnnie and his sister's name was Elva.

After a big turkey dinner they went into the parlor, where there was a very pretty tree loaded with presents and covered with candles.

The little boy got a pair of skates, sweater and some shoes. The little girl got a doll, a nice warm coat and some shoes. They got some toys, lots of candy and oranges. Their mother got a new dress, a nice coat and $20 dollars.

After the fun was over, Mabel's Aunt Grace took them all out for an auto ride all over the city, and then took Mrs. Smith, Johnnie and Elva home.

Mabel said that it was the happiest Christmas that she had ever had, because she had given pleasure to others

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Isn't the lover who braves the storm a rain-beau?

Saves Two Lives

"Neither my sister nor myself might be living today, if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery" writes A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C., R. F. D. No. 8, "for we both had frightful coughs that no other remedy could help. We were told my sister had consumption. She was very weak and had night sweats but your wonderful medicine completely cured us both. It's the best I ever used or heard of." For sore lungs, coughs, colds, hemorrage, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough,—all bronchial troubles,—its supreme. Trial bottle free, 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

Most rat holes will bear looking in to.

The Danger of La Grippe

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound; R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kas., says: "I was troubled with a sever attac of la grippe taat threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a postive cure for bed wetting "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

It doesn't require an axe to cut an acquaintance.

Solves A Deep Mystery

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho' made just for me." For Dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son.

Corn on the cob is more acceptable than corn on the foot.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound

Is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it your self when you feel a cold coming on It checks and cures coughs and colds and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. All Druggists of Tecumseh.

There is no impropriety in using a spring wagon in the fall.

Death in Roaring Fire may not result from the work of fire bugs, but often severe burns are caused that make a quick need for Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the quickest, surest cure for burns, wounds, bruises boils, sores. It subdues inflammation It kills pain. It soothes and heals. Drives off skin eruptions, ulcers or piles. Only 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's.

It isn't very long before the "good fellow" is a poor fellow.

Old Soldier Tortured

"For years I suffered unspeakable torture from indigestion, constipation and liver trouble," wrote A. K. Smith a war veteran at Erie, Pa., "But Dr. King's New Life Pills fixed me all right, They're simply great." Try them for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Only 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's.

A Legend About Cats.

The ancient Greeks thought that all creatures except cats had souls and that that animal lost its soul through a bargain made between a bridge architect and the devil. The architect had besought the devil to get help in constructing an exceedingly dangerous bridge structure, and his satanic majesty only consented to lend aid on condition that the first creature to cross it should lose its soul. This was agreed upon, the bridge finished in due time and the devil sent to the opposite side to await his prey. The shrewd architect took good care to send a cat over before any human being was allowed to cross. On learning of the bargain the cat recrossed the bridge and scratched the architect's eyes out.

An Elemental Error.

A judge was angling in the Manitowick waters and just after dinner became involved in an argument with his boat companion. The debate lasted some minutes, and during that time the judge had his baited hook dangling in the air over his shoulder

The guide took a hand

"Judge," said he peremptorily, "drop your line in the water. There are no flying fish around here."—Chicago Post

A Difference of Opinion.

On one occasion Bishop G. of Atlanta purposed leaving home on a Saturday night train, arriving in Savannah the next morning in time to fill a pulpit engagement. His brother, much his senior, old fashioned in his notions of Sabbath observance, hearing of the proposed Sunday trip, took him to task about it. The bishop explained that he was staying home as long as possible to take care of his children, who had been [illegible] week, so that his wife would be in better shape to nurse them during his absence. "You see, Allen," the explanation ended, "it's a case of the ox in the ditch."

"Ox in the ditch nothing!" snorted his brother in disgust. "It's a case of a donkey in a sleeping car!"—St. Louis Republic.

Had's Full Course.

The sign in front of a Harlem restaurant attracted the eye of a farmer, and he went in. He had a raw, a fry, a stew, a pan roast, a broil and a steam on toast. When he got through he laid a quarter on the cashier's desk, only to be told that he was shy a dollar and a quarter.

"No, by jing," said the farmer. "A quarter's right. Doesn't your sign say, 'Oysters In Every Style For Twenty-five Cents?'"—Lippincott's

Robert Louis Stevenson was a close student of style and has left more than one interesting discussion of the technique of writing. In a letter to R. A. M. Stevenson, dated October, 1883, he says:

"There is but one art—to omit! Oh, if I knew how to omit I would ask no other knowledge! A man who knew how to omit would make an 'Iliad' of a daily paper."

To men engaged in editorial writing (which in America is the art of making ideas effective before a vast audience) and to young men and women in college who are planning to enter journalism we recommend that the above few words of Stevenson's be committed to memory and put into practice.—Collier's Weekly.

A Comet's Three Parts.

A comet has three parts. The nucleus is the bright, starlike point which is the kernel, the true potential comet. Around this is spread the coma, a sort of luminous fog, shading from the nucleus and forming with it the head. Still beyond is the delicate tail, stretching away into space. And this to the world in general is the comet itself, though always the least dense of the whole. Sometimes entirely wanting or hardly detectible, the tail is again an extension millions of miles in length. Although usually a single brush of light, comets have been seen with no fewer than six tails.

IN CLUB CIRCLES

NO NAME CLUB

The No Name Club was entertained at the home of Guy Belding and wife Wednesday evening. 4 tables of pedro were played. Mrs Kenneth Hay carried off first prize and Mrs. (Dr) Hendershot the booby. Light refreshments completed the evening entertainement.

People Who Bore You With Talking About Their Children

In a New Years's talk in the January WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION, Margaret E. Sangster reports what a brother said about his own married sister:

"I never dine at Mary's. I used to enjoy going there, but she and Jack are at present so engrossed with the rising generation, that there is no fun in being their guest. The children are permitted to interrupt conversation; their father and mother stop in the midst of a sentence to answer their questions and to conduct their education; and worst of all, their wonderful sayings are repeated in their hearing, and a bachelor uncle is frowned upon if he does not rise to the occasion and express his amazement at the brilliant speeches of the small people. When Mary's children are grown I shall visit her again; but, for the present, I drop in only when I think they are safe in bed."

PRESTON—WARREN

A very pretty wedding was that of Miss Edna Preston of Holloway, and Harvey Warner of Tipton, on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston.

About 75 guests were present to witness the ceremony. They left that evening for a short wedding trip after which they will be at home to their friends near Tipton.

Mrs. Warner has many warm friends in Tecumseh, she having been a pupil in our schools until a month ago.

ARE MICROBES IN YOUR SCALP?

It Has Been Proved That Microbes Cause Baldness

Professor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand, the leading French dermatologist, discovered that a microbe causes baldness. Their theory has time and again been amply verified through research experiments carried on under the observation of eminent scientists. This microbe lodges in the Sebum, which is the natural hair oil, and when permitted to flourish it destroys the hair follicles anp in time the pores entirely close, and the scalp gradually takes on a shiny appearance. when this happens there is no hope of the growth of hair being revived.

We have a remedy which will, we honestly believe, remove dandruff, exterminate the microbe, promote good circulation in the scalp and around the hair roots tighten and revitalize the hair roots, and overcome baldness, so long as there is any life left in the hair roots.

We back up this statement with our own personal guarantee that this remedy called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will be supplied free of all cost to the user if it fails to do as we state.

It will frequently help to restore gray and faded hair to its original color, providing loss of color has been caused by disease; yet it is in no sense a dye, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic accomplishes these results by aiding in making every hair root, follicle, and pigment gland strong and active and by stimulating a natural flow of coloring pigment throughout the hair cells.

We exact no obligations or promises—we simply ask you to give Rexall "93" Hair Tonic a thorough trial and if not satisfied tell us and we will refund the money you paid us for it. Two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00 Remember, you can obtain it in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine,
A splendid remedy for such attacks.
A medicine that has cured thousands.
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.
Many Tecumseh people rely on it.
Here is Tecumseh proof,

George O. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says; "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity, who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co, Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schiltz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

Foley Kidney Pills

Always give satisfaction because they always do the work J. T. Shelnut, Breman, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble" All Druggists of Tecumseh.

Strict German Discipline.

"German discipline in the army is the strictest of any nation in the world," said a man who has experienced it. "Every German boy must serve a definite period in the army. He can buy his way out in six months if he has money, but the richest must serve that period. The first thing told a recruit when he enters the barracks is that he does not know how to walk. That information startles him, because naturally he believes he had learned to walk years before. A drillmaster gets him in a courtyard, and for a week, often a month, the poor recruit is drilled in walking alone. Then he gets another course, and the longest practice marches of a regiment are almost equal to the stress of actual war. It makes thorough soldiers of the boys."—New York Tribune.

Animals Under Water.

The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is not really so tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over a beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing.

A Little Knowledge.

Mrs Wheatpit — Do tell! I didn't know Titian was an artist. Miss Wheatpit—Sh, mamma! Of course he was an artist. Mrs. Wheatpit—Well, now! I thought he got up one of those preparations for the hair!—Harper's Magazine.

Real Angel of Death.

Most of us are familiar with the beautiful and artistic conception of French wherein a young sculptor who is plying his magic chisel upon a block of stone and summoning from the snowy depths of the marble the dream face of his soul's ideal is gently touched by the wistful eyed angel of death and the skillful arm forever stayed. The whole creation is marvelously beautiful, and the world is better for its birth. Nevertheless it is allegorical and misleading. The real angel of death in the case of the thin faced sculptor was not a sad visaged maiden of classical profile. In all probability it was a minute, rodlike organism floating amid motes of dust and known to scientists as the "bacillus tuberculosis." The writer does not want to be a shatterer of ideals, but the sooner such poetic notions of death are done away with and the mass of the people educated in a common sense way to the dangers of dust and bacteria the better it will be for humanity in general.—J. G. Ogden in Popular Mechanics.

A Rich One.

The Visitor—And what are you going to make of him?

Mamma—I want him to be a philanthropist.

"Why, there's no money in that."

"But all the philanthropists have been very rich."

A Reminder.

Dearborn—What have you got that string tied about your finger for? Wabash—Oh, I've been getting married, and my wife doesn't want me to forget it.—Boston Herald.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary, but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. P. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill. and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 321 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 405 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Nerves of Genius.

Many of the men whose names we revere today in science, art, literature and poetry suffered from emotional disturbances, resulting in nerve storms or outbursts of mental violence, which can only be described as superacute mania. The poet Cowper had strong suicidal tendencies, yet he wrote "John Gilpin" when suffering from intense melancholia. Shelley had an insane ancestry, and at Eton he was called "Mad Shelley." Charles Lamb had to be placed in an asylum, and his sister Mary stabbed her mother to the heart while insane. Wordsworth and his sister Dorothy are almost a parallel to Charles and Mary Lamb. At the age of thirty Coleridge was broken down, and he died a wreck at sixty-two. Southey came of an insane stock. The mother of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the dramatist, died demented at forty-two. Pope was deformed and rickety, and Keats was neuropathic to his finger tips. Byron's mother was unbalanced, and so was his maternal grandfather.—London Globe.

Value of Deep Breathing.

Writing on the cultivation of physical fitness in the Herald of the Golden Age, Eustace Miles says that those who have mastered the art of deep and full breathing are thereby enabled to master their emotions—they can overcome pain and secure control of the mind and of the circulation of the blood. The control of the breathing prevents one from becoming hurried and flurried, and one acts leisurely, although not lazily. Breathing can be adapted to various needs—for instance in producing warmth or the opposite effect—or one can breathe in order to become more sensitive. In fact, the all round value of deep and full breathing cannot be overestimated. Of all physical practices this is the first and foremost and one that can be regulated without being in the least conspicuous. If you have learned how to breathe deeply and fully people may not suspect it—they only notice that you are calm, poised and good tempered.

Not Sure of Him.

"Why are you so sure that he loves you?"

"Because he stays away from me in hopes he can overcome the fascination of my presence. And there is but one thing that bothers me—I fear he will succeed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Quicksand.

Quicksand differs from beach and other sand in that the individual grains have become worn by water or wind until the normal facets and angles have been abraded and each grain has become more or less spherical. The coefficient of friction is thus reduced to the minimum and the bed does not pack when dry and when wet behaves like a fluid. The depth of quicksand is conditioned by the depth of the hardpan or other compact material upon which the sand rests. In building operations on the lower end of Manhattan island quicksands are encountered more than 100 feet in depth. Near Pueblo, Colo., in 1875, a train was drawn by a derailed locomotive into a quicksand and was swallowed up beyond discovery although probed for to a depth of fifty feet. In certain smaller littoral quicksands, bodies which have been engulfed are in time brought to the surface at the edge of the shivering sands. This is due to the structure of the containing bowl of rock which permits a sluggish circulatory movement of the plastic mass.

Love at First Sight

And a Courtship Begun Under Difficulties

By MILDRED BAKER.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Eggleston met his fate in a very unromantic place, a street car. He entered the car, took a seat, fumbled in his vest pocket for a nickel, paid the conductor for his ride, and a bell announced that the Public Service company had come by its own. Then Eggleston began to look about him.

Directly opposite sat the girl who was destined to stir up a commotion in Eggleston's heart. It was a certain expression on her face that won him—not melancholy exactly, but something akin to melancholy. Her features also attracted him. Beauty is a matter of opinion, and to Eggleston she was beautiful. Her eyes were blue and her hair was blond with a tint of gold in it. Her figure was symmetrical.

Though Eggleston was conscious of being winged he did not know how badly he was hit, else he would have left the car when the girl left it and learned where she could be found with a view to making her acquaintance. As it was he let her go out from him into the great world and as soon as he had done so considered himself a fool. The car started on, and he made frantic signs to the conductor to stop, but there was no stop till the next crossing, and by the time Eggleston got back to where the girl had left the car she had disappeared.

HIS ADVANCE HAD BEEN REPELLED.

Eggleston was seized with one of those inexplicable impulses, ideas, desires or whatever they are to possess this particular woman. It was with him an ideal attraction, and it was overpowering. He swore a big oath that he would marry his street car girl and no other. This was ridiculous, for there was little chance of his meeting her again and no way by which he could find her. The consequence was that he was more than likely to go through life a single man.

But luck favored him. After pining two years for his lost love that he had never seen but once, and that in a street car, he stumbled on her under far more ideal circumstances. She was sitting on a rock at the seashore, the waves rolling in on either side of her. Eggleston approached her from the side, and when he came within a few yards of her she turned, looked at him and again directed her gaze out upon the boundless ocean.

Eggleston stood still, thinking what to do. He was determined that she should not escape him again, but dreaded to shock her by forcing an acquaintance. Nevertheless he made up his mind to take the risk of speaking to her.

"Pardon me," he said. "I see that you are wrapt in this great ocean, beautiful today, awe inspiring tomorrow. I myself"—

He paused, expecting her to turn her face to his. When full time had elapsed for her to do so and she did not, when instead she turned her back to him and looked in the opposite direction, his heart sank. His advance had been repelled.

"Idiot!" he exclaimed inwardly. "Why could I not have waited for an introduction? I had everything my own way, and now I have made a mess of it."

Cringing under the rebuff, he slunk away. His first impulse was to take a train and get as far from the place and the girl as possible. But this was only momentary. He resolved to stay and conquer or die. From afar he watched her sitting on the rock till she arose and went to her hotel.

The same evening Eggleston promenaded on the board walk, hoping and at the same time dreading to meet her who had repelled his advances. She was walking there with another girl, who looked something like her and might be her sister. The two sauntered along slowly, languidly, neither speaking to the other. As Eggleston's charmer approached she cast a momentary glance at him, then turned her eyes upon some other object. He plainly saw a look of hauteur in her face, but this might have been the result of sensitiveness on his part, which led him to imagine that he saw what was not there.

Eggleston looked for the girl the next day, but failed to find her. She had gone. However, he learned her name and the city in which she lived. But he considered himself no better off than when he had lost her in the crowd. He questioned if he was not worse off. He was in the position of one who had endeavored to force an acquaintance upon a girl and had received a rebuke.

Fortune favored him again. He was at an evening function and suddenly came upon the object of supreme interest to him. She was sitting alone. How could one who was so charming to him be a "wallflower?" He hunted for some one to introduce him to her, but found no one. He applied to the host, who replied: "All my guests are supposed to know one another when under my roof. I introduce no one." Considering Eggleston's sensitive condition, he was cowed. He went back to the place where he had left the girl, resolved on an attempt to placate her, and saw her walk out of the room. She went to the library, and he followed her. She took a book from a shelf and opened it. Eggleston stood a few feet behind her

"If you don't forgive me," he blurted, "I shall commit suicide."

He waited for a reply, but received none. Presently the girl turned and looked at him. Then she turned again to her book without a word.

This second rebuff took away all the courage there was in Eggleston. Again he slunk away, this time not only with pain but bitterness in his heart.

In some respects our minds are merely human machines, as our bodies are, and prone, like machinery, to get into conditions where they will not work properly. Eggleston's mind was at this time like a runaway auto. The power couldn't be turned off and there was danger of a smash. He had fallen in love with a girl at sight, had attempted to make her acquaintance without an introduction, been rebuffed, had asked forgiveness, been ignored, and was now in a desperate condition; in other words he was running away with himself.

He at once left the house where he had met with this second rebuff, went to his room and walked the floor till morning. He was sure he had seen a look of contempt on the girl's face. He was not sure but that there was mingled with this look a threat meaning "If you force yourself on me again I shall surely turn you over to the police." Nevertheless all this merely added to that wildly sensational condition which will beget more of the passion of love in a given time than any other cause. One moment he would calm himself down to a realization of the fact that he was in an abnormal condition, the next another paroxysm would sweep over him, and he would consider the propriety of blowing out his brains. This may seem overdrawn, but we must remember the many actual suicides by young men or girls [illegible]

But he survived. Gradually he came down to a condition where he could take thought upon the matter and lay a plan for future procedure. He would endeavor to gain the services of a third person, through whom he might gain forgiveness from the woman who considered herself insulted. The only person he knew who was surely acquainted with the girl was Charlie Rickets, at whose house he had met her. He wrote Rickets a note asking for a private interview. His request was granted, and Eggleston told him the whole story. He had not gone far before Rickets endeavored to put in a word, but Eggleston insisted on telling it all before receiving any comment.

When the story was finished Rickets offered to introduce his friend to the young lady, guaranteeing that she would listen to an explanation and the lover would be treated with consideration. He added that it would be better for Eggleston to be his own defender, and Rickets would not enter upon the subject with the girl.

A few days later Rickets wrote Eggleston, saying that he had arranged with the young lady that the latter should call on her on a certain evening. At the time appointed Eggleston called and sent in his card with a wildly beating heart. He was ushered into a cozy reception room, where he found the lady of his love. She rose as he entered with a reassuring smile, but said no word of welcome. Inviting Eggleston to a seat, she took up an ear trumpet lying on a table and, adjusting the small end to her ear, waited for him to talk into the other end.

There may be such a thing as too sudden a relief. Like a flash it occurred to Eggleston that on neither of the two occasions he had addressed her had she heard him. He had come to her to explain what he supposed she considered an insult. His intention was to tell her frankly that his excuse was the great love he had conceived for her, but this unlooked for situation was too much for him. He didn't know what to say. The small end of the tube was in the girl's ear; his mouth was in position to speak into the other. The girl was waiting for him to begin, but he couldn't begin. Desperate, scarcely knowing what he said, he shouted:

"It's a hot evening."

These four words were the beginning of a courtship that had been going on in Eggleston for a long while, but of which the lady was not conscious. They have been long married, and Eggleston jokes about his first words to his wife—the first, at least, she heard—having been so commonplace. But he has never forgiven Charlie Rickets for not having told him before he met her that she was deaf as a ferryboat. Charlie says he tried to do so, but Eggleston wouldn't listen to him.

If there is any moral to this story it is that it is the listeners and not the talkers who win. Eggleston should have suffered Rickets to tell him that the girl was deaf.

WELL KNOWN MINISTER

Restored to Health by Vinol

Rev. D. Schneider, who is a well known minister in Rice Lake, Wis., writes:

"I had a very severe stomach trouble last year from which I was kept in bed three months. I had engaged the services of a doctor, but to no avail. I then read of Vinol and determined to try a bottle. Before it was used up I was out of bed, and four bottles made me a well man. Vinol is a splendid medicine, and I can gladly recommend it."

Prominent men from all over the country do not hesitate to endorse this wonderful tonic.

For twelve years Vinol has been sold on the "money back" plan, and every year strengthens its popularity and proves by continued tests that it will do what we claim for it.

THE STORY OF SOME FLAX

A long time ago in a far away country there was a farmer who raised some flax. It grew until it had beautiful blue blossoms on it, when the farmer went out one day and pulled it up by the roots, then he hung it upon the fence to dry.

When it was thoroughly dry he took it to the house and it went through a great many different processes until finally it was woven into some very pretty linen cloth. It was then sold to a wholesale dealer. He kept it for about a year, then he sold it to a merchant in a small village.

One day, just before Christmas, a woman came into the store and bought some of the cloth to make a dress for her little girl. It was going to be given to her for a Christmas present. On Christmas morning the little girl was delighted with her dress. She wore it for a long time. It was then all worn out and was put away with a lot of other rags. They were thrown aside and neglected for about three years, then they were sold to a rag peddler.

They were then shipped a long ways away and went through a great many more processes until finally it came out in paper. It was then sold to a certain family and they wrote on it until there wasn't room for any more words. The children saw it and asked their mother if they could burn the paper up. She told them "yes." So they put the paper into the stove and ran out door to see the sparks go out of the chimney and up into the air. They watched them going up toward the sky and said, "There goes the school children." When the last spark went they all said, "There goes the schoolmaster." That was the end of the flax and it was never seen any more.

ANALYSIS OF PERCENTAGE OF FAILURES IN THE HIGH SCHOOL

From time to to time an x appears on the report cards of the pupils enrolled in the Tecumseh High School. These x's mean that in some study the pupil has failed and this question "Why do pupils fail?" has occasioned much thought and consideration. In a systematic way the Superintendent has gone about it to solve this problem. He has asked each teacher to secure for him a fair and true report of the conditions and circumstances of the pupils who have failed. Out of an enrollment of 423 that is by subjects the total number of reported failures are only 51. This is a very small percentage but the reasons for these are given here in the order of their importance.

1. The failure to prepare note book work. This work is important and counts from ¼ to ⅓ of the daily standing depending upon the subject to which the note book belongs.
2. Outside interests. Some pupils fail to concentrate their mind upon studies while in school, hence, their failure.
3. Waste of time in school. The excuse "I don't have time," will hardly apply to some for by observation it is very evident that some do not improve their time while in school.
4. Loss of time for sickness, which is always excusable and that means the pupil is allowed the privilege of making up their work.
5. Inability to do the work. In some cases it may seem that some are unable to grasp the work and get pass grades. The above report has been from the teachers' and superintendent's view point and the pupils themselves have been given a fair chance to express their opinions in regard to this matter. In 9 cases of 10 the pupils lay the blame on no one but themselves. The statement was made that if a pupil failed it was his own fault and that the lack of application was the most frequent cause of failure. In some cases it might have been the teachers fault and that being the assignment of lessons in advance of the class so that some of the work had to be omitted. But in most all cases the pupils are willing to acknowledge that their failures are their own and all are marked and graded according to the work which is done. This article has been written for the benefit of parents and guardians to show the reasons why pupils are unable to accomplish the work assigned.

GOOD ROADS

Philip T. Colgrove, President of the Michigan Good Roads Association, in a recent article says, "We want today roads that start somewhere, and go somewhere and are good all the way, and not part of the way. We are tired of patchwork.

The advisability of constructing and continuing, continuous Good Roads is patent to everybody.

Every township may justly feel proud if it has only a few miles of good roads, the trouble is however that we come to the end of the good road all to soon."

The following advice given by Mr. Colgrove to his own county, would be a good thing for every county and township Commissioner to ponder.

"When Ceasar took an eastward ride and grabbed the Gauls for Rome, what was the first thing that he did to make them feel at home? Did he increase the people's loads and liberty forbid? No, he dug in and built Good Roads—that's what old Ceasar did.

"Did Ceasar put the iron heel upon the foemen's breast, or did he try to make them feel that Roman rule was best? What did he do to make them glad he'd come their midst amid? He built Good Roads in place of bad—that what old Ceasar did.

He built Good Roads from hill to hill Good Roads from vale to vale; he ran a Good Roads movement till old Rome got old the kale. He told the folks to buy at home, build roads their hills amid, until all roads lead up to Rome that's what old Ceasar did.

"If any town would make the town the center of the map, where folks will come and settle down and live in plenty's lap, if any town its own abodes of poverty would rid, let it get [illegible] build Good Road—just like old Ceasar did."

MASONIC TEMPLE, MEN AND RELIGION MODERN MOVEMENT

Sunday 11:30 a. m., Address by G Roscoe Swift

There were 107 men at the meeting in Masonic Hall Sunday, to hear G. Roscoe Swift. Mr. Swift is Past Master of the Masonic lodges of Michigan. His popularity drew many Masonic brothers. His address bore especially on the value of Bible study by men. He expressed his conviction that the principle of the Scripture were fundamental to successful living C. A. Slayton, chairman of the local committee presided. Dr. Hartzog spoke briefly about plans for a men's banquet Jan. 16, to be held in Witherell's Hall in the interest of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

Hives, eczema, itch or salt rheum sets you crazy. Can't bear the touch of your clothing. Doan's Ointment cures the most obstinate cases. Why suffer. All druggists sell it.

1-4 OFF McCANN BROS. 1-4 OFF

The Big Buying Opportunity of the Year.

THE SALE THAT COMES ONLY ONCE A SEASON.

The reason for this Great Annual Event is the rigid policy originated by this store years ago NEVER to carry goods over from one season to another, and in order to clean up and make room for new Spring goods. Hence this annual sacrifice of One-Fourth Off regular prices.

This Sale begins Thursday, Jan. 11, and ends Saturday night, Jan. 27, 1912.

ONE QUARTER OFF means our ENTIRE stock of the very latest, new, seasonable Clothing and Furnishings, Men's Suits and Overcoats, Boys' and Children's Suits and Overcoats, extra Pants—all heavy goods, Leather Reversible Coats, Duck Coats, Corduroy Goods, Furnishing Goods, in Hats, Caps, Shirts, Underwear, Gloves, Mittens, Neckwear, Suit Cases, Sweater Coats, Sox—including Hawes Hats. We carry a larger line of Fancy and Dress Shirts, Collars and Neckties, than all the other dealers in town combined. Absolutely everything in our bright, new stock at a saving of 25 % on everything in our store, except Fur Coats, Overalls Work Shirts and Reversible Collars.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Isn't the lover who braves the storm a rain-beau?

Saves Two Lives

"Neither my sister nor myself might be living today, if it had not been for Dr King's New Discovery" writes A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C., R. F. D. No. 5, "for we both had frightful coughs that no other remedy could help. We were told my sister had consumption. She was very weak and had night sweats but your wonderful medicine completely cured us both. It's the best I ever used or heard of." For sore [illegible] Hemorrages, la grippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough,—all bronchial troubles,—its supreme. Trial bottle free, 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

Most rat holes will bear looking in to.

The Danger of La Grippe

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound; R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kas., says: "I was troubled with a sever attac of la grippe taat threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a postive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

MRS. HENRY PACKARD

Mr. Geo. Burroughs received a telegram announcing the death of Mrs Haley Packard of Rock Rapids, Ia., Sunday morning.

The remains will be brought here for burial, funeral from the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Just a few weeks ago we published the notice of the death of Dr. Vail a brother-in-law of Mrs. Packard who died in Chicago after a brief illness. Mrs. Packard was with her sister and assisted in caring for him until his death. Early last fall Mrs. Packard and a sister Mrs. Libbie Mills made Michigan a visit and spent some time at the home of their cousin Geo. Burroughs. She has a host of friends in Tecumseh who will mourn her passing away.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

There was a small attendance at the Opera House for the Farmers' Institute. S. H. Perry of the Adrian Telegram gave an interesting talk on Good Roads. The discussion that followed was most interesting.

In the evening the address by Dr. Nixon of the State Board of Health on the Union of Home, School and Grange for Sanitary Education was [illegible].

In spite of all adverse circumstances the meeting was a good one and those present were well repaid for their extra efforts.

Orton Wilson came home from Norvell this morning for a short visit.

Miss Mildred Boyce has returned to her school duties at Hubbardstin.

Roy VanWinkle was at home over Sunday from the M. A. C. with his parents.

NEWSPAPER BUSINESS IN A FLOURISHING CONDITION

The thirteenth census in regard to newspaper printing and publishing shows a 10 per cent increase in newspapers while magazines have declined.

The increase in Daily's was six per cent, Sunday's five per cent, Semi-Weeklies one per cent, weeklies one [illegible] and Monthly publications less than one per cent.

The greatest number and circulation appear both in 1909 and 1904 for publications devoted to news. Politics and family reading the ordinary newspaper making an average of seven per cent on dailies and weeklies.

FOR AGED PEOPLE

Old Folks Should Be Careful in Their Selection of Regulative Medicine

We have a safer dependable, and altogether ideal remedy that is particularly adapted to the requirments of aged people and persons of weak constitutions who suffer from constipation or other bowel disorders. We are so certain that it will relieve these complaints and give absolute satisfaction in every particular that we offer it with our personal guarantee that it shall cost the user nothing if it fails to substantiate our claims. This remedy is called Rexall Orderlies.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness or other undesirable effects.

They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigororous and healthy activity. Three sizes, 10c., 25c., and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

MISS ADDIE ROGERS

Miss Addie Rogers passed away at three o'clock this morning after an illness of several weeks duration. Miss Rogers has been a "shut in" for many years being more or less of an invalid since her girlhood.

Her's was a beautiful character bearing with Christian patience her many trials and afflictions and the peace of her spirit was expressed in her poem the "Vesper Bells" published in the Anniversary Editon of the Herald and perhaps nothing more perfectly expresses her faith and trust than this last verse of her own poem.

Ring on, sweet bell, I lift mine eyes;
The beauty of the earth, the glory of the sunset skies.
Ever more shall speak to me
Of the temple's sacrifice,
Of other glories yet to be
By faith attainable.

The heartfelt sympathy of the community goes out to her sister Emma, who for so many years has been her constant companion, and who has so lovingly ministered to her, in her hours of suffering and pain.

The funeral will be held at the home on Thursday afternoon, at 1:30. The Rev. Kennedy will officiate.

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine,
A splendid remedy for such attacks,
A medicine that has cured thousands.

Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.

Many Tecumseh people rely on it. Here is Tecumseh proof.

George O Chaplin, carpenter, N Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co, Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Office of the Lungs.

"What is the office of the lungs?" a teacher asked a small pupil in a class in physiology.

"The chest," she promptly replied.

"And," said the teacher, telling the story, "I guess she was somewhat near right, for the lungs certainly do business in the chest."

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the chronic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headaches, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 326 N. Notre Dame Street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.309 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

That Angel of Mercy

And an Unnatural Daughter Who Deserted Her Old Father

By Marie D. Carpenter

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The case of Helen Powell turning her poor old widowed father over to the care of his housekeeper, Miss Willard, a woman of thirty-five, puzzled the social world of Deerfield. The wife and mother died when Helen was sixteen years old, and Miss Willard naturally assumed, or, rather, continued to administer, the household affairs. Indeed, she had been during Mrs. Powell's illness indispensable. A few months after her mother's death Helen went to boarding school and remained there for three years except during vacations, when she visited some one of her schoolmates.

Miss Willard's entrance to the Powell household occurred when Mrs. Powell was taken ill. Some one was needed, and Miss Willard, who was a social acquaintance of the Powells, volunteered. Her offer was considered by her friends to be one of self abnegation, for she needed no compensation and would accept none. Therefore, although she was called the housekeeper, she stood on an equal social footing with Mr. Powell and his daughter, who were under an obligation to her from the time she entered the house.

"PEOPLE WILL TALK."

Helen Powell was a childlike girl, very amiable, by no means aggressive and easily upset by a misunderstanding with any one. Those who knew her best assigned this as the cause of her remaining away from her desolate father, thus throwing his care upon Miss Willard. On this account they excused her, but the outer world did not excuse her. She was looked upon as a very unnatural child of a suffering parent.

Miss Willard refrained from any comment upon Helen's actions, but when pressed for an explanation would say: "Helen is perfectly excusable. Her absence is no fault of her or her father. Devoted to the memory of his wife, he broods constantly over her loss. How can such a household be a place for a young girl just budding into womanhood?"

Helen was fond of society, and this was excellent proof of Miss Willard's explanation. It tended to separate the former more and more from the best people of Deerfield and drew the latter closer to them. Mr. Snively, minister of the principal church in the town, preached a sermon on the text, "The greatest of these is charity," instancing a case of a noble woman who was giving up her life without hope of reward to the care of an old person, while one who should be near and dear to him was spending her time in the worship of Mammon. Every one in the congregation recognized in these persons Mr. Powell, his daughter and Miss Willard.

There are always carpers, and in this case they averred that Mr. Powell possessed a little money, and, being an old man, Miss Willard was looking forward to its inheritance. One of her intimate friends, hearing of this slanderous statement, repeated it to Miss Willard. The lady replied that if anything could induce her to leave the poor old man to his fate this unjust charge would. She declared that she possessed an independent income of her own, whereas Mr. Powell did not give her enough to run the house and that she was frequently obliged to make up deficiencies from her own purse.

"Then why do you submit to such injustice?" asked the intimate friend. "Why do you not force that inhuman girl to come and bear this burden, which belongs to her and not to you?"

"I promised Mrs. Powell before her death that I would take care of her husband."

A number of ladies of Deerfield were one day drinking afternoon tea together when the subject of Miss Willard's sacrifice came up. Not only were encomiums passed upon Miss Willard, but vituperations heaped upon the unnatural Helen Powell.

"If she ever comes to Deerfield again," said one of the ladies, "I shall give her a piece of my mind."

"She ought to know how her neglect of her poor father is regarded," said another.

"I have a mind to write to her about it," chimed in a third.

"You don't need to do that," snapped a fourth. "I met her at a ball in Chicago last winter and told her just how people were talking."

"What did she say?" asked the first speaker.

"Why, she just looked out of those simpleton eyes of hers and said, 'People will talk no matter what you do.' Then a young fellow with his hair parted in the middle whisked her away in the barn dance."

"She doesn't appear to have any soul or any conscience," was the last comment, and the ladies turned the conversation upon the coming sleeve for woman's dresses.

Finally it was announced that Mr. Powell was very ill and his end was approaching. Every one expected this would bring his unnatural daughter to his bedside. But every one was disappointed. Helen did not appear till the day her father died. The town—the social town—was furious. Only a regard for the deceased as an old citizen and admiration for the woman who had been an angel of mercy to him kept most of the circle from remaining away from the funeral.

However, strange to say, these two reasons and a third crowded the church where the services were held. The third reason was that there was a universal desire to ogle this dreadful girl who had deserted her father. She walked into the church beside Miss Willard, and every eye was strained to see the two women, who represented the opposite types of sacrifice and selfishness, though it must be admitted that a morbid curiosity rendered Helen the greater attraction.

Mr. Snively preached the funeral sermon, but as the deceased had not rendered himself an interesting character, since he had afforded no example of Christian sacifice, the reverent gentleman ignored him and dwelt upon the noble example of one whom he did not name, but whom everybody knew. After it was all over the two women followed the coffin out of the church. The body was disposed of and all was over.

The next morning Deerfield was set agog by a report that Miss Willard had been summarily ejected from the Powell dwelling by that inhuman Powell girl without having been given more time than was necessary to pack her trunks. Women ran from house to house inquiring the truth of the report. It was confirmed. The will had been opened and it was found that Mr. Powell had left what little he possessed to the daughter who had deserted him. The confirmation was followed by another report that was also confirmed. Powell had left a fortune close on to a million. The breath of the people of Deerfield was taken quite away.

There are always those to say "I told you so," and persons who had averred that Miss Willard had been after what means Mr. Powell possessed held up their heads. Report after report flew through the town, and most of them were confirmed. One was that Miss Willard was Mr. Powell's widow and that she would attempt to break the will. This was denied, especially by those who stood by Miss Willard and who declared that nothing could shake their faith in that angel of mercy.

The truth was that from the reading of the will Helen Powell seemed transformed. She stayed that night with a friend and before leaving the angel of mercy gave her orders to get out of her house by noon the next day. The order was obeyed, and Helen moved in the next afternoon.

It had required several years to work the social circle of Deerfield up to the point that Miss Willard was a saint and Miss Powell was a sinner, and it could not be expected that their positions would be reversed in a day. Indeed, it was not possible that the latter should receive any attention immediately after her father's death. But the glittering spoon with which wealth trolls catches the fish, and as soon as it was known that that "mean old curmudgeon" who had till now been called that "poor deserted father" had died rich the bouleversement of public opinion came rapidly on.

Helen kept secluded, and cards kept on being left at her door. No one spoke openly of the conditions of the last few years, though whispers were flying like wireless messages. Miss Willard left the town without making any statement, and the wagging of the tongues of her defenders grew gradually less.

A few months after Mr. Powell's death the house in which he had lived was sold, and a card for every one received by his daughter bearing the letters standing for pour prendre conge (to say goodby) was sent out. That was all Deerfield society ever saw of the unnatural daughter.

Later Rev. Mr. Snively called upon her to apologize for his mistake concerning her, and she showed him a package of letters that had passed secretly between her and her father, showing how a woman of domineering will and possessing a secret to the old man's apparent discredit had first got rid of his daughter and then tried to make him marry her; how she succeeded in forcing him to make a will in her favor and how he had sent a later one to his daughter bequeathing her all his property.

Miss Willard never again appeared in Deerfield, nor did Helen Powell ever after make it her home. She maintained that persons who knew so much about other people's affairs simply by hearsay were not worth cultivating. She never forgave what she had endured during those years of exile in hearing encomiums heaped upon the woman who was stabbing her and the slurs upon herself.

is the way Miss Alta Abel of West Baden, Ind., summed up her existence after having sought in vain for health. She writes: "I was a complete wreck—always tired, worn out and nervous. I had to spend about one-third of my time in bed.

"Vinol, your delicious cod liver and iron tonic, was recommended, and I can truly say it has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took in my life. That nervous and tired feeling is all gone, I have gained in health, flesh and strength, until I feel like another person." (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

What Vinol did for Miss Abel, we know it will do for every nervous, run-down, overworked, tired, thin and discouraged woman in this vicinity.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Regal Underslung, a Feature.

A distinct feature of the Detroit show will be the appearance of the new $950 Regal Underslung, Model "T." As the first Underslung touring car to sell below $1,000 it is sure to prove one of the chief attractions of the entire show. Dealers who have seen this model have pronounced it one of the best cars offered for 1912. For people who do much driving over country roads the Underslung cars have proved ideal and all intending to purchase cars this season should not fail to examine this new Regal and the other Regal Underslungs.

A Death Feigning Plant.

That certain insects, birds, mammals and reptiles habitually pretend to be dead when danger threatens them is a well known fact, but it is generally believed that this stratagem is resorted to only by animals. In South America, however, there is a plant—a species of mimosa—which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing the grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems.

THE LATEST IS "AMBRUSHIER"

Detroit Auto Show Has a New Word.

Optimistic Tone Pervades the Words of Auto Dealers and Agents—Importance of Detroit as Show Town Now Recognized.

Some idea of the decorations for the Wayne Gardens and the annex at the time of the Eleventh Annual Automobile show of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' association, Jan. 22 to Jan. 27, inclusive, has been obtained from Manager Walter Wilmot. He said that the ceiling of the Wayne Gardens would be in "ambrushier." Everyone is guessing and as the manager received his information from the decorators, who will come to Detroit to carry out this work, he could not explain what the word meant and has agreed to donate a season ticket to the first one who sends in a correct description. The above spelling is according to the manager and does not seem to appear in the dictionary. The new decorations will be very elaborate this year. The ceiling will show pretty nearly every color in the rainbow. In the center of the main hall an immense automobile wheel will be suspended and this will be made prominent by an elaborate system of lights in the rear. Festoons of lights will be strung from the center to all parts of the building and the entire ceiling will be studded by electric lights. The walls of the building will be covered by drapery of lace curtain texture and the borders throughout will be composed of beech leaves. The floor will be covered by green burlap.

The ground floor of the main building will follow closely the decorations of the upper floor, the floor being also covered with green burlap. Smilax and beech leaves will be liberally used on the lower floor. An elaborate lighting system has been arranged for the lower floor and for the annex. A local firm has been given the contract to decorate the annex.

Among the members of the D. A. D. A. in this city, the coming season is expected to be the best ever known in the automobile industry. Early sales in 1912 models have exceeded those of last year and demands for commercial cars have been increasing steadily. At the coming show there will be many new designs of commercial cars shown and a great deal of business is planned for in this field. There will be more commercial cars at the coming exhibit than were ever before seen together in Detroit. There will be many new things in this field.

In the opinion of a prominent dealer who has just returned from the west and south, business has improved in every quarter over last year and with every prospect that continued improvement will be shown during the present winter.

"Although the winter months are usually the slowest selling time in the automobile industry," said he, "our company is running full force and working nights in every part-making department. In December alone we shipped 300 more cars than were shipped in December, 1910. It is our belief that 1912 will prove the biggest year in the history of the automobile industry."

How large a number of dealers feel the importance of Detroit as a show town is well shown in the list of exhibitors who crowd the main building and the annex to the Garden show. They include the Elmore Automobile Co., Chalmers Motor Car Co., Cartercar Co., Cadillac Motor Car Co., Olds Motor Works, Standard Auto Co. (Packard), Winton Motor Car Co., Brush Detroit Motor Co., Newman Lane Co. (Pierce, Stoddard-Dayton and Rauch-Lang), Buick Motor Co., Lozier Motor Co., Cunningham Auto Co., (E. M. F. and Flanders), Ford Motor Car Co., Abbott-Detroit Motor Co., Lion Motor Sales Co., Seidler Motor Sales Co. (Regal), Warren-Detroit Car Co., Grant Bros. Auto Co. (Everitt and Amplex), United Motor Detroit Co. (Maxwell, Columbia and Sampson), Thompson Auto Co. (Federal, King and Mack), General Motors Co. (Rapid, Reliance and Electric), J. P. Schneider (Stevens-Duryea), J. H. Brady Auto Co. (Hudson), Detroit Hupmobile Co., Regal Motor Car Co., Gillespie Auto Sales Co. (Electric), Oakland Motor Car Co., Marquette Co., Anderson Carriage Co. (Detroit Electric), Motor Wagon Co., W. A. Patterson, Flint, Hupp Corporation (R. C. H.), Flanders Mfg. Co. (Electric), C. S. [illegible] (Detroiter), Commerce Motor [illegible] Co., Churchfield Motor Car Co., [illegible], Mich., Krit Motor Car Co., Miller Car Co., Grinnell Electric Co., Grabowsky Power Wagon Co., American Steam Truck Company of Lansing, the [illegible] Motor Truck Company of Cleveland, a concern that will show one of the newest of the motor trucks in the Detroit territory, the Neumann-Lane Co., who will show the big five ton Pierce truck, the Kissell Kar Co., the Hayward Motor Car Co. of Port Huron, the Poss Motor Co., Miller Motor Car Co., Cunningham Auto Co., the Anderson Electric Car Co., the Oliver Motor Car Co., Lion Motor Sales Co., Overland Motor Sales Co., Herreshoff Motor Co., Paige-Detroit Co. and others.

A large number of accessory dealers and manufacturers have been awarded space in the annex, together with some fifteen or twenty cars and

OPINIONS HAVE OPTIMISTIC TREND

Dealers Think Trade Conditions Will be Reflected at Auto Show in Detroit Week After Next.

There is an optimistic trend in the opinions of members of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' association, whose show will be held at Wayne Gardens, Jan. 22 to Jan. 27 inclusive, regarding the outlook for the year 1912. All plan to exhibit at the Detroit show their newest and very latest productions and many new surprises are promised; especially will this appear in the commercial line, as practically every maker of pleasure cars is now planning to enter the commercial field and announcements are being frequently made. A great many of these new models will be shown for the first time at Detroit and will attract not only the interest of the business men of Detroit, but the interest of the thousands of visitors who will be in the city in the search for new things in the commercial car and also the pleasure car field.

In the opinion of practically every member of the D. A. D. A., the season of 1912 will be the greatest in the history of the automobile industry. The vast increase in orders for the first half of the 1912 season, oftentimes amounting to 50 per cent. in many cases and the regularity with which orders are still being reported for 1912, leads not only the makers but also the agents into their present optimistic opinions.

Reports from the great northwest, from the far west, from the southwest and from all over the south are all favorable. Apparently there is no slump in the automobile trade in any portion of the country and this fact, coupled with the universal demand for cars for export to every portion of the globe, is enough to warrant these optimistic opinions.

One year ago in Detroit, there were opinions expressed freely without hindrance that outputs would be vastly decreased for the 1912 season and optimists were hard to find. This cry of "wolf" failed to materialize, for no wolf came. New factories sprang up on all sides and are still being constructed and the business increased greatly instead of decreased.

With the general increase of automobiles on the highways and byways of the country and especially on the business streets of every city, town and hamlet in the country, the natural supposition is that there will be a continued increase, for the automobile today stands as an indispensable addition to the transportation facilities of this country and a facility that will never be dispensed with and in fact cannot be dispensed with for any time in the future.

DETROIT AUTO SHOW AT TOP

Now Generally Conceded That the Wayne Garden Exhibition Is One of the Four Best Shows in the Country.

The Eleventh Annual Automobile Show of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' association, will be held in the Wayne Gardens and in the Wayne Annex, Jan. 22 to Jan 27, inclusive. This eleventh annual show will be the greatest ever held in Detroit and will be the leading local show of America. There are three national shows, New York, Chicago and Boston, and ranking next to these is the Detroit show. The prominence of the Detroit exhibit is due to the fact that it requires more floor space and is given at the heart of the automobile industry. The demand for space in Detroit was so large that it was necessary to secure a permit from the city to close Front street, allowing the construction of an additional building known as the "Annex" and covering a space 180 feet long by 66 feet wide. There were forty applicants for space in the Annex, doubling the number of exhibitors at the show. About eighty lines of cars will be shown and the exhibitors of automobile accessories will number fully two score. The exhibition of accessories in Detroit for the coming show is something new in Detroit and will bring forth great novelties that will not be exhibited at the national shows. Manager Walter Wilmot has promised something novel in decorations and there is every evidence that the Detroit show will occupy front rank among the automobile shows of America in 1912.

HAS TOO FEW CARS.

Michigan Does Not Use Automobiles in the Proportion to Population that Other States Do.

Michigan, while it makes more cars than any other state, is still less of an auto-using community than many others. Kansas and Nebraska have more cars in proportion to population and in many counties nearly every farm has a car. Much interest is manifested throughout the state in the possibilities of a large use of cars by farmers and it is thought that many dealers and would be dealers will try to make favorable connections during automobile show week at Detroit, Jan. 22 to 27.

Many good cars could use dealers who will work in the smaller cities of this state and live dealers can not do better than to spend a large portion of that week in getting acquainted with automobile types and methods.

The Light Was There.

A well known New York clubman was found by a police officer very late one night in a pitiable state of intoxication. The wretched fellow stood beneath a lamppost, which he was kicking with might and main.

Slightly amused, the policeman watched him a moment. Then he said: "Here, sir, what are you doing there?"

No reply. Only—bang, bang, bang—the tipsy one dealt the lamppost three more kicks.

"What are you doing?" repeated the policeman.

The man delivered another quick volley of very furious kicks, and then, looking up, he said:

"Oh, I know—she's in all right, 'cause there'sh—hic—a light upstairs."

The Mountain Man

Secret of His Solitude Is Solved

By Agnes G. Brogan

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The three had attracted much attention from the time that they had started out upon their long journey—the beautiful woman with the somber eyes, her golden haired little son, who made his way with confidence into the arms and hearts of passengers alike, and the bright faced girl who devoted herself tirelessly to both mother and child.

"Who is she?" a curious one asked of the boy. "Your governess or mother's companion?" And Bobbie wrinkled his brows thoughtfully.

"Most of the time," he answered, "she is just our friend."

The train slowly wound its way up the mountain slope one sunshiny morning, then stopped at a little settlement, where many passengers alighted to enjoy the view. The beautiful woman gazed listlessly at the glorious panorama spread out before her, while the girl caught Bobbie by the hand.

"Come," she said; "we will gather some wild flowers."

At length the train whistle called shrilly, and the people ran laughing and crowding up the steps. The girl, flushed and breathless, came last. The mask of indifference fell from the woman as she leaned forward.

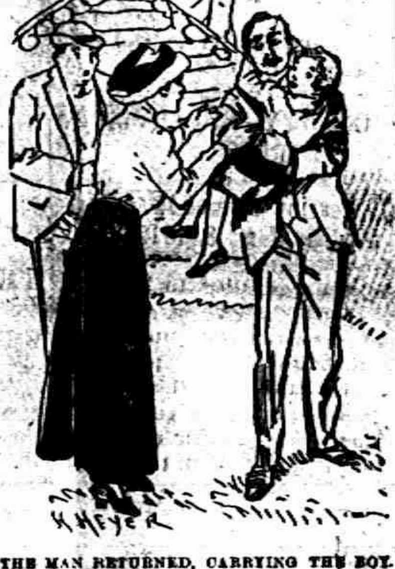
"Where is Bobbie?" she cried.

"He started back long ago to bring a flower to you."

In a moment all was confusion. Eager helpers searched the cars unavailingly, and the whistle blew a last warning as the girl drew Bobbie's mother hastily into the road.

"We will have to stay over until we find him," she said.

A searching party was instituted at once, while the two women waited all day long at the shack which did duty as a hotel, but as night fell no trace of the missing boy had been found. Many messages were dispatched to various places, and in the morning, following a night of suspense, a detective arrived from the nearest city.



THE MAN RETURNED, CARRYING THE BOY.

"The boy's mother is a wealthy woman," he explained to the girl, "and the police suspect that this may be a case of kidnaping."

She listened wide eyed as he sharply questioned the rough men who lounged about the wooden platform. At last one was found who could give a helpful clew. He had seen a yellow haired boy who wore a scarlet cap going far up the lonely trail with "the mountain man."

"Describe him," the detective said quickly. "Where does he live?"

The informant hesitated a moment doubtfully. "He's a queer one," he answered. "Lives away up thar by himself; never speaks to one of us, and no one knows whar he come from or what's his name. That's why we just call him 'the mountain man.' I'll show you his shack," he agreed suddenly, and the men departed.

When the official returned later in the day the girl came forward to meet him.

"The child's mother is too ill to be disturbed at present," she said. "Will you tell me what you have learned?"

"Very little," he replied, "though we found this mysterious 'mountain man.' He was fishing in one of the small streams and was not disposed to talk, answering our questions in monosyllables. When we told him that the boy had been seen in his company yesterday he coolly gave us permission to search his cabin home. We have done so."

"And you found?" she asked breathlessly.

Fumbling in an inner pocket, he drew forth a tiny crumpled shoe and laid it in her palm.

"Only this," he replied.

"Why, it is too small!" the girl cried wonderingly. "This is a baby's shoe."

She stood thoughtfully regarding the little bent shoe.

"I should like to talk to this strange man," she said at length. "Please, will you take me to him?"

He looked up in surprise. "I am afraid it would be useless, and the fellow is not very civil."

"Still, I should like to go," she insisted.

So he led her up and up the steep mountain path, pausing at last in an isolated spot, where a log cabin was almost buried from sight among the tall trees which surrounded it. The door stood open, and, motioning the official to wait outside, she entered unannounced. A man at the farther end of the room looked up startled at her appearance. His dark eyes shone out weirdly from a white haggard face, and his short laugh was not pleasant to hear.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "The mother."

The girl did not reply to this, but, coming forward, placed the baby's shoe upon the table between them.

"I have brought this back to you," she said quietly, "and I have a reason for asking how it came to be found here."

"This shoe was worn by my boy. How old was he? Two, or three perhaps, and yet—a manly little fellow. We had a pretty big estate back there, and he delighted in following me about, loved to ride upon a horse's back when I would hold him, or, better still, to sit before me on the saddle as we cantered wildly about the fields. These rides were a source of torture to his mother, and I would laugh at her fears as she stood, tense and white, waiting to have him safe in her arms again.

"We promised to give them up for her sake, but the boy coaxed very prettily one day for 'just one more ride,' and I yielded, vowing that this would be the last time." The man gazed unseeing through the doorway. "It was the last time," he continued huskily. "I shall never know how it happened—the little body slipped suddenly from my grasp and lay motionless upon the ground. When I stooped blindly to raise him in my arms the mother was there before me, and at the accusing light in her eyes I drew back afraid. She bore him tenderly into the house, and when I would have gone to her she repulsed me bitterly. All night long I waited outside my boy's door as the physician watched at his bedside.

"'How is he?' I asked at dawn, and the old doctor shook his head gravely and clasped my hand in sympathy. Later a note was handed me. I read it over now when the longing to go to her becomes unbearable.

"'You have killed my child,' she wrote, 'and I will never willingly see your face again.'

"So I lost them both. It did not take very long to arrange my affairs, to make sure that her future would at least be provided for. Then I came away, traveling abroad a greater part of the time, trying to forget, or spending the summer months in this silent place, where I write my books and further my experiments undisturbed. I did not realize my depth of loneliness until I met that little lad of yours and sought to keep him at my side. A host of memories came thronging back at the sound of his voice. I showed him my collection of golden butterflies. A strange madness seized me—I could not let him go."

He had been talking excitedly. Now he arose, and his tone was calm. "The child has been content, waiting for mother to call for him. He is asleep down there in the little shack that I use for experiments. I will bring him to you."

He laughed again harshly as he turned toward the door. "I shall be under arrest, no doubt. Concealing a child for two days will be rather a difficult matter to explain."

The girl put forth her hand impulsively, looking up with tear bright eyes. "Bring the child," she said, "and leave the rest to me."

The detective's face expressed amazement as the man returned carrying the boy. Bobbie greeted the girl joyously, but his little arms did not loosen their hold.

"It is all right," the girl said, facing the official. "This man is the boy's father. He has been spending some time here in order to pursue a certain course of study, though we did not expect to find him at this exact spot. The child is quite safe in his care, you see, and I will return with you presently to end his mother's suspense."

The detective hesitated and then quietly withdrew, and the girl laughed unsteadily as "the mountain man's" eager, questioning eyes met hers.

"It is all true," she said gently. "Your child lived, and that cruel note was written when the worst was feared, written in a moment of despair. Since then Elizabeth has been breaking her heart in bitter repentance. As she told her sad story I secretly determined to find you. This seemed a discouraging task; but, hearing that you had been located in these mountains, I persuaded Elizabeth to take this trip under pretense of benefiting her health, hoping desperately the while that some fortunate chance might lead us to your hiding place."

She turned to go, then looked back. Her eyes shone. "I could not foresee Bobbie's part in the plan," she said, "but my purpose has been accomplished."

The waiting detective lingered a moment more undecidedly, then slowly followed her flying figure as she sped down the narrow path. And a very short time later, as the father still sat holding his golden haired lad, the crude door was thrust open to admit a beautiful woman, whose eyes were somber no longer, but brilliant with joy.

"Philip," she cried, and in an instant he was at her side.

"Elizabeth," his voice entreated, "can you forgive?"

"It is I who beg forgiveness," she said brokenly, "for having left you to suffer alone so long."

And the girl who was "the most of the time their friend" had a confused vision of mother, father and child all folded together in a close embrace as she closed the door softly and stepped out into the early night.

Like a Scene From the Middle Ages.

The oldest and largest university in the world is El Azhar at Cairo. Founded in 975, it has been from the start a national institution, the khedive being the rector. The minimum age of entrance is fifteen, and the applicant must know half the Koran by heart, if blind the whole Koran, and be able to read and write. The curriculum consists of virtually nothing but theology and canon law, the final examination fifteen years after matriculation being upon these, together with traditions of the prophet: Grammar, etymology, rhetoric and logic. It is the same instruction which has prevailed for centuries, and one who goes into the great court where the circles of students are sitting at the feet of their Gamaliels looks upon a scene preserved from the middle ages, "a perfect specimen, living, breathing and entire."—Argonaut.

Fasting For Health.

Thousands of years before it was practiced as a religious rite fasting was practiced as a health measure in Egypt, India and China. Contemporary to Cicero was Asclepiades, a Greek physician, who strongly advocated this idea, and 1,000 years after his day Ibn Sina, philosopher and medical sage, argued the virtues of temporary abstinence on the ground that it came easier than constant moderation.

JUST A WORD ABOUT BREAD
The Main Staff of Life.

REMEMBER
Kerr's Quality is inferior to none, superior to most, and is just strictly a HOME-MADE BREAD
as ever came out of a bakeshop.

It is made according to as good a formula as any city bakery uses, and as to sanitary methods, it is made here in your home town, and you are at liberty to call and be your own judge. Remember, Kerr's Quality bread contains just as pure milk, lard and good flour as bread from the big city.

Does the city put any money into your town and help build it up? No. Why then patronize city bakeries? You have two good bake shops in your town, what need is there for you to buy bread from the city.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Saves Two Lives

"Neither my sister nor myself might be living today, if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery" writes A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C., R. F. D. No. 8, "for we both had frightful coughs that no other remedy could help. We were told my sister had consumption. She was very weak and had night sweats but your wonderful medicine completely cured us both. It's the best I ever used or heard of." For sore lungs, coughs, colds, hemorrage, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough,—all bronchial troubles,—its supreme. Trial bottle free, 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

Most rat holes will bear looking into.

The Danger of La Grippe

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound; R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kas, says: "I was troubled with a sever attac of la grippe taat threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a postive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

It doesn't require an axe to cut an acquaintance.

Solves A Deep Mystery

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as tho' made just for me." For Dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at C. A. Wright & Son.

Corn on the cob is more acceptable than corn on the foot.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound

Is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. All Druggists of Tecumseh.

There is no impropriety in using a spring wagon in the fall.

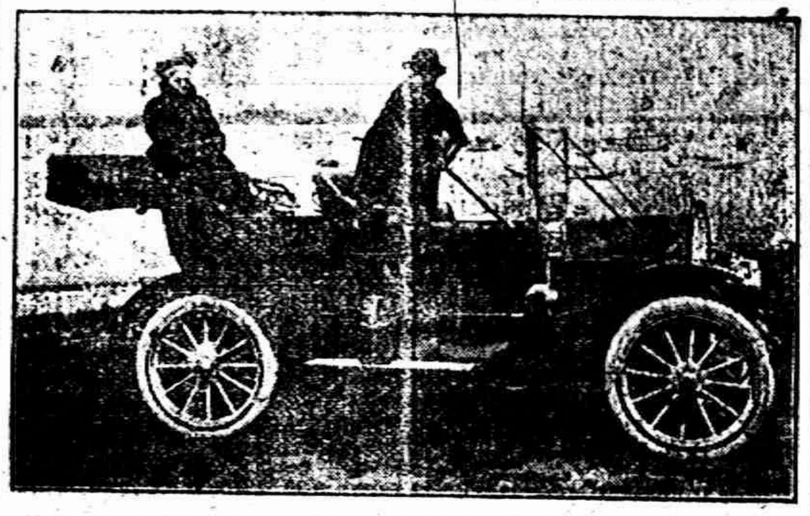
"MRS. TOM THUMB" IS STILL ACTIVE THOUGH RETIRED.



Here are perhaps two of the most widely known people in the world. Who is there that has not heard all about Tom Thumb and his wife? Most everyone of any age remembers seeing them with the old Barnum circus, where they were always surrounded by a curious throng. Their name has become a byword in nearly every home and in rhyme and story they have been pictured so long that many have almost come to think of them as mythical things. Tom Thumb is now dead. His wife, however, is still living and is remarried to the Count Magri, who is shown with her in the picture. The Count is a dwarf almost exactly the same size as the original Tom Thumb.

This picture was taken while they were out for a little spin in one of the famous friction driven Cartercar automobiles. The photographer requested them to pose for him and they are seen standing up on the seats, giving a remarkable illustration of their diminutive size. They are enthusiastic motorists and enjoy their daily drives as much as anyone else could. They like the Cartercar because it is so simple and easily controlled that it is always safe. It is indeed humorous to see the little Count sitting in the big car, his head hardly showing above the steering wheel. At first he could not very well run a car, as he was not strong enough to crank the motor, but now with the self-starter he can drive as well as any full sized person. Mrs. Thumb, as she still prefers to be called, was seventy years old last October. Many people will be surprised to learn that she is still alive. She has been on the stage many years, since she quit showing for Mr. Barnum. This last season, however, she retired from all public appearances and this popular idol of all classes of people will soon be seen on the stage no more. A little fortune has been laid away as the result of her remarkable career and she and her royal husband enjoy peaceful luxury

THE COUNTY SUPERVISORS MEET

January Session Opened in Adrian Monday Jan. 8, 1912

The session was called to order at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. 17 members were present. Not much business was transacted except to arrange for the business of the week.

It is expected that the good roads proposition will be taken up extensively, as it is anticipated there will be many petitions sent in.

MICHIGAN'S DIAMOND FESTIVLE

The University of Michigan will this year celebrate the seventy fifth anniversary of its founding. A committee has been raised made up of representatives from the Board of Regents, from the University Senate, from the Alumni Association, and from the Michigan Union to perfect plans for the celebration. While the details of the plans have not as yet been worked out, it has been determined by the committee however, that the celebration shall be held during Commencement week, June 23 to 27 inclusive. It is probable that three principal addresses will be given during the celebration, one Sunday, Jun 23, to take the place of the ordinary Bacalaureate Address, one Wednesday morning June 26, and another upon the occasion of Commencement, June 27. Distinguished speakers from different parts of the country will be secured for these addresses. The committee expects to have the details of its recommendations fully worked out for adoption by the Board of Regents at its next meeting, January 26.

BRITTON SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED FOR A WEEK

We clip the following from an exchange, as every one is interested in the case.

Rumors have been prevalent that the town of Britton had been quarantined on account of the prevalence of smallpox, that schools and business places had been closed and that the town was practically isolated. An investigation of the matter proves, however, that the situation has been greatly exaggerated, and while there are a few cases of smallpox there, all are light cases, no quarantine exists and there is no epidemic.

The schools are closed this week, however, as the three children of E. A. Brehman are suffering from light cases of the disease, and the action is taken by the school authorities so that all the pupils may be vaccinated to guard against contagion. The schools are closed this week only, beginning Monday. It is expected they will open again next Monday.

ALBERT E. SPAFFORD

Albert Elwin Spafford, son of Percy and Della Spafford of Jackson, Mich., died of pneumonia January 9, 1912, aged 2 years and 9 months.

The funeral will be held at the home of George Page Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, burial in Brookside Cemetery.

TECUMSEH OPERA HOUSE

TECUMSEH GETS TWO CITY ATTRACTIONS

"Paid in Full" and "The Goose Girl" will both be seen here the latter part of this month. "Paid in Full" is by Eugene Walter, author of "The Wolf" which gave such good satisfaction here last winter, and is claimed to be even a stronger drama than "The Wolf." The company playing here is a city company and carries the production complete, including all special scenery, etc.

"The Goose Girl" is another Baker & Castle production (same people that produced Graustark) and the patrons of the house are assured of a wealth of the most beautiful scenery ever seen here. "The Goose Girl" is a new production this season as was "Satan Sanderson" and it is a very unusual thing for a city as small as Tecumseh to get productions of this class the first year they are on the road.

Tecumseh has enjoyed some excellent attractions this season and will continue to do so according to the present outlook and why shouldn't she, with a house that will seat over 800 people and a stage that can 'stage' any production that Adrian, Jackson, or the Lyceum theatre at Toledo can handle and the people have shown their willingness to high class attractions by the crowded houses that witnessed "The Lion and the Mouse," "Graustark," "Satan Sanderson" and several other of the better class attractions.

AN INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENT

The Elma B. Smith Co gave a pleasing entertainment Wednesday evening, at the Baptist church. Elma B. Smith having taken to the Vaudeville stage Miss Gladys Moon, whom she has trained, has taken her place as the star of the Company. She delighted the audience a number of times with her clever readings.

The little violinist also became very popular in the course of the evening. The audience was much larger than when the first number was given. The next number will be "Demonstration of the Wonders of Electricity," by Prof. Louis Williams Feb. 15, at the Methodist church.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

"Auld Lang Syne" a two reel Vitagraph feature film will be shown at Opera House, To morrow (Saturday Jan. 13) night. This famous production was suggested by the world wide poem by 'Bobbie' Burns and is an unusually faithful production of that beautiful Scotch poem. Miss Florence Turner plays the leading role. Auld Lang Syne at the Opera House Saturday night only. The admission remains the same 5c to all. Don't miss this chance of seening this great Vitagraph feature

SCHOOL NOTES

The report cards were given out last week, and occasioned much joy(?) among those who received these monthly souvenirs.

English II people were given the privilege Tuesday morning of answering "a few little test questions," on The Merchant of Venice.

Harold Harrison was absent the first part of the week, returning Wednesday.

Harold McClure taught the United States History class Tuesday afternoon and some of his methods were decidely original.

Miss Ruth Daniels visited the school last Friday.

There is plainly wrong up here; the school house is either sinking or else the wall paper is getting so old that it won't stay on the walls. For in the twelfth room it is coming off by the yard, and nothing but the electric light wires keep the plastering from falling about our ears.

Thurlow Sweet was absent from school this week.

Miss Myrtle Bell visited the school last Wednesday.

German I had a test Tuesday afternoon. It was given on the honor system, which means no whispering nor even looking on some one's else paper. All the teachers are taking up this system and if they keep it up, what shall we do?

English IV are reviewing preparatory to examinations.

THE ICE HARVEST

The Inter-State Ice Co. at Sandusky are trying out a new motor plow which will do the work of a dozen horses and the same number of men. From 25 to 30 firms are in field the ice is from 9 to 11 inches thick and promises to be the most bountiful crop of late years.

Tecumseh is also most rich in ice. It is reported to be 18 inchs thick, and the ice men are busy. The Tecumseh Lake Ice Co. have a capacity for 5000 tons and they hope to fill every building.

MICHIGAN MEN CLASH

The Detroit News has a fine picture of Edward Frensdorf of Hudson, Mich., State Manager of the Wilson boom, and Edwin O. Wood, Committe Man from Michigan, with a report of their clash which we give below:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8—One of the first features of the fight in the democratic national committee meeting today to attract attention was a collision between Edward Frensdorf, of Hudson, Mich., state manager of the Wilson boom, and Edwin O. Wood, national committeeman from Michigan. Frensdorf had sent a telegram to W. F. McCombs, Wilson's manager, who has opened headquarters here, stating that he could not locate the Michigan national committeeman to communicate with him direct but that he wanted to say that the Michigan democracy was solidly for a presidential primary. Also that the state was practically unanimous for Woodrow Wilson. This telegram was shown to Mr. Wood by the assistant secretary of the national committee and then Wood broke loose.

"I haven't the acquaintence of Mr. Frensdorf," he said, "but my understanding is that he is a member of Gov. Osborn's cabinet, having been appointed recently by the republican governor of our state as a member of the Jackson prison board. I also understand that he, with Gov. Osborne, is one of the largest stockholders in the governor's official Detroit organ, the Detroit Times."

Having handed the Wilson manager this, Mr. Wood proceeded to reiterate his position on the question of a presidential primary in states that have no legal machinery with which to hold such a primary. Mr. Wood has all along been opposed to attempting a primary unless there is a state law for the protection of its integrity, and as he has not concealed this, it is supposed that Mr. Frensdorf was seeking to reach the national committee by means other than through Mr. Wood rather than to address Mr. Wood directly.

AWAY GOES CATARRH

Breathe Soothing Healing Hyomei—Relief in Five Minutes

Where there's catarrh there's catarrh germs. You can't get rid of catarrh unless you kill these germs.

You can't kill these germs with stomach medicine or sprays or douches because you can't get where they are.

You can kill these germs with HYOMEI a penetrating antiseptic air that you breathe a few times a day directly over the raw, sore, germ infested membrane.

For catarrh, asthma, croup, coughs, colds and catarrhal deafness Hyomei is sold on money back plan by C. A. Wright & Son. Complete outfit $1.00 Extra bottles of HYOMEI if afterwards needed only 50 cents. Remember, HYOMEI does not contain morphine cocaine or any drug that could possibly do harm.

Don't use harsh physics. The reaction weakens the bowels, leads to chronic constipation. Get Doan's Regulets. They operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

MEN'S BANQUET

Next Thursday evening there will be a Union Men's Banquet, under the direction of the Forward Movement committee at the Methodist church. Prof. J. F. Mack of Hillsdale, will deliver an address on, "Men and the Book." The supper will be served at 6:30 by the ladies of the Methodist committee. Although this is the regular time for serving a supper to the general public, this time it will be for men and boys only. The committee would be pleased to have a large number of boys present, and urge the parents to send them. Price of tickets 35c. They need to know who can attend by Tuesday evening. C. A. Slayton, chairman. R. S. Moore, secretary.

MRS. HENRY PACKARD

She is survided by one son Frank seven grandchildren, one brother Nelson F. Burroughs of Chicago and two sisters, Mrs E Mills of Dallas, Texas and Mrs. A. M. Vail of Rock Rapids, Ia.

GROCERY STORES CLOSE AT 7

Editor Herald:

As we commence to close our store at seven o'clock next week perhaps a few words in regard to the time of closing would not be out of place.

For a number of years the grocery stores in Tecumseh, closed at seven o'clock during the winter months but for the last two years it has been impossible to get any agreement and the result is that some one in each store must stay till 8:30 or 9 o'clock in order to get all the trade that would come to that store.

As a matter of fact ninety nine per cent of the business comes before seven o'clock and the balance would if people knew that the stores would be closed at that time.

I take this opportunity to thank the many people who have given us their patronage and hope they will be satisfied with the seven o'clock closing hour. We shall in the future as in the past give you the best service possible.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.

A little cause may hurt the kidneys

Spells of backache often follow,

Or some irregularity of the urine,

A splendid remedy for such attacks

A medicine that has cured thousands

Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.

Many Tecumseh people rely on it.

Here is Tecumseh proof.

George D. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

Foley Kidney Pills

Always give satisfaction because they always do the work J. T. Shelnut, Breman, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wieber's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cutler's of 325 N. Notre Dame Street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills FOR BACKACHE

Lamb and His Snuffbox.

"One summer's evening," writes Hone, "I was walking on Hampstead heath with Charles Lamb, and we had talked ourselves into a philosophic contempt of our slavery to the habit of snuff taking, and with the firm resolution of never again taking a single pinch we threw our snuffboxes away from the hill on which we stood far among the furze and brambles below and went home in triumph. I began to be very miserable; was wretched all night. In the morning I was walking on the same hill. I saw Charles Lamb below, searching among the bushes. He looked up, laughing, and said: 'What! You are come to look for your snuffbox too?' 'Oh, no,' said I, taking a pinch out of a paper in my waistcoat pocket; 'I went for a halfpenny worth to the first shop that was open.'"

A Poor Press Agent.

Max O'Rell was exceedingly popular as a lecturer, and the way in which his mother viewed the suggestion that her son should take to the platform is worth repetition. She wrote to him from the native village which she had never left for more than a day to say that she did not think appearing before audiences to be reputable business, and when he replied that he had decided to do it and had signed a contract to that effect the dear old lady wrote back that she was "still" his loving mother and that she would tell no one in the village about it.

Her Dear Friend.

"Jack is blindly in love with you."

Sheared In Installments.

Sheep are put to double use in the northern part of India, in the Himalayas. They are driven from market to market with the wool still growing, and in each village the owner shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheared sheep with the grain he receives in exchange. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each animal carrying a bag of grain.

Got His Reward.

Old Maid—But why should a great strong man like you be found begging? Wayfarer—Dear lady, it is the only profession I know in which a gentleman can address a beautiful woman without an introduction.—London Sketch.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes man strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Retort Genial.

A southern woman who is now past her prime but whose ready wit still makes her a welcome guest wherever she goes, tells the following story about an encounter with what she terms a "northern iceberg." She was at a musical entertainment at a private house in New York, and at the end of a song which had been delightfully rendered she turned with an exclamation of pleasure to a lady who sat near and whom she knew by sight, but had never met. The woman addressed looked at her in surprise for a moment and then asked coldly, "Have I the pleasure of knowing you?"

"No," was the answer, "but I felt at liberty to speak to you on account of your being under such very great obligations to me."

"Will you have the goodness to explain what you mean?" said the New York woman haughtily.

"Merely that I refused your husband twenty-five years ago," replied the little southerner as she moved away to seek a more congenial atmosphere.

The Vegetarian Oyster.

Oysters are most exemplary in the matter of diet. The oyster is well nigh a vegetarian, living almost exclusively on seaweed, including the minute pine pollen of the water. Smaller animals form only 5 per cent of his food. He is a methodical feeder, always dining between the hours of 12 and 2 in the afternoon. When he wants his meals he simply opens his shell and lets the water flow in through a sort of gill, which retains the food, allowing the water to run out again. It is only in frosty weather that the oyster goes off his feed. In order to protect himself as much as possible from the cold he lies with the bulging shell uppermost. In this position he cannot open his shell and must perforce go short of food. But he would sooner starve than let the cold water in to chill his delicate flesh. Bless him!—London Chronicle.

In Mourning For Tigers.

The Moss-Arol, otherwise known in Darrang as Bagh-arol, the tiger folk, a subtribe or sept of the Bara race, still regard it as the correct thing to go into mourning for twenty-four hours or so whenever a tiger dies near their village. Solid food is tabooed—no slight privation to the Kachari, stout fellows and, in fact, the navvies of Assam par excellence. Then at the end of the fast there must be a general cleanup; the floors and walls being smeared with a mud, clothes and brazen utensils being thoroughly cleansed in running water and earthenware vessels that have been used at all being actually broken and thrown away. Lastly, santi-jal, "the water of peace," is drunk and the flesh of a sacrificed fowl or pig eaten by all the clansmen in common.—London Athenaeum.

Big Hearted Goldsmith.

Mills, a fellow collegian of Goldsmith's, called one morning to offer Oliver a breakfast, when he was adjured in answer to his knock and in a smothered voice to force open the door and enter. When Mills and others had at last forced the bolted door they found Goldsmith so entangled in the ticking of his bed that he could not extricate himself without help. He explained that as the night before had been piercing cold he had given a poor perishing woman with five children all his bedclothes. What could he do? He had nothing else, not a penny, to give her. "It was a cold night, too," he added, "for I couldn't at first sleep till I thought of ripping open the mattress to lie in the ticking."—"Oliver Goldsmith," by R. Ashe King.

A Surprise For Swagger.

"Yes," said Swagger, "this is a turkeze ring."

"Excuse me," said Bangs; "the correct pronunciation of that word is 'turkwoise.'"

"No; turkeze, excuse me."

"I say turkwoise."

"Well, let's go to the jeweler and ask him."

"Right."

"In order to settle a wager," said Swagger to the jeweler, "would you mind telling me if the correct pronunciation of the stone in this ring is turkeze or turkwoise?"

The jeweler took the ring and examined it carefully. "The correct pronunciation," he said, "is glass."—London Tit-Bits.

Douglas Jerrold In School.

Douglas Jerrold wrote "Black Eyed Susan" when he was twenty-one and contributed to Punch the immensely popular "Caudle Lectures" not long afterward. But at nine years of age young Jerrold had been scarcely able to read, and it was not until he was apprenticed to a printer, after serving for some time as a midshipman at sea, that he showed either desire or capacity for intellectual improvement.

Self Deception.

Of all solitaire games the soonest learned is self deception. The dullest mind can grasp it. The wisest have ever enjoyed it. We all find solace in its blandishments. No sweeter substitute for courage, conscience and self denial is yet discovered.—Pandora's Box.

The Limit.

Eaton—Gilmore is so egotistical that he is jealous of his wife. Nettie—Jealous of his wife? Eaton—Yes, jealous because she has such a paragon for a husband.—Puck.

He who is firm and resolute in will molds the world to himself.—Goethe.

Transferred Wealth.

"How are you getting along in the new business, old man?"

"I have one client."

"Is he rich?"

"He was."—Boston Transcript.

The Rare Allium

"All Is Fair In Love and War"

By Agnes G. Brogan

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

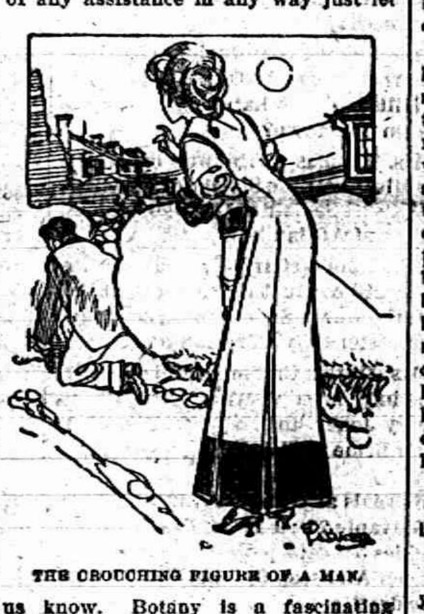
Bettie came singing down the garden path. A broad brimmed hat shaded her pretty face, and she carried a small trowel; therefore it was evident that this sunshiny morning was to be devoted to the cause of gardening. She chose to begin her labor in a plot of ground close to the hedge and, after digging vigorously for a few moments, paused to contemplate a package of small envelopes whereon gorgeous roses were pictured in profusion. A frown wrinkled her forehead as she read the puzzling directions, and she decided to seek information on the subject by inspecting the flowers upon the opposite side of the hedge. It was this adjoining garden with its riot of bloom which had inspired Bettie with the desire to imitate. She stood on tiptoe and peered over the hedge, but instead of the roses she expected to see Bettie found herself looking directly into a pair of surprised brown eyes.

"I—I beg your pardon," she stammered in confusion. "I am going to plant some roses," she explained, "and I wanted to know how far apart to set them."

"I could show you in a moment," the young man with the brown eyes suggested, but Bettie drew back hurriedly.

"Thank you, I can manage very nicely now," she replied.

"This place has been neglected so long," he said presently, "that my mother is delighted at the prospect of having new neighbors. If we can be of any assistance in any way just let us know. Botany is a fascinating study," the young man continued. "I took it up at college."



THE CROUCHING FIGURE OF A MAN.

"How lovely it is to know all about flowers!" she said. "It is your knowledge, no doubt, which has made this garden such a success."

"Oh, no, no!" her neighbor answered modestly. "Mother has some skill in that line. We have a number of rare plants, however, hard to match—that shaded lily, for instance."

"It is beautiful," the girl said softly.

"I should be pleased to have you accept a few very rare seeds," he said. "We have not many left."

He was gone before Bettie could refuse or accept his offer and, returning, placed a small package in her palm.

"Betsie!" called a voice. "Oh, you Betsie!"

Her young brother stood in the doorway. A stubby pipe hung from the corner of his good natured mouth. She nodded a smiling farewell to the obliging neighbor and turned toward the house. The boy grinned as she approached.

"Who's 'it' this time, Betts?" he asked, with brotherly frankness. His sister ignored the hidden meaning in the remark.

"Oh, Tommie," she answered enthusiastically, "that is Mr. White, our new neighbor, a botanist, and he is so kind! He has given me these rare seeds to plant, and we shall have beautiful flowers when they grow."

"There's another kind of young man out in front with an auto," Tommie interrupted. "That's why I called."

It was not until the following morning, when Miss Bettie again tied the blue ribbons of her hat, that she remembered those precious seeds. Where had she left them? That was the question. A thorough search of porch and cupboards failed to reveal their hiding place.

"Mebbe I t'rowed 'em out," the cook said calmly. "I don't know."

"They're gone," she wailed to her brother, "the seeds that Mr. White prizes so highly, and he is coming over this very morning to show me where to place them. How can I confess to such carelessness?"

"Don't confess," her brother replied briefly.

"But," she began and pointed to the empty flowerpot. In a moment Tom had seized it and was rapidly filling the red receptacle with rich brown earth.

"There," he announced triumphantly, "we will allow the botanist to believe his rare seeds are at this moment reposing therein, and before the sprouting season arrives I myself will plant some oats."

"I am going to place it in a sheltered corner, yet not quite out of reach of the sun."

She had barely arrived at the designated spot when a cheery voice called: "Good morning! And now [illegible] "Mostly in my imagination at present," Bettie responded, and her cheeks flamed unaccountably.

With a running leap Mr. White vaulted the dividing hedge. "Used to do stunts like that at college," he explained with pardonable pride. "Your [illegible] cover to superintend the planting of the plant. Yes, that's a good corner. But wait a minute. These delicate things need the greatest protection until they are fairly started. After that everything goes easy. Now, we had better put this large jar over as a cover for a time, and when the first green sprouts appear I hope you will let me do the transplanting."

"Oh, yes, indeed; certainly," Bettie hastily agreed. "And have you left college recently, Mr. White?"

Gardening was forgotten as the student leaned back comfortably upon a rustic bench, while the girl, swinging to and fro in her hammock, listened to many tales of those same college days.

Bettie's eyes met those of her companion unbelievingly as the noon whistles blew.

"Surely it cannot be so late!" she exclaimed.

And the young man did not return home by the way of the hedge. Instead he walked slowly at Bettie's side to the very door.

"May I come again tomorrow?" he entreated. "I would like to have a look at the plant."

The botanical student paid regular visits each morning, coming via the cedar hedge. The earth in one particular flowerpot was kept soft and moist. Its cover was raised to admit the sunlight or fitted down as occasion demanded. Bettie became a hardened sinner and demurely helped at these proceedings, while the oats flourished under this unusual care. As the student examined the first green sprouts Bettie fancied that a troubled expression flitted across his face.

"Do they—er—always look like that?" she asked nervously.

"This may be a different species. No doubt they will come up all right," he slowly replied. And as the days passed something more wonderful than the rarest plant came to life in this budding garden. The morning hours slipped by all too quickly for these two happy young people, so they would drive together later in the day or sit long upon the southern porch in the moonlight. It was here that Tommie found his sister one evening after their faithful neighbor had departed.

"I think," she said dreamily, "that the handsomest eyes in the world are dark and brown and tender."

"So the girls tell me," her brother answered complacently. Bettie started. "I was speaking of Robert's eyes," she said.

Tommie scrutinized his sister's glowing face. "Robert!" he repeated. "Jove, I do believe that Bettie is hit at last!"

She turned from him indignantly and entered the house. From an upper window she could see the brightly lighted end of a cigar showing like a firefly in the adjoining garden. Bettie's anxious gaze followed this spark as it moved about. Would he never go in? She must do it tonight—must destroy this rapidly sprouting evidence before her botanist lover should learn of her deceit.

One by one the lights in neighboring houses disappeared. Silence and darkness brooded everywhere. At last that tantalizing spark could be seen no more. As the loud closing of a door vibrated through the stillness Bettie arose and felt her way stealthily down the stair and out into the sleeping garden. She followed the narrow path, trembling at every sound, then drew back in sudden terror, for the moon, bursting from behind a cloud, distinctly revealed the crouching figure of a man. Even as she watched him, fascinated, he raised the prized flowerpot high in his hand and cast it far from him. At Bettie's startled cry he turned quickly, and her frightened eyes looked straight into those of her lover.

"You!" he exclaimed, aghast.

"Robert," the girl asked wonderingly, "what are you doing here?"

The man spoke desperately:

"I may as well confess. I stole into your garden tonight with the deliberate intention of destroying that rare plant which we have both been attending for weeks. You see, it was all up with me, Bettie, from the moment you looked into my eyes, and in my eagerness to become acquainted with you I invented the first clumsy excuse which occurred to me. Truth is I never was strong on botany, so I searched the labeled jars on my mother's seed shelf that day, choosing for my purpose the ones that looked good to me. Then when I learned the real name of this thing we have been lavishing so much care upon—well, I simply had to get it out of the way before you found out."

The girl's lips were twitching.

"Robert," she demanded, "tell me the name of this plant."

He laughed shortly. "The allium (A. cepa)—that is, onion seed," he said.

Bettie laughed until the tears glistened upon her lashes.

"Robert," she said severely, "it is very wrong to deceive even about so small a matter as garden seed, but you have my full forgiveness, for I love you and under like circumstances—who can tell?—I might have been tempted to do the same."

And a short time later a amused voice remarked:

"In our garden, Robert, dear, we shall grow nothing but blooming plants."

Vegetables In Tudors' Time.

What did people eat before they had the potato as a staple article of diet? Apparently they had most of the vegetables that we have now. "Of Londoners in the time of the Tudors, Sir Walter Besant tells us that they ate lettuce as a separate dish before the meat, used turnip leaves as a salad and roasted the turnip itself in wood ashes. Horseradish and carrots were known to them, and capers were served boiled in oil or vinegar. Cucumbers, radishes, parsnips and cabbages also figured at the Tudor meal table, for which, by the way, they boiled their oysters and spread their beef with honey. It would be fun in these days to sit down to a Tudor meal."—London Chronicle.

A Death Feigning Plant.

That certain insects, birds, mammals and reptiles habitually pretend to be dead when danger threatens them is a well known fact, but it is generally believed that this stratagem is resorted to only by animals. In South America, however, there is a plant—a species of mimosa—which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing the grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems.

SIX KILLED AT ROAD CROSSING

Five Women and One Man Dashed Into Eternity.

ON THEIR WAY TO EARLY MASS

Express Train Going Sixty Miles an Hour Runs Down Loaded Carryall in Philadelphia Suburb.

Philadelphia, Jan. 15.—Because the grade crossing over the Pennsylvania railroad at Linden avenue, Torresdale, was unprotected five persons were dashed to instant death, and another died without regaining consciousness, a few minutes later.

The dead were in a depot wagon, on their way to early mass, when an express train going sixty [illegible]. The sextette consisted of five women employed as servants by two Torresdale families and the driver of the wagon.

The dead: Charles Davidson, fifty years old, driver; Rose Gallagher, eighteen, Mary Roddy, twenty; Nellie O'Connor, nineteen; Bridget Malloy, forty-two; Agnes Garrity, twenty-two.

For two years it has been Davidson's custom to drive the five girls to early mass at St. Dominic's church, Collegeville, near Holmesburg. He reported at the Massey and Biddle homes, where the girls were employed, as usual with the depot wagon. The cold was bitter, and the five young women huddled together in the closed vehicle, leaving everything to the driver. Davidson, too, was well bundled up and had his collar turned up about his ears.

As the team approached the crossing, a freight train was passing and Davidson waited for it to get by. Bundled up as he was, in the early morning light, and with the freight train before him, he failed to see the express come thundering along. When the freight had passed Davidson started across and drove directly in front of the express. In an instant the flyer struck the team and the debris and bodies were scattered along the road for seventy-five yards.

Engineer F. L. Bradbury reversed his engine and threw on the brakes, bringing the train to a standstill as quickly as possible. The six bodies were picked up and placed in the baggage car, and the train backed to Pearson, an abandoned station near the scene of the accident, where it left three of the women. Thinking that the other two and the man might still be living they were taken in the train half a mile further on to Torresdale station, where Dr. John Bacon pronounced two of them dead. The third died in a few minutes. Strange to say the horse escaped unhurt and as soon as he felt the wagon wrenched from him, he dashed away and, after a run of two miles, was captured.

MITCHELL IS TO MAKE BIG FIGHT

Miners Compelled Him to Resign from Civic Federation.

ANTHRACITE MEN SUPPORT HIM

Hope to Pass Resolution Rescinding One Adopted Last Year Making Him Choose Between Miners and Federation.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 15.—Eager to take up the fight which John Mitchell, former president of the union, is expected to make at the coming session of anthracite workers, officers and delegates of the Mine Workers' union left here for Indianapolis to attend the convention Tuesday.

A year ago at this convention a resolution was passed compelling John Mitchell to either resign from the National Civic Federation or from the Mine Workers' union convention. Mitchell left the federation, giving up the salary of $8,000 a year which he was paid. Since then his friends have claimed that the convention was packed by the socialist element of the union, which Mitchell has always opposed, in an effort to humiliate him.

Mitchell is expected to make a vigorous fight to have the resolution rescinded and the anthracite men will, with few exceptions, support him. The opposition will be led by Thomas Lewis, who last year was defeated for president by John P. White.

The convention will also consider the demands of the anthracite mine workers and there is a belief here that the national executive board will modify them in the hope that thereby the operators may be induced to grant some concessions. The demands will not be presented to the operators until after the convention adjourns.

COAL STRIKE POSSIBLE

Anthracite Region Is Considering Possible Shut-Down of Industry.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 15.—The anthracite coal regions are compelling themselves seriously to discuss the possibilities of a general strike among the miners, a subject that operators, mine workers, and especially business men, try to avoid as long as they can. But on next Wednesday the United Mine Workers of America will meet in national convention at Indianapolis.

Last Wednesday President William H. Truesdale of the Lackawanna railroad admitted that the coal operators had received the new demands of the mine workers—of their leaders, rather. And on March 31 the anthracite board of conciliation, which came into existence in 1903 after the big strike of 1902 and which has been settling questions of dispute between operators and employes for almost nine years, will cease to exist unless miners and operators agree in a meeting already arranged to continue it.

ICE-LADEN BOAT ARRIVES IN PORT

Steamship Indiana of Goodrich Line Docks at Chicago.

STUPENDOUS BATTLE WITH ICE

Tug Indiana Rams Holes in Ice Pack and Breaks Open Way for Manistee—Kansas Still Stuck—Five Men Are Missing.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—With forty members of the crew of fifty suffering with frozen noses, ears and fingers, the steamship Indiana of the Goodrich Transportation company docked after being frozen four days in the lake three miles off Edgewater.

Despite their suffering, every employe, from Captain Edward Wilson down to the deckhands, was ordered to tell nothing of what had occurred on board by officials of the company.

All of the nine passengers declare that they did not expect to reach port alive and told a story of suffering rivaling such as are related of the Arctic regions.

The steamship Kansas of the Northern Michigan line is still frozen in the ice pack, about a mile east of where the Indiana was icebound, and the Manistee, which started to her assistance Saturday night, was also caught and did not escape until a few minutes after the Indiana made port.

Less than a mile east of the government lighthouse the Manistee was surrounded by floes ten feet high. Without any wireless equipment, the watchers on shore could not communicate with her.

Captain Charles Carland of the life saving station declared that unless the wind changed suddenly she was in no particular danger, but the company nevertheless sent the tug Indiana out to her assistance.

Then ensued a remarkable sight. With her prow covered with heavy fenders to save the timbers of the tug, the doughty little boat simply rammed holes in the ice pack.

Every attack loosened some of the ice and after three hours of hard work of this kind the tug broke a path to the Manistee. Then the bigger boat backed away into clear water and sped to the aid of the Kansas.

It reminded one of the mouse gnawing the ropes of the net which ensnared the lion, and captain and crew of the tug were roundly cheered when she returned to port.

The steamer Flora M. Hill of the Hill line, which left Chicago Saturday morning for Waukegan and was reported missing on Saturday night, cut her way through the ice in Waukegan Harbor and reached her pier after a hard battle with ice, wind and snow.

Hope of rescuing the five men afloat on the ice off Rogers Park has been given up.

HIGH SCHOOL ORGY EXPOSED

Alleged Indecent Dance Causes Indictment of Young Men.

Cherokee, Ia., Jan. 15.—The culmination of a series of orgies by high school boys and girls which came to a climax in a Little Egypt dance on the stage of the opera house, following a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the indictment of seven young men, the commitment of one girl to the reformatory and the placing of several boys and girls on probation.

TO ACQUIRE ALL TELEGRAPH LINES

Recommendation Made by Postmaster General.

IS SURPRISE TO WASHINGTON

President Taft, It Is Said, Was Not Consulted by Mr. Hitchcock in Making Recommendation, and Breach Beween Them May Widen.

Washington, Jan. 15. — Postmaster General Hitchcock announced that he will recommend to congress that the United States government acquire all of the telegraph lines of the country, to be run by the postoffice department.

The postmaster general has dug up a statute enacted by congress forty or more years ago under which he contends the government can take over the wire service of the country and conduct it as an adjunct of the postoffice department. It is estimated unofficially that this gigantic undertaking would cost the United States government somewhere between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000.

To say that the postmaster general's announcement was a surprise to Washington is putting it mildly. The most interesting thing about it, though, is that it apparently was a great surprise also to President Taft. The White House was informed of the statement that the postmaster general had issued, but up to a late hour there had been no official intimation that the president had authorized his postmaster general to make such a recommendation. Circumstances pointed to the fact that the White House was considerably concerned over the statement which Mr. Hitchcock had put out.

Recently reports have been circulated from sources that cannot be ignored that the president and the postmaster general are not in as close accord, especially on politics, as they once were.

On at least one occasion recently Mr. Hitchcock was accused of taking a stand against the wishes of the president. This was at the meeting of the Republican national committee, when the postmaster general was charged with supporting southern Republicans in their opposition to the naming of Harry New as chairman of the committee on arrangements.

If Mr. Hitchcock's statement in regar to the government ownership of telegraph companies has been issued, as seems likely, without the endorsement of the president, it may lead to a further embarrassment. The first thing members of congress wanted to know when they heard of Mr. Hitchcock's statement was whether President Taft was advocating government ownership. These men will immediately turn to the president and he will be obliged to make his views known on the proposition.

HUNTER SLAIN BY SON

Lad Shoots at Rabbit and Charge Enters Father's Body.

Springfield, Ill., Jan 15.—Thomas Aird of Thayer, aged forty-nine years, is dead at St. John's hospital here as the result of a wound received while hunting near his home.

John Aird, the victim's sixteen-year-old son, shot at a rabbit and the full charge of shot took effect in his father's body.

The Danger of La Grippe

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound; R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kas., says: "I was troubled with a sever attac of la grippe taat threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a postive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

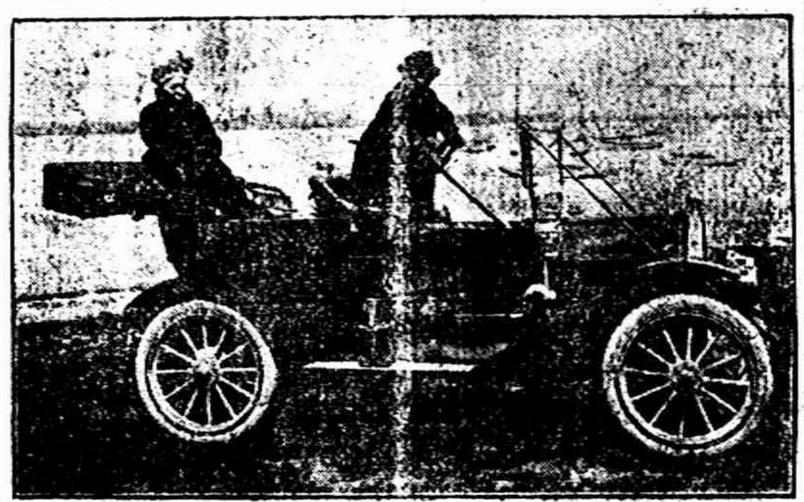
"MRS. TOM THUMB" IS STILL ACTIVE THOUGH RETIRED.



Here are perhaps two of the most widely known people in the world. Who is there that has not heard about Tom Thumb and his wife? Most everyone of any age remembers seeing them with the old Barnum circus, where they were always surrounded by a curious throng. Their name has become a byword in nearly every home and in rhyme and story they have been pictured so long that many have almost come to think of them as mythical things. Tom Thumb is now dead. His wife, however, is still living and is remarried to the Count Magri, who is shown with her in the picture. The Count is a dwarf almost exactly the same size as the original Tom Thumb.

This picture was taken while they were out for a little spin in one of the famous friction driven Cartercar automobiles. The photographer requested them to pose for him and they are seen standing up on the seats, giving a remarkable illustration of their diminutive size. They are enthusiastic motorists and enjoy their daily drives as much as anyone else could. They like the Cartercar because it is so simple and easily controlled that it is always safe. It is indeed humorous to see the little Count sitting in the big car, his head hardly showing above the steering wheel. At first he could not very well run a car, as he was not strong enough to crank the motor, but now with the self-starter he can drive as well as any full sized person. Mrs. Thumb, as she still prefers to be called, was seventy years old last October. Many people will be surprised to learn that she is still alive. She has been on the stage many years since she quit showing for Mr. Barnum. This last season, however, she retired from all public appearances and this popular idol of all classes of people will soon be seen on the stage no more. A little fortune has been laid away as the result of her remarkable career and she and her royal husband enjoy peaceful luxury.

How a Wild Horse Bucks.

Rufus Steele, in "Mustangs, Busters and Outlaws of the Nevada Wild Horse Country," in the American Magazine, tells of the glorious sport of capturing and training wild horses. "Busting" is no sport for a novice. Real busters are trained to the game from childhood. He writes:

"A touch of the spur or a flick of the quirt signals the start. His knowledge of what to do must be a heritage from his ancestors, for all horses do it, and all American wild horses are sprung from horses that once carried men. He pops down his head and levitates straight heavenward. While he and you are high in the air he arches his back and stiffens his body to iron rigidity. Thus he comes back to earth. The sensation to the rider is as if his spinal column had been struck by a pile driver. The impression is not analyzed at the time, for the horse goes into the air again immediately. He swings to right or left, or he 'changes ends' completely while in the air, and you come down facing southward, whereas you were facing northward when you ascended."

Curious Way of Catching Fish.

Indians of Bolivia have a peculiar method of going fishing. A writer in the Geographical Journal says: "They use the milk of the 'manuna' or 'soliman' tree, the scientific name of which is, I think, Hura crepitans, of the euphorbia genus, for catching fish. I went with some of the Indians to a lagoon in the forest. Here, floating on the surface of the water, perfectly alive and yet absolutely unable to get away, were fish of all kinds, big and small, from which they selected the most palatable for food. The milk is merely poured into the water, and as it spreads every fish which comes in contact with it becomes paralyzed and yet is not affected as food. Moreover, the effect appears to last for several days without killing the fish. The milk is also used as a cure for toothache, as a caustic and for the purpose of suicide, for which a teaspoonful is employed. As a poison they say the results are painful."

Seal Oil Ice Cream.

A favorite dish with the Eskimos is an ice cream made of seal oil into which snow is stirred until the desired consistency has been obtained; then frozen berries of different kinds are added. This decoction is said to be about as tempting to the civilized palate as frozen cod liver oil.

The Tool He Used.

"I was throwing up dirt from an excavation in the pavement one day," said an old laborer, "when a little old chap with white hair stopped to look on. I was as big as two of him. After a minute or two I rested on my shovel and looked up at him. Said I:

"'If you had to do work with a shovel for your living you'd starve to death before you could make a trench deep enough to bury you in.'

"I thought that was a smart thing to say, and I laughed. Then he answered me. He was a slow speaking man with a sort of drawl.

"'I might—starve—as—you—say,' he said, 'and yet I—have—a—trade—in which I—use—a—tool very much—like—yours. In fact—many people—who—work at my trade—use—the—tool—to—shovel dirt and filth—with—as—you—do—with—yours. This—is—the—tool.'

"He handed me a steel pen.

"'Is it a joke?' I asked.

"'It—is—a—tool—to—make—them—with,' he nodded. 'That—is—part—of—my—trade. My name—is—Twain—Mark Twain.'

"I have the pen yet," concluded the laborer, "and no dirt was ever shoveled with it."—New York Globe.

More Than Gratuitous.

Apropos of the custom of some hostesses to invite professional artistes to their house in the expectation that they will amuse their guests free of charge, a story is told of Mme. Berthe Bady, the famous Parisian artiste, who was invited to a social gathering and asked by the hostess to recite. She consented, and then, in order that there might be no mistake about the matter, the hostess said:

"How kind it is of you to work for us in this friendly manner!"

The emphasis on the word "friendly" was so marked as to show clearly enough that the service was to be gratuitous. After the recitation was over Mme. Bady took a silver card tray from a footman, and, imitating the musicians in the cafes chantants, she made a tour of the drawing room and collected whatever contributions were offered, and they were substantial ones. Then she handed them to her hostess and left the house.

A Legal Quibble.

SNAPSHOTS AT LOCAL NEWS

Flora Ketchum spent over Sunday at her home in Onsted.

Lucy Harrison has returned to her school work, after an absence of a few days.

The intensely cold weather proved too much for Harold Harrison, for he is now suffering from a frozen ear.

The Girls' Glee Club of the High School gave a selection at the Opera House, for the Farmers' Institute, Monday evening.

The temperature in the Central building, was very low Monday. Only one class recited in the Senior room, but before the day closed the building became more comfortable.

A Y. W. C. A. social was held at the home of Miss Mulvaney, Tuesday evening. Miss Pearson, traveling Y. W. C. A. secretary was present and gave the girls a very interesting talk. About twenty-five girls were present. Punch and wafers were served at the close of the evening.

R. C. Jarhartt was a business caller at the High School Tuesday. He is introducing a plan which will enable the Senior class to make money for expenses that will be expected, at the close of the year. This plan is an entertainment given by the Durm Co. in February. Notices of this will be given later.

Owing to the intensely cold weather a number of absences occur in all the rooms, and especially those non-resident pupils who come in from the country each day.

The Honor System is gradually being introduced in the High School. It was put into practice in two English tests, and also a German test.

Semester finals begin the last week in January, and a general review has been started in nearly every subject.

Margaret Howe is ill from tonsilitis.

Zorah Dickinson has returned to the seventh grade, after an attack of tonsilitis.

Ellsworth Jewel has returned to school, after a few days absence.

Vera Swartz of the ninth grade, has been absent from school on account of the death of her grandfather.

Miss Florence Russell visited the High School Friday.

Ivan Spitler taught the English IV class Friday morning.

Miss Jennie Geddes, teacher in the East Branch is slowly improving, and expects to resume her work again in a few weeks.

The little folks of the East Branch are now designing booklets for the month of January.

Jay Crane spelled down the fifth grade room, about forty words being given for the test.

In spite of the cold weather the attendance in the grades seems to be more regular, than in the High school. Very few absences occur in any of the rooms.

A general Mothers' meeting will be held at the East Branch for the month of January, Friday Jan. 26. This will be somewhat different than the previous ones. Instead of the children giving the program, will be in charge of the mothers of the children. Topics have been given out, and a thorough discussion of them will be given at that time.

Mr. Romaine Miller a representative of the Maynard Murill Publishing Co., was a business caller at the High School Friday morning. Mr. Miller was a former graduate of the Tecumseh High school.

During the severe cold weather the fire in the furnace of the Central building, was allowed to go out over Saturday and Sunday. As a result of this the water meter was frozen and broken, and when the fire in the laboratory was started the water which was frozen in the pipes thawed, the water flooded the floor of the basement. Besides this the building was very cold and took some time to get the rooms properly heated, before they were at all comfortable. The highest temperature of any room during the forenoon was 65 degrees.

O

Five pupils from the Sophmore room, who have neither been absent or tardy for the first four months of school are Elliot McLain, Ruth Hastings, Ruth McKinney, Ruth Curry and Veva Hardcastle.

The average of Sophmore class in their studies is eighty six. In Physical Geography it was eighty-nine, English eighty-seven, History eighty-seven, Geometry eighty-seven, Caesar eighty-six and German eighty three. This is for the four months.

The following in the Senior room have neither been absent or tardy for the first four months; Roy Cadmus, Donald Hunt, Lucille Kelly, Augustus Kempf, George McKendry, Ed Sales, Elsie Sanford and Geneva Satterthwaite, Elwood Comfort, Margaret Howe and Sylvia Andrews have not been absent.

Miss Kaiser a Junior has been absent from school.

Jay Crane, the Champion Speller of the Fifth grade was the last to be spelled down, and after all the rest sat down he kept on spelling for about forty words. Jay Crane, champion light weight, middle weight and heavy weight of the Fifth grade. A Speller.

The fifth grade are learning poems pertaining to winter.

The sixth grade are taking up measurements in Arithmetic.

A Mothers meeting is to be held the twenty sixth of the month. All mothers of Tecumseh are cordially invited by the Fifth and Sixth grades to attend. I should have emphasized all! Come prepared to speak on some of the following subjects. General Topic, School; first the influence of the physical nature upon the mental nature; second influence of the school room upon a child in helping him to be in harmony with his fellow men; third, what are the notable changes in a child after he enters school; fourth, the value of the study of child nature; fifth what part in a child's life does the school room play; sixth, the needs of a child from a mother's point of view; seventh, adolescent period of a child's life; eighth, environment; ninth, how does a child's point of view differ from the adults; tenth, character developed in the grammar grades; eleventh, the value of the grades in comparison to high school.

The East Branch school teachers have perfected a system of fire drills by which they empty the building in fifty eight seconds by both exits, or by one exit in two minutes.

Miss Margaret Howe, a Senior has been sick with tonsilitis.

A Puzzling Applicant.

When needy Mrs. Caderette required a letter of introduction to the benevolent association Jules Duport, proud of his ability to express himself in English, obligingly helped her out. Imagine the bewilderment of the secretary when a large, robust lady in search of work presented what well meaning Jules had written:

"This is Miss Caderette that I induce wherewith to everybody. This lady has been sick for a long time and is still in bed. She has five children, all little and partly dead, and is in very poor condition, as she have no money. Her husband went away two years ago and has not never been heard of since. This man has rheumatism, is a cripple and cannot help herself. This lady is his brother's girl. Help her and she will be very comfortable."

As the sick abed lady could speak no English, she was unable to explain why she looked so well, but the secretary made her "very comfortable" with steady employment in a laundry. —Youth's Companion.

An Eye For Lines.

"The last time I was here I saw that same woman," said the man who was waiting for his eyeglasses to be adjusted. The optician looked across the room to a little woman in faded black.

"Yes," he said, "and if you should be here three months from today you would see her again. She comes every three months. She is a palmist. Nobody gives closer attention to the eyes than the professional palmist. Most of them wear glasses, and they visit an optician regularly. With every change in their eyes their glasses are changed. They have to do that to keep track of all the fine lines in their clients' hands.

"They have keen eyes themselves, those persons who patronize palmists, and are apt to pick out any number of little straggling lines and ask what they mean. If the palmist can't see the lines herself she is likely to get into trouble."—New York Times.

Modest Marie.

"In November, 1875," writes Marie Bashkirtsev, "the great day of the opera, I was nervous all day. I wore a white muslin jupe unie (whatever that may be) with a wide frill at the bottom; corsage Marie Stuart and coiffure in harmony with the gown. A very beautiful affair. Every one admired me. About the middle of the performance the feeling swept over me that I was beautiful to distraction. At the close I make my way out between two lines of gentlemen who stare themselves blind, and their verdict is not an unfavorable one. One feels that. Coming home, I looked at myself in the glass. I was like a queen, like a portrait that had stepped out of its frame. What a misfortune it is that instead of these pen scratches I cannot draw my portrait as I was then—my marvelous complexion, my golden hair, my eyes black like the night, my mouth, my figure!"

Primary Enrollment

Notice is hereby given, that in accordance with act No. 281, Public acts of 1909, as amended by act 279, Public acts of 1911, the Board of Enrollment of the Township of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee, State of Michigan will be in session at The Council Building, on Saturday, Jan. 27th A. D. 1912 from 7 o'clock A. M. until 5 o'clock P. M. of said day, for the purpose of enrolling the names of all persons, members of whatever political party, who make personal application for such enrollment.

How electors can secure enrollment. Following is a brief statement of the different ways in which enrollment can be had in townships during the year 1912. Enrollment dates this year are Jan. 27th and April 1st.

(1) By personal application on enrollment days.

(2) By a written request accompanied by affidavit, an elector can enroll any day, but can not vote at any primary held within two months. This affidavit and application must be delivered to the township clerk or other officer in charge of the enrollment books.

(3) An elector who was sick or unavoidable absent on enrollment day or who became 21 years of age or an elector after enrollment day can have his name enrolled on primary election day and vote at that election by taking the necessary oath.

(4) If an elector who has been duly enrolled as above changes his residence from one precinct in the sate to another he can be enrolled in the new precinct by obtaining a proper certificate from a member of the enrollment Board of the precinct where in he formerly resided stating that he is duly enrolled in the pre int from which he has moved and is entitled to enrollment in the new Precinct, or by taking oath.

No person can vote at any primar election in Michigan unless his name has been enrolled under said act 279.

WILL FOLLOW DETROIT'S EXAMPLE

The Construction of a Special Building to Help House Its Auto Show Through the Cooperation of the City Officials Has Made a Hit in Other Cities.

Detroit's success in the construction of an Annex to Wayne Gardens for the Eleventh Annual Automobile Show of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' association, to be held Jan. 22 to Jan. 27 inclusive, has attracted the attention of other cities and other show organizations where space has been overcrowded in the past, and it is not improbable that other cities will follow the example of Detroit and apply for space from the city and the closing of streets to enable them to construct a special building. The announcement of Manager Walter Wilmot that an annex to Wayne Gardens would be constructed, was received by the trade with satisfaction and over forty applications for space were immediately made. These applicants demanded over one thousand feet more than was contained in the annex and there is prospect of still being an overflow. The Annex received the applications of many makers of motor trucks, pleasure cars, motorcycles and accessories. These makers have not figured upon exhibiting at the Detroit show, owing to the annual overcrowding of Wayne Gardens. There is now every prospect that Detroit's total number of exhibitors will number not less than eighty, giving the show at the hub of the industry, the leading position among local shows and a position ranking directly next to the national shows of New York, Chicago and Boston. Nor does the list of additional exhibitors for Detroit include any but prominent makers and with the addition of these, Detroit steps forward many paces in the list covering the show circuit. Had the leading city of Michigan had a building of sufficient size to give the one hundred possible exhibitors the space requested, it is quite probable that New York, Chicago and Boston would have had very little on Detroit. To the agents and to the direct representatives of manufacturers throughout the country, Detroit's annual show is a great attraction. These agents and representatives realize that at Detroit it will be possible to find many novelties, both in the pleasure car, truck and accessory field that will not be found at the national shows. It is generally realized that Detroit sets the pace in the matter of innovation and at the present time outsiders realize that with additional space, Detroit will be liable to present many things of interest to the country at large. It is doubtless true that many of the Detroit made cars to be shown only at Detroit, will not be seen in national exhibits for a year to come and, in spite of the enormous porportions to which the automobile has reached, there are still not enough cars, as is evidenced by the demand for every new product presented successfully in Detroit.

DEAD AT 102

Mrs. Louise Morey, Adrian's oldest inhabitant, passed away Jan. 12, aged 102 years.

Despite her many years, she retained her faculties to the last. She was stricken with a bad spell New Years evening, and grew steadily weaker until death came to her relief. She has lived with her daughter, Mrs. Frances Cutter, for the last five years. She has lived in Adrian since 1886, except for about six years.

EUGENE W. CRANE

Eugene W. Crane of the firm Moreland Bros. & Crane, passed away Friday afternoon Jan. 12, at his home in Adrian. About four weeks ago Mr. Crane slipped and fell on the sidewalk, sustaining a bad fracture of the knee cup, he has been confined to his bed ever since, until his death from heart failure.

Early in the spring of 1881, he entered into partnership with Robert S. and James B. Moreland since which time he has resided in Adrian. He has many friends in Tecumseh, who will regret to hear of his death. The funeral was held from his late home Monday afternoon, Rev. Krapp of Cleveland officiating.

MRS. S. J. HARRIOTT

Mrs. Sarah Jane Harriott died at the home of her daughter Mrs. George Avery in Macon, Sunday Jan. 14 1912, of heart disease, aged 84 years, 10 months and 21 days. She is survived by two sons, Robert and George Harriott and one daughter, Mrs. Avery. The funeral will be held this afternoon at the home.

THE EFFECTIVE LAXATIVE

Tastes Like and is Eaten like Candy

In our experience in the handling of drugs and medicines, we believe we have never had experience with any Remedy that gave such great satisfaction to our customers as do Rexall Orderlies. This Remedy is not like any other laxitive or cathartic. It contains all the good features of other laxatives, but none of their faults.

Our own faith in Rexall Orderlies is so strong that we offer them to you with our own positive personal guarantee, that if they do not thoroughly satisfy you, only need tell us and we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for them. Therefore, in trying them upon our recommendation you take no risk whatever.

Rexall Orderlies taste like and are eaten like candy. They do not gripe cause nausea, excessive looseness, or any other annoyance. They act so easily that they may be taken at any time, day or night. They are particularly good for children, aged or delicate person's. They are put up in convient tablets in three sizes of packages. Prices, 10c, 25c, and 50c.

Remember, Rexall Remedies can be obtained in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Some Verbal Slips.

Without being a pedant one may note many inaccuracies in the use of words in his own speech and in that of others. Perhaps "excuse" for "pardon" is the most common of these, not to consider mere malapropisms or murders of the king's English. "Anxious" used where "eager" is meant is another frequent error, and more often "secure" is spoken incorrectly than correctly. Ordinarily when "procure" or "get" is intended "secure" is said. These instances do not come within even the category of distorted synonyms. They are simply words misapplied. Of practically synonymous terms which have different shades of meaning the misuses of ordinary conversation and of writing are innumerable. But to find fault with most of these latter wants of precision would be priggish. It is a profitable mental exercise to study at times a book of synonyms or a thesaurus. The book stores and libraries will be glad, besides, to guide the wayfarer to many books of verbal purities.—Kansas City Star.

The Little Word "Yes."

"Yes" is a simple word spelled with three letters.

It has caused more happiness and more unhappiness than any other word in the language.

It has lost more money for easy lenders than all the holes in all the pockets in the world.

It has started more dipsomaniacs on their career than all the strong liquor on earth.

It has caused more fights than all the "You're a liars" that ever were spoken.

It has procured kisses and provoked blows.

It has defeated candidates and elected scoundrels.

It has been used in more lies than any other expression.

It is not meant half the time it is said.

Will it continue to make such a record?

Yes.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

If This Medicine Does not Satisfactorily Benefit You

Practising physicians making a specialty of stomach troubles are really responsible for the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made. We have simply profited by the experience of experts.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be an excellent remedy for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time helps to bring about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets aid to insure healthy appetite, aid digestion, and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Cheaper for you

It's cheaper to buy canned fruit than to can it yourself. The canner buys fruit where it grows when it is most plentiful. He buys it cheaper than you do and he gets it in better condition. It is picked ripe and packed the same day. You pay for the loss incidental to shipping—which he saves. If he is a good canner he uses as much care as you do and his facilities are better than yours. His canned fruit is equal to yours.

If your goods spoil the loss is yours. If CHEF goods spoil the loss is ours.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine,
A splendid remedy for such attacks
A medicine that has cured thousands.

Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.

Many Tecumseh people rely on it.

Here is Tecumseh proof.

George D. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says; "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B Caldwell, R.509 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

JOKE WAS ON THE MOTHER

Buys Straw Hats for Her Tribe of Hopefuls at the Harness Shop.

Edmund Roberts of the "Salvation Nell" company, tells a good story and tells it well. He has the faculty of seeing the funny things in the little happenings of every day life.

"Last season, in a one night stand in Pennsylvania, I met an old school chum, and not having seen him for years, I was more than pleased to spend as much of my one day with him as I could," says Mr. Roberts. "He was in the harness business and I spent the best part of the day in the back part of the shop keeping him company, while he worked.

"During the afternoon he had occasion to go to the bank and left me in charge of the place until his return, with a joking rejoinder to sell all I could during his absence.

"He had scarcely gone when in came a lady with four small boys in quarter sizes, she took four straw hats out of a basket and placed one on each small head and handed me a dollar, as there was a sign in the basket stating that they were 25 cents each. She tied the strings under each small chin and left the store.

"I was naturally somewhat elated at my ability as a salesman and when my friend returned, told him of my sale and gave him the dollar. Then he informed me that those hats were for horses during hot weather and he had a good laugh on me. Well I sold a dollar's worth of hats and if the lady ever discovered that the hats were for horses and not for small boys I was not there to hear the finish."

NEW IDEAS ABOUT PARENTS

Becoming One Brings Increased Esteem and Regard for Them as Pillars of Life.

My new responsibility has brought me a variety of new appreciations. As a parent I find I have new sentiments about parents, and increased esteem and regard for them as pillars that uphold life and direct it. Beyond doubt they are fine for upholding grandchildren. No doubt there would be considerably more grandchildren in our world if there were more grandparents who recognized their responsibilities and made provision, as a matter of course, to meet them. But that does not accord with the lively individualism of our generation. Not only are we all desirous of independent life, but our parents prefer it for us. Accordingly when we get above the social plane in which independent life for man and wife can be maintained for $20 a week, marriage is apt to come late. There are immense advantages about that social plane in which $20 a week is a complete living, and the wife is cook and housemaid, wife, mother and nurse all in one, and the state provides education, and the doctor adjusts his charges to your income, and all the man has to look after is food, clothes, shelter and pocket money! I hope the people who are born with a call on that phase of existence appreciate their luck. To rise to a $20-a-week phase must be full of satisfaction, but to drop to it is quite another matter. Whatever starting point is dealt out to us, it is from that point that we have got to go on, and, whether we like it or not, the point at which it behooves us to arrive is measured from the point at which we start.—E. S. Martin in Harper's Magazine.

Snug Mosquitoes.

Seated on the furnace in the warm cellar of the intelligent citizen's home, two New Jersey mosquitoes were talking things over.

"They will never do anything to us," said the first. "Before they can be rid of us they will have to get together, and that will take them thousands of years."

"Then, too," said the second, "about the time they do begin to make things unpleasant for us, somebody will organize a Society to Protect Tender Little Insects from the Barbarities of Scientific Savages, and all the sentimental people will join, and we shall be spared many years longer. See the snow falling outside."

"Yes," answered the other mosquito, "Winter has set in at last, and spring will come almost before we know it. Then we shall slip out and lay our little 400 eggs apiece in an old flowerpot somewhere and be happy. How lovely and warm it is here."

KENNARD NOT IN SIGHT

Prominent Citizen of Crandon, Wis., Disappears.

Charge Likely to Be Made that Many Mortgages Have Been Forged and Sold.

Crandon, Wis., Jan. 15.—With thousands of dollars of notes and mortgages out throughout the state, W. W. Kennard, proprietor of the Forest County Abstract company, and who was prominent in the disbarment proceedings against Ex-District Attorney Narze, has disappeared. His family claims not to know where he has gone, Attorney A. C. Umbreit of Milwaukee, who was the governor's representative in the disbarment proceedings, and Dr. J. N. Humphrey of Whitewater, are said to be the largest creditors.

The charge is likely to be made formally before the district attorney that mortgages amounting to from $75,000 to $100,000 were forged and sold. Kennard was the instigator of the governor's removal from office a year ago of the district attorney and the upheaval which resulted caused the conviction of a score of grafters.

BY-PRODUCTS NOT CREDITED

Hide Storage Shown as Cause of High Beef Prices.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—How the storing of thousands of dollars' worth of hides in the cellars of Morris & Co. sent the price of fresh beef soaring during the panic of 1907 was told in the trial of the meat packers before Judge George A. Carpenter.

The mysterious but arbitrary "test cost" which has cut such an important figure in the trial was the medium by which the price was increased. Between November, 1907, and June, 1908, it was shown, practically no allowance was made for the hide in figuring the cost of a carcass. Hide sand fat are the two by-products which form a decided credit against the cost of steers on the hoof. If this credit is not deducted in figuring the "test cost" the price which is arbitrarily fixed as the "cost" of the carcass is necessarily higher.

10,000 MEN WITH BIBLES

Big Demonstration in San Francisco Is Impressive Sight.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—Headed by an escort of mounted police and a band of thirty pieces, 10,000 men with Bibles in their hands marched through the streets of the city, while thousands of people stood on the sidewalks and watched the impressive sight. It was the most remarkable demonstration ever seen in this city.

At the head of the line marched Gypsy Smith, the famous evangelist, and Henry J. McCoy, the veteran secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in this city. The parade was the result of meetings now being held here by Evangelist Smith.

DARK HORSE TO WIN

That Is Prediction of National Democratic Chiefs.

Little Chance for the Various Leaders to Get Together on Any One of the Candidates.

New York, Jan. 15.—The national Democratic leaders who have been in conference here are agreed that the presidential nomination will, in all probability, go to a "dark horse."

"There is little chance for the various leaders to get together on any candidate," said a member, "and when the convention is called to order June 25 everyone of the fourteen or more men mentioned for the honor will have a group of militant delegates behind him ready to fight to a finish. This means that it is likely to be a 'dark horse' year."

Among the Democratic committeemen who have been conferring with National Chairman Norman E. Mack are Nathan Cole, Jr., of California, Roger C. Sullivan of Illinois, Thomas Taggart of Indiana, Urey Woodson of Kentucky, Frank K. Nebker of Utah, F. W. Lynch of Minnesota, Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, W. H. Dumphy of Washington and John T. McGraw of West Virginia.

WRECK ON BIG FOUR

Urbana, Ill., Conductor Fatally Injured in Violent Crash.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 15.—E. B. Tobias of Urbana, Ill., was killed and S. H. O'Brien, also of Urbana, was seriously injured in a freight wreck on the Big Four, three miles west of this city.

Tobias was a freight conductor and was seated in his caboose when another train, running only a few minutes behind, crashed through the car. O'Brien was in the caboose with Tobias, but was thrown clear of the wreckage and suffered a badly sprained back.

The engine on the rear train was derailed and tipped on its side at the edge of an embankment. The engine crew escaped uninjured. Eight loaded freight cars were reduced to kindling wood, and several others which remained on the track were badly damaged.

BANDIT TORTURES VICTIM

Seeks to Force Farmer to Reveal Hidden Money Near Joliet.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 15.—Nicholas Forman, fifty-two years old, was tortured for an hour by a masked robber who attempted to force him to reveal the hiding place of a large sum of money he was supposed to have hidden in his home, two miles west of Joliet.

Forman was returning from Joliet, where he had deposited $400 in the bank, when he was held up at his own door.

The robber, flourishing a revolver, drove the farmer into the house and for an hour attempted by force to learn the hiding place of Forman's money. He finally left after obtaining $12 which Forman had in a pocket.

AFTER GRIP

Look Out for Trouble

The after-effects of the Grip are apt to be serious, but a normal healthy condition may be restored in a surprisingly short time by Vinol.

Watertown, Wis.—"After a severe attack of the Grip my system was in a very weakened, nervous and run-down condition. I began taking Vinol with the very best results, and in a short time I began to feel like an entirely different person, and I am better and stronger than I have been for years." Adelaide Gamm. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

We have never sold in our store such a valuable strength creator and health restorer for the convalescent, the weak and run-down, as Vinol, and we ask people in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not do all we claim for it.

Regal Underslung a Feature.

A distinct feature of the Detroit show will be the appearance of the new $950 Regal Underslung, Model "T." As the first Underslung touring car to sell below $1,000 it is sure to prove one of the chief attractions of the entire how. Dealer who have seen this model have pronounced it one of the best cars offered for 1912. For people who do much driving over country roads the Underslung cars have proved ideal and all intending to purchase cars this season should not fail to examine this new Regal and the other Regal Underslungs.

A Death Feigning Plant.

That certain insects, birds, mammals and reptiles habitually pretend to be dead when danger threatens them is a well known fact, but it is generally believed that this stratagem is resorted to only by animals. In South America, however, there is a plant—a species of mimosa—which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing the grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems.

WOULD ACQUIRE ALL LINES OF TELEGRAPH

Latest Recommendation Made by Postmaster General.

President Taft, It Is Said, Was Not Consulted by Mr. Hitchcock in Making Recommendation, and Breach Between Them May Widen.

That the United States acquire all of the telegraph lines of the country and place them under the jurisdiction of the postoffice department is the recommendation which Postmaster General Hitchcock announces he will make to congress.

The postmaster general has dug up a statute enacted by congress forty or more years ago under which he contends the government can take over the wire service of the country and conduct it as an adjunct of the postoffice department. It is estimated unofficially that this gigantic undertaking would cost the United States government somewhere between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000.

To say that the postmaster general's announcement was a surprise to Washington is putting it mildly. The most interesting thing about it, though, is that it apparently was a great surprise also to President Taft. The White House was informed of the statement that the postmaster general had issued, but up to a late hour there had been no official intimation that the president had authorized his postmaster general to make such a recommendation. Circumstances pointed tothe fact that the White House was considerably concerned over the statement which Mr. Hitchcock had put out.

Recently reports have been circulated from sources that cannot be ignored that the president and the postmaster general are not in as close accord, especially on politics, as they once were.

On at least one occasion recently Mr. Hitchcock was accused of taking a stand against the wishes of the president. This was at the meeting of the Republican national committee, when the postmaster general was charged with supporting southern Republicans in their opposition to the naming of Harry New as chairman of the committee on Arrangements.

If Mr. Hitchcock's statement in regar to the government ownership of telegraph companies has been issued, as seems likely, without the endorsement of the president, it may lead to a further embarrassment. The first thing members of congress wanted to know when they heard of Mr. Hitchcock's statement was whether President Taft was advocating government ownership. These men will immediately turn to the president and he will be obliged to make his views known on the proposition.

YUAN SHIH-KAI IN PERIL

Attempt to Assassinate the Chinese Premier with Dynamite Bomb.

At Pekin, China a bomb was thrown at Premier Yuan Shih-kai's carriage. Two soldiers and the horses attached to the carriage were killed.

Yuan Shih-kai was repeatly warned that attempts would be made against his life. Friends have urged the premier to capitulate and others, fearing his assassination, urged him to take refuge in the foreign concessions at Tientsin.

Revolutionaries have more than once threatened Yuan with dynamite. The premier, however, informed Sir John Jordan, the British minister, that he did not fear assassination.

A guard of twenty-five cavalrymen usually escorted his carriage through the streets of Pekin.

DETECTIVE BURNS FREE

Indianapolis Court Relieves Him of the Charge of Kidnaping.

At Indianapolis, Friday, after argument on the writ by which he was taken from the local authorities, William J. Burns was discharged from custody by Judge Anderson of the United States district court.

This action relieves Burns from the indictment for kidnapping J. J. McNamara, returned by the county grand jury. Detective Hossick, of Los Angeles, who was also indicted for kidnapping, was not before the court, but attorneys say that the decision applies to him as well and that the indictment in the local court will be dismissed.

TROOPS TO STOP RIOTS

Trouble Caused by Reduction of Wages of Mill Workers.

At Lawrenceville, Mass., several companies of state militia were called out to assist the police in quelling the rioting in connection with the mill workers' strike.

Most of the local factories were compelled to close their gates and the number of idle hands is estimated at 20,000.

The trouble is due to a reduction in wages, necessitated, the mill owners say, by a cut in the running time from fifty-six to fifty-four hours a week, compelled by the new state law, which became effective Jan. 1.

At New York, Guy E. Tripp of Boston was elected chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company

LORIMER MONEY TO THE AID OF BROWNE

Senator Admits He Contributed Thousands to Defense.

Searching Question by Senator Kern of Indiana Brings Out Story of Alleged Perjury and Intimidation.

In Washington Friday a sensation was caused when Senator Lorimer, testifying before the special senate committee inquiry into his title to the seat he holds in the upper house of congress, calmly admitted that he contributed $8,000 to $10,000 to the fund for the defense of Lee O'Neal Browne.

Senator Lorimer's plea that he is the victim of a conspiracy to oust him from the senate also was unexpectedly propounded.

The story broke out suddenly after he had told at the suggestion of his attorney how he gave Lee O'Neil Browne thousands for his defense. Senator Kern fired a cold question, whether the Illinois senator was not trying to defeat the ends of justice. Then came the story of the conspiracy, the theory of the innocence of Browne and others, the intimidations to get false testimony from Holstlaw, Beckemeyer and Link, the flagrant perjury of White and the wealth of details.

Senator Lorimer did not tell his remarkable story without interruption. The situation in the crowded room was tense. A constant fire of questions was poured at him by Senators Kern and Lee. Occasionally one of the other senators, admittedly friendly to him, would ask for substantiation of his startling charges. Senators Kenyon, Gamble and Jones were not present. More than once his attorney, Elbridge Hanecy, interrupted as if to aid the witness, but Senator Lorimer did not seem to need assistance at any time. His story was not shaken. Frequently he could not marshal facts to prove general statements, but his calm was not ruffled under the most pointed questions or his assurance shaken.

Attorney Hanecy made it certain that Senator Lorimer's tory would not be concluded this week, when he announced that he will explain each of the 108 votes he received.

JACKSON—Robert Crystal, who was a convict, died at the prison from an abscess on the lungs. He was sentenced from Kalamazoo in 1903 to serve from two and one-half to fifteen years for robbery. The body will be sent to the University of Michigan as it is not known whether he had any relatives.

ALMA—At an enthusiastic meeting of the college cabinet with L. E. Buel, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and B. B. Johnson, state student secretary, held in the Y. M. C. A. building, a movement was launched to start a Bible study class in the college and get as many of the students to join as possible.

YPSILANTI—Philip T. Colgrove, a resident of Hastings, president of the Michigan Good Roads association, spoke to a large audience in this city. It was predicted by many that the good roads proposition would, if submitted, carry in Washtenaw county. Many in the audience were farmers.

MUSKEGON—Hubert Swart, who has been a prominent Holland-American resident for fifty years, was found dead seated in a chair in his home when relatives broke into the place because he had failed to visit them as usual. He was eighty years old. Death was caused by heart disease.

SEVEN WARSHIP SUNK

Turkish Gunboats and an Armed Yacht Destroyed in Red Sea.

Seven Turkish gunboats and an armed yacht were destroyed by an Italian fleet in a battle in the Red Sea.

The action occurred Jan. 7 outside the bay of Kungda, a small walled town with a garrison and two forts, about 500 miles north of Aden, on the east coast of the Red Sea.

A brief official note just issued says: "The Italian fleet in the Red Sea encountered and destroyed seven Turkish gunboats and captured a Turkish armed yacht. The Turkish warships offered a violent resistance, but no loss was sustained by the Italians."

The division of Italian cruisers which has been scouring the coasts of the Red Sea in search of Turkish war vesels and ships conveying contraband destined for the Turkish garrisons in Yemen province, Arabia, encountered the flotilla of Turkish gunboats and at once opened fire. The Turks replied, but their feeble armament succumbed to the superior weapons of the Italians.

HEADS MICHIGAN BATTALION

Senator Stephenson's Son Elected Commander in Naval Brigade.

Hancock, Mich., Jan. 13.—Lieutenant Grant T. Stephenson of Escanaba, son of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, was elected commander of the second battalion of the Michigan naval brigade.

The election ends a long contest over the disposition of the training ship Yantic, which will now remain at Hancock.

DR. WEBSTER GUILTY

Chicago Physician in Court Admits Murder of His Wife.

At Oregon, Ill., Friday, Dr. Harry Elgin Webster pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife, Bessie Kent Webster, in the woods near this city.

His attorneys, after reviewing the evidence against the Chicago physician, who has been an interne at several hospitals, decided that it would be useless to fight the case, and Dr. Webster himself declared that it was best for him to plead guilty and endeavor to escape with a life sentence.

Judge R. S. Farrand announced that he would pass sentenced on Webster Jan. 22.

Bessie Kent Webster, who was an illegal wife of the prisoner, was killed near Dixon, Ill. Her nude body was discovered in a lonely stretch of woods and Dr. Webster was at once suspected, having been seen at Dixon in company with the woman. He maintained his innocence for a time, but afterward collapsed and made a confession. Later he repudiated the confession and it was thought that his attorneys would endeavor to clear him on technicalities.

RIOTS IN PARIS

Large Number of Persons Injured and Many Arrests Made.

At Paris, France, violent riots took place near the palace of justice and resulted in a large number of rioters and several policemen being injured. Many arrests were made.

The demonstration was brought on by the trial of several trade unionists in the correctional court of the Seine on a charge of distributing circulars of a revolutionary character to soldiers serving with their regiments.

MRS. BEHRMAN IS CONVICTED BY JURY

She Is Declared Guilty of Murdering Her Husband.

After Deliberating for Twenty-two Hours the Jury in the Case Returns a Verdict of Manslaughter.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Vina Behrmann, charged with murdering her husband, Henry Behrmann, last August, was convicted of manslaughter. The jury deliberated on the case twenty-two hours.

The shooting that caused Behrmann's death is said to have been the result of a quarrel between Behrmann and his wife over the former's affection for another woman. Mrs. Behrmann's attorneys have asked for a ten days' stay of sentence.

TUB TRUST FIGHTS HARD

Seeks to Have Indictments Quashed on Novel Grounds.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16.—That the government in its indictment of members of the bath-tub trust did not term the alleged restraint of trade "unreasonable" is the principal contention in proceedings set for hearing in the United States district court.

A special plea was entered in behalf of the Colwell Lead company of New York, one of the defendants, based on the recent decision of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil case.

The trial, to which this hearing is preliminary, is set for Jan. 30. About twenty-six lawyers from many different cities are expected to appear in behalf of the defendants, who number nearly two score.

CURIOSITY SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Peeps Through Rear Door of Car, Sees Train Approaching.

Holland, Mich., Jan. 15.—Taking a peep through the rear door of the rear coach of a Pere Marquette passenger train, which was backing up from Holland to Waverly, saved the life of Miss Elsie Plaggerman. An incoming passenger train was rolling into Waverly, and realizing that a collision was imminent she rushed to the forward end of the coach.

A moment later the seat which she had occupied was smashed, the vestibule was demolished, the incoming engine lost its pilot, but no one was injured.

ROYAL FRONTENAC BURNS

Big Summer Hotel at Frankfort, Mich., Consumed in Three Hours.

Frankfort Mich., Jan. 15.—The Royal Frontenac, Frankfort's big summer hotel, was destroyed by fire. The hotel was closed for the winter and the loss is about $100,000.

The building was a frame structure and was consumed in less than three hours. The cause has not been ascertained.

Girl Prisoner Makes Escape.

AN ORDINANCE PASSED BY THE COUNCIL AT THE SPECIAL MEETING HELD JAN. 15 1912.

An ordinance to provide for the keeping of the sidewalks of the Village free from snow, ice, filth, and other nuisances.

SEC. 1 The Village of Tecumseh ordains: That the owners and occupants of all lands in the Village shall, before the hour of nine o'clock in the forenoon of each day, clear away and remove from all sidewalks adjoining their respective premises, all snow, ice, filth and other nuisances.

SEC 2. That in case of the failure or neglect of such owner or occupant to remove all snow, ice, filth and other nuisances, from the sidewalks of this Village, within the time above provided, the Street Commissioner is hereby ordered and directed to proceed and remove from all such sidewalks, all snow, ice, filth and other nuisances thereon: keeping seperate account of the expense of such cleaning of the sidewalks adjoining each separately owned or occupied parcel of land; which expense, together with the description of such parcel and the name of the owner or occupant thereof, shall be forthwith reported by the Street Commissioner to the Village Clerk, who shall keep a correct record of the same.

SEC. 3. All expense incurred by the Village in the keeping of the side walks clear and free from snow, ice filth and other nuisances, as above provided, shall be assessed, as a special assessment, against the premises adjoining the sidewalk in connection with which such expense is incurred, plus a penalty of ten per cent of such expense to be levied and collected upon the next assessment roll of the Village.

Swiss English.

Swiss English always seems designed to round off the scenery with the touch of humor. For years the best in the writer's collection has been an inscription by a path leading to a waterfall near Meiringen, which explained that a toll was necessary for "the foundation and untertaining" of that path. Until recently, however, there was nothing quite equal to the Strassburg cathedral notice: "Express interdiction to circulate during divine service. Beadle have to preserve order." But Switzerland has at least tied with Germany now in the collection. In a certain Oberland valley, too unspoiled yet to be given away by name, there is a series of gates which bear a short request in Oberland German to the wayfarer to close them. And twice it is translated into the English "Shut up!" —London Spectator.

Costly Coats.

An Indian prince after a court function in London went home for a chat with a friend, also an eastern potentate. On arriving he asked to be allowed to take off his dress coat and then that his friend's private secretary might put it in the safe for the night. It was a silk frock coat, buttercup yellow and heavy with jewels.

"How much may you be worth with your coat on?" the prince was asked.

"About £200,000," was the reply.

"I am a poor man beside you," said his friend sadly. "My dress coat is worth not much more than half that amount."

Plans For the Future.

She was a visitor to the prison, kindly and well meaning, and as she chatted with a burglar who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment she thought she detected signs of reform in him.

"And now," she said, "have you any plans for the future on the expiration of your sentence?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am," he said hopefully. "I've got the plans of two banks and a postoffice."—Stray Stories.

FROM THE OLD COUNTRY

The Irish Post and Telegraph for Cavan and Midland lately received at the Herald Office from Mrs. Chas. Ives who is visiting in Ireland, is quite an interesting sheet. It has twelve pages and is quite full of illustrations. A fine cut of Alfred Vanderbilt and Mrs. McKim who were married at Reigate last month appears on one of its pages. The ads are mostly on the first page, though one firm has a full page ad which is quite unique.

Our attention was particularly called to an article of the Gowna Parish church which has lately been remodeled and was rededicated Dec. 10. Mrs. Ives attended these services. The site of this church is supposed to be that of one of the most ancient Christrian sites known.

We note among the society items that one of the ladies has as her pet a hen and carries it with her to the social functions.

The paper is certainly full of much that is of interest to everyone.

The ice that has formed on the top of the standpipe during the late cold weather, has begun to fall to the ground, This making it quite dangerous for the children who have been coasting in the park.

ADELAIDE M. ROGERS

Adelaide M. Rogers died at her home in this village on the morning of Jan, 9, 1912.

She was born in Poultney, Vermont Dec. 7, 1848. She was the second of the four daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. David L. Rogers, the oldest and youngest having died in childhood.

The family moved to Michigan in 1865. making their home for a number of years in Mt Clemens. There she attended High School, graduating with honors. They moved to this county in 1874, living for a short time in Raisin Center, later removing to their farm home east of Tecumseh, where they lived until the death of the father, after which they came to their present home in the village where the mother died seven years ago.

Here the two sisters, familiarly known to their friends as "Emma" and "Addie," have lived a life of true sisterly devotion, and have made a home well known for its hospitality and helpful cheer.

They were much more to each other than sisters ordinarily are, always in harmony and accord, and having been always together, the loss will be more deeply felt by Emma, whose devotion to her sister is well known.

While living in Mt Clemens Addie was stricken with that terrible malady, spinal meningitis, and since that time has never enjoyed good health. But all those years of pain she bravely endured, never complaining, never permitting her suffering to sadden the life of others, but rather bore it all in silence that her friends might not be made unhappy on her account. Instead of drawing sympathy to herself, she was, in her friendly interest in old and young, ever ready with a helpful cheery word, enabling them to have a brighter outlook on life.

Gifted with an unusually bright intellect, and with artistic talent, her frail body was a handicap to much that she hoped to do. Yet her's was not a life of disappointed and regret for lost opportunities. She made of it a benediction to all who came within its influence.

She joined the church in her girlhood and was always loyal, although barred from the privilege of attending its services.

The following poem, composed by her one Sunday evening in their old farm home while listening to the church bells as they rang for evening service, expresses clearly her abiding faith.

"The Lord is in his holy temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him," Through the strange sweet silence of the summer Sabbath air,
I hear thy voice, sweet bell, in call to evening prayer.
"The Lord is in his temple holy,"
In thought I see the crowd,
Of worshippers with head bent lowly, before the shrine invisible.
Within my quiet room I sit, the bonds of pain that hold me
I chafe at till I half forget the love that hath controlled me.
O vague desire, and sad unrest,
O questioning heart,
And sinful thought but half confessed,
O will unteachable!
And do I need the reverential crowd and priestly word,
The chant of choir, and organ peal,
to tell me of my Lord?
Behold thy Temple, Lord is hear,
The curtain of thy holy place
Scarce veils thy presence shining near,
The grace and love ineffable.
Again I hear "Let all the earth
keep silence before Him,"
And penitent I bow to confess him and adore Him,
Before thy altar, Lord, I bring my heart, O cleanse it pure
From sin, and make it meet for offering,
A sacrifice acceptable.
Ring on, sweet bells, I lift mine eyes,
The beauty of the earth, the glory of the sunset skies
Evermore shall speak to me
Of the temple's sacrifice,
Of other glories yet to be
By faint attainable.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. G. N Kennedy, were held at her late home on Thursday afternoon, with interment in Brookside Cemetery.

ANNUAL MEETING O. E. S. ASSOCIATION

Adrian Jan. 15

It is estimated that nearly 300 were present at the Lenawee-Monroe association O. E. S. held in Adrian Monday. Lenawee was more fully represented there being many more chapters in this county.

At 5 o'clock Mrs. Jennie Pettie called the meeting to order, all joined in singing America, after which Mrs. Alfred James led in prayer.

The reception of the Grand Officers then followed, Mrs S. W. Anderson as 2nd Vice President representing Tecumseh. At the close of this a social hour was spent until the supper hour. The ladies of the Baptist church furnished supper to a large company.

At the session the degrees were conferred upon several candidates. Miss Vesta Wilson as Martha was the representative from Tecumseh chapter.

At the close of the work a short program was given of song and recitation, after which the President of the association took up the business of the meeting. Light refreshments were served and everything done to make the visitors feel at home and welcome.

SOCIAL EVENTS

WIT AND WISDOM

The regular meeting of the Wit and Wisdom club was held Monday evening at the home of Rev and Mrs. Kennedy.

It being ladies night the regular program was dropped and a play "The Sweet Family" was substituted. This family consisted of a mother, (Mrs. McAlpine) and seven talented, accomplished and charming daughters, who in the course of the play, displayed their various accomplishments for the benefit of the company.

Arminta Ann (Mrs. Weld) as Prima Donna, gave a very fine selection, demonstrating quite forcibly her great talent. She was heartily encored.

Betsy Belinda (Miss Wimple) was a strong Womans Right's woman, and was firm in her convictions and brave in declaring them.

Carolina Cordelia and Deborah Delilah, the twins, (Mrs. Hurry and Harriett) were both twins and were everywhere in evidence, one favored the company with an orginal story, and the other who, "played by ear" played a piece to demonstrate her great talent.

Elizabeth Eliza (Mrs. Rector) a dramatic elocutionist, elocuted in a marvelous manner, to the amazement of her listeners,

Frances Fedora (Mrs. John Orr) was a poetess and gave proof of her talent in a most poetical manner

Glorianna Gadabout (Mrs. Howard) was the youngest daughter, an inveterate giggler and the constant worry of the mother. She spoke a piece however in a very acceptable manner.

Haughty Hepsibah (Mrs C. A. Slayton) as pianoist, was right up to date and accompanied the singing of the Prima Donna. She also developed a talent for elocution and gave a very touching recitation.

The whole evening abounded in jollity and merriment. Most appetizing refreshments were served at the close of the play.

NO NAME CLUB

The last meeting of the No Name Club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Comfort Chase. Pedro was the game of the evening.

Mrs F. D. Teachout was the winner of the first prize and Mrs. Hunt the second prize. A fine supper was served and a good time was the verdict of all present.

JOLLY 16

The Jolly 16 held their meeting last evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Rogers. At the close of ten games, Mrs. G. J. Ziehr was the winner of first prize, and Mrs. Floyd Freeman second. A light lunch was served later in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Rogers entertained the O. E. Club, Tuesday night. Mrs. George Church was the lucky winner of the first prize, and Mrs. Clyde Heck the second prize. At the close of the games a bountiful two course supper was served.

SCHOOL NOTES

Y. W. C. A. will be held at the School house from now on. This is a very good plan owing to the central location of the building.

Martha Keysor has been absent for the last two weeks.

Ivan Spittler taught English IV last Friday morning. It certainly is wonderful how much anyone can learn about teaching by observation.

Genera Satterthwaite was absent Tuesday morning.

The United States History class is reviewing for examination. There is not much pleasure in this process unless it is the beautifully long lessons we have to prepare, we are getting so that the record for fast reading is up the mark of 100 pages in 45 minutes.

The Cicero class finished the third Oration against Cataline, Thursday and will now begin reviewing it preparatory to the test which follows the completion of each oration.

There is quite a great deal of interest manifested in the "Current Events", a little weekly paper, that comes to the High School. Quite a number are subscribing for it for their own use.

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED

Baldness is too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age

A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit, and refuse to take men over 35 years of age as new employees.

Probably 65 per cent of bald-headed people may regain a good head of healthy hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead, their follicles closed, and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will, and gives satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

We know exactly what we are talking about; and with this offer back of our statements no one should scoff, doubt our word, or hesitate to put our remedy to an actual test.

We want every one in Tecumseh who is suffering from any scalp or hair trouble, dandruff, falling hair, or baldness to try our Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We want them to use it regularly—stay until three bottles have been used—and if it does not eradicate dandruff, cleanse and refresh the scalp, tighten the hair in its roots, and grow new hair, we will return every cent paid us for the remedy for the mere asking. There is no formality expected, and we exact no obligation from from the user whatever.

We are established right here in Tecumseh, and make this offer with a full understanding that our business success entirely depends upon the sort of treatment we accord our customers, and would not dare make the above offer unless we were positively certain that we could substantiate it in every particular, Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. Great Interest Taken "PAID IN FULL" AT THE DAVISON LAST NIGHT MORE THAN PLEASED.

"Paid in Full" presented by C. S Primrose at the Davison Theatre last evening, drew a good house and sent home to many hearts the truth of that great American play. The story is one which has happened time and again; many times of which nothing is known excepting to those involved, and only portrays how some American homes are broken and destroyed all for the love of money and appearances.

Hugh Harper, the leading man in the company, surely takes his part to perfection, as did W. A. Playter in the second man of the story, in fact the whole company is great, and taken with the story "Paid in Full," makes a combination that cannot be beaten —Beaver Dam, Wis,. Daily Citizen, Nov. 14. 1911.

"Paid in Full" will appear at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE on THURSDAY JAN. 25.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench

A little cause may hurt the kidneys

Spells of backache often follow,

Or some irregularity of the urine,

A splendid remedy for such attacks

A medicine that has cured thousands.

Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.

Many Tecumseh people rely on it.

Here is Tecumseh proof.

George D. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

An Elastic Appetite.

The American black bear has an appetite that may be appropriately termed elastic. He will kill a thousand pound steer and capture the tiny field mouse for a meal with equal indifference. If a pig or sheep is not handy to his reach he will dine on a colony of ants or a nest of wood grubs. He will feast on dainty birds' eggs or sweet stores of wild honey and on the foulest carrion with like gusto. He will fish for the savory trout, but at the same time snap any warty toad or slimy lizard that may happen along that way. He will seek the luscious wild plum when it has ripened or the wild grape among the branches where the vine clambers and bears its fruit, but will not miss the oportunity to make food of any snake that may lie in ambush there for birds that come to peck at the plums or grapes. The bear has a comprehensive palate. There is scarcely a thing in the animal or vegetable kingdom that will not tickle it.

Many Fish Were Blind.

More than 17,000 yellowtail were caught by Japanese fishermen at the long wharf recently. This is the largest catch for one day's fishing ever recorded in the bay district. Among the finny specimens were several deep sea fish, which, when brought to the surface, were found to be totally blind.—Los Angeles Tribune.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 300 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The Strength of Rings.

Some elaborate calculations, backed by experiments, have been made to determine the "breaking strength" of rings. It appears that a ring of ductile material like malleable iron will be pulled out into the form of a long link before it breaks and that the ultimate strength of the ring is virtually independent of its diameter. Fracture finally occurs as the result of almost pure tension, and the resistance to breaking is a little less than twice that of a rod of the same cross section subjected to a straight pull. As the ring increases in diameter there appears to be a slight approach toward equality, with double the strength of a bar. Thus a three inch ring made of three-quarter inch iron broke at nineteen and one-half tons; a four inch ring at nineteen and nine-tenths tons and a six inch ring at twenty tons, the strength of a bar of the same metal being ten and one-half tons.

A King Full.

When a man charged with disorderly conduct was arraigned by Patrolman Queen before a chief magistrate in the Adams street court, Brooklyn, the court asked, "What's your name?" "Thomas King," was the answer. "Ah," said the magistrate, "a queen captures a king." "Yes, but it wasn't a straight deal," retorted King. "Sure it was," interrupted Queen. "This man is a fourflusher." "What's your business?" "I dig for a living," answered King. "So you are a king of spades," laughed the magistrate. "Yes, but beaten by a club," answered King "Can you come across with $2?" "A deuce of a fine," spoke up King, "but I'll see you." He handed over the money, and Clerk Hesterberg raked in the pot. "I see a joker's no good in this game," said King as he was leaving court.—Exchange.

New Ways of Serving Old Dishes.

The clever hostess can always show her ingenuity by a touch of novelty in the serving of some of the time honored courses at her dinner. Raw oysters, for instance, produce a very original effect when served with maple syrup or whipped cream.

A very palatable fish pudding may be prepared by mixing the finely chopped fish with sugar, raisins and a bit of vanilla extract, serving cold with a custard sauce.

A delicious dessert is onion jelly with caviar sandwiches and maraschino cherries. Try it.—Judge's Library.

Classified.

"You say you are your wife's third husband?" said one man to another during a talk.

"No, I am her fourth husband," was the reply.

"Heavens, man!" said the first speaker. "You are not a husband—you're a habit."

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

BAY CITY—The defense in the murder case of Mrs. Vina Behrmann, charged with killing her husband, scored a point on the prosecutor, when he put "Red Rose," a local character, on the stand. She was to testify to alleged improper actions of Mrs. Behrmann. "Red Rose," after saying that Mrs. Behrmann washed for her, somewhere "red that she had induced the defendant to accompany her on three different occasions to saloons. The defendant drank some beer on its its trip. "She was always talking about her husband," said the witness, "and when I told her she was a fool to go on that way and to come out and have some fun and forget her troubles she wouldn't do it. She said she didn't want any man but Heiney."

MATTEAWAN, N. Y.—The friends in the close confidence of Harry K. Thaw declare that habeas corpus proceedings will be begun within the next few days to obtain the release of the man who killed Stanford White. They are quoted as almost positively confident of success and declare that Thaw will be released in thirty days. Mrs. Thaw, the mother, has been in consultation with prominent lawyers in New York during the last week and several state officials and others have also been seen.

ST. JOSEPH—One death is due to the severe cold wave. The body of William Moulton, a local character, was found in the men's room in a building on the docks. His body was frozen stiff and it was with difficulty that it could be moved. The features of the man were horribly contracted. It is thought that he had a slight attack of apoplexy and that unable to help himself or call for assistance, froze to death.

PORT HURON—Thomas Russell, a citizen of Wadhams, seems to be hoodooed so far as his ownership of horses is concerned. In the last four years Mr. Russell has lost ten horses. Two of the animals were killed by railroad trains, one choked to death, one was drowned and the remainder met death from disease. The animals were worth about $2,000.

IONIA—Charles McNeal, fifty years of age, a well-to-do farmer living in Chippewa township, hung himself in a sheep shed. The body was discovered by his wife. It is said that McNeal became despondent over the failure of his crops last fall. He held several offices in the township. He is survived by seven children.

FLAT ROCK—Mrs. Mattie Lang, sixty-five years old, was fatally burned when the shawl she was wearing caught fire as she leaned over the kitchen stove. The woman lived alone and before neighbors arrived and extinguished the flames she was terribly burned, dying a short time later. She leaves no near relatives.

IONIA—When she was sent to the county house because she was not thought to be sufficiently out of her mind to be committed to an asylum, Mrs. Mary Anna Dow of Easton, after her arrival here, attempted to stab the attendants with a fork, smashed up the furniture in her room and bit Mrs. Gaffney, the matron.

MANISTIQUE — Melvin W. Orr, who was former cashier of the Manistique bank, pleaded guilty to charge of embezzlement and falsification of the books. He was sentenced to Marquette prison for from two to five years by Judge Oren.

KENOSHA — Palquale Marchesi, the man who is in jail here, charged with the murder of his wife and his nephew, Pasquale Marchesi, whom he beat to death with a hatchet last November, is insane and it is not thought he will be tried.

POTTERVILLE—Edward Godsmark, a well known farmer residing about four miles northwest of this village, dropped dead just as he drove to the house with a load of goods. Heart failure was the cause. He was sixty-one years old.

Pit Brow Women.

The pit brow women work at the mouths of English coal mines in sheds open to the weather at the sides. The work which they perform has to do with the sorting of the coal according to size and quality and the freeing of it from stones. There is some lifting to be done and some pushing. There is some risk, but not a great deal. Women have been hurt by the catching of their clothing in the belting and machinery, but of late there has been more care than formerly in covering the parts of the machinery which proved dangerous. At the present time accidents are rare and confined for the most part to the crushing of fingers. There is dust constantly rising, and this makes the work untidy. Women working in coal get black faces as well as men, but they wear cloths on their heads, which keep the dust out of their hair, and the fact that they are in the open air, together with the constant muscular exertion required, is on the whole beneficial to their health. Many of the girls are fine figures and all have good color. They prefer the occupation to domestic labor or employment in factories. The wages they earn range from a shilling to 2s. 3d. a day. In the various colliery towns there are upward of 5,000 women thus employed.—Exchange.

M. JOSEPH CAILLAUX

French Premier in Midst of Crash of His Cabinet.

FRENCH MINISTRY RESIGNS

Premier Caillaux Finds It Impossible to Fill Ministry of Marine.

At Paris, France, Premier Caillaux has found it impossible to patch up a cabinet and has placed his resignation and those of his cabinet in the hands of President Fallieres.

The immediate difficulty was to fill the ministry of marine. M. Theophile Delcasse, the present minister of marine, had undertaken to accept the foreign portfolio, but Admirals Germinot and Aubert and Senator Boudin successively refused to fill the place which Delcasse would leave vacant. This was sufficient proof that nobody was anxious to enter a moribund ministry.

M. Poincare, who was tendered the premiership, called upon President Falliers and announced his acceptance of the invitation to form the new cabinet.

MANY HURT IN WRECK

Rails Spread on Big Four near Carey, Ohio.

At least thirty-four passengers on a Big Four railway train from Detroit to Cincinnati were reported to have been hurt in a wreck which occurred four miles south of Carey, O. Two of the day coaches left the track on account of spreading rails. These two cars went into a ditch.

Physicians from Carey were hurried to the scene of the wreck and many of the injured were taken to a hospital in Kenton. Several of those hurt were cared for by the residents of Carey.

The engine and a baggage car passed over the spreading rails in safety, but the two last cars went into a ditch.

The engine was then derailed and the baggage car was thrown sidewise across the track.

It is understood that five of the passengers were hurt fatally.

"BLACK HAND" TO PRISON

Would Be Blackmailers in Chicago Get Five Years Each.

At Chicago Dr. Alfred W. Gelbert, a chemist in the Masonic Temple, and Sarkis H. Deckmedjal, 717 East Forty-third street, were sentenced to serve five years each in the Leavenworth penitentiary by Judge Landis in the United States district court for attempting to blackmail Pushman Bros., Armenian rug dealers, 18 South Wabash avenue.

They were found guilty by a jury after a trial during which the government attorneys attempted to connect the two men with a national Black Hand society of Armenians, as the result of which it is expected that Armenian societies in several large cities will undergo a probe by the federal government.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS GAIN

Reballots Necessary Before Reichstag Alignment Is Known.

With returns to Berlin, Ger., from the elections practically complete, it is apparent that the reballots must be awaited before the character of the new reichstag will be definitely known. The Socialists won sixty-two seats, a net gain of twenty-four.

The Socialist gains, it appears, are mainly at the expense of the Radicals, who are greatly disappointed at their showing. They will return to the reichstag with hardly more than three-fifths of their former strength.

SARAH PLATT DECKER

Noted Woman Suffragist Declines to Become Senate Candidate.

DENVER, COLO.—Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, who is one of the most noted woman suffrage advocates in the United States, silenced an effort to boom her as a candidate for the United States senate at the senatorial primary election to be held next November.

"The time is not ripe for the election of a woman to the United States senate. I know that the day will come when she will sit in the councils of the nation, but it will not be in my generation. Not even Colorado has advanced to where it can select a woman for United States senator."

EXPECT MORE ARRESTS

Others than the Dearings May Be Involved.

Albion Depositors Making a Stir Because of Allegations by the Men in Jail.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 13.—Depositors of the National Bank of Albion were in consultation with local attorneys to determine whether further arrests shall be made in connection with the wrecked institution. As a result it is believed warrants may be obtained for some of the most prominent men in Albion, on the charge of violating the national banking laws.

Depositors point to Cashier H. M. Dearing's sworn statement that the directors knew of the $21,000 lost through the dealings with Charles Young, hay dealer.

New discoveries made by Frank Irwin, receiver for the defunct Albion National bank, bring the total losses, through the forgeries and thefts of the Dearings up to $300,000.

MAY DISMISS POISON CASE

Mrs. Sparling to Be Freed of Charge of Son's Murder.

Bad Axe, Mich., Jan. 13.—Rumors are current that the adjournment of the hearing of Mrs. John Wesley Sparling was a prelude to the possible dismissal of the case here. She is charged with poisoning her son, Scyrel, who died last spring near Ubly, Huron county.

The attention of the prosecution has apparently been diverted in some measure to the deaths of John Wesley Sparling, the prisoner's husband, and their son, Peter, whose bodies were recently exhumed in Sanilac county.

It is said that any action taken in Sanilac county will not affect that transfer to Sanilac of the case against Dr. R. A. MacGregor, also charged with the murder of Scyriel Sparling and now in jail here awaiting trial.

KYOSK IS HELD FOR TRIAL

Must Answer for Murder of Two Walpole Island Indians.

Algonac, Mich., Jan. 16. — At Port Lacbton the inquest on the death of Adam Johns, one of two Indians murdered in their cabin on Walpole Island New Year's night, was completed. Stephen Kyosk, who was arrested with his wife, Flossie, on suspicion, was held to the French assizes at Sarnia for trial. The woman was discharged.

Evidence was given by neighbor Indians of a quarrel in the cabin and of six shots being fired. Later, it was stated, Kyosk was seen hauling his boat into the river. Contrary to reports, only John's body was recovered, that of Charles Nahdee being still in the river.

How to Avoid Divorce.

My advice to husbands who wish to avoid divorce is this: Don't quote mother. Call up your wife while at business and ask how she is and tell her that you called her up just to hear her voice. Take her a box of candy, one of the new books that she is interested in, a flower, even if it is faded and you have picked it up off the street; a pretty pin or handkerchief, and don't ever lay your head on your pillow at night without having done something to gain and obtain a firmer hold on your wife's love. Kiss her every day. At least once a month meet her downtown and take her to dinner and the theater. Don't ever stop courting, for as soon as you do some other man will begin. Make your wife your companion. Take her out with you, and when you have to have a big time take your wife along and the divorce evil will be lessened. —Leslie's Weekly.

Loans Without Interest.

In the city of Barcelona, Spain, there is a peculiar pawnbroking establishment bearing the dainty name of "Our Lady of Hope," where loans are made without interest to necessitous persons on the deposit of any articles in pledge. Two-thirds of the value of the deposit is at once advanced, and the loan is made for six months and a day, but if at the expiration of that period the depositor should declare himself unable to redeem it, after another period of six months the pledges are sold, but if they yield more than the amount advanced the difference is given to the original owner. This institution is very popular. Thousands are every year suitors for the favor thus afforded by "Our Lady of Hope."—Richard Ford, "Gatherings From

CONVALESCENTS

Those Recovering from Any Severe Illness

After a long wasting illness, convalescents require nourishing food that will not overtax the digestive functions—and in the way of a strength-restoring and vitality-making tonic, we know of nothing that equals Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil).

Vinol creates an appetite, re-establishes good digestion and helps the daily food to make rich blood, form flesh, strong muscles and impart new life and vitality to every organ in the body. We ask those who need a strength and flesh-building tonic restorative to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that if it does not help them we will refund their money without question.

THE GOOSE GIRL

Scene from Baker & Castle's Massive Scenic Production "The Goose Girl" at the Bradley Opera House, Monday Jan. 29.

The Youth in Politics.

Professor Blackie was in favor of a higher age limit for parliamentary candidates than is at present enforced. "I remain decidedly of opinion," he writes, "that no man ought to open his mouth on the hustings or at public dinners till he is at least 30 years of age. Young men are absolutely incapable of political wisdom; it is the fruit of time and cannot be extemporised from the young ebullience of the brain like a brilliant lyric poem or a dashing novel."

Chinese Chorus Girls.

In some Chinese theaters the stage manager has an economical custom of employing dummy figures cut out of cardboard and the like, to swell the ranks of the chorus without at the same time swelling the salary list. Obviously such a device would never do in this country, for a cardboard chorus girl would hardly satisfy the matrimonial requirements of our gilded youth. In China it is most unusual for women to appear on the stage, and the feminine roles are taken by boys.

Do You Know?

A professor of anatomy at Yale College was asked by a boy the other day why boys were not born with 10 toes on each foot, and the wise man couldn't answer. Most men, after they get to be men, are satisfied with five toes on a foot, but a boy really ought to be allowed 10. With only five on a foot he now slips back while climbing a tree to steal apples. We move that the extra toes be provided before another summer.

THREE CACHES OF DYNAMITE FOUND

Explosion Plot Scented in Lawrence Labor Trouble.

STRIKERS CHARGE A FRAME-UP

Suspected Persons Arrested as It Is Believed Mills May Be In Danger—Italian Clergyman Endorses Strike.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 22. — There has been no excitement in the city for several hours.

Inspector William Rooney of the Boston police department, who led the police in their successful hunt for explosives, is the officer who scoured Boston on Wednesday night with six Italian policemen in a hunt for alleged dynamiters supposed to have come to Boston for the purpose of making an attack on Governor Foss. It is believed that Rooney secured some information immediately afterward which led to his hurried visit to this city and the unearthing of three packages of dynamite.

In the cobbler shop of Urbano Da Prato, Inspector Rooney found a bundle containing six sticks of dynamite and seven caps. Da Prato declared that the bundle had been left by a strange man, who said he would return later. He was taken to the police station, however.

A closet in a house on Oak street, in the Syrian colony, was the place in which the first lot of dynamite was found. The second lot was located in St. Mary's cemetery, lying on the snow without any apparent attempt at hiding.

All the inmates of the Oak street house were arrested. The dynamite is declared by the authorities to be part of a large quantity brought here recently from Pennsylvania.

Through Joseph J. Etter, their leader, the strikers issued a statement charging that the dynamite was "planted."

Great crowds have been on the streets, but there were no encounters with the militia. The four new companies of the Eighth regiment, which reached here Saturday did their turn guarding the mill district and kept every one outside the lines which are stretched across the streets leading to the woolen manufacturing plants.

The Rev. Mariano Milanese, pastor of the Church of the Holy Rosary, where many Italian operative worship, made a statement to his congregation in which he endorsed the strike.

WOMAN IS TURNING BLACK

Mrs. Abel Hare of Elgin Slowly Dying of New Disease.

Elgin, Ill., Jan. 22.—A disease never before recorded in this vicinity has attacked Mrs. Abel Hare and is slowly causing her death. It is known as Raynaud's disease, a vascular affliction, accompanied by gangrene and local asphyxia. It is turning the flesh on her hands and arms into a black substance, hard, immovable, and without feeling.

The disease has spread from the fingers to the elbows in a week, and the hands resemble ebony in appearance. Physicians say it results from contraction of the coverings of the blood vessels.

BUTTER AND EGG BOYCOTT STARTS

Idea Is to Force a Decrease in Present Inflated Prices.

BALTIMORE LEADING THE VAN

Dr. Hunner Issues Public Statement In Which He Charges Elevation of Prices to Chicago Manipulators.

Baltimore, Jan. 22.—Urging a boycott of butter and eggs as the most effective means of forcing a decreased price of these necessities, Dr. Guy L. Hunner, in a letter to the public, declares his belief that the skyrocketing of prices has been due to manipulation by concerns which are holding vast quantities of butter and eggs in cold storage.

In his call for a concerted boycott, Dr. Hunner says:

"Visiting in Chicago last September, I was informed by reliable authority that one of the largest butter and egg storage companies in the country was planning a winter campaign to corner the market and boost prices of these important food supplies.

"This same company two years ago by artificial inflation of prices cleaned up more than $1,000,000, but last winter proving so mild after Jan. 1 the hens and cows upset their plans to the extent of half a million dollar loss.

"The government investigators report that on Jan. 1 of this year there was many million pounds of butter in storage. I believe systematic agitation would encourage the consumer, and the league and similar organizations of the city to take prompt action for a boycott, which would meet with hearty co-operation by the well-to-do and poor alike and result in a rapid leveling of the prices of butter and eggs, thereby doing much to alleviate the hunger of the poor.

LEAGUE OF HOUSEWIVES

New York Women Unite to Boycott Use of Butter.

New York, Jan. 22. — If the housewives of Greater New York, including the 165,000 members of women's clubs, harken to the entreaties of Mrs. Julian Heath, president and founder of the two-months-old Housewives' League, a butter boycott will be on in all the homes of the greater city, because it costs too much.

Mrs. Heath promises that the league will extend its activities to the Jersey shore soon, and that other problems of household economies will be attended to promptly as they arise.

TO COMBAT HIGH COST OF LIVING

President Taft to Advise with Congress.

WILL SEND SPECIAL MESSAGE

Will Recommend International Conference to Study Causes—Wages Must Be Increased or Price of Necessities Lowered.

Washington, Jan. 22. — President Taft intends to send to congress a message recommending that the United States take the initiative in promoting an international conference to study the causes which are working to increase the cost of living.

A conference was recently held in Washington in which Secretaries MacVeagh and Fisher were among the prominent men of the country to show a deep interest. It resulted in Professor Irving Fisher of Yale being delegated to call upon the president and explain the necessity for an international investigation.

While there has been an increase in the cost of living in all countries, he increase has been greatest in those countries enjoying the higher degree of prosperity. That something must be done to improve conditions, either by increasing wages or by reducing the cost of living, was so forcibly placed before the president that he has decided to call the matter to the attention of congress.

Proceeding on the theory that the conditions which are operating to advance the cost of living are world-wide, Congress will be asked to invite a gathering of investigators and students, accredited delegates of other nations, to a conference which will examine into all causes which have entered into the problem.

It is hoped that some plan can be proposed whereby production will be increased where essential to keep down prices, and effective provisions be made to meet high prices due to artificial conditions resulting from combinations, distribution methods and modern business practices.

In Charge

He Was Willing to Oblige a Friend

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright by American Press Association 1911

Dick Brant accosted his friend upon the street. "Hello, Bob!" he cried joyously. "The very person I wanted to see."

The young man addressed looked up at him. "What is it this time?" he asked frankly.

Dick laughed. "Oh, a sort of mutual benefit," he answered. "Claire and I are off to Beechurst tomorrow, and we are leaving our rooms up on Riverside with all our worldly goods endowed to the mercy of maidservants and manservants, who, we have learned to our sorrow, are not to be trusted."

"Well," his friend inquired as he paused for breath, "what's the answer?"

"I am coming to that," Dick continued. "Now, the place where you live is mighty hot these August days, while the breeze from over the Hudson blows ever fresh and cool through our windows. Why can't you come up there nights and make yourself at home, or at least two nights a week?" he quickly amended at Bob's surprised stare.

"In short," his friend answered slowly, "I am to play night watchman in return for my lodging."

Dick grinned. "And you might feed my pet goldfish a couple of times a week," he added. "I'll leave the food beside the bowl. The maid promised to attend to that part, but the truth is we'd just as soon she didn't enter the house. Claire has been missing things lately, and"—

"I see," said Bob. "Well, I will oblige you, as usual, and if there's anything else don't hesitate to mention it." His tone was sarcastic, but the men clasped hands warmly as they parted.

It was several days, however, before Bob recollected the empty apartment and the hungry fish. The night was insufferably hot, and he threw wide the windows and settled back in Dick's favorite chair, gratefully enjoying the breeze. This certainly was an improvement over his own close quarters, and he decided to spend the night here. When, upon the following morning, presenting a rather ungroomed appearance, he again entered the living room a small mound of cigar ashes upon the rug met his eye, and he went in search of brush and pan to remove the evidence of his carelessness. He was thus busily engaged when he distinctly heard a key inserted in the lock and looked up, startled, as the door swung easily open, but it was merely to admit the maid, who passed him with an indifferent nod and approached the goldfish bowl. A dainty white apron was tied over her dark blue dress, and her little high heeled slippers clicked as she walked across the polished floor.

Bob arose to his feet. "I fed them," he said, motioning toward the fish. The maid turned and looked at him. She had the most beautiful eyes that he had ever seen—large and blue and full of wonder, like a child's.

"You need not trouble any more," she said quietly. "I will attend to them after this."

He went again to the great apartment house that evening at twilight and, groping his way across the shadowy rooms, dropped wearily upon the couch, a high screen concealing his figure. Suddenly the entire apartment was flooded with light. Some one entering evidently had pressed the electric button. He lay silent, awaiting developments. Past his hiding place came the click of high heeled slippers. They went on into Mrs. Brant's dressing room.

Bob gathered back the silk of the screen and peered through. He saw the little maid sink upon her knees before a cabinet. She produced a bunch of keys, trying one after another in quick succession. At length the drawer yielded, and she drew forth a small box. Bob caught a glimpse of a pendant with many diamonds gleaming in the light, and then, before he could collect his senses, the rooms were in total darkness. He jumped to his feet and the screen fell crashing to the floor, barring for a moment his progress, but in that moment the girl had escaped.

Vainly he searched the rooms and corridors, coming out at last breathless upon the street. A taxicab waited at the entrance, and beside it stood the maid. As he advanced toward her she waved her hand to the occupant of the cab and quickly crossed to the long row of benches which lined the roadway. She looked up, white and frightened, as Bob stood sternly before her. He intended to be pitiless, but found it a difficult matter with that childish gaze fixed upon him.

"You remember me?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," she answered; "you are the man who cares for Mr. Brant's rooms."

Bob smiled dryly. "I happen to be Mr. Brant's friend," he said, "and, as I am in charge of his belongings, you must tell me why you took a diamond pendant from the cabinet drawer a short time ago."

She leaned forward entreatingly. "Oh, please do not ask me about it," she begged, "for I cannot tell you."

"See here," he said desperately, "you replace the pin and no one shall ever know."

She stood up before him, and her voice trembled. "I cannot do that," she said. "I did not take the pin for myself!"

"You mean," he exclaimed, "that you have already given it to another person!"

She nodded vigorously, then placed her hand upon his arm. "No one shall suspect you of stealing the pin," she said slowly. "I will see to that—trust me."

Perhaps she had been goaded on to take the pin by some very pressing need. The memory of a departing taxicab obtruded itself, to be impatiently cast aside. He would do nothing, events should shape themselves, and if—well, if the pin was still missing when Dick returned he would insist upon paying for it himself. There was a tidy sum in the bank to his credit—he had been saving a good deal lately—he reflected ruefully. But a deep frown creased his brow as he worked steadily during the days which followed, and though he visited again his friend's lonely apartment no little maid appeared, while the open door of a cabinet constantly proclaimed its emptiness.

A telegram was handed him one day, and he tore it open nervously, anticipating the contents. Dick and his wife would be home that evening—they wanted to see him up at the house. Bob closed his desk with a bang. "Well, he would go and have it over." Claire greeted him in her charming, hospitable way, and Dick wrung his hand heartily.

"Come in," they said, "and let us thank you."

They seemed not to notice Bob's strained manner as they chatted on about their trip. Presently Claire arose and rustled from the room. "Dear me," she said, "I had almost forgotten Kitty."

She returned in a moment with her arm about the waist of a girl whose eyes danced and whose cheeks glowed as Bob sprang to his feet confronting her, for this vision in clinging white was undoubtedly the erring maid.

"Kitty, dear," Claire was saying, "I want you to meet Dick's friend, Mr. Brewster. Bob, this is my cousin, Miss Ainslee, and now that we have you both here," she rattled on, "we want to thank you for looking after things during our absence. Dick's pet fish are positively fat. When I asked you to feed them, Kitty, I had no idea that Dick had already coaxed Bob in for that service."

"Bob was also to play night watchman," Dick interposed. "He has done well, for the furniture is still intact. We left nothing movable, I believe."

Mrs. Brant blushed. "Oh, yes, we did," she said. "I did not want to say anything about it, but Kitty insists upon a full and free confession. I carelessly forgot this diamond pendant you gave me as a wedding gift, Dick, and when we arrived at Beechurst I remembered that it still reposed in the cabinet drawer at home, a glittering temptation to that thieving maid of ours, and I wrote posthaste, special delivery, telling Kitty to secure the pin and send it with her brother Ned when he came down to spend the week end. I besought her to keep the matter secret," she continued, "for I did not dare to let you know, Dickie, until the pendant was safely in my possession."

Claire laughed. "Dick," she said, "you should have told me that Bob was to be caretaker. Fancy how embarrassing it would have been if he and Kitty had met here—feeding the goldfish!"

Kitty looked at her cousin reproachfully. "It might have been more than embarrassing for me," she said. "Think of my predicament. If Mr. Brewster had caught me in the act of departing with that pin of yours! Why, he would probably have considered it his duty to hand me over to the police, and I should have been locked up in a cell like a suffragette."

Brant laughed, while Bob grew uncomfortably red.

"Well, you still have your freedom," Claire answered carelessly. "Here comes the auto. Let's all take a ride."

And as Bob and Kitty were ensconced upon the rear seat he leaned toward her. "I have been an awful idiot," he said contritely. "Can you ever forgive me?"

Kitty's eyes twinkled. "Do you expect pardon at the first apology?" she asked.

"Certainly not," Bob responded. "I intend to start a series of apologies, dating from tonight. When you are assured of my deep repentance perhaps you may relent."

And Kitty smiled demurely. "Mine is a forgiving nature," she said.

He Lagged Superfluous.

Pittsfield, in the Berkshire hills, had in the old days, like many another New England town, a number of men and women who were called "characters." One of these was Bill Brown, a man unfortunately addicted to drink and frequently intoxicated for days at a time.

On one occasion he went into the shop of the local hatter, Mr. Smith, and asked for the best beaver in the store. Mr. Smith produced the desired article, saying as he took the money, "That beaver will last a man a lifetime."

Bill went proudly down the main street with his fine beaver on his head and immediately celebrated the event with a protracted debauch.

When he recovered he returned to the shop with a most disreputable hat.

"Look here, I thought you said this here beaver would last me a lifetime."

"So it would," growled Mr. Smith, "if you had died when you ought to."—Youth's Companion.

Penalty of the Peach.

The Egyptians appear to have been acquainted with what is commonly called prussic acid, the most deadly of poisons. It is held that they distilled it from certain plants and trees, notably the peach. In the Louvre there is an ancient Egyptian papyrus from which the following has been deciphered: "Pronounce not the name of I. A. O. under the penalty of the peach." This has been supposed to be a death warning to those who might be tempted to reveal mysteries in connection with the religious rites of the priests.

The Romans probably learned of prussic acid from the Egyptians. History has it that in the reign of Tiberius a Roman knight accused of treason drank poison and immediately fell dead at the feet of the senators, a significant circumstance, inasmuch as no other poison has the almost instantaneous effect of prussic acid.

SCHOOL NOTES

Leon Fox of Tipton visited the High School Monday morning.

Margaret Howe has returned after an illness of a few days.

Mildred Drake spent Sunday at her home in Pentecost.

Elliot McLain has been absent from Miss Lowe's room.

Ivaline Lamkin has been absent on account of the death of her grandmother.

Marjorie Rosecrans is absent from Miss Cutting's room of the West Branch on account of a severe attack of quinsy.

The little folks of the West Branch under Miss Cupples are studying the life and conditions of the Eskimo and how he lives in "Snowland."

Mr. L. B. Austin, representing J. A. Lyons, Publishing Co. of Chicago was a business caller at the High School Tuesday.

Supt. H. P. McAlpine was in Detroit on business Tuesday.

Thurlow Sweet has been absent since Jan. 1.

A Y. W. C. A. meeting was held at the High School building Thursday evening. Miss Leeson gave an interesting talk on the subject "The Aftermath of Xmas In the School." Mildred Drake talked on the same subject in the Association and Flora Ketchum on the Home. Music was furnished by the Y. W. C. A. quartette. About 17 girls were present. A new plan is now being carried out in the High School, to become a member. Application blanks are now being distributed for that purpose.

The last three days of this week will be taken up with final Semester examinations.

The Chemistry class deserve much credit, in about one month they will have completed nearly 100 experiments and 112 are required for the year.

A new musical feature has been organized in connection with the Glee Club of the High School and that is a double trio. The members of the trio are, Hazelle Tyson, Gretel Conklin, Margaret Howe, Geneva Satterthwaite, Vera Shaw and Blanch Snyder.

The Juniors enjoyed a sleigh ride to the home of John Foote in Ridgeway last Friday evening. A very fine time is reported.

Martha Keysor will be unable to continue her work as a Junior in the High School until April on account of ill health.

Mr. McAlpine's class in Teacher's Course will now recite in the laboratory the fourth hour in morning for one week and then one hour after school the next week. The class at 8,00 a. m. has not been entirely satisfactory, interruptions making it difficult to spend enough time upon the work.

Fire drills are given in the East Branch nearly every day for the purpose of training the children to be quite an l orderly.

A small leather pocketbook containing some money was found near the High School building. As yet no one has claimed it.

Mr. Smith has sent to the U. S. department of Geological Survey for 100 typographical maps of sections of the country for use in the Physical Geography Class. They will also have maps on the Mississippi River from the Mississippi Commission.

The County Y. M. C. A. contest which took place at Blissfield, Jan. 13 proved to be very successful. About 40 boys had made preparation for the contest yet only 11 exhibited their chickens. Boys from the ages of 13 18 years took part and 6 varieties of chickens were exhibited. In all 5 communities were represented. Dr. C. A. Waldron of Tecumseh was the judge. Lois Maxwell of Hudson received 1st and 3rd prizes and Harold Halliday of Tecumseh 2nd. Each boy was given one dollar for his effort and in all $26.00 was expended. This was the first chicken contest ever held for the Y. M. C. A. boys and much local interest was manifest. The prospects for one to be held next year are good. The boys from Tecumseh who entered the contest were Harold Halliday and Howard Wilson.

The Second grade has begun work in their spellers.

Pronouncing contests and giving definitions are part of the work in the reading classes of the First and Second grades.

Eskimo life is being talked about in the kindergarten. This surely ought to appeal to the children now.

The children of the First and Second grades are about to begin the weaving of rugs.

In Miss Cutting's room Ralph Hodges, Emory Hanham and John Garlinghouse have not been absent or tardy for the first four months.

In the Third grade Deo Marsh has not missed a word in spelling this year.

In the kindergarten Geraldine Orr and Merle Lanning have not been absent or tardy for the year.

The C class of the kindergarten is doing excellent work. They just started this fall, but have nearly caught up with the other class. Their expression in reading is fine.

At the North Branch school very few are attending at present. They are absent on account of severe colds and sore throats.

In the high school, review work is busily going on.

In the Eighth grade everything is quiet and peaceful except when ——————!!!!

As it may be of interest the standings of the following rooms have been estimated, Fifth and Sixth grades of East Branch, and First, Second, Third and Fourth grades of West Branch. They are, Fifth grade, 89, Sixth grade 88, Fourth grade, 93, Third grade, 88½, Second grade, 89½ and First grade 87.

In considering the many advantages which Tecumseh High School offers to the incoming student, not much has been said, as yet, of a factor in Tecumseh High School life which is aspiring, active, and its workers believe potent. This factor is the Tecumseh High School Y. W. C. A. comprising at present a large number of High School girls. It has been in existence for four years though never so systematically active as it plans to be this year. The recent visit of Miss Pearson, student territorial secretary, and her talks to our High School Y. W. C. A. girls, have aroused deeper interest in the Tecumseh Association than has been manifested for some time before.

Such an interest is surely warranted by the reflection that our Y. W. C. A. is a growing branch of a powerful organization, which aims to develop the best in the body, mind and spirit of every girl it can reach. The enormous scope and extent successes of the national work are too well known to need a comment. It is interesting to note however that Tecumseh has one of the high school associations in Michigan. Ypsilanti being the only other town to boast of such an orginization.

The work in Tecumseh high school has necessarily been conducted in simple lines. The interest manifested has nevertheless seemed to testify to its effectiveness. Meetings are held each Thursday evening from seven to eight at which health talks, art and music talks, discussions of mission study and history and of perplexing problems of everyday affairs are carried on. Y. W. C. A. strives eternally to inspire broader interests and plans for practical unselfish work. Occasionally a social evening is added to the regular study program.

The Tecumseh Y. W. C. A. like every other branch of the National organization, would help the church and help it practically by upholding the best standard of womanhood, and by offering the training, social, intellectual and moral which is essential to that standard. Its Thursday meetings provide an opportunity for an informal hence, perhaps most natural expression of thoughts on vital subjects. Though quite unconscious of its real importance, it is believed by some of its well known wishers to be the best sociological laboratory which Tecumseh high school posesses, and as such at least it deserves encourgement.

E

500 CLUB

The members of the 500 Club were entertained with their husbands last Thursday night, at the pleasant home of F. D. Teachout and wife. Six tables of cards were played. At the close of the games, a pot luck supper was served. One of the guests remarking that if this was a sample, he would like pot-luck suppers every day.

THE CIVIC IMPROVEMENT BENEFIT

Every one interested in Tecumseh's civic improvement is showing great enthusiasm over the approaching concert to be given by the Philomel Quartette. A large number of tickets has already been disposed of and the committee is using every effort to make the affair a success, both financially and socially.

The ladies of the quartette are sure to give every one the full value of the cost of a ticket. They are very well known locally as soloists and have been for months preparing their concerted work. Their voices are said by a number who have heard them, to be well balanced and to blend most agreeably. The program has been arranged with a view to pleasing all tastes.

There is a wide variety of quartette numbers interspersed with solos, including costume and Italian numbers, duets and readings. The audience on this occasion, will have the privilege of hearing one of the ladies in a new role. As a reader, Mrs. McAlpine has created a most favorable impression else here, although she has never before been heard in Tecumseh.

It is to be hoped that our town will give its best support to the worthy cause for which this concert is given.

A Paraphrase.

"What is the meaning of that quotation, 'There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may'?" "Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "the proposition is something like this: It's easy enough to pass a law, but you don't know what it's going to be till the Supreme court gets through with it."

AMUSEMENTS

"PAID IN FULL" GOOD

Good-sized Audiences Witness Production at the Grand

"Paid in Full" was presented before two good sized audiences at the Grand Saturday afternoon and night and the play scored its usual success. The play will hold the boards at the same theatre Sunday night.—Dubuque Daily Times, Dubuque, Iowa, Sunday, Dec. 3, 1911.

"Paid in Full" will appear at the BRADLEY OPERA HOUSE, Thursday January 25

"THE GOOSE GIRL" IS A PRETTY ROMANCE

"The Goose Girl" made an ideal attraction for Christmas day and the two large audiences which saw it at the Wells' Bijou found it to be an intensely interesting play from the first to the last. It was staged in an elaborate manner and acted by a very good company. The play is an adoption from Harold McGrath's popular book of the same name. The play follows the story closely and shows the action in such a manner that all the principal incidents of the book are brought out to nicety. The characters which make such interesting on the stage. The elaborate manner in which the piece is staged impressed one, the old street in the German province was very pretty, the garden superb and the throne room one of the handsomest ever staged.

Miss Virginia Ackerman as Gretchen was splendid, charming pretty and sweet and made a very picturesque appearance when she first entered driving a large goose before her. Miss Marie Van as the inn keeper, and Miss Florence Nelson as the princess were pretty and accomplished actresses.

Some splendid work was done by James H. Lewis as the German-American. Mr. Lewis is a finished actor and added greatly to the production. Victor Sutherland was good in certain parts as the American consul, but he was a bit un-American in several scenes inasmuch as his stage work would hardly have been in keeping with the dignity of an American consul. Robert Ellis as the young king in disguise, Brian Darley, as his uncle, and the others handled their roles in good shape.—From the Evansville Courier; Tuesday Dec. 26. The Goose Girl at the Opera House Monday Jan. 29.

To Reduce the Price of Butter

90,000 women of New York have bound together in a league, to abstain from the use of butter for 30 days in an effort to reduce the price. "But me, no butter" is their Slogan.

Toledo Club women have also taken up the matter and will bring the question up before the various clubs.

CARS PILED ON STATION

Two Men Badly Hurt in a P. M. Collision at McCord's.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 22.—Two Pere Marquette freight trains came together two miles east of here at McCord's and injured Floyd Donaldson and Fireman Graham. Both men are said to be in a serious condition. Donaldson is married and lives in Grand Rapids. Graham's home is said to be in Hudson.

Donaldson's train was a double header freight, and was bound for this city from Detroit. The other freight train was backing into a switch to allow the double header to pass, and for some reason Donaldson failed to see it. His train was going about thirty miles an hour and struck the rear of the other freight, piling the cars high and blocking traffic on the Detroit-Saginaw division. Some of the cars fell over on the station at McCord's and crushed it in. Telegraph Operator Cole had a narrow escape from being crushed to death.

SEARCH FOR OLD MAN

Aged Citizen Has Been Missing for Three Months.

Tyre, Mich., Jan. 22.—Sheriff Graham is investigating the case of Joseph Bulla, seventy, who disappeared from the home of Charles Warezak last October. Warezak did not report the matter to the sheriff, and neighbors a few weeks ago took the matter up.

It is stated that about a year ago Bulla turned over $1,300 to Warezak with the understanding that Warezak should keep him the remainder of his life. Bulla and his wife separated about a year ago. The Warezak farm is about four miles from the Sparling farm, scene of four mysterious deaths

QUESTION FOR THE HONORABLE COUNCIL OF TECUMSEH TO ANSWER

In the last issue of the Tecumseh Herald was published the council proceedings of the meeting held Monday Jan. 14. At this meeting they passed an ordinance to tax the property owners for the condition in which the sidewalks are kept.

I as a taxpayers on this same property would like to ask why I should pay a double tax.

As I understand it, I am taxed to pay for a city team and a man to care for it who, for most of the winter are idle. Since my school days to within a few years the city team and the one in charge, who were hired by the village, and payed for by the tax payers would after a heavy snow storm be out at 4 o'clock in the morning cleaning Chicago street and the streets parallel, also the streets leading to the school houses. By this means the children were able to reach their schools, the cross streets were cleaned during the day. I would like to ask the Honorable council why this good old custom has been discontinued and a double tax put upon the tax payer. I thoroughly understand a few will say, "for fire protection," but in a village the size of Tecumseh the fire team could reach the council building in from 5 to 7 minutes from any part of the village. I myself walk from my home to my office in ten minutes and surely a team should do as well.

A Taxpayer.

SMALLPOX

We are authorized by the Health Officer, Dr. W. A. Briegel, to state that there is not one case of smallpox in the village of Tecumseh.

The one suspect case is convalescent and on the street, the house has been thoroughly fumigated. By the Doctor's quick action in quarantining the one suspect case, if there had been danger it was stamped out at once and the Doctor deserves much commendation. Had the Health Officers in other places acted in a similar manner we feel sure the smallpox would not have spread as it has done. Britton is reported as having been very careless and only this last week has Jackson awakened to the fact that something should be done.

MICHIGAN HAS DEEPEST MINES IN THE WORLD

It is claimed that Michigan has four of the deepest mines in the world. Tamarack No. 5 shaft sinks 5,281 feet, No. 3, 5,253 feet, No. 4 4,440 feet, Red Jacket of the Calumet and Hecla Mine 4,920 feet.

The longest shaft in the world is No. 4 Calumet of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Co. which is 8,100 feet in depth at an incline of 37 degrees and 30 minutes.

FOUND IN THE CORNSTALKS

Last week Jacob Austed of Macon drove his wife and children out of their home and they were obliged to take refuge with a neighbor for the night. A warrant was issued for his arrest and Dept Sheriff Teachout went to the house to arrest him he found the house securely locked and the man missing.

After quite a search he discovered a foot sticking out from beneath a pile of cornstalks and soon unearthed his man. He was taken before Justice Hosmer Saturday morning on a charge of assault and battery and was sentenced to pay a fine of $11.16 and 30 days in jail. In default of payment within 30 days the sentence will be increased to 60 days.

It is generally thought that Austed is slightly demented and Justice Hosmer was very lenent in his sentence to give the officers an opportunity to decide on the mental condition of the prisoner.

DEATHS

Mrs. Laura Buckley died at the home of her son, Sanford Buckley, Sunday at 8 o'clock p. m., at the advanced age of 93 years, 3 months. The funeral will be held at the home Wednesday at 1 o'clock, with burial at Brookside.

Charles Underwood passed away at 5:30 p. m. Sunday, after an illness extending over five years. He was 48 years old. Funeral services at the home Tuesday at 11 o'clock, with burial at Ridgeway.

UNITED STATES SECOND

Naval Strength Next to That of Great Britain.

Germany Stands Third, with France, Japan and Russia Following In Order.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The United States is the second strongest nation in the world in naval strength, according to the navy year book, advance copies of which have come from the government printing office.

Considering the Charleston, Milwaukee and St. Louis to be armored cruisers, the total tonnage of the United States navy is placed at 797,341, which is nearly 19,000 tons in excess of that of the German navy. If, however, the three ships mentioned are not classified as armored cruisers the total tonnage of Uncle Sam's navy is slightly less than that of Germany.

Great Britain continues to hold its supremacy as the greatest naval power in the world. The strength of her navy is considerably more than twice that of either the United States or Germany.

France, Japan and Russia are next in the order named.

FRATERNAL ORDERS

The Pythian Sisters will call their lodge to order promptly at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. Members take notice.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. H. M. Society of the M. E. church will be held at the home of Mrs. Hurry Thursday Jan. 25 at 2 o'clock p. m. A full attendance is requested.

NO CAUSE TO DOUBT

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid us for it. That's a frank statement of facts, and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise of money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents, and 80 tablets 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

A lazy liver leads to chronic dyspepsia and constipation—weakens the whole system. Doan's Regulets (25 cents per box) correct the liver, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

Cures baby's croup. Willie's daily cuts and bruises, mama's sore throat, grandma's lameness—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—the great household remedy.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

Itch! Itch! Itch!—Scratch! Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Doan's Ointment. It cures piles, eczema, any skin itching. All druggists sell it.

John Boland for many years a resident of Tecumseh, died at the home of his son, John, in Jackson, Sunday afternoon, aged 80 years. His body will be brought to Tecumseh today, for burial in Brookside.

A letter received by friends in town from Rev Wm. Harding, speakes of a call he made on Miss Susan Romyne a long time resident of Tecumseh. She is spending the winter at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, at the home of Capt. Morrow. He found her real well and enjoying her winter.

The Alva Review-Courier published at Alva, Woods Co. Oklahoma. was received at the Tecumseh Herald office Monday. It is an eight page paper, has a full line of advertising. The local page is full of interesting matter, the happenings of each days being under a seperate head. It is published Thursday, Lynn G. White being editor and publisher. It is a very neat and attractive sheet.

Charles H. Johnson a very prominent Lawyer and Mason in Flint, was buried last week with Masonic honors. The funeral was held in the largest Auditorium in the city. A tiny white casket was tied to the larger one with white ribbons, and excited much curiosity. A tender bit of sentiment was revealed when the story was told. 30 years ago a babe of 3 months passed away, and the father and mother pledged each other that whoever died first, this tiny being should be buried with them, and the aged wife was faithful to her trust. All these years it has laid in a little grave in their door yard, where they could watch over it.

HOW THEY CARE FOR GUESTS

Conveniences of New York Hotels Show Great Consideration Given to Comfort of Ladies.

New York hotels may charge high prices for their restaurant and dining room service, but they are more than generous in some of the conveniences they furnish their women guests. Dressing rooms are equipped with the finest of soaps, the most delicate of toilet powders, ice water, abundance of hand towels of choice linen, hairpins, pins and cold cream, all for the free use of the fair. There are hand mirrors and whisk brooms galore and even hair brushes and combs, if one cares to use them. That nobody ever does is apparent from their impeccable newness. There is always a neat maid in attendance, who will furnish needles and thread for a consideration and even help you with your hair or mend your glove if it has played you false in an hour of need.

In one of the most fashionable of these benevolent hostelries a neat device is well worthy of imitation. It is a small celluloid box or jar with a hole in the cover. The box is filled with fine, white absorbent cotton, which is accessible through the opening. This is to be used in applying powder to the face instead of the customary powder puff. The guest picks out her little piece of cotton, powders her benign countenance and then discards the scrap when she is through with it. The idea is eminently sanitary and shows what careful consideration this hotel gives to every item affecting the welfare of its guests. Above the dressing table is a card bearing the significant inscription, "The conveniences of this [illegible] are for the use of paying [illegible]."

Gone to Stay.

Booth Tarkington was telling stories to a group of college graduates in a New York club, when one of the party suddenly inquired: "What has become of Davis?"

"He has gone out of town on business for a few days, I [illegible]," replied another of the party.

"He has gone for a long while," observed Mr. Tarkington, with a smile. "Davis is one of those men who leave unmistakable evidence of their purposes. Whenever Davis goes away to stay a long period he takes with him an old mouth organ, which he [illegible] dearly to play while he occasionally nibbles at gingerbread. I have made an investigation of Davis' room, and have found that the mouth organ disappeared with him. The presence or absence of that instrument is enough to tell me what Davis' plans are."

The party learned soon after that Davis had left for Wisconsin to reside permanently.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or irregularity of the urine,
A splendid remedy for such attacks
A medicine that has cured thousands,
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy,
Many Tecumseh people rely on it.
Here is Tecumseh proof.

George O. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occassions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

The famous little pills.

Foley Kdney Pills

Always give satisfaction because they always do the work J. T. Shelnut, Breman, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

It isn't very long before the "good fellow" is a poor fellow.

Persia's Pipe Guardian.

The queen of pipes belongs to the shah of Persia. Why is the great chieftain of pipes a queen? Probably because pipe is a feminine noun in French. The little shah's pipe was smoked by his father before him, and by his uncle, and by his grandfather, and how many more of the rulers of Darius' kingdom we know not. The pipe is adorned with all kinds of precious stones and is said to be worth £10,000. It is constantly guarded by a high court functionary, whose duties allow him as much leisure as the superintendent of the Persian arsenal, but as there is no arsenal in Persia so the extent of the sinecure may be judged. Still, this functionary is responsible. This is how his office was created: Once a grand vizier was found trying to pry out a stone from the pipe with his poniard. Then the office of guardian of the imperial pipe was created. What became of the grand vizier is not recorded.—London Globe.

A Comedy of Economy.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz. A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hote. The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did, and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches. The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid! — Geneva correspondence Pall Mall Gazette.

Winning the Derby.

It costs a good deal of money to win the English Derby. An authority tells us that a horse with the least chance to win will cost anywhere from $25,000 up, which will prevent the average clerk or newspaper man from owning more than half a dozen or so at the outside. Then there is the training, which is a thing not to be done on Sunday afternoons in the back yard. An experienced trainer must be employed, and his charges for the necessary period will amount to about $1,000 for each horse. The jockey has to be paid, and a good jockey would scorn the pay of an archbishop or the profits of even a senator. And if he wins he will expect a present. King Edward used to give his jockeys $2,500 for a win, which makes one wish to be a jockey. But of course it takes brain. —Exchange.

Mighty Jupiter.

Jupiter, the largest of the planets, is 1,300 times the bulk and 310 times the mass of the earth, and accomplishes its rotation on its axis in nine hours fifty minutes. As the equatorial circumference is 275,000 miles, the linear rotational velocity of a point on the equator nearly eight miles a second.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. G. W. Winters of Arcadia, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cutler's of 601 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

PARENT BEEF CONCERN

General Auditor of National Packing Company Testifies.

William E. Weber Tells Judge Carpenter and Jury About Many Subsidiaries.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—The National Packing company, the alleged "mother" concern of the "beef trust," came into the limelight in the trial of the packers before Judge George A. Carpenter.

William E. Weber, general auditor of the company, was placed on the witness stand and asked preliminary questions regarding the operation of the concern, which previous witnesses have testified is the $15,000,000 relic of the billion-dollar combine dream that failed of consummation in 1903.

Weber has been general auditor of the company since 1905. Previous to that time he was employed by the Anglo-American Provision company and Swift & Co.

Weber testified that the National had the following subsidiaries engaged in the fresh beef business:

Anglo-American Provision company.
Omaha Packing company.
Fowler Packing company.
Western Packing company.
Ruddy Brothers' Packing company.
Sturtevant & Haley Meat and Supply company.
G. H. Hammond company.
St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision company.
Hammond Packing company.
Colorado Packing company.
United Dressed Beef and Provision company.

Hundreds of selling agencies and branch houses, he said, were also operated throughout the country.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. AGREE ON SUGAR TARIFF

Terms of Revision Bill Are Practically Decided.

Present Duty of $1.68 a Hundred on Raw Sugar Reduced to $1—Cuba's Special Rate.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The terms of the sugar tariff revision bill that is to be reported to the house by the Democratic committee on ways and means practically have been agreed upon.

The measure will be taken up after the passage of the bill proposing a revision of the iron, steel and chemical schedules.

If present plans are carried out, the sugar revision bill will impose a duty of $1 a hundred pounds on the raw product, instead of $1.68, as at present. The reduction will be greater than appears on the surface. Under the reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba sugar imports from the island are admitted at a rate 20 per cent lower than that imposed on the product coming from other countries. As most of the raw sugar brought to this country comes from Cuba, the Democratic rate of $1 means a cut to 80 cents.

RENDERS PRIMARY DECISION

Stead Rules Cities Must Provide Ballot for Each Party.

Edwardsville, Ill., Jan. 22. — Attorney General William H. Stead handed down a decision on the state primary law, which will force into politics the affairs of cities and towns where party lines have not been drawn before.

In response to a message from the city clerk of Edwardsville, Stead ruled that every incorporated municipality must abide by the state law, which provides for a separate ballot for each political party, regardless of whether there are any candidates running for office on the ballot.

He fumbled under his pillow and produced an envelope which had been erroneously delivered to another ward. On it was inscribed in red ink, "Opened by mistake."—New York Sun.

BURNS ON THE LORIMER TRAIL

Noted McNamara Case Detective Works Up Some Evidence.

SAYS WITNESS WAS BRIBED

Sleuth Works on Case for Three Months and Presents Results of His Labors to Senatorial Committee.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Developments more or less sensational about to take place in the Lorimer case will disclose that William J. Burns, the detective, who built up the evidence around the McNamara dynamiters, has been at work for at least three months gathering evidence to be presented this week to the committee investigating the election of the junior senator from Illinois.

Mr. Burns was employed for about a month by the senate committee, and later was engaged by the interests fighting to unseat Senator Lorimer. The committee discontinued his services, according to members, because of the almost prohibitive expense.

It is reported that the end sought by the anti-Lorimer interests is the impeachment of a certain witness who gave evidence in Senator Lorimer's defense relating to the alleged statement of C. F. Wiehe, a brother-in-law of Edward Hines, that a "jack-pot" fund of $100,000 was used "to put Lorimer over."

In substance Burns is declared to have reported to the committee that he was prepared to offer evidence that one of the witnesses who testified in regard to this incident had confessed he was paid $1,500 to come to Washington. A phonographic method by which Burns obtained the alleged confession is said to have been laid before the committee. Burns came to Washington last Tuesday and remained until Wednesday night. His report was communicated to some of the members of the committee and, it is said, later was laid before the committee in executive session.

It is not asserted that the evidence Burns promises to produce is intended to establish whether there was a $100,000 jack-pot fund or that Senator Lorimer had knowledge of it. It affects solely the veracity of a witness called by the defense.

This new evidence will be laid before the committee after the cross-examination of Senator Lorimer is finished.

It is also known that evidence in rebuttal will follow Senator Lorimer's testimony. The committee's process servers finally have produced a former member of the Illinois legislature whom they had not been able to find until recently. It is also the purpose of the committee to continue its investigations into investments of money which certain members of the legislature are alleged to have made shortly after May 26, 1909.

FIFTEEN MINERS DEAD

Fatal Dust Explosion in Wyoming Coal Mine.

Forty Others Are Injured, of Whom Nine Are Removed to Hospital at Rock Springs.

Kemmerer, Wyo., Jan. 22. — Fifteen miners are reported killed and probably forty injured in a dust explosion in mine No. 4 of the Kemmerer Coal company. Of the forty injured, it is known that nine, who have been taken to the hospital at Rock Springs, are in a serious condition. There were 112 men in the property at the time of the explosion and those who were not killed or injured rushed to the aid of their stricken companions.

The men on top quickly organized for rescue work, but despite their most desperate efforts all of the dead and injured were not removed for several hours.

COAL MINERS WAGE SCALE

Bituminous Conference Opens Thursday and Anthracite Feb. 27.

Indianapolis, Jan. 22. — Operators and miners of the central bituminous coal field will meet here Thursday to consider a new wage scale to go into effect April 1. A new wage contract for the anthracite field, also, to be in force from April 1, will be negotiated at a conference Feb. 27 at the offices of the Central railway of New Jersey in New York city.

The two joint wage conferences were announced by President John P. White to the convention of the United Mine Workers. The scale committee is preparing the miners' demands.

Promoter Would Hold Bout Near New Haven, Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 22.—J. Harmar Bronson, a leading sport promoter of this city, announces that he has applied to the New Haven chief of police for a license for a boxing bout in which Jack Johnson, the colored champion, will meet Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, and Al Palzer both on the same afternoon, each bout to be fifteen rounds.

If the permit can be had the go will take place on the afternoon of July 4 at Light House Point, a well known summer resort on the sound five miles southeast of this city.

NEW POST FOR BRYCE?

Ambassador May Be Called Home to Become Foreign Secretary.

London, Jan. 22.—The Liberal's discontent with Sir Edward Grey has reached a point where his successor is being discussed, and it is suggested that Ambassador James Bryce be brought from Washington and be put in charge of the foreign office.

Sir Edward Grey's policy is being severely criticised. He recently felt it necessary to deny through his secretaries that his policy is "aggressive or inspired by antagonism to Germany."

ROYALTY IN NEW YORK

Duke of Connaught and Family Visit Ambassador Reid.

New York, Jan. 22. — At 7:03 this morning royalty came into our midst, the Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George, and governor general of Canada, with the duchess, their daughter, the Princess Patricia, and a small suite, left a special car at the Grand Central station for a four day's visit to Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

Except for the dinners that have been planned, and for which arrangements had to be made ahead of time, nothing has been planned to occupy the time of the royal party. The visit is not a parade, it was explained; it is simply a personal visit and there is nothing official or semi-official about it.

CONVALESCENTS

Those Recovering from Any Severe Illness

After a long wasting illness, convalescents require nourishing food that will not overtax the digestive functions—and in the way of a strength-restoring and vitality-making tonic, we know of nothing that equals Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil).

Vinol creates an appetite, re-establishes good digestion and helps the daily food to make rich blood, form flesh, strong muscles and impart new life and vitality to every organ in the body. We ask those who need a strength and flesh-building tonic restorative to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that if it does not help them we will refund their money without question.

Heredity.

Some very pretty things are being said, for no special reason whatever, about genealogy and heredity. Naturally this is associated with the names and life of what is called the "nobility." Yet no commentator has quoted the couplet of Pope, which reads rawly that "His ancient but ignoble blood has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood."

HARAHAN IS KILLED IN TRAIN COLLISON

F. O. Melcher, Illinois Central Official, Also Killed.

Rear End Collision at Kinmundy, Ill., Costs the Lives of Six Persons—Vice President Melcher's Car Telescoped.

J. T. Harahan, ex-president of the Illinois Central railroad; F. O. Melcher, second vice-president; E. Wright, son of Former Secretary of War Luke E. Wright, and E. B. Pierce, general solicitor, and two other persons, were killed at 1 o'clock in the morning when the Panama limited on the Illinois Central railroad, running at a speed of fifty miles an hour, crashed into the rear of passenger train No. 25, which was taking water at Kinmundy, thirty miles north of Centralia, Ill.

Harahan, Melcher, Pierce and Wright were asleep in their staterooms aboard Mr. Melcher's private car, which was attached to the rear of train No. 25.

Only one occupant of the private car, the secretary of Mr. Melcher, escaped.

The engine of the heavy limited ploughed straight through Mr. Melcher's car and jammed into a Pullman coach directly ahead before it came to a stop. The terrific impact of the collision drove brake-locked train No. 25 300 feet down the right of way.

Cries of more than a score of injured arose above the hissing of steam from the splintered mass of wreckage. Trainmen fought desperately to reach those who had been in Vice-President Melcher's car.

The engineer and fireman of the limited, only slightly injured were removed first. While taking them out rescuers stumbled over the bodies of Mr. Harahan and Mr. Melcher. The bodies of Pierce and Wright were found a few minutes later. All had been caught in their berths without a possible chance of escape.

For more than two hours passengers from both trains and residents of the little town of Kinmundy worked to care for the injured before help arrived from outside points.

The first relief train, carrying physicians, nurses and Illinois Central officials, departed from Centralia shortly before 4 o'clock and made the run to Kinmundy in half an hour.

A number of injured who had been taken to the homes of residents of Kinmundy, were placed aboard the relief train and brought to the Centralia hospital.

The bodies of Mr. Harahan, Mr. Melcher, Mr. Pierce and Mr. Wright were brought to Centralia with the injured aboard the relief train.

From the age of fifteen James T. Harahan gave his life to the service of the railroads. Born in Lowell, Mass., in 1841, he went to work for the Orange and Alexandria railroad in 1865, at Alexandria, Va. Then he came to the west and the west has claimed him ever since.

For twenty-two years he was in the employ of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, rising from a clerkship to general manager, leaving that line in the height of his power to take high place in the affairs of the Lake Shore, the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas roads in 1869.

In November, 1906, Mr. Harahan was elected president of the Illinois Central railroad, continuing in that position until Jan. 12, 1911, when he was succeeded by Charles H. Markham

TRAVERSE CITY MAN VICTIM OF PELLAGRA

Louis Herbert Marsland Dies of the Disease.

His Illness for Some Time Has Been a Puzzle to the Physicians—Patient Practically Bloodless for Some Weeks.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 22. — For some time the illness of Louis Herbert Marsland, owner of a large fruit farm near Traverse City, has puzzled medical men in various parts of the country. Now it is known that Mr. Marsland suffered from pellagra of the rare Italian type, his body being a mass of scales like the back of a tortoise, only more pliable. But he died, and the knowledge comes too late.

For weeks Marsland had been practically bloodless. Physicians say that scarcely a pint of blood remained in his entire system. The scales covering his body would come off, but only to be replaced by a new growth. His pulse and temperature, instead of raising and lowering simultaneously, worked just the opposite.

Brought to the Battle Creek sanitarium, Marsland's disease was diagnosed as pellagra of the rare type never seen around here, and baffling present day medical treatment.

Marsland, thirty-three years old, leaves a widow and two children.

FOUND SHOT IN CAR

Probable Victim of Suicide Remains Unidentified in Monroe Morgue.

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 24. — Michigan Central employes heard groans issuing from an empty box car on a south bound freight train lying on the sidetrack and found a man about thirty years old shot through the mouth and unconscious. He was removed to the local hospital, but died in the forenoon without regaining consciousness.

A new revolver, with one chamber discharged, was found by the man's side. In his pockets were three cents in money, a pair of brass knuckles and a small photo of a girl about twenty years old. The man wore a blue cap, dark suit and red sweater and a gray overcoat. The cap bore the trademark of a Toledo merchant. He was 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighed 160 pounds. The body lies in a local morgue in charge of the coroner.

FORMAL WILEY VERDICT

Investigators Hold Chief Chemist Guiltless, but Score Methods.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the chief chemist, is held "not guilty" of conspiracy to evade the law in a report filed with the house by the committee which conducted an investigation last August into the charges on which President Taft was asked to dismiss the nation's chief chemist from the government service.

Not only does the committee absolve Dr. Wiley from criticism for the employment of Dr. H. H. Rusby of New York as a government expert at a technical rate of $20 a day but it attacks in measured terms the whole administration of the national pure food law and demands of congress action to change the method in the department of agriculture by which the law is applied.

TURKS AND ARABS BATTLE ITALIANS

All-Day Fight Takes Place near Oasis of Ghirgarish.

At One Time Allies Turn Italian Right, but Are Unable to Follow Up or Retain Advantage Gained.

Dispatches received in Rome from Tripoli tell of a severe battle between the Italians and the combined Turks and Arabs near Ghirgarish, a small oasis about ten or eleven miles from Tripoli, in which at one point of the engagement the Turks succeeded in turning the Italian right, but were finally forced to retreat.

The Italian columns, which consisted of three battalions of infantry, a battery of grenadiers, two batteries of artillery and two squadrons of cavalry, in addition to engineers, was on the march early in the morning when they were surprised along the road by a series of onslaughts by Arabs and Turks.

The Italian commander saw that the enemy was in large numbers and he ordered his men to take positions for a serious battle. The men threw up entrenchments and awaited the attack of the Turks and Arabs, which continued all day.

The entrenchments had not been completed when a large force of Turks and Arabs charged up and poured in a galling fire on the Italians. The attackers fired from cover in the brush and on the oasis. The Italian artillerymen got their guns going and the Turks retired.

The Turks returned with heavy reinforcements and this time succeeded in turning the Italian right. The Italians seemed to show signs of yielding, but the commander rallied his men, and after several hours' hard fighting the Turks were driven back.

No estimate is given of the losses on either side, but they are believed to have been heavy.

NOT CITIZEN; HOLDS OFFICE

Cadillac Police Commissioner Has Been Found Out.

Cadillac, Mich., Jan. 24. — Police Commissioner Leonard Seager, it has been found, is not a citizen of the United States, although he has lived in Michigan thirty years. He came over from Canada with his parents when he was two years old.

The father neglected to take out papers and the son, believing that his father had attended to that duty, paid no attention to the suggestion that he look up his own case. Seager does not propose to resign. He points to the fact that John Willman was allowed to sit as alderman here four years before he had taken out his citizenship papers.

One Hair's Breadth."

A "hair's breadth" is 17-10,000 of an inch. For the purpose of such fine and delicate measurement tool makers use what is called a micrometer caliper. The hair's breadth is something that has to be taken into consideration in the manufacture of a thousand and one things in the machine maker's art. Close calculation of this sort must be done on the doors of bank vaults, for example, where every part must fit to the nicest degree.—Harper's Weekly.

Climbing for Cats.

A boy in northern Michigan was out hunting and saw two cats up a tree. The family needed a pussy about, and so he laid down his gun and took a climb. What he didn't know until too late was that the animals were wildcats. Before he could lay hold of the cats they laid hold of him, and the doctor who attended his hurts counted up 41 bites and scratches. In hunting for cats be careful that you don't get the wrong breed.

Gentle Criticism.

On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer, at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end, Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I too hat written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground; "but I hat burned them!"

MRS. WM. HERRIOTT

Sarah Jane Sanford was born in Broom County, Conn., February 24, 1827, and came to Macon, Michigan when she was ten years of age.

She was united in marriage in the fall of 1843, to Wm. V. Herriott.

As the years passed, a family of two sons and two daughters came to gladden the hearts of the parents, Robert S., George W., Abbie J., who married J. Albert Collins, and died in 1904 and Sara A. Mrs Geo. Avery.

Mrs. Herriott was alway a kind and loving mother and strongly attached to the Reformed Church at Macon, of which she has been a worthy member for sixty-eight years or its organization, about sixty-nine years ago.

For the last few years she has not been able to take an active part in church life, yet she did not lose her christian confidence, and found great comfort in God's promises.

After the death of her husband in 1894, she continued to reside at the old farm home until twelve years ago, when she went to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Avery, where on the morning of Jan. 14, she quietly and suddenly passed from the earthly to the heavenly home, at the age of 84 years 10 months and 21 days.

Her death was a shock to her family as she was feeling unusually bright and cheerful the evening before.

The funeral service was held, Tuesday at 2 P. M. from the residence conducted by her former pastor, Rev. Scarlett and her body was laid to rest in the family lot, at the Macon cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us at the death of our mother, to the choir for their services, also for the offerings of beautiful flowers.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire.s offer of a million dollars for a new stomach

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach The result is that the stomach loses it power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store B. J. Pulver.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE GOOSE GIRL" A HIT

The Times-Dispatch, Richmond, Va. says:

Once upon a time Harold McGrath wrote a book and he named it "The Goose Girl." McGrath has come to be known as one of the better sort of contemporary writers of fiction, and not infrequently the name of some book from his rather prolix pen is numbered along the six or seven best sellers.

In "The Goose Girl" he didn't write anything exceptional, only the story of a kidnapped princess, who lost her identity through perfidy and who was subsequently reclaimed and brought to occupy the throne from which she was so heartlessly deprived—not at all a new idea—but the book had the elements of a dramatic production, and George D. Baker, one of the member of the Castle Amusement Company, composed of the selfsame George D. Baker and James W. Castle, made a play of it. This play was presented to a Bijou audience last night, and it made good.

"The Goose Girl', happens to be a charming little miss—Virginia Ackerman—who is made up to appear as a sort of combination modern Marguerite and the Faust lady of the same name. Therefore the play is a hit without any of the other attractive features. She appears as the fourth character—they are mentioned in program in order of appearance, not merit—and from the time she comes on until the final curtain finds her securely intrenched in her kingdom as princess, she has the entire sympathy of those fortunate enough to be among those present.

Victor Sutherland deserves especial mention. He worked hard as the American counsel, and he is an actor, and everybody in the playhouse rejoiced when he won his pseudo princess. Marie Man stands out as the very best woman character of the piece. She was Frau Bauer, keeper of a tavern, and she acted the part to the life.

Altogether "The Goose Girl" is worth the price of admission and more. It is a good show, well acted by capable actors. G. M.

Lightning's Queer Ways.

As every one knows, it is dangerous to stand near a tree during a thunder storm, but if any one is so foolish as to do it he will do well to lean against the tree. If he does this the charge goes in at his shoulder, burning it, and then passes down the skin along the middle of the back. Arrived at the legs, it may run along one or both. It will seriously burn the knees and other prominent parts, get out through the stockings or bore a hole through the boots or destroy the boots altogether But if he stands near a tree or wall without being in contact the stream of lightning may jump to the head bones and cause instant death. If it doesn't do this it will probably burn the hair and travel over the skin of the head going down the front of the body or getting inside it and doing terrible damage.

Society as the Doctor Saw It.

When the doctor was asked what he thought of the reception he had attended the previous evening he said:

"It was a carbuncle."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Why, it was a great gathering and a swell affair."—New York Times.

ADRIAN HAS IT

SMALLPOX

Adrian had a smallpox scare this week, though it may develop that it was only the result of vaccination. Nellie Smith a daughter of Gilbert Smith of Britton, who works at the home of Clark Baldwin, was home on New Year Day. A few days ago she broke out with a rash and fearing smallpox, she was vaccinated. She was taken to her home in Britton in a closed carriage, and all precaution have been taken to avert danger.

Mr. Baldwin's house is quarantined and Court was adjourned for the time being Mr. Baldwin has the freedom of the city, but his family are kept at home until the case is decided.

MUCH INCONVENIENCE ARISING FROM THE ADJOURNMENT OF COURT IN ADRIAN.

The adjournment of Court in Adrian Tuesday on account of a presumable case of smallpox, met with much opposition as it inconveinenced jurors lawyers and litigants alike. The jurors especially feel it as they have in so many cases hired help to carry on their work at home while they serve on jury. There is full three weeks of work ahead that has been awaiting a hearing. The parties are anxious to have their cases tried and the lawyers are also impatient over the delay. So little work has been done this winter owing to the ill health of Judge O'Mealy or some other Judge but as yet nothing definite has been decided.

A Discouraged Sport.

This is the sad story of one of the most thoroughbred sports known to the history of hazards. His name was Sullivan, and he had blue eyes and red hair, with a brogue to match his coloring. John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, met him in prison in South Africa at the time when Hammond and other prominent men were held as captives by the Boers in connection with the Jameson raid. The engineer and the Irishman became well acquainted.

"Probably you wonder why I'm here," said Sullivan one day when the thermometer had gone as high as 115 in the shade. "Well, I'll tell you. I got into a little trouble, and I pleaded guilty to it.

"'Five years!' said the judge.

"'Your honor,' I cried out, 'I'll throw heads and tails with you to see whether it shall be ten years or nothing.'

"And, would you believe it, Mr. Hammond, that judge got mad and added on the five years anyhow. And now I'm serving that extra five. What's the use of being a sport?"—Popular Magazine.

Strength of a Czar.

A story is told in St. Petersburg which illustrates the phenomenal physical strength of the old czar. At a little station not far from the capital the imperial train was delayed for quite a time, and the czar, being hungry, partook of some of the simple food of the buffet. Meanwhile the little daughter of the mayor presented the empress with a bouquet, the flowers of which were hastily gathered from private hothouses in the neighborhood. The stalks being still damp and earthly, the empress visibly hesitated to take the bouquet in her neatly gloved hand. The czar coolly took up one of the heavy pewter plates on the table, and twisting it as if it were paper, made a neat covering for the stalks. There is nothing incredible in the story, since the czar had been known to bend a kitchen poker as an ordinary man would a strip of tin.

SCHOOL NOTES

The semester examinations were held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The schedule was a follows: Wednesday morning Chemistry, Physical Geography, German II, Caesar and Ancient History. Wednesday afternoon English II, English III and Algebra I. Thursday morning Agriculture, German I, Latin I. Modern History and Biology. Thursday afternoon EnglishI, Enlish IV and Geometry X. Friday morning XII. Friday afternoon Music and special questions for those who have conflicts.

The United States History class had their final Tuesday afternoon. They have now completed the book and will begin Civics next semester.

Harold Harrison was absent Tuesday morning and John Foote for the whole day.

Thurlow Sweet has been absent ever since the Christmas vacation. We wonder if he has left for good.

There was no Y. W. C. A. this week on account of examinations

Blanche Snyder was absent the first part of the week on account of illness.

There was a great decrease of tardy marks lately owing to the new system which has been established that every pupil must be in his own room when the last gong sounds or get an excuse or a permit before being allowed to come into the room.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

WIT AND WISDOM

Mr. and Mrs. J. H Smith entertained the Wit and Wisdom Club at their pleasant home on Union St. Monday evening.

Mr. Smith was leader for the evening's program. The following subjects were discussed "Charitable Institutions in Michigan," "Local Option in Michigan," "Michigan Contributors to literature," "Roll Call, Naming Counties in Michigan and why they were so named."

Light refreshments and social chat closed a most delightful evening.

ENTERTAINED

Fred Rector Host to a Jolly Company

Fourteen years ago a number of boys met at the farm home of Fred Rector for a social visit among whom were Paul Bowen, Chas McIntyre, Garland Gillespie, Grant Toms, Robert Boyd, and John Murphy. They formed themselves into a Bachelors' Club, and as each one married he was to entertain those left behind. As the years passed by every member but Fred has taken to himself a wife and in his disgust over his failure to keep up with the bunch, and follow their example, he entertained the crowd himself Tuesday evening. Of the original company there were present at this gathering, John Murphy and wife, Paul Bowen and wife, Rob Boyd and wife and Fred Sheldon and wife.

The others being unable to be present owing to illness or some other good reason. Miss Grace Gillespie was a favored guests outside the original party.

A fine six o'clock dinner was served with Mrs. Mattis caterer. Cards and music were the evening's entertainment and a most enjoyable time was the universal verdict.

This being leap year, Fred may fall into line.

63 PARTY

Mr and Mrs. Chas. Ruthruff most charmingly entertained a company of friends at cards last Friday evening The game being 63. 7 tables were played two prizes were given, the ladies prize was secured by Miss Jennie Geddes and that of the gentleman by Allen Pulver.

Delicious refreshments were served. The occasion was pronounced by the guests as one of the most informal and pleasant evenings they had spent for sometime.

KILLBUCK PEDRO CLUB

The Killbuck Pedro Club met at he home of John Snow and wife on Thursday evening, with good attendance. Ed. Pangle was the lucky winner of the 1st prize, and Mrs. Shurts 2nd. At the close of the games the company partook of light refreshments, and enjoyed a social.

BRIDGE PARTY

The Bridge party held at the home of Mrs. W. W. Hicks Thursday afternoon was a very pleasant affair. 3 tables were played. Miss Waleen of Detroit was an out of town guest.

OH! YOU TURKEY

A very agreeable and delightful surprise was given at the Webster Anderson's store Tuesday evening Jan. 23. The hosts being Mr. Faron Anderson and Mr. Raynor Anderson

A 6 o'clock turkey dinner being given by them to their employes. About five o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Alex Reed, the caterers, appeared much to the surprise of the clerks, bringing with them a goodly array of everything necessary for a big spread. Shortly after 6 o'clock the clerks were seated at the tables and the following menu was served: Turkey, dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, squash, olives, pickles, hot rolls, coffee, maple mouse, and Angel Food. At the conclusion of the dinner there were 15, full, fuller fullest folks and in order to aid digestion, Raynor Anderson led in the game "Follow your leader" and the stunts he required them to do left them supple and willowy. The only accident to mar the occasion was when "Bo" took a nip of one of young ladies in her flight down the bannister. All pronounced it a jolly and delightful occasion.

OPEN MEETING OF THE RESEARCH CIRCLE

About sixty members of the Research Club and friends met at the home of Mrs. L. Schneider Tuesday evening

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the President, Mrs. Keysor, who announced the following program:

Duet—Mrs. Schneider and Mrs. Coller.
Sketch of the Life of Burns—Mrs. Mills.
Reading, Scotch poem—Mrs. Belcher.
Song—Mrs. Thomas McCann.
Reading—Miss Mingay.

UNIVERSITY INSPECTION OF SCHOOLS

Of the 450 high schools in Michigan 210 are accredited by the University. With the exception of teachers and school officials, very few of the citizens of this state are familiar with the procedure in accrediting schools.

The accrediting system had its origin at the University of Michigan in a resolution adopted by the faculty in 1871 and confirmed by the Board of Regents in 1872. It sprang from two apparently opposing causes: first, from an ernest desire on the part of the president and members of the faculty to co operate with superintendents and principals of high schools with a view to consolidating, strengthening, and elevating the entire system of the state; and secondly, from urgent solicitation of superintendents and principal of the leading high schools of the state for closer articulation with the University as an organic part of the educational system, to the end that each institution might react upon and stimulate the other for the benefit of each and the good of the whole.

The privilege of sending students to the University on diploma is limited to approved schools. On requests of Boards of Education, or other proper school authorities, the University sends an inspector to examine the school and to report upon its condition. If satisfied from the report that the school has an approved course of study, suitable laboratory and library facilities, is taught by competent instructors, and in all respects meets the requirements for admission to the various departments described in the calender for 1910-1911, the University places the school on the approved list for a period not exceeding three years (inclusive of the year of inspection); reserving, however, the right to require another inspection if, within the period specified in each case, important changes affecting the course of study in the school, or the efficiency of instruction, seem to make an examination necessary.

Graduates of schools which have been placed by the University on the approved list are admitted without examination on presenting a recommendation, signed by the principal of the school, certifying that they have satisfactorily done all the work required for admission. The recommendation must be made on a blank form furnished by the University.

The efficiency of instruction, the acquired habits of thought and study, the general intellectual and moral tone of the school are pramount factors, and therefore only schools which rank well in these particulars, as evidenced by rigid, thoroughgoing, sympathetic inspection, are considered eligible to the list.

"PAID IN FULL"

A fair house greeted the play "Paid In Full" at the Opera House Thursday night each character was well taken.

Capt. William the gruff old Sea Captain and Jimsey Smith were especially enjoyed. Joseph Brooks who took the part of the villian was exceptionally good in a difficult part. His wife Mrs. Emma Brooks did not overdo the part and kept the audience well interested. It was an all around good company.

The Story of a Thoughtful Child

Little Alice was terrible afraid of cats. One day she had been standing on the door-step for several minutes, looking at a big black tom-cat gallivanting on the fence. Finally she rushed into the house, looking very excited, and exclaimed, "Muvver, I thought I'd better come in. Dat kitty was just so afraid of me. I felt sorry for it and comed away!"—February Woman's Home Companion.

Opportunities Always Present.

"It is not a single opportunity which comes to a man, it is a train. It is a never-ending procession, some smaller and more insignificant as the years flow on, but ever and always, opportunities too numerous, too great, and too large for us to utilise fully."—Prof James, University of Illinois.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine,
A splendid remedy for such attacks.
A medicine that has cured thousands.
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.
Many Tecumseh people rely on it.
Here is Tecumseh proof.

George O. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occasions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name--Doan's--and take no other.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

Foley Kdney Pills

Always give satisfaction because they always do the work J. T. Shelnut, Breman, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

POLICEMEN ARE GUILTY

Inspector, Captain and Three Lieutenants Must Go.

Inspector John Wheeler of Chicago and four aids in the First police division, who have been on trial on charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty, were found guilty by the civil service commission and will be ordered discharged from the police force.

The men affected by the ruling, in addition to Inspector Wheeler, are: Captain Patrick J. Harding, commanding the Second district and stationed at the Twenty-second street station; Lieutenant George T. Prim, commanding the Cottage Grove avenue precinct; Lieutenant John B. Enright, stationed at the Twenty-second street station; Lieutenant Daniel T. Keleher, stationed at the Twenty-second street station.

The finding of the commission was not unexpected, as all the commanding officials of the vice district against whom charges have been filed, with three exceptions, have suffered the same fate.

53 SINK WITH SHIP

British Steamer Is Wrecked Off the Coast of Aberdeenshire.

British steamer Wistowhall struck early in the day on the Bullers of Buchan, a group of dangerous rocks off the coast of Aberdeenshire.

Captain Stoddard of the Wistowhall, who was one of those saved, says his crew numbered fifty-six. Only three Lascars and the captain reached the shore, so that fifty-three were lost in the deep.

The captain says the Wistowhall drifted for hours before a terrific gale. Its fires were extinguished as the seas flooded the engine room.

BURIED WITH FATHER

Child, Dead Thirty Years, Reinterred Upon Demise of Attorney.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 22.—When the coffin containing the body of Charles H. Johnson, the oldest attorney in the Genesee county bar, was lowered in the grave there accompanied it a coffin containing the bones of his child, buried thirty years ago.

At the time of the child's death Flint and Genesee county were terrorized by grave robbers. It was at the time of the ghouls' operations that the Johnson child died. The parents feared to place it in the cemetery and the coffin was placed in the ground in front of their home. An agreement was made at the time that when one of the parents died the other should have the coffin removed and placed in one grave with that of the father or mother.

When Johnson died his wife ordered the coffin containing the child taken from the ground and placed in the grave with the father.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic, that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. C. P. Winters of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Roberts, of 133 N. Notre Dame Street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, [illegible] Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

DIES OF PELLAGRA

Traverse City Man's Case Long a Mystery; Diagnosed Too Late.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 22.—For some time the illness of Louis Herbert Marsland, owner of a large fruit farm near Traverse City, has puzzled medical men in various parts of the country. Now it is known that Mr. Marsland suffered from pellagra of the rare Italian type, his body being a mass of scales like the back of a tortoise, only more pliable. But he died, and the knowledge comes too late.

For weeks Marsland had been practically bloodless. Physicians say that scarcely a pint of blood remained in his entire system. The scales covering his body would come off, but only to be replaced by a new growth. His pulse and temperature, instead of raising and lowering simultaneously, worked just the opposite.

Brought to the Battle Creek sanitarium, Marsland's disease was diagnosed as pellagra of the rare type never seen around here, and baffling present day medical treatment.

Marsland, thirty-three years old, leaves a widow and two children.

CONNAUGHT GUEST OF REID

Duchess and Princess Patricia Are Also in the Party.

The duke and duchess of Connaught, uncle of King George of England, the duchess of Connaught and their daughter, Princess Patricia, reached New York from Canada for a social visit of four days.

The vice regal party are the guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

The visit of the governor general of Canada and his party marks the first call of royalty to this country since the visit nearly ten years ago of Prince Henry of Prussia.

The duke and Ambassador Reid have let it become known that the visit is a purely personal one, and there is nothing official or semiofficial about it.

FIFTEEN MINERS KILLED

Explosion of Dust in a Wyoming Mine Proves Most Disastrous.

At Kemmerer, Wyo., at least fifteen miners are reported killed and probably forty injured in a dust explosion in mine No. 4 of the Kemmerer Coal company. Of the forty injured, it is known that nine, who have been taken to the hospital at Rock Springs, are in a serious condition. There were 112 men in the property at the time of the explosion and those who were not killed or injured rushed to the aid of their stricken companions.

The men on top quickly organized for rescue work, but despite their most desperate efforts all of the dead and injured were not removed for several hours.

FIRE SWEEPS OSAKA, JAPAN

Blaze Destroys 5,268 Wooden Houses in the "Venice of Orient."

At Osaka, in Japan, a number of fires which broke out at 1 o'clock in the morning swept unchecked across the southern half of this city, fanned by a strong wind. The conflagration was not under control until late in the afternoon, when, according to official figures, 5,268 buildings had been destroyed and 30,000 inhabitants rendered homeless. During the first four hours the flames consumed more than 1,890 houses.

Osaka, the "Venice of the East," has a population of about 1,000,000, and is rated one of the most important manufacturing and commercial cities of Japan.

KAISER'S DAUGHTER TO WED

She Will Become the Bride of Grand Duke Adolph Frederick.

The betrothal of Princess Victoria Louise of Germany, the only daughter of Emperor William, to Grand Duke Adolph Frederick of Mecklenburg-Strelitz will be announced on the emperor's birthday, Jan 27, according to a report just published.

The grand duke is one of the best known of the younger German explorers. He distinguished himself in 1908 by helping rescue several of a party he had led to the crater of Branca in German East Africa. All were showered with lava, and some became unconscious.

HENRY LABOUCHERE IS DEAD

Famous Editor of London Truth Expires in Florence, Italy.

Henry Labouchere, the editor of the London Truth, is dead at his villa at Florence, Italy.

Until a few years ago Mr. Labouchere was one of the most prominent independent politicians in the British Isles. He was a member of parliament for about half a century, but always declined to take office in any cabinet. His political views were extremely radical, but he preferred to give expression to them as a free lance in the house of commons.

Nervous Host—Oh, yes, very likely. It's my house.—London Sketch.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

OLIVET—Several of the Olivet college students distinguished themselves when what is known as the Troutner House caught fire from an overheated chimney. The house is one of the old boys' rooming houses of the village and is well known to all alumni. A dozen students went to the scene. No ladders were handy, so the boys climbed over the porch and thus to the chimney, which was blazing furiously. The chimney was torn away and the fire extinguished. The damage will not exceed $900.

JACKSON—Two men, both being now under quarantine, will be arrested as soon as the quarantine is raised on warrants sworn out by Health Officer De May of this city. It is alleged that Thaddeus Francis, one of the men complained of, failed to report a case of smallpox which existed in his home. The second man to face arrest is Albert Riley, a guard, who, it is alleged, became intoxicated while on guard and broke quarantine.

LANSING—The following Michigan compane have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: Detroit Cast Block Stone company, Detroit, $18,000; Kreis Dynamometer company, Detroit, $5,000, Oscar Kreis principal stockholder; Commercial Building company, Bay City, $100,000; Globe Construction company, Kalamazoo, $5,000; Michigan Fibre Box company, Kalamazoo, increase from $2,500 to $125,000.

ANN ARBOR—An audience of about 2,500 people listened to Governor Wilson where he spoke in the opera house in this university city. His train from Detroit was an hour late and his reception at Memorial Hall was little more than a greeting between President Emeritus Angell and himself. At the opera house Governor Wilson was received with many rounds of applause.

CADILLAC—The best of the potatoes are bringing 85 cents per bushel here, the highest price since a year ago, when for a day they brought $1. Most farmers in this part of the state are holding much of their crop for the high price. One farmer at Hobart suffered the loss of over $1,000 from potatoes freezing in the pits.

IONIA—Floyd Griswold, of Belding, had just concluded a jail sentence for jumping a board bill, and as he stepped out the jail door he was met by Deputy Webster of Belding, who arrested him a second time for the same offense at another boarding house. He demanded a court trial, but is still in jail.

STANDISH—Christian Hansen, who was a prominent resident of this place, who wandered away from the home of a daughter, teacher at Emory Junction, thirty miles north of here, last Wednesday and was found badly frozen, is dead. He was sixty-three years old. Two daughters survive him.

LANSING—In reply to the severe criticisms of his administration by Robert H. Shields, chairman of the state tax commission, Governor Chase S. Osborn of Michigan expresses a willingness to accept a renomination for governor on an "anti-brewery-domination platform."

PORT HURON—While he was endeavoring to unload a cargo of salt at the plant of the Port Huron Salt company, George Fraleigh narrowly escaped sudden death when 1,500 tons of salt fell upon him. Fraleigh was partly buried. One leg was broken in two places.

MENOMINEE—After being out for about twenty-seven hours the jury in the criminal libel suit of Attorney P. A. Martineau against A. E. Schwittay, editor of the Search Light, Marinette, reported a disagreement and was discharged. The jury stood 7 to 5 for acquittal.

ALPENA—William Eagle, who was a resident of this city, was crushed and killed while trying to stop a log going down a rollway in a lumber camp near Spratt, twenty miles west of this city. He was thirty-eight years old and unmarried. Two sisters live at Merlin, Ont.

IONIA—George Fox, a resident of Odessa township went to the barn, climbed to a landing, tied a rope around his neck and jumped off. The fall was better than six feet, and he was instantly killed. Brooding over the suicide of Clare McNeal is said to be the cause.

CADILLAC—When Mrs. C. B. Shelby, of this city, left her two children, two and three years old, in bed, to go out calling in the neighborhood, they promptly got up and played with the fire. A canvasser happened in just in time to drag the children to safety.

CADILLAC—Eldon P. Peron, an incorrigible eventeen-year-old boy who was dismissed from the reform school at Lansing but a few months ago after having been there three years, has been sent to the Ionia reformatory for two years for stealing $30.

MONROE—Mrs. B. H. Clark, a resident of Cleveland, was taken from a train by the sheriff in company with her fourteen-year-old daughter, whom she had abducted from a school at Flint, Mich. Mrs. Clark is divorced from her husband.

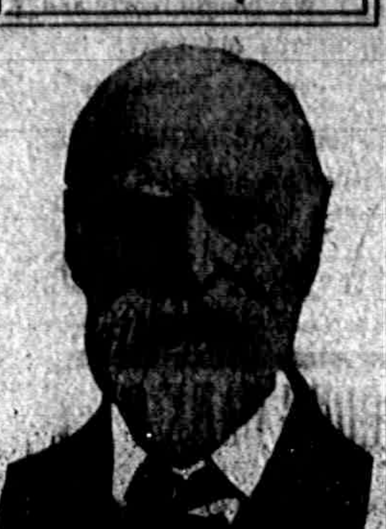
JAMES BRYCE

British Ambassador Who May Become Foreign Secretary.



LONDON, ENG.—The Liberal's discontent with Sir Edward Grey has reached a point where his successor is being discussed, and it is suggested that Ambassador James Bryce be brought from Washington and be put in charge of the foreign office.

Sir Edward Grey's policy is being severely criticised. He recently felt it necessary to deny through his secretaries that his policy is "aggressive or inspired by antagonism to Germany."

MYSTERY IN A DEATH

Occurrence of a Year Ago Is Still Unexplained.

Ann Arbor Lad of Nine Found Hanging in Shanty Last Year Baffling Case.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 20.—A year ago nine-year-old Foster Campbell came home from school and went out sliding with some of the other children of his age in the neighborhood. After a little, tiring of the sport, he suggested to one of his chums that they go and tear down a shanty they had erected the summer before in the Campbell's back yard and used for a playhouse. The chum refused, preferring to slide, and Foster went alone to the house.

What transpired in that house has never been learned. All that is known is that at supper time, when Foster did not come in response to calls, the mother went to the shed and found the child, hanging by a rope from the rafters, dead.

The knot tied about the child's neck it would seem impossible for him to have tied himself, and besides he had on clumsy mittens, such as would preclude his tying such a knot. On the floor of the shanty were signs of a struggle. From that day to this the police have been baffled and the mystery of the child's death remains unsolved.

FORESTRY TEACHER QUITS

Prof. C. L. Hill Resigns from the University of Michigan.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 20.—Professor C. L. Hill, teacher of forestry in the University of Michigan, resigned. The department will be without an instructor at the end of the college year unless the regents can find some one soon, Professor Filibert Roth, head of the department, having resigned last week to go to Cornell.

President Hutchins stated that there was no intention of discontinuing the department. Two of the best known foresters in the country, he added, had been approached in regard to coming to Michigan and their replies had been favorable, though not definite.

WIFE SLAYER DIES SUICIDE

Michigan Man Victim of Own Bullet Week After Murder.

Lenawee Junction, Mich., Jan. 23.—Archie Kamp of Palmyra, who last Sunday murdered his wife and perhaps fatally injured his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harrison Calkins, because he believed they had alienated the affections of his three-year-old child, died from the bullet he sent into his own brain.

The child had been taken from him by order of court. She is being cared for by neighbors pending the appointment of a guardian.

TWO DIE BY ASPHYXIATION

Man and Woman Found in Room Filled with Gas.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 20.—With four jets pouring gas into the room, the bodies of Mrs. Carrie Reynolds, twelve years old, and John Stull, fifty-four, were found in a room in the home of Mrs. Orin Lee, Mrs. Reynold's daughter.

The dead woman until recently was Stull's housekeeper. It is understood they quarreled and on Sunday met at the daughter's home to attempt a reconciliation.

Judge at Oregon, Ill., Sentences the Wife Murderer.

Dr. Harry Elgin Webster was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Farrand at Oregon, Ill., for the murder of his bigamous wife, Bessie Kent Webster.

Webster collapsed from the strain of waiting for sentence. He was almost carried back to the county jail, where he was treated by a local physician.

Webster on Jan. 12 changed his plea from not guilty to guilty. His confession was read in court at the time.

Webster was taken to Joliet penitentiary at once.

DELICATE CHILDREN

Made Strong by Vinol

"I wish I could induce every mother who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious cod liver iron tonic, Vinol.

"It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed. It tastes so good she loved to take it—not a bit of cod liver oil taste.—Mrs. C. W. Stump, Canton, Ohio."

The reason Vinol is so successful in building up puny, delicate, ailing children, is because it is a combination of the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal body-building elements of cod liver oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength-creator for your child, and you do not find it is all we claim, we will return your money on demand.

FOUR PERSONS BURN TO DEATH

Five Others Are Injured, One Perhaps Fatally.

PITIFUL ENDING OF REUNION

Family Party Gathers at Home in Claytonia, Pa., and Early Morning Fire Brings in Reign of Desolation.

Butler, Pa., Jan. 29. — Four people were incinerated and five were injured, one perhaps fatally, in a fire which destroyed the residence of Curtis C. Hale at Claytonia, ten miles north of here.

The dead: Earl Miles, aged twenty-nine; Mrs. Earl Miles, aged twenty-eight; Mrs. Inez Bell Hale, aged twenty-eight; Scott Hale, aged eighteen, of Claytonia.

The injured: Curtis C. Hale, aged sixty-one; Mrs. Curtis Hale; David Hale, aged thirty-three, of Sandy Lake; James Hale, aged thirty-one; Miss Sadie Hale.

A family party was held the previous night at the Hale home in honor of David, a son who had come to spend Sunday. All lived under the parental roof except David and Mr. and Mrs. Niles. The fire started at 3 a. m. from an overheated stove. Miss Sadie aroused her parents. Making her way to the second floor, she rescued the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hale, carrying it to her mother outside. Returning to the upper rooms she found all unconscious. Grabbing her brother James, she dragged him down stairs. When she made a dash to rescue the others, a wall of flame closed her way. She staggered from the house and fell in the snow.

SIX MEN BADLY BURNED

Accident Follows Sham Battle Posed for Moving Pictures.

New York, Jan. 29.—Six men were badly injured at Creedmore, the old state rifle range, where 400 soldiers from Fort Hamilton were posing for Civil War scenes for a moving picture concern, when, after the sham battle which crowned the picturesqueness of the picture, and the soldiers and employes were gathering, some one threw a cigarette into a bag of bombs.

There was an explosion which scattered burning powder on a score of spectators and six men who were close to the bag were showered so with the burning powder that they were badly burned before the fires which started in their clothing could be put out.

HIATT SENTENCED FOR LIFE

Jurors Take Thirty Ballots to Decide Fate of Wife Slayer.

Noblesville, Ind., Jan. 29.—After being out fifteen hours, the jury in the case against Harry Hiatt, charged with the murder of his wife, returned a verdict, finding the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and fixing his punishment at imprisonment for life.

It required only a few ballots for the jury to brush aside the defendant's plea of insanity and decide that he was guilty of murder in the first degree, but the question of punishment was more of a stumbling block. Thirty ballots were taken before the sentence of life imprisonment was fixed.

INDICTS MRS. MORROW

Grand Jury at Chicago Returns True Bill Charging Murder.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—An indictment accusing Mrs. Rena B. Morrow of having murdered her husband, Charles B. Morrow, an inventor, was returned by the grand jury in Judge McKinley's court.

Capiases for the rearrest of the defendant were issued by the sheriff. Mrs. Morrow is now at liberty on bonds of $40,000. If the court refuses to accept the same sureties, Mrs. Morrow will be placed in jail with two other woman slayers—Mrs. Louise Vermilya and Mrs. Jane Quinn.

GOLL RELEASED ON PAROLE

Former Milwaukee Bank Cashier, Aid of Bigelow, Freed at Leavenworth.

Leavenworth, Kan., Jan. 29.—Henry G. Goll, former cashier of the First National bank of Milwaukee, who left the federal penitentiary on parole.

Goll was assistant cashier of the Milwaukee First National bank at the time President Frank G. Bigelow was accused of being a defaulter, and it was charged that the two had co-operated in hiding the shortage in the bank funds. Bigelow was paroled several months ago.

New Yorkers Visit Royalty.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 29. — Charles Dana Gibson and his wife, a sister of Waldorf Astor of New York, are guests at Government House and were amongst those at a dinner held at Rideau hall on the first evening of the return from New York of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia. A number of other New York guests are expected at Government House.

Snake's Method of Attack.

No snake is able to jump or spring from a coil in order to strike, as often represented in pictures. It can only strike when it resembles the letter S and is lying flat on the ground. It can then only reach the distance supplied by stretching the body out straight. The two curves in the figure S supply this distance, which is about half the length of the body. No snake jumps through the air to its victim or springs clear from the ground, rising upon its tail. Such stories and pictures are all false. Neither do they coil like a rope and strike from that position. They may coil partially, but the part of the body that does the striking is ever and only that part which makes the figure S and lies flat on the ground; hence no serpent can strike when stretched out

SENATOR BRYAN

Who Would Have Civil War Pension List Published.

NAMES OF PENSIONERS

Bill Introduced to Publish 900,000 of Them.

Senator Bryan Believes Publication of Rolls Might Expose Many Frauds.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Publicity of the identity of 900,000 pensioners on the government rolls is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Bryan of Florida.

The bill directs the commissioner of pensions to publish in his next annual report the name, residence, length of military service and the date of act of congress under which every pensioner on the rolls qualified for pension.

Senator Bryan believes that compliance with the terms of the bill would expose many frauds and thus remove the names of thousands from the pension rolls. The bill will further provide that the proposed roster of pensioners shall be listed in state groups.

ROOSEVELT MEET FEB. 6

Plans Are Changed and Only Small Number Will Be Bidden.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Governor Osborn of Michigan held another conference with the national Roosevelt committee leaders before leaving for his home. The plan to call a national Roosevelt conference in Chicago Feb. 6 was somewhat modified. Instead of the national mass meeting, as at first proposed, the committee will invite possibly a governor or equally prominent sympathizer from each state.

Among those who have sent the committee word that they would act as the representatives of their respective states on the Roosevelt national committee are: Former Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey, Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, Governor Chase S. Osborn of Michigan, Governor W. R. Stubbs of Kansas and Colonel Chauncey Dewey of Illinois.

SMUGGLED CHINESE TAKEN

Celestials Had Come Into Country by Crossing Niagara River on Ice.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 29.—Five Chinamen, who were smuggled across the Canadian border, were arrested by M. J. Booth, captain of detectives, after he followed them from here to Jersey City.

The Chinamen told through an interpreter that after crossing the Niagara river on ice, broke through the trap door at the front end of the car. They were supplied with tickets from Niagara Falls to Jersey City.

ARTIST SCHREYVOGEL DEAD

Was a Foremost Painter of Scenes Distinctively Western.

New York, Jan. 29.—After an illness of two months Charles Schreyvogel, the artist, who, with Frederic Remington, divided the distinction of being America's foremost painter of scenes depicting western life, died at his home in Hoboken, N. J.

Blood poisoning, brought on by the presence of a small particle of turkey bone that lodged in his mouth shortly after Thanksgiving day, caused the artist's death.

Fall Will Cripple Evansville Boy.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 29.—Ralph M. Drybrough, aged nineteen, stock keeper for a wholesale dry goods company, fell through an elevator shaft and went down a distance of four stories. One of his legs was crushed and he will be a cripple for life.

Blood Transfusion Fails to Save.

Gary, Ind., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Theodore B. Templin, wife of a Gary physician and the first bride to come to Gary, died. An effort was made to save her life by transfusing a quart of her husband's blood.

NEW POTATO SCOURGE

French Farmers Discover Insect That Burrows Into Tubers.

Paris, Jan. 29.—French farmers are threatened with a new scourge in the form of a parasite which attacks potatoes. It is an insect which in its adult state becomes a butterfly, but which as a larva burrows tunnels in the potatoes and stalks, killing the plant and rendering the root totally unfit for food, even for animals.

In New Zealand, Algeria and Portugal the parasite has caused disasters. In France its ravages have been confined to the department of the Var, where it has been practically impossible to pick up one sound potato from the last crop.

Former Insurance President Ill.

Morristown, N. J., Jan. 29.—Richard A. McCurdy, former president of the Mutual Life, came to his home here lying on an invalid stretcher. His physicians said that he is suffering from an infected foot and that his illness was not serious.

W. Morgan Shuster in London.

London, Jan. 29.—W. Morgan Shuster, the dismissed American treasurer general of Persia, arrived in London. His plans as to when he will sail for home have not yet been settled.

WOODMEN RAISE RATES

Head Camp M. W. of A. Takes Important Action.

Members Given Seven Options—Supporters of Plan Declare Action Makes Insurance Safer.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Delegates to the head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America in its closing session at the Globe theater elected to raise their fraternal insurance rates approximately 47 per cent. The vote was 460 to 307.

This substantial revision directly affects 1,270,608 members of the order. It marks, say the victors, the beginning of a safe era in the insurance departments of fraternal orders.

"The adoption of the new rates is the greatest thing ever done in the history of fraternal insurance," said Head Consul Talbot. "Principles and not legislation shaped our actions. We could have stopped short of this step and still have satisfied the state laws based on the Mobile bill; but we were determined to get the best possible insurance that could be computed."

The new rates become effective for new members May 1, 1912. Old members have until Jan. 1, 1913, to make their choice of seven optional plans. If by that date they have not declared their preference they will arbitrarily be given the new whole life plan ranging at 75 cents a month to every $1,000 when eighteen years old to $2 per $1,000 at forty-five.

FAVORS NO CANDIDATE

No Pledges Made by Illinois Progressive Republicans.

President Taft and Governor Deneen Are Unsparingly Denounced in Resolutions Adopted.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 29.—The Progressive Republican state conference did not endorse anybody for the presidency. The resolutions, adopted without a fight, preferred no man for the presidential nomination.

Nor was there reference to the resolutions to the candidacies of Senator Magill for United States senator or of Senator Jones for governor.

The resolutions were unsparing in denunciation of President Taft and Governor Deneen. The national and state administrations are condemned without reserve.

Robert M. LaFollette and Albert B. Cummins received honorable mention in the resolutions, referring to their actions in the senate upon the railroad rate bill.

The name of Theodore Roosevelt was not included in the resolutions which were offered by Medill McCormick as chairman of the committee, except by the plank commending the Roosevelt-Pinchot conservation policy.

The policy of the Illinois progressives as to the presidency was modeled materially after the plan followed by the Ohio conference. The Illinois resolutions do not go so far as the Ohio declaration, which mentioned by name Roosevelt and LaFollette.

Clark Enters the Lists.

Washington, Jan. 29. — Speaker Champ Clark in a public statement declared he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

CLUBMAN SHOT BY CHAUFFEUR

Wound of California Millionaire Is Dangerous.

SEQUEL OF DIVORCE SCANDAL

J. J. Moore Finds His Spouse Taking Joy Ride in Automobile of Neighbor and Opens Fire on Other Man.

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—J. J. Moore, millionaire clubman, whose domestic troubles were before the divorce court here some weeks ago, was shot and probably fatally wounded at his country home in San Mateo county.

S. R. Timothy, chauffeur for H. C. Breeden, another San Mateo county millionaire, who is now in Europe, is the man who fired the shots. Moore has a bare fighting chance for his life. Before he received his wound Moore fired four shots at the chauffeur, all of which went wild.

Some months ago Moore sued for divorce, charging cruelty and other things, but did not specifically accuse his wife of misconduct. Mrs. Moore filed a cross complaint, asking for divorce on the ground of cruelty. After a long and sensational trial, the court denied a divorce to either. Mrs. Moore was charged with many offenses and too much familiarity with servants and others and serious counter charges were made. Timothy was one of the witnesses for Mrs. Moore.

Moore was called to his home by a detective whom he had employed to watch his wife. He lay in wait in the shrubbery at the gate of his spacious grounds and about 10:30 p. m. Timothy drove up in his employer's machine. Mrs. Moore was in the car with him. Moore jumped from his place of concealment and opened fire. Timothy leaped from the car and running across the road took refuge behind some trees and fired one shot. The bullet struck Moore in the abdomen, passing through his liver. Moore sank to the ground while Timothy surrendered to the police.

An examination of Timothy's room showed several handsome pictures of Mrs. Moore, likewise empty champagne glasses. Many articles of wearing apparel were found in his apartments bearing Moore's initials. The room had been recently occupied. Moore is about fifty-five, while Mrs. Moore is thirty-eight. Timothy is a handsome fellow of thirty.

TRAMP KILLS BANK DIRECTOR

Clarkson Willcutts of Marion, Ind., Shot Dead at Door of Home.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 29.—Clarkson Willcutts, seventy years old, a bank director, land owner, and ex-county commissioner, was assassinated by a man who shot him down when he came to his door in response to his knock. Miss Florence Stanley, a neighbor, who saw the man, said he walked with a slight limp. This caused the police to arrest Cecil Fordyce, a lame tramp, who confessed the murder.

Fordyce, who refused to divulge his residence, said he and another man, for whom the police are searching, came here for the purpose of robbing wealthy citizens.

SIGNS POINT TO BIG MINE STRIKE

Scale Committee Caucus Decides for Action.

INCREASED WAGES OR STRIKE

Mine Workers Express Opinion that Operator's Contention for Wage Reduction Is Merely Bluff—Mine Workers' Finances Low.

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—At a caucus of officers and members of the scale [illegible] the subject of the demands of the miners and the counter demands of the operators, the first for an increase of ten cents a ton on mining coal, and the latter for a reduction of the same amount from the present scale, was carefully gone over and resulted in a determination to order a strike unless the increase should be preceded.

It was believed that the operators would be willing to renew the present scale and the opinion was general that the demand for a reduction was merely a bluff, but the conference determined that nothing short of an increase would be satisfactory to the organization and that a strike would be necessary to enforce it.

After the conference some of the miners admitted that the organization is not in a condition financially to conduct a strike and that one would be hopeless unless the majority of the members of the organization be continued at work so as to respond to assessments.

The opinion was expressed, though, that the operators in some of the districts would grant the wage demanded and that this would enable the organization to carry on the strike where the terms are not complied with. It was said that district settlements had been approved in the past because of this fact and that it would be the policy of the officers to make such settlement when present contracts expire, so as to keep some of the miners at work while others were on strike.

PRESIDENT IS CHEERFUL

Hears Good Tidings from New York Leaders.

Executive Is Now on Trip to Cleveland, Columbus, Akron and Other Ohio Towns.

New York, Jan. 29.—President Taft left New York for Cleveland apparently cheerful over the situation in this state as regards his renomination. While resting at the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft, the president talked politics with President Samuel S. Koenig of the Republican county committee and with others who brought rosy tidings.

The president, it was said, expressed some concern over the activity of the Roosevelt boomers in this state, and inquired as to why the Republican state committee at its meeting on Saturday had failed to vote for instructing delegates for him. Mr. Koenig told the president that he need not be worried about the New York delegates, as he would probably have them all.

Tonight the president will be the guest of honor at the Tippecanoe club's McKinley birthday dinner in Cleveland. On Tuesday he will attend the dedication of the new federal building in Columbus and will be the principal speaker before the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

Wednesday he goes to Akron to speak before the Chamber of Commerce of that city. The schedule arranged by Secretary Hilles provides that the president shall be back in Washington early on Thursday.

EVIDENCE HELPS PACKERS

Shows Beef Prices Not Affected by Dropping of Hide Allowance.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—In cross-examination of Steiner G. Langher, former margin clerk for the National Packing company, counsel for the indicted packers brought out evidence tending to show that in the period during which the allowance for hides was dropped by the packers profits also were lower.

This is in support of the beef men's contention that the abandonment of the hide allowance was a mere matter of bookkeeping, without effect on the selling price of dressed beef.

Fire Damage at Pittsfield, Mass.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 29. — A fire which started in a clothing store in the Academy of Music building and communicated to the Miller building and a large store house in the rear of the Academy building, caused damage estimated at from $200,000 to $250,000. All three buildings were destroyed.

The Power of Steam

A Story Showing How It May Be Used as a Weapon of Defense

By Jack Tomlinson

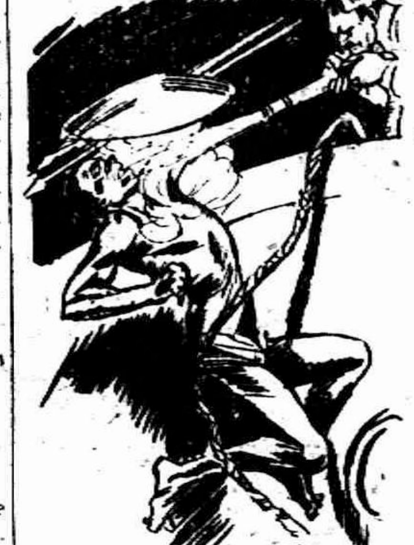
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

Many people nowadays consider the perils of the sea to be due to the sea alone. The time of piracy—being wrecked on a shore and falling into the hands of savages or being eaten by cannibals—is supposed now to belong to the past. This is not the case. There are pirates today on the coast of China and on the Malay archipelago, and as for falling into the hands of savages and that within twelve months past, I have such a story to [illegible].

I was second officer of the American tramp steamer Evelyn Hope. We were running along the coast of British East Africa, giving the shore as we thought a wide berth, beaten by a high wind and seas off the Indian ocean.

It was very early in the morning that the wind suddenly ceased. And it was lucky that it did so, for our bow ran upon a coral and sand beach. We tried to back off, but our engines were not strong enough, and we were obliged to wait for daylight in order to see where we were and adopt more strenuous means for getting free.

When the dawn came we found ourselves on the shore of an uninhabited island. We at once set about cutting our kedge anchors and making other preparations to pull us off. I was ordered to go ashore with a crew of six men and try for some game that we might have fresh meat. We found plenty of wild animals and birds on the island and were fast getting a supply of both when we heard a shout from the man we had left on the shore with the boat. Hurrying to the beach, we saw five large canoes, each containing some forty negroes, pulling toward the Evelyn Hope.



"I GAVE HIM A DOSE OF STEAM."

Of course we got into our boat at once and raced with the blacks for the vessel. When they saw that we would reach it before them they lay on their oars and contented themselves with observing our movements.

They watched us all the afternoon, and our captain concluded that they were waiting for the darkness, when they would attack us, and if they captured our ship we would all doubtless be murdered. We scoured the vessel for arms, and all we found was a shot gun, a rifle and two revolvers. We had a dozen white seamen aboard and a mixture of copper colored men, mostly Malays. Late in the afternoon the blacks sent a boat toward us, probably to draw our fire and discover how strong we were. At the sight of the negro warriors our Asiatics howled so with fright that the captain ordered them all below. We did not gratify the blacks by firing at them.

Our chance for our lives looked very small. Our armament wouldn't afford a weapon each to our white crew. As for the rest, they were not worth arming. Suddenly I thought of a weapon that would serve us better than powder and ball. We had plenty of hose aboard, and it occurred to me to couple it to the boilers and fight the blacks with steam.

What frightened our men was that some of them remembered that several years ago a French ship had gone ashore on this or another island on this very part of the coast and the natives had massacred all on board. The outlook with a couple of hundred black devils waiting for night to come to treat us the same way was, to say the least, not reassuring, especially since our principal weapon was steam.

We calculated that it would be high tide about 9 o'clock in the evening. If we weren't captured before that there was a possibility of our sliding off into deep water. Then we could put on steam and sail away without molestation. But the blacks knew this as well as we and were not likely to delay their attack till the tide helped us off.

Fortunately the weather, which had been thick when we struck and continued thick, cleared at sunset, and there was a three-quarter moon in the east.

We had counted on this to help us even more than the tide, for with its light we could see our enemies. Without it they could climb to our decks under cover of the darkness and overpower us by force of numbers.

Our luckiest find in the way of defense was some barbed wire fencing stowed away in the cargo. We stretched it around the gunwale. We didn't consider it sufficient to keep off an enemy, but excellent for purposes of delay. We put two rows, one above the other, from stern to midships in order to make it easier for the blacks to attack us aft, thus concentrating them to our advantage.

We had two couplings on the boilers and hose enough to reach any part of the ship from both couplings. By sunset we had all our dispositions made. The captain was in command. The first officer was to work the port and I the starboard hose. The arms were distributed among the white crew. The Asiatics were kept in the hold.

As the evening approached they began to cry to be let out, not relishing being murdered like rats in a trap. And they also feared that the blacks might set the ship afire or let the water in on them to drown them. We paid no attention to them, and they finally became more quiet.

Long before the sun surrendered the day to the moon we had everything in readiness to repel boarders. Openings were left in the fencing, which was closely woven, with a barb on top, so that we could fire at our enemies as well as keep them from getting at us. When there was only moonlight a dark cloud rolled over our big round lantern and hid it. As it was being obscured we saw every canoe pulled furiously toward us.

It seemed to me that we fifteen white men opposed to more than three times their number of strong men armed with spears they were used to handling, besides probably some firearms, had a very small chance for our lives. We were supported, however, by faith in our arrangements for their reception, and if we could reach them with our steam jets we had confidence in its power to harm them considerably.

Now and again while our enemies were pulling toward us a thin part of the cloud passing over the moon would give us some light. The coming canoes and their loads were black as Erebus, though here and there we would see a flash when the moonlight struck a shield or a steel weapon. Nearer came the black death till the canoes reached a point a cable's length from us. Two pulled to port, two to starboard and one toward the stern.

I wondered how they proposed to board us, for we had been careful to leave nothing hanging for them to take hold of. As soon as they came beside us and under our stern we learned their method. They were provided with poles of their own making—of what material I did not know—and at the end of each was a sort of V made from a forking branch, one side being free to form a hook. They no sooner came near enough than they began to throw these V's to catch on the gunwale. But here our wire fencing stood us in good stead. The blacks found it impossible to get an attachment except at the openings we had purposely left for our own action.

Standing at my post with my nozzle, I saw one of the canoes come toward me, and its crew, seeing a single man apparently unarmed to defend the opening, pulled directly under me. One of them threw a V, which caught on the gunwale, and a black came quickly up, climbing hand over hand. I gave him a dose of steam right in the face.

With a wild shriek he dropped into the boat. I dared not remain exposed to a spear thrown from below; but, sighting the position of the boat, I reached out with the nozzle in my hand and poured a stream of hot vapor into it. Knowing by their yells that they were in distress, I made bold to lean over the ship's side and turn the stream from one end of the canoe to the other.

For awhile the blacks were too paralyzed to act; then every one who had not been severely scalded jumped into the water, leaving the wounded in the boat to drift away. Of course as soon as they were put out of the fight I desisted.

Meanwhile the first officer was having a similar experience with the blacks on the other side, as I well knew from the yells coming from that direction. I had no sooner driven off my enemies than I was ordered by the captain to the stern, where several blacks had already climbed up and were jumping down on the deck. I did not need to go to them. I simply turned a steam jet on them. Some fell on the deck; others managed to get over the taffrail and down into their canoe or the water.

And so at every point we achieved an easy victory without firing a shot. Great is the power of steam. Since our triumph on the African coast with no other weapon I have wondered why military men should not place boilers with hose attachments in fortifications for the close work. Might it not be made as effective as a Gatling gun?

As we saw the canoes pulling away to get rid of the dreadful hot water we felt our ship sliding off the reef. A cheer both for our victory and for the friendly tide that had freed us went up, doubtless the greatest noise from the mingling of human voices that had ever been heard on that silent shore. In a few minutes we were in deep water, and instead of using our steam to scald negroes we moved away under it toward a friendly port.

I've been through hurricanes and been wrecked on a deserted island, but never in all my sailor life have I been so scared as when those blacks were waiting for darkness to come aboard and murder us.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 29.—In the three Texas cities of Dallas, Fort Worth and Waco there have been 437 cases of meningitis and 190 deaths since the present epidemic of the disease began.

The Out of Date Doubloon.

Should the reader find a pirate's buried treasure he will have to dispose of his Spanish gold at its bullion value, for since Aug. 1, 1908, when the common crier made proclamation from the steps of the Royal Exchange, of London that after that date the doubloon would cease to be legal tender in the West Indies, including British Guiana, the doubloon has not been the precious thing it was. In 1730 and [illegible] about a century after it was worth $8, "more or less." It has ceased to be coined in its native country, Spain, and since 1908 it has been unpopular in the West Indies, where for a long time it figured in a mixed circulation embracing British, United States and Spanish coins. In the interest of romance, however, the name at least must survive. It signifies nothing more than that the coin was double the value of a pistole, but the doubloon was never such a mouth filling mockery as "pieces of eight," which suggest great riches, but mean only Spanish silver dollars, pieces equivalent to 8 reals.

England's Great Wall.

Directly across the north of England, between points near Carlisle and Newcastle, ran Hadrian's wall, the northern boundary of the Roman empire. It is generally supposed to have been erected by the Emperor Hadrian between 117 and 138 A. D. The wall was of stone and was eight feet thick and twelve feet high. It was guarded by eighteen military stations, garrisoned by cohorts of Roman soldiers, and at intervals of a mile were forts built to contain eighty men each. Between every two forts were four watch-towers. South of the stone wall was a series of earthen ramparts, and between the two ran the great military road, still in use as a highway. Of this vast work comparatively few portions remain, a matter of wonder, perhaps, when one sees the solidity of the sections of the wall which still stand, but easily explained by the fine stone walls in the immediate vicinity.—Travel.

GLADYS GILMORE

Gladys Gilmore of Macon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gilmore, and granddaughter of Mrs. Gilman of this place, passed away Sunday evening, after an illness extending over two years. So gentle was her passing away, "They thought her dying when she slept, and sleeping when she died."

THE DEATH LIST FOR 1910

According to statistics gathered by the Census bureau in 1910, it was found the death rate was that more males than females, more married people than single, more infants than adults died during the year.

Tuberculosis has claimed [illegible] persons, 4,474 more than in the year previous, this is owing to the increased area now covered by the census bureau. The death rate per 1000 population for 1910, was slightly less than the year previous.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all our friends and neighbors who so kindly came to our aid, in the burial of our dear Mother. Truly, a friend in need is a friend indeed. We would also Thank the Singers for their services and the Rebekah Lodge for their beautiful flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Buckley
Mrs. E. P. Buckley.

MRS. HENRY WILSON

Mrs. Jane Wilson of Hamilton, Kan. died at the home of her daughter Mrs. G. S. Beevers Jan. 14 at the age of 7[illegible] years 5 mo. and 11 days after an illness of only two weeks. Since the death of her husband October 2[illegible], 1911, Mrs. Wilson has made her home with her daughter.

Deceased was born in Antrim, Ireland and came to America when eight years of age. The family settleing in Tecumseh, Mich.

In 1869 she was married to Henry Wilson. Four children survive her Mrs. G. S. Beevers and Homer Wilson of Hamilton, Kansas, Mrs. Eugene Allsop of Kansas City and Mrs. J. G. Waymore of Madison.

The funeral was held at the Baptist church Tuesday January 16 at one o'clock, her pastor Rev. C. H. Gerkin officiating. The body being laid to rest by the side of her husband who so lately preceeded her to the better land.

TURN DOWN SOCIALISTS

Miners' Organization Refuses to Enter the Party.

At Indianapolis, Ind., by a vote of 515 to 155, the convention of the United Mine workers of America refused to adopt the resolution committing the organization to the Socialist party and approved the substitute measure of the resolutions committee declaring "it would be well if workers would unite on the political as well as the industrial field."

The resolutions committee had reported that is would be unconstitutional for the United Mine Workers to indorse any political party.

John P. White, of Iowa, was reelected president of the United Mine Workers of America by a majority of 45,424½ over Thomas L. Lewis, according to the report of the tellers.

A Medieval Megaphone.

A curiosity of great antiquity is still to be seen within St. Andrew's church at Willoughton, near Gainsborough, says an English magazine. This is a quaint speaking trumpet with an obscure early history, dating back to the times of the Knights Templars. In shape it resembles a French horn and is more than five feet long, having a bell at the end of the graduated tube. It was formerly six feet in length, but is now telescoped at the joints, where the metal has apparently decayed. Tradition declares it was formerly sounded from the tower to summon aid in case of need, as when blown at a height the weird, deep notes the trumpet produced could be heard a great distance away in bygone days. It is believed that this curious instrument has often been used to call together the villagers, thus dispensing with the usual bell, and to give additional power and strength to the choir, being then probably used by the chief singer, as the trumpet intensifies vocal sound to a marked degree.

Sick Herrings.

"Why," said a youngster to his elder brother, "do herrings have so many more illnesses than other fish?"

"Who says they do?" asked the youth addressed.

"Why, this book says that thousands upon thousands of them are cured every year."

SCHOOL NOTES

The following pupils are absent from the seventh grade on account of vaccination: Herman Seltz, Earl Brisbin, Arthur Brown and Fay VanValkenburg.

Charles Ives has returned to the seventh grade after a few days absence.

The seventh grade have had only one tardy mark this month. That is good considering the very cold weather.

The eight grade is taking monthly tests this week.

Marjorie McPhee has been ill at her home in Macon for the last few days.

Harold Harrison and John Foote of Ridgeway have been absent on account of very sore arms.

The seventh grade has completed their work in Physiolgy and will take up U. S. History the coming semester.

Miss Jennie Geddes has returned to Tecumseh and will continue her work in the third and fourth grades the East Branch Monday.

The Durns Co. is scheduled to arrive in Tecumseh Feb. 22. The entertainment is to be given in Witherall Hall. Tickets are now on sale by members of the Senior Class.

The kindergarten the East Branch are now studying the Eskimo and his home, using coarse salt for snow. The little folks are very much interested in their work.

A Mother's meeting was held at the East Branch School Friday afternoon. The mothers of the children took part in the program. During the afternoon Mrs. McCann, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Kendrick each sang a solo accompanied by Miss Ruth Ager. Mrs. Andrew Taylor and Miss Rathbun gave a recitation. Mrs. Will Mobbs gave a discussion on character building and and Mrs. Clement Bramble on the Physical and Moral Development of the child. Supt. D. P. McAlphie gave a short talk on the value of child study. The meeting was very interesting and instructive. About 25 mothers were present.

C

The sixth grade had a contest defining words. It was a tie between each side. Edna Taylor and Harmon Louis were leaders on each side. Harmon Louis and Edna Taylor went against each other. They both missed on the same word.

The following of the sixth grade have not missed any words in spelling during the month of January; Allen Kenrick, Ben Synder, Doris Marsh, Edna Taylor, Irving Shaw, Esther Pratt, Florence VanWinkle, Henry Marsh, Herbert Murphy, Irene Shaw, Illah Jewel, Joseph Satterthwaite, Harold Skinner, Harmon Louis, Luella Lowry, Marian Hoag, Rosa Beaubien and Eddie Carleton.

Doris Marsh, Harry Marsh, Harmon Louis, and Joseph Satterthwaite of the sixth grade have not missed in spelling this year.

The first and second grades of the West Branch take special interest in their songs and pieces. The boys sing "Soldier boy" and any other songs they know.

The kindergarten work ought to be of interest. One of the several occupations of the kindergarten is clay modeling. This is of special interest and enjoyment to the children. There are innumerable objects in a childs mind that he delights in making. At the West Branch School they are now taking up objects that can be made by starting with the sphere, such as balls, oranges, apples, pumpkins, beads, grapes, snow man, watch, cookies and doughnuts.

There is nothing easy in the study of fractions is being proved once more by the children of the third and fourth grades, East Branch.

Miss Geddes teacher of the third and fourth grades, East Branch, has been ill. She returned to school last Monday, but was unable to resume her duties. She will probably be back to school some time this week.

Vaccination is the cause of trouble to many High School students just now. Many wish vaccination had never been the fad in Tecumseh.

Examinations were the only topic of interest at the High School the past week. Freshmen, Sophomore, Junior and Senior, no one escapes the test of their knowledge. Alas! for the student, boy or girl who bluffed it in recitations. No more does bluff avail. Everyone is compelled to stand on true merit. Morning, noon and night everyone thinks "I wonder what I got in ——."

MOTHERS' MEETING

The mothers' meeting was held last Friday afternoon. Fifteen mothers were present. One of the special features of the opening was a song entitled, "A lover of Japan," by Mrs. Moore. The discussion was very interesting and some good points were brought out. One of the questions brought out for discuss'ons was; the influence of the school room upon the child in helping him to live in harmony with his fellow men, or how will it help to make him a better citizen? Answer, formulate character and make him more unselfish.

Another subject for discussion was the influence of the physical nature upon the mental. Children who come from crowded tenements where they do not secure enough fresh air and do not have enough to eat, do not do as good work as children who come to school clean with enough to eat, and have had enough fresh air while they sleep. This is why in the cities that they furnish the poor children breakfast when they come to school. All nosal trouble should be attended to. Throat trouble should be carefully looked after. Teeth kept clean and all decayed teeth should be attended to. The Adolescent period was discussed. They do not have much trouble with the girl. It is the boy. At the adolescent period in a boy's life he does not know whether he wants to go to school or not. He does not know what he wants to be when he gets older. He is undecided. He is a problem at school.

There was an informal reception at the close. Light refreshments were served.

CALIFORNIA LETTER

W. P. Stocking

As we have only just started on the New Year this greeting may not seem so very late.

When I read of the extreme cold all over the country east of the Rockies and of which readers of the Herald must get, at least a touch, our hearts go out in genuine sympathy to them for we have "been there" in years past and gone, save in memory, and we most heartily wish that it could be their good fortune to be transported to this section of Southern California to enjoy a climate in which it is really a delight to live.

Of course you have read of our "cold winter" and for this country it has been cold and considerable damage has been done to oranges, lemons and flowers. Our roses, fuchias and callas were never so hard hit as this winter, but when we read of the suffering from the blizzards and extreme cold in all the eastern and middle states, we ought to feel ashamed to ever feel chilly here where the days are flooded with sunshine and all manners of out door work going on carpenter work, brick making, brick laying, plastering, painting, gravelling and paving streets, pleasure and fishing boats busy as in the summer, scores of men, women and children fishing from the pier; many others taking sun baths on the sand, while many more sit sunning themselves on seats on the pier. These are occupied mostly by old gentlemen with a few old ladies. We see daily a number of invalid wheel chairs occupied by invalids, men and women, those well along in years, those in middle life with a few young unfortunates.

Our young people are engaged in all their out door sports, baseball, football and basketball, roller skating on the cement walks and paved streets and coasting on the roller coaster, while the little tots play with dollies on the lawn. Bareheaded women and girls walking and riding about the city, open air municipal band concert six days out of seven. "Dost like the Picture?" No, I did not say that it was an every-day winter scene for the winter is our "rainy season" and "some days must be dark and dreary" and very wet over head and under foot, and cause some of our tourists who come here expecting to enjoy sunshine 365 days in the year, growl a bit while it makes California rejoice and be glad for many of our crops depend largely on the amount of rainfall during three months in the year.

The 20th of this month begins the great Aviation meet at Domingus, about ten miles from here and which will last for eight days. Bird men and women from all over the country will be there are expected to do some wonderful stunts in mid-air there will be no blizzards or snow and sleet storms to interfere. See?

Mrs. C. J. Greenleaf, a cousin of Mrs. Stocking, from N. Y. City and myself. Mrs. Stocking not being able to go out that day, were among between fifty and sixty thousand people who saw Aviator Rodgers finish his across the continent flight in the air at four p. m. Sunday Dec. 10. It was a grand sight to see him sailing around over the ocean hundreds of feet high in the air like some huge bird and finally come gracefully down and lighting almost at the feet of the cheering thousands who the moment his machine struck into the shallow waters of the Pacific enclosing his world wonderful flight from the Atlantic across this great continent over its hills, its mountains, its plains, its lakes and rivers, and its cities and villages to light on our own beautiful beach not two hundred feet from where we stood, broke over all barriers and rushed pell mell to surround him and and his machine with hearty congratulations.

This reading public has been thoroughly informed of the almost fatal accident which befell him on his flight from Pasadena to this city on the 12th of November last. His machine was almost a total wreck was brought here and rebuilt in our large sun parlor at the outer end of pier and attracted many visitors who were anxious to see the machine which sailed thousands of miles through the air out distancing at times all other vehicles of the most modern invention for speed.

Long Beach, Calif.

P. S. This city will put up a monument to commemorate the spot where he landed.

SLEIGHRIDE

The members of the Sunday School board of the M. E. church and their families had a sleighride to the home of Horace Eaton and wife Monday night. About 35 were present. A pot-luck supper was the leading event of the evening. After which the meeting was called to order and matters pertaining to the Sunday School work was discussed. Mrs. Clark favored the company with a piano selection. Miss Caswell gave a solo which was encored to which she responded. Mrs. Kendrick also favored the company with two selections.

A character recitation by Mrs. Andrew Taylor was given in her own charming manner. At a late hour they left for their homes each feeling that they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

Rulers of England.

The first to rule over all England was Egbert, king of Wessex, who united all the various petty kingdoms and became king of England in 827. The greater kingdom was disrupted from 878 to 958, when the Danes ruled north of the Thames. In the latter year King Edgar reunited the kingdom, and since that time it has never been partitioned. Between Edmund Ironside (1016) and Edward the Confessor (1042) three Danish kings ruled all England—Canute, Harold I. and Hardicanute. The first king of Great Britain was James I. (1603). The first king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was George III. From the conquest of Ireland in 1172 by Henry II. the kings of England were styled Lord of Ireland until the assumption of the title king of Ireland by Henry VIII., and thereafter this title was used until the act of union in 1801. The imperial sovereignty of India was assumed by Queen Victoria.

The Haughty Butchers.

The complaint against the high cost of living probably dates from the time Adam paid so dearly for a bite of apple. At a later date, according to the Westminster Gazette, the retail butcher of France grew very arrogant, and it says that the present increased price of meats has caused the examination of the records in order to trace the origin of the trouble there. In 1590 a decree was issued which suggests that butchers were carrying things with a high hand. It says: "Butchers are expressly enjoined not to ill treat or use abusive language to the ladies of their city, or the women of low degree, or the servant maids who propose to deal with them. They are on no account to mock or deride the said ladies, women and maids, but are to receive politely all offers made to them for their goods."—San Antonio Express.

A Mighty Drinker.

William Lewis, Esq., of Llandisruen, who died on Dec. 30, 1793, in the act of drinking a "tumbler maur"—that is, a cup of Welsh ale containing about a wine quart—had made it a rule in his life to read a certain number of chapters in the Bible every morning and by way of assisting in the digestion of so much spiritual food to drink no less than eight gallons of ale every morning. It was calculated by some mathematical genius of the time that in the course of his life Mr. Lewis must have drunk enough ale to float a seventy-four gun ship. His size was extraordinary. If we may believe the Gentleman's Magazine he weighed 560 pounds, and the diameter of his body was no less than six feet. Fortunately, says the writer of his obituary notice, he died in his parlor, for it would have been impossible to bring him downstairs in a coffin. Even as it was, the undertakers had to use a crane to lift the coffin on to a carriage and to have the same machine in the churchyard to let it down into his grave.—Chambers' Journal.

Origin of the Four Poster.

In medieval times, when life was very insecure, it was usual for people to sleep on a bed which was surrounded by sides of boards with strong posts at the four corners. These sides contained sliding doors, which could be fastened inside. When men retired to rest they took a weapon with them. If attacked in the night they were aroused by the noise made by the crashing in of their wooden defense and were able to defend themselves. When the law became strong enough to protect human life the sides of the bedstead were gradually dispensed with, but the four posts remained. The boxlike bedstead still survives in the rural parts of Scotland and is almost necessary where the earthern floors and imperfect ceilings cause much damp. Emily Bronte in "Wuthering Heights" describes one of these bedsteads in the old mansions as forming a "little closet." Mr. Lockwood, who had to sleep in it, says, "I slid back the panel sides, got in with my light, pulled them together again and felt secure."

A Government Telegraph

The Postmaster-General came out in an unexpected statement to the press last month, advocating the purchase by the government of the telegraph and telephone systems of the country, to be operated by the Post-Office Department. It is quite true, as Mr. Hitchcock says, that the chief European countries have a government service of posts and telegraphs; and the idea is a very attractive one. Yet it is a question in this country whether it would not be much better to turn the post-office business over to a well conducted private corporation than to turn the telegraph and telephone services into a government enterprise. The Post-Office Department is a monument of business inefficiency. It would be preposterous to give it large added functions until it has been put into better working order. The joint commission of the two houses that has made the only recent investigation of the Post-Office Department,—a commission consisting of members of both parties and that did its work with great thoroughness,—united in a report showing that no accounts were kept which made it possible to find out the essential things about the business operations of the service.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for February.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman of Saline, were guests of Mr. and Mrs Ed Mark Monday, and attended "The Goose Girl" Monday night.

"THE GOOSE GIRL"

Those who attended "The Goose Girl" at the Opera House last evening certainly were favored with a great treat. The play of itself was full of interest and held ones attention to see what new development might come next.

The characters were all well supported and the dear little Goose Girl was true to the life. The princess in her portrayal of pure womanhood was fine and the final scene found her happy in the love of a true American.

The scenery was perfect in its representation of the country. The goose was a typical specimen of his kind.

NOTICE

On account of the Philomel Concert on Friday evening the Grange will hold a day meeting Saturday. A pot luck dinner at noon business meeting followed by a program in the afternoon. Dr. North will address the meeting.

Whale Extract.

It is said that the flesh of both the shark and the whale (which latter, however, cannot, of course, be properly classified as a fish) are largely utilized in northern Europe for the preparation of a fish extract that resembles in some respects the popular extracts of beef, being at the same time far cheaper. All fishy flavor is eliminated by chemical processes, and the extract is valuable for the foundation of soups and in general cookery. Whale meat is very nutritious, but its excessive amount of fat renders it unpalatable to most persons. So this fat is removed before the extract is boiled down to a sirupy consistence and sealed in jars. In many of the fish factories of Norway a "fish meal" is made that is eaten extensively by the nations of northern Europe. In these several ways fish which were formerly rejected as being unfit for food are being utilized to the advantage of many.—Scientific American.

Hoaxed the Naturalist.

One of the most remarkable books ever published is the "Lithographia Wirceburgensis," written by a Wurzburg naturalist named Behringer in 1726. Probably very few copies are in existence, as the author destroyed all that he could get possession of soon after the book appeared. He had been victimized by some practical jokers, who had made a great variety of artificial "fossils" and hidden them in a quarry, to which they then enticed the professor. Behringer was overjoyed by so rich a find and had no suspicion of the trick, although many of the fossils were of a very grotesque character. He took his treasures home, made elaborate drawings of them and wrote a minute description of each, as well as an exhaustive commentary filled with ingenious and plausible theories. When he had published the book the jokers confessed, and then, of course, the professor did his utmost to suppress the work.

He Had Told It.

Next to Joseph Chamberlain, Birmingham honors no citizen more than Jesse Collings. In politics and friendship Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Collings have been inseparable for many years. They even shared their platform anecdotes, and in regard to one story they arranged that when both were taking part in a meeting the first speaker was entitled to its use.

It so happened that Mr. Collings arrived late at a meeting one night, but was due to speak before Mr. Chamberlain. As he was launching out into the story he felt his coattail pulled, and a voice behind him whispered, "I've told it." So Mr. Collings desisted, but what was his surprise to hear Mr. Chamberlain tell the story as soon as he got on his legs. "I thought you said you told it?" he asked afterward. "So I had," replied the imperturbable Joe, "but not tonight."—Pall Mall Gazette.

ANSWERS THE CALL

Tecumseh People Have Found that this is True

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.
A little cause may hurt the kidneys
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine.
A splendid remedy for such attacks.
A medicine that has cured thousands,
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true kidney remedy.

Many Tecumseh people rely on it.

Here is Tecumseh proof.

George O. Chaplin, carpenter, N. Ottawa, St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I willingly confirm the public statement I gave in praise of Doans Kidney Pills in December 1905. I have taken this remedy on different occasions since then and have always found that it acts as represented. My kidneys were disordered and made me miserable. Knowing of several people in this vicinity who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with success, I obtained a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and began their use. The results were satisfactory and I am in hopes that other kidney sufferers will profit by reading of my experience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name, Doan's—and take no other.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound "Cures in Every Case"

Mr. Jas. McCaffery, Mgr. of the Schlitz Hotel, Omaha, Neb., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, because it cures in every case. "I have used it myself and I have recomended it to many others who have since told me of its great curative power in diseases of the throat and lungs." For all coughs and colds it is speedily effective. All druggists of Tecumseh.

Foley Kdney Pills

Always gives satisfaction because they always do the work J. T. Shelnut, Breman, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers for kidney and bladder trouble." All Druggists of Tecumseh.

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP
KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE
CONTAINING HONEY AND TAR

It isn't very long before the "good fellow" is a poor fellow.

Ignored His Inspiration.

"One day," said Representative Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts, "I heard a perfectly good anecdote. It was about Thad Stevens. Stevens, then running the government during the Civil war, was walking down Pennsylvania avenue one morning with a colleague. They stopped in at George Parker's place, across from the old Willard, for a toddy, and before leaving Thad toyed for a few minutes with the faro bank and won $100—a hundred dollar bill. Resuming his walk, he was accosted on the capital steps by a Quaker delegation from Pennsylvania, some of his constituents, who said they were interested in a worthy charity in his district, and would like to receive a contribution. Thad took the hundred dollar bill from his pocket and, with a grand flourish, handed it to the spokesman, who was profuse in his thanks. Turning away, Mr. Stevens said to his companion, 'God moves in a mysterious way. His wonders to perform.'

"Well, I liked that anecdote. The more I thought of it the more I liked it, and finally I became interested in the career of Stevens and wrote his biography. But, do you know, after it was published I discovered that I had forgot to put the anecdote in the book."

Motor Trucks Need No Rest.

In a paper read before the Electric Vehicle Association of America, Mr. Hayden Eames called attention to the fact that horse-drawn vehicles must remain idle for a certain portion of the day in order to rest the horses. A recent investigation showed that the teams of the different express companies in New York city were idle 40 per cent. of the total working hours, much of this idleness being due to the fact that the horses needed rest, and that the periods of loading the wagons had to be suited to these rest hours. The motor vehicle on the other hand requires no rest, and hence requires no adjustment of the loading hours.

Big Money Needed.

Consumption might be wiped out if enough millions or billions are donated for the experts to use in accordance with their ideas. Perhaps some of the great cities of the world are rich enough to care for and try to cure the consumptives from every smaller city, town or hamlet accessible by railroad or steamboat. What is most needed costs money, and that "what" is plenty of good food and warm clothing, and maybe it is worth while to see that the sufferers have "what" they need to help most to bring about cure.

Good Advice.

Former Mayor Dunne of Chicago in a recent address to young men, preached the doctrine of sturdy democracy.

"People bother too much," he said, "about their ancestors. If you believed all you heard you'd think that every other man was descended from William the Conqueror or Charlemagne. My advice to a young man would be this: Don't bother about your descent, unless you are an aviator.'"

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild wid do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cukee's of 333 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Superstition About Cats.

In the Monferrato it is believed that all the cats who wander about upon the roofs during the month of February are really witches, whom it is lawful and even necessary to shoot. An old German superstition has it that if a black cat sits upon the bed of a sick man it is a presage of his death, while if after his decease it is seen upon his grave it is enough to arouse doubts as to the locality to which his soul has departed. In Hungary it is thought that cats generally become witches between the ages of seven and twelve years. A French belief concerning the cat is that if the animal be carried in a cart and the wind blow from it to the horses they immediately fall tired. If any part of the horseman's clothing be made of cat's skin the horse will feel as though it carried a double burden.

Restored Courage.

The southern lover was impetuous, says the author of a book of reminiscences of eastern Virginia entitled "Memory Days," and the maiden was timid and unused to passionate proposals of marriage.

"Oh, don't!" she interrupted in a whisper. "You frighten me dreadfully!"

Overcome by contrition, the young man humbly apologized for his fervor, and a painful silence ensued. The girl broke it at last.

"Robert," she began, with a hopeful smile, "I—don't think—I—shall—be so frightened this time."

SKIN SORES
Easily and Quickly Healed

Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions know its miseries. There is no need of suffering. You can easily get rid of it by a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing remedy for eczema, pimples, running sores, wounds, burns, salt rheum, ring-worm, piles and acne. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear.

The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality you can order direct from Swanson R. C. Co. 160 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent postpaid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent remedy for cracked skin and scalp humors.

CORRESPONDENCE

BRITTON

I noticed a late edition of the Herald gave the impression that Britton still had several cases of smallpox and I wish to correct it. There has been only the four cases of smallpox in Britton, and those were all in one house, which has been under quarantine all the time. The reports that are circulating are very injurious to the business here. If you will kindly correct it in the next edition we will appreciate it very much. The quarantine was raised from the house last week thus freeing Britton from all smallpox at present,

Rare Peruvian Ware.

Vessels of odoriferous clay were imported early in the sixteenth century from Peru, Chile and Mexico by the Portuguese merchants, to which were given the name of buccaros. So highly was this ware esteemed that only the wealthiest collectors could afford to possess entire specimens. Broken pieces were set in gold or silver or ground to powder to be used to scent cakes and confections and to perfume gloves and handkerchiefs. It was also supposed to possess medicinal properties and was prescribed by contemporary physicians for certain ailments. The great demand for the buccaros resulted in the alleged discovery of scented clays in Portugal and the potters of the time used them to fashion all sorts of drinking vessels on which they impressed a seal or stamp, hence the adoption of the

Had Enough of Law.

A gentleman who is now general superintendent of a railroad began life by trying to practice law in a Missouri village. One of his first cases was before his father, who was a justice of the peace. After a stormy wrangle between the young attorney and his adversary the old gentleman decided the case against his son's client. The young man gave vent to some expressions of indignation, gathered up his books and started to leave the room. His father pushed his specs on to his forehead and began mildly to lecture him, saying:

"Young man, do you expect to make your living practicing law?"

The son, who had by this time reached the door, shouted back as he retired from the field:

"Not before such a blamed fool court as this."

He abandoned the law and engaged in railroading with great success.—Green Bag.

A Blot on Its Record.

The evil of adulteration has its humorous phases, one of which is brought out in "Science and the Criminal," a book by C. Ainsworth Mitchell, the head of the inspection bureau of Scotland Yard.

An eminent English counsel was cross examining Mr. Siemens, the electrical expert, in a case in which there was a dispute about the working of some electrical plant.

"I think, Mr. Siemens, that you have had a long experience with electricity."

"That is so."

"Well, now, I want you to tell me whether in the course of all your experience you have ever known electricity to be adulterated?"

"In only one instance."

"When was that?" eagerly asked counsel.

"In the phrase 'greased lightning,'" the expert replied demurely.

Another Miss.

A young recruit was just commencing his first course of musketry. The instructor, getting very angry with him, told him exactly what to do, and each time he missed the target. At last the instructor lost his temper and told him to take a spare round behind the butts and shoot himself with it. Presently the instructor was startled by hearing a report from a rifle behind the butts; without a moment's hesitation he rushed round to see what had occurred, when the recruit looked up from examining his rifle and said quite coolly, "It's all right; don't get alarmed; it's another miss."—London Telegraph.

Very Much So.

"Miss Gwendolyn is a very superficial sort of girl, with her head filled with fine clothes and making herself pretty. I don't suppose she gives a moment to self reflection."

"Doesn't she? Just watch her when a mirror is anywhere in sight!"—Baltimore American.

Rackets.

An Italian woman was asked in court if she had any musical instruments in her home.

"No, signor," she replied, "nothing but rackets."

"What?" queried the lawyer.

"Rackets—the things they put in graphophones."

A Quibbler.

"These people obey the letter, perhaps, but they don't obey the spirit of the law." The speaker was discussing certain troublesome and wily transgressors. He continued: "And they don't even interpret the letter of the law correctly. They and their attorneys quibble like the young man in Pike county.

"A young man and his girl were strolling in a Pike county meadow when a bull dashed upon them.

"'Stay here and protect my retreat,' cried the girl. 'You know, Reggie, you've often said you'd face death for my sake.'

"But Reggie, who had already sprinted fifty yards, called back over his shoulder:

"'Do you call that bull dead?'"—New York Press.

Why Rubber Tires Grow Hot.

When an automobile is running at high speed the rubber tires are rapidly warmed, and the heat sometimes becomes very great, with resultant injury to the rubber. The cause of this accumulation of heat in the tire is ascribed to the kneading of the rubber, which generates heat faster than it can be radiated away. For this reason manufacturers have found it to be an advantage to have metal parts in the tread, such as the ends of rivets, in contact with the tire, because the metal being a good radiator, helps to carry off the heat of the outer air.

A Composer's Dream.

The "Devil's Sonata" was written by Tartini, Italian musician, under the inspiration of a dream, in which the arch fiend challenged him to a trial of skill. Entranced by the wonderful performance of his visitor, the dreamer upon awakening seized his violin and produced from his general impressions this celebrated composition.

Ill fortune never crushed that man whom good fortune deceived not.—Ben Jonson.

A Whistler Story.

When Whistler had not yet reached the height of his fame a millionaire called at his studio and wanted his wife's portrait done.

"How much will you charge me, Mr. Whistler," he said, "for a lifesize picture of the madam?"

"My price," said Whistler, "will be $2,500."

The millionaire took up his hat and stick.

"Why," he snorted, turning to go, "you expect to be paid for your work as if you had been dead four or five hundred years!"

WHY YOUTH BOOSTED CARY

New Reason Advanced for Advocating Election of Candidate for Political Office.

There are many reasons advanced by friends of political candidates why their favorite should be elected to office, some of which are humorous as is the following:

Nearly a year ago, Congressman William J. Cary announced his candidacy for the office of mayor at the next election, and immediately his friends started boosting him for the "job." Whenever they could get a man "cornered" they would immediately expound the virtues of Mr. Cary.

A little boy approached a voter near the North-Western depot.

"Say, mister, will you vote for Mr. Cary for mayor?" he asked.

"Well, seeing as how you were kind enough to ask me, I will, my little man," returned the man good-naturedly.

"Thanks," said the little boy happily, and he started to walk away. The man, however, stopped him with a question.

"You seem to be interested in Congressman Cary?" he said.

"Yep," answered the "kid."

"How does it happen that you are out working for his election as mayor, and why do you ask me to vote for him?"

"Oh, he's a good fellow. He used to go with my mother before she married my father."

FEAR MIX-UP OF FALSE HAIR

Why Women, Apparent Strangers, Insist on Occupying Adjoining Berths in Pullman.

Nobody can tell funnier stories about the false-hair craze than railroad employes.

"For some time after women began to swell their heads out with such enormous quantities of hair," said a Pullman conductor, "we couldn't quite understand why women who were apparent strangers to each other should insist upon occupying neighboring berths, even bargaining to exchange with other passengers to obtain the desired accommodations. Finally a girl wearing about a bushel of blonde hair enlightened me.

"'Have you noticed,' she said, 'that a blonde insists upon sleeping near another blonde, and a brunette near another brunette? They do that to prevent ludicrous mistakes in an emergency that necessitates quick dressing. Supposing there should be an accident in the night and everybody would have to throw on their clothes and hair in the dark. If I am shut up in the same compartment with a brunette I am likely to mix some of her black hair with my blonde puffs and she mine with hers. What we would both look like can be imagined. That happened to me once, so now I insist upon sleeping near a blonde neighbor, even if I have to pay extra for it.'"

Measuring Light From Stars.

Starlight has been measured in comparison with sunlight and the following results have been announced: The light received from a star of the first magnitude like Vega is about one forty-thousandth-million of the sun's. Young places the total starlight received by the earth at the value of 3,000 first magnitude stars, thus making the whole starlight to be one-sixtieth that of the full moon. Light has an actual mechanical pressure, and can be measured in the laboratory. It has been found that the sun's light in itself presses against the earth with a force something like 70,000 tons. As the surface of a sphere varies as the square of the radius, and as the volume of mass varies as the cube of the radius, and as the mechanical pressure of light on the whole surface varies as that surface, and as the force of gravity varies as the mass—if a sphere were made smaller and smaller it is easily seen that the pressure of light would not decrease so fast as the force of gravity; so bodies beyond a certain minuteness could not reach the sun, but would be repelled by the mechanical force of its light.

Auto Frightened Negro Mammy.

"We had one rather ludicrous encounter which might have resulted in serious injury although it fortunately did not," said Mrs. Francis Boyd, in describing a recent trip through the south in an automobile.

"As we rounded a curve in crossing the mountains of Virginia, we saw approaching a wagon load of negro folks, drawn by a skinny horse that laboriously climbed toward us.

"In the group was a mother who held a baby close to her breast. She evidently had never seen an automobile before.

"'O!' she shrieked; 'it's a black devil and it will get us,' and she threw the baby out of the wagon to the roadside and then jumped over the moving wheels to the ground.

"The woman was so thoroughly frightened that it took some time to quiet her and make her understand that the automobile was not dangerous."

Had Faith in the Wireless.

Demonstration of the practical use of wireless telegraphy on water was first made just twelve years ago between the Needles on the English coast and the incoming steamship St. Paul. The world doubted, but Marconi was positive. The St. Paul was sixty-five miles off the coast when the first connection was established. The wireless can now flash its message over the ocean fully 6,000 miles.

An Inquiry.

IS LIKE LITTLE KINGDOM

Family Life is Wholesome Because It Has Bracing Qualities of Commonwealth.

The modern writers who have suggested, in a more or less open manner, that the family is a bad institution, have generally confined themselves to suggesting, with much sharpness, bitterness, or pathos, that perhaps the family is a good institution because it is uncongenial. It is wholesome precisely because it contains so many divergencies and varieties. It is, as the sentimentalists say, like a little kingdom, and, like most other little kingdoms, it is generally in a state of something resembling anarchy. It is exactly because our brother George is not interested in our religious difficulties, but is interested in the Trocadero restaurant, that the family has some of the bracing qualities of the commonwealth. It is precisely because our uncle Henry does not approve of the theatrical ambitions of our sister Sarah that the family is like humanity. The men and women who, for good reasons and bad, revolt against the family, are, for good reasons and bad, simply revolting against mankind. Aunt Elizabeth is unreasonable, like mankind. Papa is excitable, like mankind. Our younger brother is mischievous, like mankind. Grandpa is stupid, like the world; he is old, like the world.—Gilbert Chesterton.

IN PRAISE OF PUMPKIN PIE

Editor of Yonkers Statesman Pays Deserving Tribute to Great American Institution.

There is another Richmond in the pie field and the pie editor of the Ohio State Journal would do well to look to his hauberk and his laurels. The new knight is Edwin A. Oliver, editor of the Yonkers Statesman, father of the paragraphic joke, and he prances into the arena armed cap-a-pie, as it were, and with his pie knife couchant.

Listen to his praise of the flaky crust with the pumpkin filler:

"When one takes a huge bit of it in his mouth and his happy thoughts unfold into a dream and he hears afar 'the breaking waves dash high and a stern and rockbound coast, and the woods against a stormy sky their giant branches tossed,' one feels how happily related to a brave historic event is the modest pumpkin pie. It came 'when the conquerors came, and they shook the depths of the desert gloom with their hymns of lofty cheer.' This is cheer—the sunbeams imbued in pumpkin pie."

'Nother cutting,' please.—Cleveland Leader.

Device of a Brandy Smuggler.

To conceal dutiable goods among free goods, in any importation, is the prime offense against the customs laws; yet the high rates of duty on some articles, such as tobacco and spirits, offer great temptation to illicit traders, who employ all sorts of artifices to smuggle—or evade the notice of the customs officers.

When silk was dutiable women were the chief offenders, and as they sometimes wound the contraband article around their persons, under their ordinary clothes, it was found necessary to employ female searchers, now no longer brought into requisition. One of the latter, on one occasion, made a curious discovery.

A female smuggler had had constructed—but not for running silk contraband—an india rubber dress for wearing under her ordinary clothes. She appeared, when this contrivance was in operation, to be a very fat woman; in reality, she was abnormally thin. But the india rubber underwear was double and hollow, and the space between the skins, so to speak, was filled with brandy!

Early Anti-Trust Law.

An old statute has been unearthed by the Cincinnati Enquirer and applied to present conditions. If the law today were what it used to be in the early days of Kentucky and were carried out we might see Wall street dotted with men who had lost their ears for conspiring to restrain trade. A statute of some 363 years ago, which was intended to put a stop to the meat trust, the brewers' trust, the bread trust and the fruit trust of those days, makes the Sherman act look gentle. This statute became law in Virginia and therefore in Kentucky when Kentucky was formed out of Virginia. It is fair to point out that the statute of Edward VI. also went after any laborers who got together to keep up wages or limit the hours of work, so that it was markedly in opposition to the beliefs of our own day. Moreover, we violate no confidence in saying that it was enforced more violently against the laborers than against the dealers who kept up prices. Kentucky, it may be well to add, has since repealed the act.—Collier's.

Wit of Augustus Thomas.

"The trouble with amateur carvers," said Mr. Thomas, on one occasion, "is that the gravy so rarely matches the wall paper." A fatuous argument he characterized as "like a chorus girl's tights, which touch every point and cover nothing." When Mr. Thomas was rehearsing "The Witching Hour," one of the management stopped the players, and, turning to the author, remarked: "I think this would be a good place for some witty dialogue."

"Yes," replied Mr. Thomas. "As for instance?"—Channing Pollock in "The Footlights—Fore and Aft."

Her Cradle a Pumpkin.

A giant pumpkin which four-year-old Miss Rolls of Santa Paula uses as a cradle was raised by C. C. Teague, manager of the Blanchard ranch, and is particularly wonderful from the fact that on the same vine were twelve others weighing an average of 180 pounds each.

As this weighs 230 pounds a little figuring shows that there was over a ton of pumpkins on one vine—2,390 pounds, to be exact. It received no fertilizer or special cultivation. This pumpkin measures seven feet eight inches around the "waist," stands six feet nine inches high and measures in circumference lengthwise ten feet eight inches.—London Strand.

Some Success.

"Did you find the promoter of that get-rich-quick concern?" asked one detective.

"Yes," replied the other.

"Arrested him?"

"No, not yet. He's a mighty ready and convincing man. But I managed to avoid buying any stock from him."

DELICATE CHILDREN

Made Strong by Vinol

"I wish I could induce every mother who has a delicate, sickly child, to try your delicious cod liver iron tonic, Vinol.

"It restored our little daughter to health and strength after everything else had failed. It tastes so good she loved to take it—not a bit of cod liver oil taste.—Mrs. C. W. Stump, Canton, Ohio."

The reason Vinol is so successful in building up puny, delicate, ailing children, is because it is a combination of the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal body-building elements of cod liver oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength-creator for your child, and you do not find it is all we claim, we will return your money on demand.

IRON AND STEEL BILL PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Revision Measure Put Through by Vote of 210 to 109.

Twenty-One Republicans and One Socialist Cast Votes in Bill's Favor—Three Democrats Vote in Opposition.

At Washington Monday the Democratic bill revising the iron and steel schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law was passed by the house by a vote of 210 to 109.

The Republican minority became indignant at the refusal of Majority Leader Underwood to permit unlimited discussion of the free list paragraph in the measure and by numerous amendments and ceaseless calls for "division and tellers," succeeded in delaying action on the bill for several hours.

On final vote twenty-one Republicans and Representative Berger of Wisconsin, the Socialist, voted with the Democrats for the measure. The Republicans were Representatives Jackson, Murdock and Young, of Kansas; Akin, New York; Davis and Lindbergh, of Minnesota; Haugen, Woods and Hubbard, of Iowa; Warburton and LaFollette of Washington; Lenroot, Moore and Nelson, of Wisconsin; Norris, Sloan and Kinkead, of Nebraska; Kent and Stephens, of California; Lafferty of Oregon, and Helgersen of North Dakota.

Three Democrats, Martin, Rucker and Taylor of Colorado, voted with the Republicans against the steel bill. In the Democratic caucus, held a week ago to endorse the measure, these members explained that they were pledged to their constituents to vote for higher duties on lead and zinc than were provided by the bill and by a caucus rule covering the case were excused from being bound by the caucus action.

MONTERO BEHEADED

Ecuadorean Mob Takes Summary Vengeance on the General.

At Guayaquil, in Ecuador, General Pedro Montero, who recently was a popular hero of Guayaquil, was shot by the angry populace, dragged into the streets beheaded and burned.

General Montero in November last was proclaimed president by the troops stationed in Guayaquil, but handed over his leadership in the provisional government to General Flavio Alfaro.

A revolutionary army went from Guayaquil to meet the government troops from Quito, who under the command of General Leonidas Plaza defeated them and eventually forced Guayaquil to capitulate.

General Montero, with other leaders was captured on Jan. 22. He was brought before a court martial and sentenced to sixteen years in prison.

Then the populace took the law into its own hands and lynched the man. A mob forced the prison at Quito and mob forced the prison at Quito and dragged out and lynched five of the revolutionary generals who recently surrendered. They were Eloy Alfaro, Flavio Alfaro, Nedardo Alfaro, Ulpiano Paez and Manuel Serrano.

YUAN READY TO FLEE

Chinese Premier Will Seek Protection with Foreigners.

Information obtaind in London, England, from an authoritative source confirms the report of the intention of Premier Yuan Shi-Kai to leave Pekin at the first favorable opportunity, according to a new agency dispatch from Tientsin. Yuan intends to take up his residence in the British concession in Pekin.

A dispatch from Shanghai says: "Huangsing, the republican minister of war, has made a demand upon the Chinese Merchants' Steam Navigation company for 10,000,000 taels (approximately $7,000,00). In the event of failure by the company to produce the sum, the company's vessels will be commandeered by the republican government and sold.

"The directors of the company asked the war minister for time to consult their stockholders."

MINERS FAVOR THE RECALL

Prepare to Amend Own Law and Have It Apply to Union Officials.

Recall by officials of the United Mine Workers of America is provided in a constitutional amendment adopted by the miners' convention. Ten per cent of the membership may initiate a recall and on petition of 20 per cent an election shall be held. Attempts by some of the leaders, especially among socialists, to reduce the percentages failed, though they declared the recall machinery as stipulated was too cumbersome ever to be effective.

President John P. White urged caution in introducing the reform and supported the plan as adopted. He declared in favor of recall of judges and said if it had been available years ago trade unionism would not have suffered the wrongs from the courts that had impeded its progress.

By an amendment to the constitution the miners' conventions will be held every two years, instead of annually, hereafter.

HAS 12 ILLEGAL SALOONS

Michigan Town in Dilemma Over Ruling on New Law.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 30.—Saloon owners and city authorities of Marquette face a peculiar situation in consequence of a decision of the state supreme court upholding the Warner Cramton law.

The purpose of the act is ultimately to reduce the number of saloons so that in no community shall there be more than one to each 500 population. It appears under the court ruling that if Marquette's council had a legal right to license only thirty-four saloons last year, twelve saloons in the city are operating without warrant of the law. The questions arising are which are the twelve and what shall be done, if anything.

SAGINAW POLES HAVE FIGHT

One Uses Hammer on Other and Breaks Infant's Nose.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 30.—John Falkin, a Pole, is in jail as a result of a drunken fight, according to the police, which took place in the Polish settlement in South Saginaw. The injured man, Walter Swatsky, after receiving medical attention, was also locked up. The two men got in a fight at a neighbor's house and Falkin, it is said, struck the other with a hammer, knocking him unconscious.

The head of the hammer flew off, striking a six-months-old baby across the bridge of the nose, breaking the nasal bones. Six stitches were needed to close the wound. The baby's condition is serious.

BOY IS SHOT BY CHUM

"Unloaded" Rifle May Cost Life of Saginaw Lad.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 29. — Lester Kundinger, fourteen years old, was shot by Arthur Melz, with a 22-caliber rifle while the boys were playing with Lester's twin brother at the Melz home. As usual the Melz boy did not know the gun was loaded.

The bullet entered the lower part of the neck on the left side. Lester's condition is critical. The attending physician is unable to probe for the bullet, owing to the serious condition of the boy.

GIRL GETS VERDICT FOR LOSS OF BEAUTY

Court Awards Miss Katheryn Bannigan $5,500.

Window Glass Falling from Third Story of Building Had Cut the Young Lady from Forehead to Neck.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 29.—Because her beauty was ruined by wounds inflicted by a falling window pane, Miss Katheryn Bannigan was awarded $5,500 by a jury in circuit court against the Woodbury estate. The girl's face was frightfully cut by the falling glass three years ago while she was walking by the block on her way to work in the telephone office. A gust of wind blew the glass from a window on the third floor of the building. When the wound healed, a scar extending from her forehead to her neck was left Suit was started soon after the accident three years ago and a jury awarded the girl $5,000 damages at that time. The Woodbury estate appealed the case to the supreme court, and secured a new trial. On some technicality the case was taken before the supreme court the second time before being retried.

SHOWS DEPLETED FORESTS

Government Expert Finds Michigan Imports Half Its Material.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 29.—Homer S. Sacket, '06, forester, whose home is in Avon, N. Y., and who since 1906 has been in charge of the division of products in the United States forestry service, and located at Chicago, is in the city for a day or so.

His branch of the service has just completed making a study of the woodworking industries of the state of Michigan, a similar study having been made in the other states, beginning with Massachusetts. In a general way this study shows that Michigan, with some of the other states, is not being able longer to supply its own demands or those of its own woodworking industries. One half of all the material used in the state today is being imported.

WILL RECLAIM 10,000 ACRES

Michigan Men Plan to Drain Swamp to Make Farms.

Chassell, Mich., Jan. 30.—A big drainage project is to be undertaken near Chassell April 1 by the Houghton Land and Drainage company of Cleveland. The plan is to reclaim 10,000 acres of swamp along the Sturgeon river.

The main canal, running the length of the swamp, will empty into the Snake river. It will be ten or twelve miles long, thirty feet wide and eight feet deep.

MONROE—Joseph Mexico and Arthur Mexico, who were arrested by Officer Cronenwelt for stealing coal from the Michigan Central and selling it to Frank Southwell, pleaded guilty in justice court and were sentenced to the Detroit house of correction and to pay a fine of $20 each. Southwell, arrested for receiving stolen property, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $20.

WOLTER IS KILLED BY SINGLE CONTACT

Alleged Slayer of Ruth Wheeler Is Electrocuted.

Leaves Statement to Public In Which He Prays God to Forgive Those Who "Maliciously Prosecuted and Killed Me."

Protesting his innocence and leaving prayer for forgiveness for those whom he said had prosecuted him, Albert Wolter was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison at 5:41 o'clock in the morning for the murder of fifteen-year-old Ruth Wheeler in his flat nearly two years ago.

At 2 a. m. Wolter wrote his denial of the killing. It was on a single sheet, and so even and clear were the letters that his writing had the appearance of copper-plate.

The statement reads:

"Warden S. Kennedy: To Be Given to the Public: Jan. 29, 2 a. m.—Now that I am departing from this earth to go into the presence of God I wish to make this last statement. The world refused me justice, but our father in heaven, who knows our innermost, He will give me pure and undefiled justice.

"I wish to state that I am innocent of the crime I was convicted of. I have been a victim of circumstantial evidence. I hope that there may come a time when the conscience of the perpetrator will overpower him and he will come to the front and acknowledge his guilt. It is my honest prayer to God that he may bring the person guilty of the crime to justice, that my name cleared of this stain and that the people may see the injustice done me and that they killed an innocent boy.

"To those who have given me their kind assistant and have trusted in me I give my sincere thanks. To those who have maliciously persecuted and killed me, for them I pray God's forgiveness. ALBERT WOLTER."

Although Wolter was convicted on circumstantial evidence, the court of appeals, reviewing the case after a series of legal delays, declared he was fairly tried and justly convicted.

Wolter was declared dead after one contact of 1,960 volts. The state electrician said he showed less resistance to the electric current than anyone put to death by electricity at Sing Sing prison.

Ruth Wheeler met her death March 24, 1910, in Wolter's apartment on the fourth floor of a house on East Seventy-fifth street, New York city, where she had gone to seek employment as a stenographer. Her charred body was discovered subsequently.

The evidence indicated that the girl had come to her death by strangulation. The body had been thrust into a fireplace, where it was partly burned and concealed until it became convenient to remove it in a bag to the fire escape, from which it was thrown to the ground below.

MONROE—The hearing just held on the report of the special master in chancery upon the petition to dissolve the Practical Heater company, resulted in a decree in the circuit court, Judge Golden appointing W. H. Jose of this city receiver, ordering the assets of the corporation to be sold and the corporation dissolved. It appears from the report that there are a number of Detroit creditors and the receiver is required to give a bond of $5,000.

DUKE OF FIFE DEAD

Brother-in-Law of King George Succumbs to Pneumonia.

The duke of Fife, brother-in-law of King George V. of England, died at Assouan, Egypt, of pneumonia.

The duke had been in Egypt for several weeks for his health. On the way to the Durbar in India the duke, duchess and two daughters were shipwrecked and narrowly escaped death.

WOMAN KILLED IN RIOT

Pitched Battle between Police, Militia and Strikers.

At Lawrence, Mass., after about two hours' of early morning rioting, during which the lawless woolen and cotton mills strikers had full control of the streets of the city, there was a pitched battle between the police and militia on one side and about 1,000 strikers near the Everett Mills just before 6 p. m.

The affray resulted in the killing of an Italian woman who was standing on the sidewalk, the stabbing of Patrolman Oscar Benoit and sore heads for many of the rioters, who were finally put to flight.

The woman killed was the victim of senseless shooting by one of the mob, who seemed to be taking great joy in firing revolver bullets into the ground on the opposite side of Union street from the woman. His identity was not learned and no arrests were made. Neither the police nor militiamen fired a shot during the battle and it is believed that the woman was killed by a bullet which glanced on a stone in the street. Patrolman Benoit was not seriously injured.

Governor Foss, in Boston, ordered out twelve more companies of infantry and two troops of cavalry for the purpose of assisting in maintaining order at Lawrence.

DARROW INDICTED

Charged with Jury Bribing in the Trial of the McNamaras.

At Los Angeles, Cal., Clarence S. Darrow, who was chief counsel for James J. and John B. McNamara, the Times dynamiters, has been indicted on the charge of jury bribing. He has engaged a lawyer and made arrangements for bail.

Information that the finale of the bribery investigation was imminent spread rapidly, and Darrow, who has been living at Venice, a seashore resort, came up to Los Angeles and went directly to the office of Earl Rogers, whom he has retained to represent him.

All rumors of indictments have centered about Darrow, who had supervision over the disbursement of the $225,000 said to have been raised for the defense of the confessed dynamiters.

NEW MOVE IN BUTTER FIGHT

Plan to Lower Oleo Tax for Benefit of People.

At Washington, D. C., Congressman Asbury F. Lever of South Carolina, chairman of a subcommittee of the house committee on agriculture, has declared war on the butter trust. He will report to the full committee a bill to reduce the government tax on oleomargarine from 10 cents to less than 1 cent a pound.

Mr. Lever has the assurance that the committee will accept his bill and send it to the house, where an earnest effort will be made to pass it this

PRESIDENT TAFT IN OHIO

Defends His Administration in an Address at Cleveland.

President Taft made a ringing political address at Cleveland, Ohio, at the McKinley day banquet of the Tippecanoe club.

He vigorously defended his administration and declared that the Republican party under his leadership had fulfilled the pledges made in the last national platform. Mr. Taft's speech practically marks the opening of the Republican national campaign. He declared that the Republican party was backed by a strong record, and the rank and file of the Republican party should have no fear of the outcome of the next presidential election. The defeat of the Republicans in 1910 was due, the president said, to defections of Republicans rather than to an increase in Democratic strength.

From Cleveland the president went to Columbus and Akron, where addresses were made.

TWEED DEFIED BY HOFFMAN

Tammany Boss Could Not Frighten Governor Into Giving Approval to Certain Bill.

As a questioning reporter, the writer had been received by Governor Hoffman, in the executive office of the old capitol, with that dignified courtesy that marked the governor's intercourse with any one, high or low. The question had been asked, and the answer given. The reporter rose, and was making his acknowledgements, when the green baize doors that separated the executive chamber from the outer office were swung violently open and "Boss" Tweed, with red face, flashing eyes and theratening manner, burst into the room.

The governor advanced to meet him, with a heavy frown upon his face

"I hear that you're goin' to veto such-and-such a bill, Governor Hoffman?" shouted Tweed.

"Such is my intention, Senator Tweed," replied the governor, very white of face.

"Do you know I'm behind that bill?" raising his voice, threateningly.

"I have been so informed," was the answer.

"See here, you expect to have a second term, don't you?" cried the enraged boss.

"Senator Tweed, I propose to be governor of the state of New York one term and to accept no dictation during it," replied the governor, looking straight into the eyes of the frantic boss and standing up very straight. Tweed ripped out an oath as he wheeled around and flung himself out of the room.—From "Random Recollections of an Old Political Reporter," by William C. Hudson.

PARROT AS GERM CARRIER

Physician Finds the Bird Is Subject to Disease Human Beings May Contract.

Better not keep a parrot. A physician has discovered that birds of this species are subject to a disease called psittacose, which is peculiarly contagious, and may easily be contracted by human beings. As a germ carrier, in fact, the parrot is unrivaled.

Now the Office Window is not particularly afraid of germs. They may be quite as bad, quite as dangerous, as they are represented. But what is the use of trying to get away from them? We cannot eat, drink or breathe without taking in germs. We associate with them from morning till night. They are bound to work their will with us anyway—so we may as well ignore them and have as good a time as we can, before they get us.

But the Office Window is perfectly willing to take advantage of the germs as an ally against the parrot. This preposterous bird has nothing to recommend him except his unlikeness to the bird species. He does not sing, but squawks. He is regarded as worthless unless he can "talk," in a kind of harsh resemblance to human speech. He is neither bird nor human; he is a disorderly episode in creation. He grates on the poetic soul. He is a nuisance.—New York Mail.

Opportunity at West Point.

Deeply fixed in the thought of the more well-to-day, is the belief that anything like equality of opportunity or condit[illegible] be incompatible with their own enjoyment and with efficiency of work in the lower classes. The dignity of self-sustained leadership on the one hand, and the spur of necessity on the other, seems to them the only forces which can keep the world moving. But this belief has really no higher authority than that of tradition and long-established custom. West Point, and in only a less degree the service outside, demonstrates the impotence of wealth or privilege as a necessary spur to endeavor. Equality of opportunity, privileges, and pecuniary rewards are found to be in no sense incompatible with individual initiative, with efficiency in work and with the general happiness. No loss results—rather, the reverse—from the absence of all extraneous advantages, and from compelling every one to stand on his own merit, performing the work for which he is fitted, without any reference to the pecuniary compensation which he receives.—The Atlantic.

An Iconoclast.

"All over Europe my wife has made enemies by boldly doubting cherished traditions," said the traveler, "but her skepticism respecting Alfred the Great embroiled her in the most serious difficulty. An old gentleman who sat with thin, blue fingers spread above the feeble blaze from which my wife, red-nosed and shivering, endeavored to extract a little warmth, expatiated on the cake-burning episode. Said my wife abruptly: 'Don't tell me that old yarn again, please. I don't believe a word of it.'

"'Why not?' he demanded.

"'Because,' she said, 'there never was a fire in England hot enough to burn cakes.'

"Her retort did for the old gentleman what the first had failed to do, it made him hot, but even so, he never forgave her."

Incumbrance.

"No," said Mr. Cumrox; "I don't in the least disapprove of my daughter's marrying a title."

"But you seem dissatisfied."

"I am. What I object to is the fellow that goes with it."

Expensive Bravery.

The manager of a shooting gallery patronized by women was glad to get another pupil, but he could not exactly sympathize with her husband's motive for urging her to acquire crack markmanship.

"One night when she was staying alone up in the country a burgler got into the house," the husband said, "and she had to fire six shots at him before she touched him, and then she only grazed the tail of his coat. It's wicked extravagance to waste cartridges like that, and she's got to shoot."

From the Ash Tray.

Even the ash of hubby's cigar can be utilized. In what way? Why, as a polisher for gold watches, bracelets and rings, let alone chains and a multitude of other trinkets. This comes from a prominent jeweler, so it must be nearly correct. He even goes to the extent of carrying with him a small case in which he preserves all the ashes from the cigars which he smokes. He says that the grain is so fine that it leaves no mark that is discernible to the naked eye.

NICKNAMES ON THE OCEAN

Tradition Governs Them Among American and English Sailors and They Never Alter.

In the American and English navies, as well as in the merchant marines, are found nicknames that have been in use since before men dreamed that there was land on the other side of the western ocean. Tradition, most inflexible of all rules, governs them, and they never alter, whether the ship clears from the Golden Gate or from London Docks. Some of the nicknames are of obvious origin; others seem to gain force by their apparent lack of reason.

For instance, why should all men named Wright be called "Shiner?" Clark is invariably "Nobby"; Green is "Jimmy"; and a White is a "Knocker." "Spud" Murphy explains itself, as does "Dusty" Miller. "Lofty" and "Shorty" do not need to present cards to their mates when they sign on, and it is not worth while for the brunette sailor to resent it when a friendly chap hails him as "Nigger"—he can't whip the entire crew, one after the other.

The rigid forms of the quarterdeck do not hold during the watch below, and the captain is the "Skipper," and the first lieutenant is familiarly "Jimmy the One." On fighting ships the gunnery lieutenant is "Gunnery Jack," or more briefly "Guns"; the torpedo lieutenant, "Torpedo Jack" or "Sparks," and the navigating officer, "The Navy."

Even a landlubber would know that "Tommy Pipes" was the boatswain, "Chips" the carpenter, "Jimmy Bungs" the cooper, and "Sails" the sailmaker.—The Sunday Magazine.

SMOKING BY THE SMALL BOY

How the Question Was Smoothly and Easily Settled by One Wise Father.

"The question of smoking came up early in our family. Lawrence has always been greatly attracted by what he considers manly accomplishments. If he had been brought up in a Puritan atmosphere, he would have sown an abundant crop of wild oats—so great to him is the glamour of the forbidden thing. If it savors of fashion or luxury, it becomes almost irresistible.

"He was only fourteen when we noticed a suggestion of cigarette smoke about him.

"'Have you been smoking, my boy?' his father asked in a tone unsuggestive of rebuke. Lawrence admitted that he had. 'I should be sorry if it stopped your growth or injured your heart, so that you could not go in for athletics at college,' his father went on in a casual tone. 'I would rather you did not, if you do care very much about it. I will give each of you boys $100 if you will not smoke until you are twenty-one. Think it over for a few days. If you decide that you prefer to smoke, and if, after you have had a talk with the doctor, you are not afraid of what it may do to you, your mother will find a place for you to smoke.'

"A few words from our doctor treating the matter from a scientific point of view, helped Lawrence to decide that he would take the $100. The other boys decided as he did; this ended it."—Woman's Home Companion.

Dogfish.

A fisherman from Montauk Point was telling his friends of catching a huge dogfish that had a most abnormal skull. The angler operated on his ugly and worthless catch, and found in the skull all that was left of a once strong rubber band. Evidently when that big dogfish was little some angler who had rigged up for cod or other bottom fish had caught the dog around its gills and turned it loose, expecting the tortured thing to die.

That recalled the story of how some fishermen not so gentle and humane as the ruling angler treat the poor but pestiferous dogfishes when they are caught. Generally there is an empty beer bottle handy, and this is tightly corked and tied to the tail of the fish, which is thrown back into the sea. It goes to the bottom, of course, but the steady pull of that air-filled bottle finally proves too much for its strength, and it comes wiggling up, tail first, only to go down again and repeat the performance until the wretched thing dies. Frequently, when there is no beer bottle to be had, a piece of wood will do just as well, or just as ill.

Character's Commercial Value.

Character has commercial value and sometimes men are honest according to law solely because it is politic, or polite, according to social requirements because it pays. But the honesty and courtesy of such men are not virtues. They are handmaidens of covetousness. They contribute nothing to self-respect. They have no moral content, and serve only to aid in bolstering up a vicious characteristic. However, it is a tribute to the kingliness of character that, either for its market value or because of its inherent worth, men clothe themselves in its appearance when they do not seek the substance. —From "The Sixth Sense," by Charles H. Brent.

Hoping for the Worst.

"Jimpson doesn't like you."

"I hadn't suspected that. What makes you think he doesn't like me?"

"I heard him wishing the other day that you would buy an aeroplane."

Horse Pedometers.

The whorls of hair on the coats of horses and other animals are natural pedometers, inasmuch as they register the locomotive activities of the animals on whose bodies they are found.

The best examples and the greatest number of these hairy whorls and crests are found on the domestic horse. A notable instance is the graceful feathering that extends along the hollow of the flank, dividing the trunk of the animal from the hindquarters. There are also crests and whorls on the horse's chest and other parts of its body.

A study of the action of the underlying muscles explains the origin of these peculiarities in the lay of the hair and furnishes the justification for calling them pedometers, although the analogy is, of course, merely superficial.

The House of No Walls.

Idleness is the gate of all harms. An idle man is like a house that hath no walls; the devils may enter on every side.—Chaucer.

Those who have dealt with him have always found him pleasant and accommodating, and will join in wishing him good luck for the future.

DISPATCHING TRAINS BY TELEPHONE

Operation Proving Very Successful on the Lake Shore Lines

The dispatching of trains on the Lake Shore Division of the N. Y. Central rail road is now a settled fact and is proving most satisfactory. This week was the beginning of the change and now the operator can talk with anyone in the rail road employ at his will on any of the Detroit branches.

It has finally been decided after years of severe tests on the Lake Shore road to abandon the Morse system of dispatching trains and depend solely on the telephone.

The day of the telegraph on railroads is a thing of the past and the telephone has come to stay. This change meeting with approval from everyone.

KISSING ALMOST LOST ART

Most Women, Says London Paper, Forget Neatness and Are Vigorous and Wild.

It is surprising that with all the kissing that goes on in our so-called civilized England, so little advance should have been made in the science of bestowing a kiss. Very few persons understand the art. Neatness is forgotten, and the first impulse of the kissee is to wipe away all traces of the offending salute as speedily as may be consistent with politeness. Others deliver a peck upon the cheeks, and, in some cases, by no means a small peck. There are vigorous women whose buffetings are quite enough to produce a toothache in a sensitive jaw. Their kisses jar the kissee's whole head. One never knows where the wild kisses of others may alight. With inward shrinking one offers a cheek, wondering what may be going to happen to it, and the result often justifies one's worst fears. The poor cheek is discomfited by the assault of lips that have had no training in the art of osculation.—London Express.

Perils of Fishermen.

There are countless incidents illustrating dangers and trials in the life of a Newfoundland fisherman. Daily are such experiences recorded in every cove and hamlet around the coast line. Peril amid the billows, peril among the ice floes, peril along the rugged seaboard—that is his heritage and his portion from boyhood to old age. The rescuer today, he may be rescued tomorrow. Life to him has few compensations. It is an unceasing struggle against the elements, a strenuous endeavor to secure the means of existence from a sea which is ever on the watch to work ruin upon him. Wreck, wrath and calamity are the facts which predominate in every Newfoundland village. They have come home to every family and have left a vacant place in every household. The frequency of disaster compels every man to be a hero unconsciously, and if every person who saved a life in this colony were to be awarded a medal, they would be given out every week at least, and for actions as meritorious and as deserving of recognition as any that are so rewarded elsewhere.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Growth of St. Petersburg.

That St. Petersburg is rapidly growing in population is evidenced by the census taken in December, 1910, which showed the population, including certain suburban villages formerly not covered, to be 1,907,708. It is preeminently an "office town" and also a seaport for six or eight months of the year.

The principal industry is the manufacture of cotton textiles, although its advantage as a port of entry for the interior is gaining recognition. A line of steamers has been established to Libau, connecting there with a trans-Atlantic line to New York. This enables American shippers to send goods direct to this port without the delays of transshipment in foreign ports.

Didn't Get Across.

First Omaha Man (in surprise)—What! Back already? Why, I thought you were going to see Europe!

Second Omaha Man (cheerfully)—So did I, but it seems that New York saw me first.—Puck.

HE WAS WILLING TO OBLIGE

Young Man Gave Advice on Clothing Though He Came From Gas Company.

"I've come to see about the mantles, miss."

"Oh, yes, I'm so glad you have come so soon; will you step into the drawing room?"

The young man stepped; he was pleased with his pleasant reception.

After awhile ma came in and said: "How do?" So sorry to trouble him, but would he mind if they tried the mantles on? Her daughter's was a trifle too full, and her own was a trifle too long, she thought. Perhaps he would be good enough to see.

The young man said he would be only too delighted.

The two elegant mantles in the latest style which were lying across the back of the sofa were donned, and the young man said he thought they looked charming. Yes, perhaps a little alteration was required, but—if they would excuse him he would be glad if they would let him get on with his work and show him the gas burners that were requiring fresh mantles.

Why! Wasn't he from Jiggins & Jugginses?

"Oh, no, he was the young man that attended to the mantles from the gas company.

FORESTS HELP GIVE HEALTH

Mitigate Heat and Cold and Check Tendency of Earth to Excessive Dryness.

Forests contribute to the general health by breaking the force of steadily blowing winds. They mitigate the heat of summer by the vast amount of evaporation that occurs in their leaves by day. By night the corresponding condensation of moisture upon the leaves still further absorbs the heat on the evaporation of the moisture the next morning. They also promote rainfalls. Thus they check the tendency of the earth to too great dryness, which is almost as injurious to health as it is to vegetation, for epidemic diseases are sure to do their fatal work where the soil-water is below the ordinary standard.

Hence cholera often passes a wooded district and revels in a treeless one. There are numerous facts like the following: A certain road in India leads for sixty miles through a dense forest. Further on it runs for ninety miles through a barren plain. Hundreds of persons travel the entire road daily. Now, in the first or wooded section, cases of cholera seldom occur, while within the latter it has been of frequent occurrence. One year cholera raged in Allahabad. Soldiers whose barracks were on a hill suffered the most from the epidemic; those in barracks surrounded by four rows of trees much less; but not a single case occurred among the soldiers whose barracks were in a thicket. It was the same the next year.

NOT HERE TO BE MISERABLE

We All Have Our Troubles but Should Learn to Keep Them in Background.

If there is anything that is irritating it is the way that some people talk of their troubles, as if they were a kind of a treat—not cheerfully, but with a kind of gloomy joy; in a word, they are resigned. It is only mighty big humbugs that will say they are thankful for troubles. We may eventually live to see that they were right and best for us, but at the time it is sheer hypocrisy to waggle our heads solemnly and say: "Happiness is a snare, anyhow; it is foolish for any one to expect happiness in this grizzly old world."

People who talk that way don't deserve happiness. We weren't put here to be miserable. The idea that life is for suffering and not enjoyment is fast being shelved. If the Lord approved of lamentations and tears, he would not have put so much in the world to make us hopeful and happy.

There is nothing more common than trouble. We all have our troubles, but it is the wise ones of earth that keep their burdens in the background. It is so common and cheap and selfish to be continually parading one's griefs and disappointments. Whatever our lot, we should all learn the wisdom of that helpful little prayer: "Help me to win, if win I may; but if I may not win, make me a good loser."—Mary Eleanor O'Donnell in Chicago Tribune.

ACCIDENT TO ADRIAN BOY

A peculiar accident happened last Saturday evening during the basket ball game in Adrian, between the Detroit Athenians and the Adrian Y. M. C. A.

Leland Wesley, forward on the Adrian team, twisted an ankle in such a manner, as to partly sever the Achilles tendon An operation was necessary, should it prove successful he will be all right again, but it is a very delicate operation and it may terminate his career as an athlete.

WILLARD ODELL HARDY

Died in Tecumseh Jan. 27 1912, of heart failure, Willard Odell, the only son of Ralph and Mary Hardy, aged four months.

We have lost our darling baby
He has bid us all adieu,
He has gone to live in heaven
And his form is lost to view,
Oh! That darling how we loved him
Oh! how hard to give him up
But an angel came down for him,
And in heaven he does dwells.

CARD OF THANKS

To the kind friends and neighbors, who gave us their sympathy and aid, and to all for the beautiful floral offering, also the pastor for his kind words, also the lady that sang so nicely, we desire to tender our sincere thanks praying that the blessing of him who said, bear ye one another burdens, may rest upon them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hardy
Mr. and Mrs. David Boyd

The Coeds' Best Hold.

Dr. Miner Lee Bates, the president of Hiram college, was talking at a tea in Hiram, O., about coeducation.

"They may limit it as they will," said Dr. Bates, "but there's one coeducational institution that is already larger than all other institutions combined, and that maintains year after year a steady growth I refer to marriage."

Fine Horses of Mixed Blood.

Since the beginning of the seventeenth century Jerez de la Forontera has been the most noted horse-breeding center of Andalusia, for many hundreds of years famous for its fine horses. Jerez de la Forontera was one of the first and last Moorish strongholds in Spain, and the best horses there were all bred from famous Arab stallions, so that what is known as an Andalusian, or Spanish, horse has always a good deal of Arab blood; it has, however, been crossed with so many other breeds, especially Flemish, that today the Spanish horse is not [illegible] in the books of record of [illegible] animals.

SOCIAL EVENTS

SLEIGHRIDE AND SOCIAL

The B. Y. P. U. and a number of friends had a sleighride Tuesday evening, to the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Roberts. There were 53 present. A general good time with games, music and social chat was followed by a fine oyster supper. People along the line were well aware of the hour when they returned to their homes, as they were typical young folks out for a good time.

RESEARCH CIRCLE ENTERTAINED BY THEIR PRESIDENT, MRS. MILBURN KEYSOR, JAN. 30

Two large sleigh loads of ladies went out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Keysor Tuesday. They were the members and guests of the Research club. A most enjoyable pot luck dinner was served and then the President, Mrs. Keysor, called the club to order. The usual routine of business was gone through and then the following program was given;

Pen Picture Samuel Johnson—Mrs. Mulvaney

John Keates—Mrs. Leon Temple

Reading; a selection from Keats—Mrs. Belcher

Song—Mrs. Tom McCann. She responded to a hearty encore

Recitation, "My Raspberry Jam"—Mrs. Butrick.

Mrs. McCann then sang another song.

Roll call was answered by quotations from Jim Shelby.

After an hour of social chat they started for home, a merry crowd, heralding their coming all the way down the line.

ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

Woman's Literary Club of Hudson royally entertained Tuesday January 31 in honor of the guests Mrs. J. D. Shull of Tecumseh, Mesdames Dodge and McElroy of Adrian.

Tuesday night Miss Florence Frensdorf entertained the ladies to an elaborate eight course dinner Wednesday Miss Clara M. Pease entertained them at luncheon. All the clubs of the city as guests of the Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Sewald where a fine program was given followed by a light lunch,

Mrs. Dodge gave an address on "Historic Landmarks of Lenawee County," which was very much enjoyed followed by a talk by Mrs. J. D. Shull of Tecumseh whose subject was "Women in General" beginning in a facetious manner she gave several very pat quotations from the poets pertaining to women which brought a hearty round of applause. Then taking the other side of the question she spoke of the work there was in the world for woman to do.

The ladies pronounced this one of the most enjoyable affairs they have ever had the honor to attend.

Whose Little Boy Was He?

An iron hoop bounded through the area railings of a suburban house and played havoc with the kitchen window. The woman waited, anger in her eyes, for the appearance of the hoop's owner. Presently he came

"Please, I've broken your window," he said, "and here's Father to mend it."

And sure enough, he was followed by a stolid-looking workman, he was who at once started to work, while the the boy took his hoop and ran off

"That'll be four bits, ma'am," announced the glazier when the when the window was whole once more.

"Four bits!" gasped the woman. "But your little boy broke it—the little fellow with the hoop, you know. You're his father, aren't you?"

The stolid man shook his head.

"Don't know him from Adam," he said. "He came around to my place and told me his mother wanted her winder fixed, You're his mother, aren't you?

And the woman shook her head also. —February Lippincott's.

DAGUERREOTYPE COMES BACK

Prints on Silver Are Again Coming Into Fashion, Says a Photographer.

"People are inclined to smile at praise of the daguerreotype of our grand fathers," said a photographer the other day, "but I want to say that the photograph of the present day is no improvement on it for artistic delicacy, for beauty and for quality. In subtlety of likeness, nothing ever has equaled the daguerreotype of seventy years ago, and those who possess any of them should treasure them as the choicest heirlooms.

"Most styles move in cycles, and it is the same with photographs. Many photographers are taking up the daguerreotype again. In view of the advance in photography, it is now possible to make daguerreotypes that are permanent, for the originals were wont to fade when exposed to light. That's why they were always put in covered cases.

"There is at least one very good reason for the daguerreotype being better, and that is that there is nothing but the camera lens between the subject and the picture, and the only loss is the reversal of the subject. Another thing is that the highly polished silver plate of the daguerreotype makes possible the greatest amount of detail, and the softer shadings, much of which is lost in photographs today by the rough surface of the emulsion on the negative, by the opaqueness of the glass in printing, and the unevenness of the paper."

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how clean it may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may cause baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hat-band is a resting place for microbes.

If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy that we believe will completely relieve these troubles, and we are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it is the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft, and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that we think that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claim to a practical test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful represectations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

Pioneer Californian Explains How He Came Into Possession of Gambling House.

When I was in California in the wild and woolly '70's," said the man who is now perfectly respectable, "I was the owner of a gambling house."

He allowed one minute and thirty-nine seconds for horror and the expression thereof. Then he resumed:

"I assure you that it was through no desire of my own. It came about this way:

"Back in those days people weren't particular in California about the company they kept, so I was thrown in with all sorts of chaps about whom I asked no questions. And one day, when I was seated in a restaurant partaking of supper, one of these casual acquaintances dashed into the place in a violent hurry and cast his eye around till it lighted on me. He rushed over to where I was seated.

"'Dave,' he said, 'lend me fifty dollars. I have to leave town—just as quick as I possibly can.'

"I handed him the money. He seized it and made for the door on the double-quick. On the way he turned.

"'You'll never see me again,' he announced. 'I leave you my business in payment of the debt.' He mentioned his business address. 'Run around there after supper and take charge,' he added. With that he vanished.

"Five minutes later a posse arrived, expressing a desire to lynch him. But he had made his get-away.

"Finishing my supper I walked to the address my acquaintance had given me and found that it was—a gambling house."

TO SOLVE AERIAL PROBLEMS

Hungarian Has Craft Which He Believes Will Fly Easily Across the Atlantic.

Alexander Kopesa, a retired Hungarian army officer, has planned an airship which he declares will solve all difficulties of aerial navigation. He will start to build what he calls his "perfect" airship on the first of the new year. "Regardless of the weather conditions in Chicago," he said, "I will make a trial flight on May 1, 1912. If the airship proves what I am positive it will, I will attempt to make a trip across the Atlantic ocean in September." The new flying device, he says, will travel on land or water as well as in the air. According to specifications filed with the patent office, the Kopesa airship will carry 46 passengers, and on land or water or in the air will make a speed of over a mile a minute. At the top of the contrivance will be a large compartment containing seven hydrogen bags for balancing and added safety. Another safety contrivance consists of four air-suction devices that resemble the fans of a windmill. From the base of the hydrogen bags will stretch two huge planes, spreading 229 feet from tip to tip. Just beneath the planes will be placed two engines, each of 560 horsepower. There will be 13 propellers.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Local Pride.

"Why do you insist on investing your money away from yout home town?" "Well," replied Farmer Corntossel, "I've got a good deal of local pride, I have, and I regard the people in this here township as bein' so smart that none of 'em is goin' to let any real bargains git away from him."

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisner's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 335 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B Caldwell, R 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The Fountain Source of Pies.

The Metropolitan club—usually called "The Millionaire"—experimented for a half dozen years with pastry. Try as they might, this important branch of the culinary service was not satisfactory. The cakes, or tarts, were not up to the standard. The pies were impossible.

Some months ago, a native of New England became chairman of the house committee. When the pastry ghost again walked, he said: "Leave that to me."

He went up to Winsted, Conn., and after much persuasion brought back with him two maiden ladies whom he had known for years. He turned them loose in the Metropolitan kitchen with the direction that they should take orders from no one but himself.

Today the "girls" are putting a hundred dollars a week in the Winsted bank, and the millionaires are slighting the other courses to get down to pie.—New York Sun.

Lure of the Author.

One wonders why so many novels are written. Yet consider the statement just made by the managers of the play adapted from "Ben-Hur." They have paid $250,000 in royalties to the estate of its author and expect to pay much more before the public tires of it. The book itself has had a sale of over a million copies, never in a cheap form, and has probably earned another quarter of a million for the author.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," a little book of only 20,000 words, has paid to its author as book and play about $10 a word, and "David Harum" produced a fortune for the heirs of the man who wrote it. Aside from the glory of satisfaction, every novelist, whether man or woman, is expecting to create some day a "Ben-Hur" or "David Harum."

Matches Used in the World.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilized nations of the world strike 3,000,000 matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the 24 hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year, and those persons who live under the American flag are charged with the consumption of one-half of this amount. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of woods involved as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood and knotty or cross-grained wood will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out in mills where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, sidings, posts and cordwood. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

Great Question Solved.

The French academy has solved a great question, its savants having traced the antipathy for the mother-in-law to the red man. In the sixteenth century the Spaniards brought back with them, besides gold and legends, the story of the hatred of the mother-in-law among the aborigines.

The noble red man would not walk in the footsteps of his squaw's mother till the sea had washed them away, so profound was his detestation of his relation by marriage.

This hatred, the academicians think, was a relic of the feeling engendered in the days when man stole his bride by force. Naturally his disposition toward his mother-in-law was not that of an admirer.

We are living down the mother-in-law bogie. Unlike the red man, a good many of us could walk in her footsteps with great benefit to ourselves.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

GRAND RAPIDS—H. H. Cornwall, who is the vice president of the Commonwealth Power company, confirmed the report that a merger of the Michigan Railways company and the M. U. R. is being planned. Instead of physical amalgamation, he says, the move is merely an arrangement for mutual advantage between the big power company and the electric railways of the state in the interest of economy. The Commonwealth will not be identified with the deal, the recently organized Maine company purchasing the railroad property. Mr. Cornwall declares this is merely the first move for the promotion of better public service throughout the state.

GRAND RAPIDS—Telegraphic advices received here tell of the death of Mrs. Sherwood Hall, wife of a local merchant and capitalist, who jumped outside of the steamer Cleveland during a voyage from Bombay to Yokohama. Mrs. Hall leaped over the rail of the upper deck into the water, which was infested with big sharks. Marcus Jordan, of Washington, unhesitatingly jumped after Mrs. Hall, holding her head above water until she could be picked up by a boat. All efforts to save her life, however, were unavailing and she died soon after being taken on board the ship.

SAGINAW—"I am just as innocent as the God above," were the words of Sando Labonie, found guilty of assault with intent to rob by a jury when Judge Gage asked him what he had to say. Labonie was then sentenced to Ionia reformatory to serve from seven and a half to ten years. Labonie is the second of the three black handers to be tried. John Massine was found guilty and is now serving a twenty to forty years' term in Marquette. Alfanio's case is next. The jury was out but twenty-five minutes.

DURAND—The preliminary examination of Harry H. Simpson, former cashier of the First Commercial and Savings bank of Durand, who is charged with having made false entries in the books, has again been adjourned, being set this time for Feb. 6.

PETOSKEY—The town of Pelleston suffered $3,000 fire loss when the building owned by Mrs. E. W. Plester and occupied by George Carlton's meat market was burned to the ground. Insurance carried on the building and stock amounted to $400.

HANCOCK—Adolph F. Isler, who was a pioneer newspaper man of the upper peninsula, died at the University hospital, Ann Arbor, to which he had gone for an operation. He was a curio collector and son of Dr. Isler, a Swiss scientist.

JACKSON—Mrs. Hannah Rolan, of this city, who was arrested recently on a charge of cruelty against her five-year-old stepdaughter, now deceased, was arraigned in the circuit court and pleaded not guilty. Her arrest followed the death of the child, who, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury, died from scarlet fever, death being hastened by continued abuse on the part of the stepmother.

GRANT—Fred. J. Brown, who is the editor of the Grant Independent, is in receipt of one of the new Nero apples being sent throughout the fruit districts of Michigan by a Maryland nursery company. While the apple is of the color of the Michigan Wealthy and about the shape of the New York Imperial, the fruit does not appear to excel in flavor the common run of Michigan apples.

YATES IN THE RACE

Will Announce His Candidacy for the Governorship of Illinois.

From Springfield Ill., Richard Yates has mailed to every delegate to the deadlock convention of 1904 a letter stating that he intends to announce at an early date his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor.

He says he is running without the support of any machine or faction, and will go into the governor's chair, if elected, free from obligations to the bosses.

MENOMINEE—After enduring great suffering for a week from burns sustained when a match set fire to her apron, Mrs C. Prince of Powers, aged eighty-four, died at her home in that village

Age of Organization.

New Boarder—Well! well! This is the first place I've struck where they have preserved strawberries and peach jam instead of stewed prunes.

Old Boarder—All owing to organization, my boy. We boarders have a mutual protective association, with iron-clad rules and heavy penalties.

"O, ho! You kicked against prunes, did you?"

"Not much we didn't. We passed a law that whenever prunes came on the table every member should eat a quart or pay a $10 fine. That settled it. The landlady found prunes too expensive."—New York Weekly.

Made Neat Escape.

Not so long ago a knowledge of Latin was essential to an orator, and long quotations from the Roman poets embellished every debate. James Payn, the novelist, was once at a dinner party where a learned clergyman insisted on quoting Greek. The lady sitting next to Payn asked for a translation. Payn's Greek was rusty. Accordingly he assumed a blush, and hinted to the lady that it was scarcely fit for her ear. "Good heavens!" she exclaimed, "you don't mean to say—" "Please don't ask any more," murmured Payn, "I really could not tell you."

HE LENDS MONEY ON ANIMALS

Dr. Martin Potter Takes Strange Pledges—How One of Them Buncoed Him.

Not even the author of the "Club of Strange Trades" conceived of an odder means of livelihood than that of Dr. Martin Potter, says the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. He runs an animal pawnshop. If you have a lion that you don't need as badly as you need the money, or want to soak a trained bear for a few weeks, or put up an elephant until you hear from home, go around to Dr. Potter. He'll loan you the money against your live stock and he will not charge you any interest. But you'll have to pay the board of your pledge. "I just drifted into the business," said Dr. Potter. "I started out to furnish trained animals to shows. I've rented everything to showmen from a troup of thoroughbred horses to a red eyed Numidian lion. By and by I found that I had to lend money now and then to my patrons and take their stock in pledge. It was a necessity of the business, but now I like it."

His stables contain elephants and camels—if you're a regular showman you'll say cam-u-el—and monkeys and a dozen sorts of dogs and all varieties of the cat tribe and the deuce knows what. And his proudest boast is that he was never stuck but once. "Fellow borrowed $20 from me on a trick dog," said he. "Finest dog I ever saw. I'd have loaned $100 on him as easy. But I wasn't shown all that dog's tricks by his owner. That night I found that he had been trained to unlatch the door and get out—and his owner had not trained him to come back."

WHAT HORSE-POWER MEANS

Example of Great Liner's Turbine Engines Given to Explain the Common Phrase.

In connection with steamship propulsion the average man is apt to speak very glibly of so many hundred or thousand horse-power. But it is extremely doubtful if one person in a hundred really has a due appreciation of what the phrase actually means. On this point some very interesting remarks were made by John Heck, the Glasgow engineer surveyor.

He said that, calculating the strength of twelve men to be equal to one horse-power, it would require 840,000 men to produce as much energy as the 70,000 horse-power developed by the turbine machinery of the express Cunarder Lusitania. Then if the men were to work on the eight hour day system those figures would give a total of 2,520,000, that being the number of men whose strength would be necessary to drive the vessel across the Atlantic ocean. So it would take all the men in Scotland to supply the energy produced all the day round by the wonderful turbine machinery of this great ship.—Railway and Locomotive Engineer.

These Gentlemanly Arabs.

The Arab vices and virtues (for they have both) are drawn from the desert. They are the handsomest men in the world, these Arabs; but they are not the cleanest. In reverent demeanor and tactful courtesy they surpass the most cultured gentlemen of Europe; but they are notorious thieves.

Their hospitality is proverbial. For three days the Arab host will protect one who has eaten bread and salt in his tent, even to dying in defense of his guest. When the time limit of the salt brotherhood has expired the host will feel quite free to rob the former guest on his own account. Ordinarily the Arab lives on bread and milk, or bread and cheese. If a guest arrives he will insist upon slaughtering the choicest animal in his flock. If there is no food at all, as frequently happens, the Arab starves for awhile.—From "The Real Palestine of Today," by Lewis Gaston Leary.

Style in Mourning.

"Spectacular mourning is not so popular as it was some years ago," said the manager of a city department store in answer to an inquiry on that subject. "There is still a large business done in all kinds of mourning goods, but either the somber period has grown shorter or many bereaved persons prefer not to be conspicuous because of their sorrows, for the sale of mourning goods has fallen off. In the stationery department there seems to be no change—in fact, the demand for black bordered cards and writing paper has increased." To illustrate the quality of some "show mourning" he said: "At a stationery establishment a short time ago a woman in deepest black asked to see samples of dinner dance cards. She selected one and ordered one hundred to be done on black bordered cards, compromising with her conscience by suggesting that the border be not too heavy."

Impossibility.

"Does your wife ever attend your lectures?"

"Of course not, that would never do."

"Why not?"

"Could any wife sit and hear her husband talk for two hours without interrupting him?"

Behind Time.

"What is the matter with this railway?" asked one irate passenger. "This train is three or four hours overdue."

"Think of me," said the stockholder, "and have patience. Its dividends are three or four years overdue."

Naturally So.

"All the parts in this play are fat parts."

"They have to be when the play itself is laid in Greece."

WILL BOLSTERED HIS CREDIT

Not Until Woolen Jobber Failed Did His Creditors Get Wise to His Trick.

Credit men in the woolen trade are discussing an interesting bankruptcy case that was recently compounded out of court at a settlement of about 25 cents on the dollar; and some of the credit men, autobiographically reminiscent, are bewailing the fact that, to avoid the slang of other trades, "a victim is born every minute." These are the credit men who credited.

It seems that a well-known jobber in woolens became ill some months ago and grew worse and worse until, finally, the men in the trade heard that he was dying. About that time the jobber sent for a lawyer who—even outside of his own heraldings—is credited with doing about half of the litigation of that most litigious of trades. The jobber, groaning heavily, made his will. He disposed of about $500,000 in it. Some went to charity, some went to old business friends, and a little went to the jobber's own family.

Soon afterward a turn for the better set in in the jobber's condition. Presently he was walking briskly about his business again, buying now from this mill, now from that—but always buying. He bought so much that several credit men became restive under his orders and began to consider the wisdom of holding back shipments on terms more akin to cash. One of them, however, happened to mention his suspicions to the lawyer who had drawn up the jobber's will.

"Have no fear," the lawyer reassured him, adding, by way of confidence, "I myself had an altogether erroneous notion of his finances until several weeks ago when he was ill. At that time I drew up his will for him, and was amazed at the extent of his fortune." And he divulged more confidences.

Good news travels just as fast as bad news in the woolen trade, and presently every credit man in the business knew of the jobber's will and his $500,000. And the jobber continued to buy and buy, and buy still more, on ever easier terms. Then, when he had bought enough, he failed, and that, too, in almost as respectable a figure as the fortune in his late reputed will.

AN AUTHOR IN A GARRET

Wearing Old Clothes and Eating Cheap Meals Was No Hardship to Moore.

In Paris I had lived very much as I lived in Victoria street, but it had never occurred to me that I showed any merit by accepting, without murmuring, the laborious life in the Temple that a sudden reverse of fortune had forced upon me; it was no suffering for me to live in a garret, wearing old clothes, and spending from two shillings to half a crown on my dinner, because I felt, and instinctively, that that is the natural life of a man of letters; and I can remember my surprise when my brother told me one day that my special agent had said he never knew anybody so economical as George.

Some time after Tom Ruttledge himself came panting up my stairs, and during the course of conversation regarding certain large sums of money which I heard of for the first time, he said: "Well, you have spent very little money during the last few years."

And when I spoke of the folly of other landlords, he added: "There are very few who would be content to live in a cockloft like this."

And looking round my room I realized that what he said was true; I was living in a cockloft, bitterly cold in winter and stifling in summer; the sun beating fiercely on the windows in the afternoon, obliging me to write in my shirt sleeves.—George Moore in "Ave."

Patriotism.

The priest of the Servian Orthodox church at Wilmerding, Pa., made a Memorial day address in the town cemetery last spring. At the close of his speech in Servian he said in English:

"I deem it my holiest duty to kiss this consecrated ground upon which your heroic ancestors shed their blood, and in which their bones are laid to rest. I deem it my Christian duty to offer God a prayer for the repose of their souls, just as if they were my own blood."

Then he kneeled, kissed the ground and offered a prayer for the repose of those who died for their fatherland. When he arose he said: "Glory to the dead soldiers, and prosperity to the American people."

The incident was related by Peter Roberts, director of the immigration work for the Y. M. C. A., to a group of Kansas City men at the association rooms yesterday. It emphasizes once more the fact that Americanism is a matter of the spirit, not of the blood.—Kansas City Times.

RELIGION IS HIS BUSINESS

Preacher Knows How It Should Be Transacted and Does It Better Than Others.

In this new movement it is interesting to note the cavalier way in which "business men" give the preachers the back seat. It is as if these committees said, "Now you clergymen are the best of fellows, but you are ignorant of business methods. It is high time religion and business principles applied to it. All that is needed is to take right hold of this thing, the empty pew, and run it as we run one of our corporations. Business is business, and these pews can be filled. A factory with a good product only needs business skill to get its product on the market. Now watch us do it."

Now the preacher's business is religion. Why not let him transact it? He has transacted it up to this time. For centuries he has been miserably paid. He is often old and pensioned with a pittance, and many of the "business men" seem not to care. The old-fashioned preacher, in his old-fashioned ways, gave this country a good religious result. That is the way we seem to remember our fathers and mothers as we see them, in adoring memory, sitting in the far-away pews. We doubt if "business men with business methods," a la corporation, factory-running, double entry and money in the bank, will do better.

It strikes us that religion applied to business is more the need of the hour than business applied to religion.—New York Mail.

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910—"I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended, and from the second bottle I commenced to improve. I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles—not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try Vinol. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money.

DROWN IN RAPIDS BELOW NIAGARA

Two Men and a Woman Swept to Watery Death.

MASS BREAKS FROM ICE BRIDGE

Five of Eight Persons Caught on Detached Portion Escape to Shore but Three Are Carried Down and Overwhelmed.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 5.—One woman and two men who had ventured to cross the Nigara river near the falls on the ice bridge were drowned in the whirlpool rapids, two miles below the water falls.

To this point they had drifted on the ice in full view of thousands who were helpless to render aid, though every effort was made. The names of the lost persons are as yet unknown, but it is believed that one of the dead men was Burrell Hacock of Cleveland.

A great mass of ice broke away and was swept by the current toward the rapids and pool. When the ice broke there were at least eight persons on the ice, but five of these are believed to have gained the shore in safety. Two men and a woman did not escape. One of the men floated on a cake of ice ahead of the other man and the woman.

When the jam started out the fact was phoned to the lower steel arch bridge and to the cantilever bridge, this latter being about 300 feet above the lower arch. Both stand directly over the entrance to the rapids. Men with long ropes had rushed out from the Canadian and New York ends of the bridge and dropped the ropes down to the river and then moved along the deck of the bridge until right over the persons on the moving ice. The first man grasped the rope and held it fast. The men on the bridge started to pull him up but when he had been drawn up forty feet he let go and dropped into the river and was lost.

The other man and the woman reached for the rope as the current swept them on. The man caught the rope and seemed to attempt to tie it about the woman, but the current hurried them along and their chance for rescue was lost. They drifted under both bridges into the rapids in full view of those on the ice. They were seen to sink to their knees and then the waves washed over them and they disappeared.

THREE CHILDREN BURN

Fire at Alpha, N. J., Also Destroys Seven Buildings.

No Fire Protection in Cement Mill Town Allows Fatal and Destructive Blaze Full Play.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Feb. 5.—Fire at Alpha, three miles from here, resulted in three children being burned to death, a half dozen men injured and the destruction of six dwellings and a barn.

Those who lost their lives were James Chiccirelli, aged fourteen; Joseph Chiccirelli, aged eleven, and Amelia Chiccirelli, aged seven. All were children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chiccirelli.

The injured were: Charles Chiccirelli, Angelo Leonardi, Dringhere Santo, Charles Santo, Santonio Class and John Lena.

All the men except Chiccirelli were boarders. The fire originated from an overheated stove in the Chiccirelli home.

The fire has no fire protection and is inhabited mostly by foreigners who are employed at the cement mills.

DENEEN INDORSED

Cook County, Illinois, Republicans Defeat Roosevelt Resolution.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Governor Deneen was indorsed for renomination for governor, an effort to indorse Theodore Roosevelt for the presidential nomination was defeated, a progressive platform adopted and a county ticket nominated for the primaries April 9 at the Republican county convention.

This, in brief, is what the assembled Republicans did in a well organized meeting that recalled the days when nominations were made in convention.

MEXICAN REBEL WILL SEE TAFT

Junta to Seek the Aid of the United States.

PROCLAIM NEW GOVERNMENT

Supporters of Emilio Vasquez Gomez Establish Headquarters of Provisional Government at Juarez, Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 5.—Juarez will be the headquarters of a provisional government proclaimed by the supporters of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, former Mexican secretary of the interior, according to the official announcement made by the revolutionary junta here.

At a conference of the Gomez chiefs held in Juarez it was determined to send a representative to Washington to confer with President Taft.

Antonio Rojas, a partisan of Gomes, who was released from prison at Chihuahua after a battle at the penitentiary between his followers and loyal troops of the garrison, is said to be at the head of 300 men preparing for an attack on that city.

The soldiers of the Juarez garrison who are adherants of Gomez gained practically everything they demanded in their outbreak of Thursday and ceased hostilities only after the Medero officers made abject submission. The insurgents are now making ready to defend the town across the Rio Grande in case an effort is made by Governor Gonzales to put down the uprising.

READY TO CURB MEXICO

President Taft Issues Orders to Meet the Present Difficulty.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 5.—President Taft is ready to use the army, if necessary, to protect American citizens on the border of Mexico, near Juarez. He has sent the following message to Governor Colquit:

"Telegram received. Have issued orders with a view to meeting the difficulties at Juarez and have invited the attention of the secretary of war to the necessity of action."

BREAKS BABE'S BONES

Greek's Plan to Make an Acrobat of His Boy.

Tells Humane Officers How He Broke Wrists and Ankles of His Son When Ten Days Old.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 5.—Humane society officers witnessed a private performance given by a three-year-old boy whose wrists and ankles had been broken when he was ten days old in order to make him an acrobat and wrestler. The youngster is the son of R. G. Neof, a Greek, who claims that he was a student of physical culture in Greece.

Neof told the officers that he had broken the wrists and ankles of his son when ten days old and a month later began training the baby for an athletic career. In his performance the Neof child dislocated his ankles and wrists at will and caused them to assume many unnatural positions.

The humane officers decided not to interfere with Neof's plan of developing the child, but exacted a promise that no public exhibition would be given by the boy for at least five years.

PLAN CENTRAL MARKET

New Yorkers Preparing Big Blow to High Cost of Living.

New York, Feb. 5.—Plans for a big central market for New York city, with the primary purpose of reducing the cost of groceries, farm products and living generally, are being prepared by a committee of citizens organized to investigate the cost of living problem. The new market will be established under the Manhattan approach of the Queensborough bridge.

The plan proposes the shipment of produce from Long Island market gardens to this center, where housekeepers may select at the farmers' own prices.

CHICAGO LABOR LEADERS READY

Will Fight Indictments in Connection with McNamaras.

DENY PART IN CONSPIRACY

True Bills Believed to Have Been Found by Federal Grand Jury at Indianapolis Against Two Chicago Leaders.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Certain labor leaders in Chicago—at least two of them—are prepared to fight indictments they believe have been voted against them by the federal grand jury at Indianapolis, Ind., which is making investigations of the ramifications of the McNamara gang of dynamiters. The Chicago men are sure they will be indicted. In fact, they already have appeared before a government official here, arrangement has been made for their bond, and decision was made by them that they will resist any attempt to extradite them to Indianapolis for trial.

It was reported that seven Chicagoans will be found to have been indicted by the Indianapolis federal grand jury. Labor officials here, however, scout this statement, saying that only two local men have been made the subjects of true bills. It is said by officials here that the men are in no danger, as Chicago labor circles had absolutely no connection with the McNamaras or any of their gang.

The reports of the indictments followed disclosures that the fire Dec. 19 which destroyed the Open Board of Trade building, where many unions had offices, had been under investigation by federal authorities.

For the last three weeks special agents of the department of justice have been searching the ashes of the burned building. Valuable records which threw light on the McNamara bomb outrages are believed by the investigators to have been destroyed.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said that no records of that federation were burned. He asserted that all of the papers were in the vault, which was found intact after the fire.

E. N. Nockels, secretary of the local federation, is said to have expected a call to appear before the grand jury in Indianapolis, but he was not called. He said the union records were intact.

Neither the police nor Fire Attorney Sullivan has been able to determine the cause of the fire. It happened on the night of the day upon which Moss Enright was removed from the Cook county jail to the state penitentiary. Enright was convicted of the murder of Vincent Altman and sentenced to life imprisonment.

SINGS AT OWN FUNERAL

Phonographic Record Only Music at Bier of Professor Skinner.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 5. — The only music rendered at the funeral of Professor W. M. Skinner, a vocalist, was a phonographic record of his own voice.

Some time before death he sung a musical arrangement of Tennyson's poem, "Crossing the Bar," and he requested the same selection at his funeral.

BOUNDARY FUSS NEATLY SETTLED

Secretary of State Knox and British Minister Do Work.

DEVISE A SIMPLE COMPROMISE

Draw Line Through Middle of Territory in Dispute and Advise Respective Governments to Accept Their Compromise.

Washington, Feb. 5. — Philander C. Knox, secretary of state, explained to a committee of congress the other day how he and Ambassador Bryce settled a Canadian boundary dispute of many years' standing.

He said: "Ambassador Bryce was in my office one day and we took down the maps and traced the different lines, the lines for which Great Britain was contending and the line for which the United States was contending, and we came to the conclusion that the game was hardly worth the candle. So we drew a line through the center of the disputed territory and advised our respective governments to accept our compromise. That settlement was made without the expenditure of any money."

Representative Gardner (Democrat of Texas: "You divided the pot!"

Secretary Knox: "Yes—whatever that means."

BUMPER CROPS IN 1912

Dean of Minnesota College Forecasts Best Yield in Years.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 5.—That the crops for the coming season will be the biggest and best in years is the opinion of Dean Albert F. Woods, of the agricultural college of the University of Minnesota, who bases his estimate and predictions on the present favorable conditions and the tendency among farmers to combine the promised favorable weather with scientific farming.

The period of severely cold weather that has characterized the winter is a fine thing for the crops, according to Dean Woods.

SCHOOL BARS BUEHLER GIRL

Refused Admittance to Holy Rosary Academy at Corliss, Wis.

Racine, Wis., Feb. 5.—Violet Buehler, the Chicago girl who left her home last November to see the world and incidentally kept the police of the United States busy looking for her until a few days ago, applied for enrollment at the Holy Rosary academy at Corliss.

She was refused admittance to the school by the sister superior on the ground that her escapades had given her too much notoriety.

GOVERNOR DIX ILL

New York Executive Will Take Vacation at Lake George.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Governor Dix has been advised by his physicians to give up all social and public engagements for the present. Unable to bear the burden of duties thrust upon him, the governor has been on the verge of a breakdown for two or three weeks.

ELOPERS DIE BY GAS

Double Suicide Ends Illicit Love Affair in Gotham.

Woman Was Divorced Wife of Walter L. Suydam, Whom She Left for Frederick Noble.

New York, Feb. 5.—Louise Lawrence White, divorced wife of Walter Lispenard Suydam, and Frederick Noble, the young man with whom she eloped and whom she later married, put an end to an unhappy marriage by lying down in front of the kitchen range in their apartment at 82 West Twelfth street and turning on the gas in all of the burners.

The double suicide came about five months after the elopment of Mrs. Suydam and Frederick Noble and twenty-five days after their marriage.

The two had little happiness together since the early days of their elopement. Mrs. Suydam had confessed frankly to friends that she did not love Noble, her husband, and that she never would love any one but Mr. Suydam, whom she had forced by her elopement to divorce her.

Others in the apartment house say that Noble tried to kill himself last Friday night after a prolonged and violent quarrel.

DIVE TO SUBMARINE

Workers Seek to Raise Death Trap of Fourteen British Sailors.

Portsmouth, England, Feb. 5.—An attempt to salvage the submarine "A3," which sank near here with four officers and ten men after a collision with the gunboat Hazard, was made.

Several steamers from the government dockyard were on the spot and a large number of divers went below to examine the wreck. It is considered unlikely that the boat will be raised for several days, as she was not fitted with appliances for that purpose, such as are carried by submarines of the latest type.

$10,000,000 FOR WABASH

Judge Kohlsaat Authorizes Issuance of Receivers' Certificates.

Chicago, Feb. 5. — Receivers of the Wabash railroad company were authorized to raise $10,000,000 by the sale of receivers' certificates by Judge Kohlsaat in the United States Circuit court.

The money is to be expended for the general improvement of the properties of the railway lines. The proceedings, signed by Judge Kohlsaat, will result in the improvement of the roads and all properties of the railroad and the liquidation of certain impending obligations.

OCEAN STEAMER SINKS

Liner Allegheny Is Hit by Pomeran—All on Board Rescued.

New York, Feb. 5.—Officials of the Hamburg-American line said they had received a wireless dispatch through the marine department of a telegraph company that the steamship Allegheny, which was struck by the British steamer Pomeran, had sunk seventy-eight miles northeast of Cape Henry, after the two passengers and the crew of the Allegheny had been taken on board the Pomeran.

The dispatch was without further information.

ENGLISH RULERS AGAIN AT HOME

Return from Coronation Trip to Delhi, India.

LAND AT PORTSMOUTH TOUAY

Steamer Yacht Medina, with Royal Party Abroad, Is Hours Ahead of Time and Forts Are Not Ready with Salute.

London, Feb. 5. — King George and Queen Mary arrived at Portsmouth fourteen hours ahead of schedule time on their return from the trip to Delhi, where his majesty was crowned as Emperor of India.

The steamer yacht Medina, with the royal party on board, arrived at Spithead in the blinding snowstorm. It was known that the steamship would be ahead of time, but was not expected before evening and there was no salute from the shore batteries, which were unprepared for her.

Queen Mother Alexandra and other members of the royal family went to Portsmouth to meet the king and queen. Their majesties did not land until this morning.

EQUITABLE WEALTH MOVED

$282,000,000 Worth of Valuable Papers Taken from Vaults.

New York, Feb. 5. — The treasure room of the Equitable Life Assurance Society was emptied of its wealth and the wealth taken across Broadway to the vaults of the Carnegie Safe Deposit company.

In all, $232,000,000 worth of stocks and negotiable paper were transferred and the task was so great that it took six hours of hard work before it was finished.

SAYS NOTES ARE FAKED

Official Stenographer Creates Sensation at Lorimer Inquiry.

Milton W. Blumenberg Is Declared In Contempt—Said to Have Been Overworked.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Milton W. Blumenberg, official stenographer of the senatorial committee investigating the election of Senator Lorimer, was held in contempt by the committee when he volunteered in open hearing the opinion that stenographic notes introduced to support the perjury charge against Charles McGowan were faked.

Blemenberg was ordered placed in the custody of E. L. Cornelius, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the senate. Cornelius was instructed to remain with him constantly.

The official stenographer's action was unprecedented and caused a sensation. The hearing broke up in disorder.

Blumenberg's assistants declare that for several days he has been on the verge of a collapse. There has been a shortage of stenographers recently and Blumenberg has been working regularly all day and until 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. His action is attributed by them to his condition.

"FINDERS NOT KEEPERS"

Italian Laborer Picks Up $30,000 at Equitable Building Ruins.

New York, Feb. 5.—If "finders were keepers," Salvator Giorgione, an Italian laborer employed by the contractors who are clearing away the ruins of the Equitable building, would be taking passage for Italy.

Steel workers were cutting away the girders which buried one of the vaults when suddenly Salvatore saw a roll of bills and surreptitiously his hand slipped down and grasped the money. He slid out of the crowd of workmen and was hurrying away when a detective snatched the roll from his hand. It contained exactly $30,000.

DARROW PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Los Angeles Judge Overrules Demurrer and Motion to Quash.

Los Angeles Cal. Feb. 5.—Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, former chief counsel for the McNamaras, pleaded not guilty to two indictments charging him with jury bribing.

The pleas were entered after Presiding Judge Hutton of the superior court had overruled a demurrer filed on behalf of Darrow and a motion to quash the indictments.

LaFollette Taking Rest.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—Senator LaFollette's political managers made an announcement that the senator is suffering from a nervos breakdoyn due to overwork, and that he will take the rest cure for two weeks in seclusion at his home in Washington.

Some doctors say a regular diet of beef makes people ill-tempered and ugly.

PIGEONS ON A JAMBOREE

Drink Liquor Spilled in the Street and Gave Real Exhibition of Drunkenness.

A heavy truck loaded high with kegs of liquor was jolting across a line of downtown car tracks when one of the kegs toppled and fell from the top of the pile into the street. It was thoroughly smashed, so the truckman whipped up his team and went his way without stopping. The rum flowed out over the street—one little dent in the paving collecting a visible puddle of it.

In a few minutes a pigeon came fluttering down to drink at the pool thus fortunately provided for thirsty birds. The initial taste was a surprise, but a second and a third soon followed, and soon the pigeon tottered fluttering away, too overcome to fly. Other birds, seeing him there and anxious to wet their parching throats on so sultry a day, followed their brother in his path of wicked intemperance.

Five minutes later a passerby was astonished to see a dozen pigeons in the gutter of the otherwise deserted street, some dancing drunkenly, others already sound asleep. A few feet away a hound of disreputable appearance was creeping up, slowly and a trifle unsteadily, on his unsuspecting and bibulous quarry. As he was almost among the birds his feet went suddenly in several directions and he lay in the gutter among the pigeons, growling sleepily to himself, for he, too, was drunk.

Misleading Names.

Practically all the wooden clocks called Dutch are made in the village of Freyburg, in the Black Forest. This misnomer is due to simple mispronunciation—"Deutsch" meaning, of course, German. Nothing is more natural than to assume that India ink comes from India, but it does not, and never did, any more than does India rubber. India ink is a Chinese product, and India rubber comes from South America. Camel's hair brushes are not made from the hair of camels, but from the hair of the tails of Russian and Siberian squirrels. Camel's hair is, however, employed in the manufacture of certain fabrics to be made into shawls, etc., and is sometimes mixed with silk.

Hoodooed Her Hair.

Another black mark has been chalked down against number thirteen.

"I did up my hair the other night in curl papers torn from an old calendar," said the pretty girl, "and in the morning when I took it down I had a row of beautiful curls all around my head except right over the left temple. That lock was as straight as a lead pencil, and I had dampened it with lemon juice just like all the others, but when I unrolled the paper I found out why it wouldn't curl. The page I had twisted it over was the thirteenth of the month."

Prayers for Suicides.

On All Souls' Day every good Catholic goes to some cemetery to lay flowers on the graves of loved ones. Owing to the number of suicides by drowning in the Danube there are many dead to whom this rite cannot be paid, and in honor of these a touching ceremony has been held in Budapest. Several thousand persons walked in solemn procession to the bank of the Danube by the Franz Josef bridge, and a wreath made of leather was sunk in the water, while the attendants uncovered their heads and said prayers. On one side of the wreath the words were embossed, "For the salvation of those who died in the Danube," and on the other side, "Do not take this out, but leave it in the water." A layman then gave an address, in which he extolled the virtues of many of those who had been driven to suicide, and condemned the church for refusing its blessing to their bodies.

Remains of George Whitefield.

Rev. Silvester Horne, who desires to have the remains of George Whitefield brought from America and buried in the Chapel in Tottenham Court road which bears his name, may not know that a portion of those remains has already done a double journey across the Atlantic. Whitefield died of asthma September 30, 1770, while on a preaching tour in America, and was buried, by his own desire, in a vault beneath the Presbyterian church at Newburyport. Fourteen years after his death the coffin was opened, when the body was found perfect. In 1901 it was opened again, when "the flesh was gone, but the gown, cassock and bands remained." Shortly afterward a bone of the right arm was stolen by an admirer and sent to England. Protest was made, and the bone was restored to Newburyport in 1837.—London Chronicle.

Honey Bread.

In Europe, where the food value of honey seems to be much better understood than in the United States, enormous quantities are used. Of late years we seem to be waking to a realization of the value of honey as a wholesome and delicious article of food, and also as to its preservative qualities. Cakes and sweetbreads made with sugar corn become dry and crumbly, and to get the good of them must be eaten when fresh; but when they are made up with honey, they seem to retain their moist freshness indefinitely. In France honey bread a year or eighteen months old is preferred to that just made. They say: "It has ripened." It is the preservative, or rather the unchanging, quality of honey that makes it so popular with the best confectioners.—The Christian Herald.

Eggs Cooked in Maple Sirup.

This is a French recipe. Pour sirup into the frying pan and heat it hot; then drop an egg into it and cook it exactly the same as you would if dropping it in water. A dish of eggs cooked in this way for dessert not only tastes good but looks tempting.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes.

Slice cold sweet potatoes left from yesterday, arrange them in a baking dish, buttering each layer well and sprinkling with light brown sugar. Pour in about half a cup of hot water, cover and bake an hour, uncover and crisp on top.

One cup of sugar, one cup of molasses, one cup of sour milk, four cups of flour, one-half cup of shortening, one teaspoon of soda. Ginger to taste.

Tecumseh Herald $25 Prize Contes.

Judge, Mr. Fred Field of the Hastings-Journal Herald, and Former County School Superintendent of Lenawee County.

1ST PRIZE $10 MISS BLANCHE SNYDER C.
2ND PRIZE $7 BERNARD E. MOTT E.
3RD PRIZE $5 MISS FLORA KETCHUM D.

FOR THE MOST CONCISE AND COMPREHENSIVE SCHOOL NOTES FOR FOUR MONTHS OF THE SCHOOL YEAR

Teachers, Pupils and Parents Delighted With the Results

BLANCHE SNYDER

BERNARD E. MOTT

It is with great pleasure that the Tecumseh Herald awards the prizes offered four months ago, for the best written High School notes. The points to be considered were to cover the school work in the most condensed and interesting manner.

The Herald has been very fortunate in securing as Judge, Mr. Fred Field of the Hastings Journal-Herald, who while being a former County Superintendent and high school teacher, is also a Journalist, and well known in Tecumseh having been a former Editor of the Tecumseh News.

The idea of this contest was suggested by a talk with Mr. Field, who said "that the Hastings School notes were a part of the High School work and were compulsory," not being a part of the work here in our schools, The Tecumseh Herald thought to interested the pupils in the work, by offering these prizes. The improvement in the work of these contestants, has been most marked.

C. Miss Blanche Snyder, who recieves the first prize is a senior, and expects to graduate at the close of this school year, She has furnished school notes for the Herald longer than either of the others, and has steadily improved both in composition and a comprehensive understanding of what is meant by news. And no matter what work she may take up in the future, this will be of great benefit to her. We congratulate her on winning this prize.

The Second prize winner E. is a freshman, Bernard E. Mott. And if the parents of the pupils could see the copy this young man first handed in and compare it with the last, they would realize the immense good in an educational way this work does, and would insist on their children joining in a contest of this sort. It is with great pleasure that we award this prize.

The third prize goes to a senior, D. Miss Flora Ketchum, who for a time was handicapped by sickness and was obliged to discontinue her work. She has confined her notes solely to High School work, not having the time to devote to the other branche schools. Her notes as handed in to the Herald, in writing, punctuation and spelling have been the best copy of the three, and we are delighted that she has won a prize.

The Herald feels that it may congratulate itself on this very happy ending of this contest.

We append a letter from Mr. Fred Field, and appreciate his kindness in doing us this favor in acting as judge.

The Tecumseh Herald also wishes to thank Supt. McAlpine for his hearty co operation in the work and for his careful revision of the notes, before being handed in for publication.

Mrs. George Stacy,
Tecumseh, Mich.,

Dear Mrs. Stacy:-

I have looked over the three sets of papers submitted with as much care as my opportunity would premit. After forming my own judgement I requested Mr. Hicks, teacher of English in our city schools and formerly engaged in active newspaper work on daily papers, to pass judgement on these papers and he agreed with me exactly, So, I believe my decisions are pretty correct

My judgement is that the first prize should go to the papers C, the second to E, and the third to D.

I wish to congratulate the Herald for its enterprise in offering these prizes. It is a commendable thing to do, for it stimulates the pupils to practical effort in a most valuable form of education.

Hoping my decision will be satisfactory and that the Tecumseh high School will keep up this line of work, I am

Yours Truly,
C. F. Field.

ASSERTS FISH HAS MEMORY

Novel Exhibition With Trout Is Given by an Expert to Uphold This Theory.

An expert in fish culture, who believes that fish have memories, gave a novel exhibition to support his theory.

In one of the enclosed pools at the hatchery under his charge there was a very large trout which always came forward to see and be seen when visitors appeared. It was the expert's custom, after calling particular attention to that trout, to raise his cane quickly and hold it over the water. The performance would have no effect upon the trout.

Then the expert would produce a light trout rod and appear with it at the side of the pool. Instantly that trout would turn and flee, hide itself at the far end of the enclosure and remain there so long as the rod was in sight.

This is the explanation of the sudden change in the trout's demeanor: One day, early in the career of the fish, the expert, to try a barbless hook he had devised, cast with one in that pool, and this trout seized it. The hook penetrated and passed through its upper jaw, and by the time it was released from the hook it had undergone an experience that made a lasting impression upon it.

The expert discovered soon after the hooking of the trout that whenever he approached the pool with his rod the trout would instantly dash to a place of hiding, although it paid no attention to a cane or other stick held over the water. The trout lived for years in that pool and never failed to show its fear of a trout rod as long as it lived.

MOTH MILLER IS VERY HARDY

Man Finds One in Library Book That Apparently Had Been Closed Many Years.

"How long can a moth miller live without air and light?" is a question puzzling the bookworm.

"I opened an old library book the other day," he said, "that had the appearance of having been closed for a century, and on the very first page I found a moth miller. He lay lifeless for a few minutes, but pretty soon he began to wriggle. Now, ordinarily, moth millers are my chief aversion. I take a cruel delight in killing them, but I could not kill that moth miller. I played the role of liberator instead. His helplessness touched me, and I blew on him, flicked him with my finger, and after awhile he was able to fly away.

"Now, what I would like to know is, how long had that insect been entombed? My curiosity carried me to the length of inquiring when the book had been called for last, but the attendant informed me that the book was in the reference department, and it would be a prodigious labor to trace the latest reader, so how long the moth miller had suffered captivity is still a mystery."

Linen Bleach.

White frocks and blouses or underclothing that have got "a bad color" should be first soaked in cold water to which a little ammonia has been added and then given a lemon bleach, that is, a large lemon should be cut into slices, rind and all, and boiled up in the boiling pan or small copper. When at full boiling point pop in the linens and muslins, and boil for twenty minutes.

PHILOMEL CONCERT

The concert given at the Baptist church Friday night by the Philomel Quartet was from every standpoint social and artistic as well as financial an unqualified success.

The charming ladies in their simple white costumes met with a flattering reception, some of the numbers receiving a double encore.

The solos by Miss McKinney were given with the best of style and expression and showed her phenominally low tones to advantage.

Mrs. Moore more than pleased the audience especially in her character number which she gave with great charm and grace.

Mrs. Ruthruff, first alto has a rich mellow voice which with her dignified presence deserved the hearty appreciation shown by her hearers.

As a soloist Mrs. McAlpine is too well known and admired to need any further words of praise, but in her new role as reader she completely captivated the audience.

The perfection of Mrs. Wood's work at the piano was as marked as usual and elicited the hearty praise of her many admirers. The ladies of the quartet presented her with flowers in token of their appreciation.

The concerted work was finely done showing careful study and preparation

JANUARY COLD WHEATHER

As a prize winner on cold weather the month of January comes out ahead, as it broke the record of the past 19 years, and the first 15 days were the coldest ever known except that of 1895. The mean temperature for the whole month has been to mean to mean to mention, and now Mr. February is trying hard to beat the record.

SULPHUR TAKEN FROM WELLS

How It Is Forced From Great Depths in Louisiana by Means of Hot Water.

Within recent years Sicily, so long famous for its exportation of sulphur, has suffered from the competition of the United States. In Sicily sulphur is mined in the solid form. At Lake Charles, La., near the Gulf of Mexico, a little over 200 miles from New Orleans, sulphur is obtained from deep deposits in the form of a liquid.

Wells driven to a depth of 600 feet in search of petroleum revealed instead a rich deposit of sulphur. To obtain the mineral hollow tubes were driven into the earth. Each sulphur well consists of three tubes, one within another. Through the outer tube hot water is forced down, and it issues through perforations near the bottom. Through the central tube hot air is driven a little lower than the points where the hot water escapes. Through this third tube, inclosed between the other two, the liquid sulphur, dissolved by the water, rises to the surface under the combined influence of the pressure of the column of water and impulsion of the rising air. The liquid sulphur is led into wooden reservoirs, where it cools and hardens.

Ruthless Destruction of Books.

Napoleon was indirectly responsible for the destruction of a vast quantity of books. In 1812 he framed a law allowing goods to be imported from the United Kingdom, provided that the importer shipped an equivalent quantity of French goods to this country. French merchants generally met the requirements of this law by shipping books to the value of the wares they wished to import. Having served to gain the necessary permit, the books were thrown overboard on the way to England, as there was no demand for them here. Shippers could well afford to do this, for coffee and sugar were then about ten times dearer in France than in England. It has been estimated that books to the nominal value of four million dollars were destroyed in this way.

Cosmopolitan Community.

Confusion of tongues in St. Gilles, the industrial suburb of Brussels, Belgium. Here the Flemish, Walloon and German elements meet. Statistics prepared for the government on the language question show that of [illegible] adults who form the population of St. Gilles, 10,163 men and 14,212 women speak French only; 2,483 men and 3,445 women Flemish only; 90 men and 172 women German only; 12,595 men and 14,902 women both French and Flemish, 711 men and 736 women both French and German, 30 men and 38 women both Flemish and German, and 959 men and 643 women French, Flemish and German.

Painless Dentistry.

In the Sunday school teacher's experience the only kind of a dentist she had ever known was a man who pulled or repaired teeth, so when the nice little girl in her class said her father was a dentist the teacher concluded to patronize him. She knew his address and called one day with nerves braced for treatment of an unsound tooth. She was shown into a small workshop, whose sides were lined with big grandfather clocks.

"Dentist!" the man exclaimed. "Great Scott, no; I'm a clock mender, but I know how the kid came to make the mistake. People in this trade always call the fellow who makes a specialty of tinkering with grandfather clocks a dentist. The wheels of most grandfather clocks of American manufacture are made of wood, and when the clock stops the wornout teeth have to be removed from the wheel and sound teeth put in. So I really do work with teeth and deserve the name of dentist."

OBITUARY

A sweet young life passed from this earth when the death angel took from our midst Gladys Marie Gilmore.

Gladys was born in the township of Macon August 23, 1896, and passed quietly away at the home of her parents at 4 p. m. of Sunday January 28, 1912 being 15 years 5 months 5 days of age.

She was always frail but of an ambitious nature and was very patient and never complaining during her sickness. Being in poor health for the past two years although she was very attentive to her school-work being very successful in her studies.

She was a member of the Ridgeway M. E. Sunday School and attended as long as her health permitted.

Being very kind and of a loving disposition. She was very thoughtful of others.

She was conscious up to the last calling each one of the family to her and bade them good-bye. Saying that she loved Jesus and was'nt afraid to die.

A father, mother, two sisters and a brother in her own family besides other relatives and a host of friends are left to mourn our loss.

Dearest Gladys, thou hast crossed death's river,
To the land of perfect rest,
And tho' we are sadly weeping
Yet we know that thou art blest.

All earth's cares and griefs are over,
And no pain can reach that Land,
And tho' we shall sorely miss thee,
Thou wilt join the angel band.

So we try not to grieve at thy going.
But submissively bow to God's will.
And say to our souls should we murmur,
Peace! Peace! Oh, grief, be thou still!

So we have clothed thee in thy burial robes,
And to the grave we go,
And lovingly lay to rest
Thy form as pure as snow

And as we sadly return to our home,
We miss thee more and more,
But we know that sorrows never come
To thy home on the golden shore.

So now farewell, dearest Gladys;
On earth we no more can meet,
But again we'll be together,
When we meet at Jesus feet.

And death no more can part us
And our sorrows will be o'er,
And we shall meet rejoicing
When we reach that heavenly shore.

The funeral services were held at the home Wednesday morning at 10 a. m. conducted by the Rev. Geo. Scarlett Interment at Brookside cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all our friends and neighbors who so kindly came to our aid in the burial of our dear daughter, we also wish to thank the singers for their services and the School, Sunday School, the Class of which she was a member and all kind friends and relatives for the beautiful floral pieces also the minister for his comforting words.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gilmore,
Mrs. Meda Gilman.

D. T & I. TO REORGANIZE

Plans are afoot for the reorganization of the Detroit Toledo & Ironton Railway Co., which has been in the hands of the receivers since 1908, these plans are practically completed. There will be a reduction in the capital of the company of $18000,000. A new prior lieu mortgage will be made, and short term prior lieu 5 per cent bonds, to the amount of $12000,000 to $15000,000 will be issued from time to time.

Official announcement of the reorganization will probably be made public in a few days.

Lemon Pudding.

Soak for half an hour a pint of bread crumbs in one quart of milk, then add the grated rinds of two lemons, one cup of sugar, yolks of two eggs and pinch of salt and tablespoon of butter. Bake until done and cool just a little, and frost with the whites of two eggs (beaten to a stiff froth first) then add one cup of sugar and juice of one lemon. Beat all together. Spread on pudding, set in oven and brown just a little.

Stewed Ox Tail.

Wash the tail in cold water, and cut in joints, dividing the large top joints. Put into a saucepan with one sliced carrot and a medium-size onion cut up, cover with water, and stew very gently for two hours; skim as much fat as possible from the top, then thicken the gravy with flour, mixed with a little ketchup or Harvey's sauce.

To Mend Linen.

Fit the worn part securely in an ordinary embroidery hoop. Take off the foot of the sewing machine. Use a fine thread and stitch back and forth, moving the frame so that the stitching will be at right angles.—Suburban Life.

Flowers Painted.

Not only can faded flowers be touched up with water colors, but new ones can be made to match when it is impossible to get the exact shade you wish in the shops.

Saw No Future for Pittsburg.

"Pittsburgh" of the ninth edition of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" had quietly become "Pittsburg" in the tenth. The former, to which America has now officially reverted, is the original spelling. When General Forbes captured Fort Duquesne in 1758, he renamed it Pittsburgh in honor of the great English inspirer of victory. In 1784 Arthur Lee described the place in language which seems strange to those who know "the smoky city" of today: "Pittsburgh is inhabited almost entirely by Scots and Irish, who live in paltry log houses. There are in the town four attorneys, two doctors and not a priest of any persuasion, nor church or chapel, so that they are likely to be damned without the benefit of clergy. The place, I believe, will never be very considerable."

German Trade Advancement.

At one time the county of Lancashire, in England, produced practically all the sulphuric acid in the world. The commercial development in Germany and other foreign countries of a special process of manufacture, originally invented by an Englishman, has lost this trade to England. Similarly, the working out by Germans of a method of making artificial indigo has already revolutionized the indigo business and bids fair also to revolutionize the cotton dyeing industry. Four-fifths of all the dyes used in the world are made in Germany.

CONFIDENCE

We Back up Our Statement with Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and may be caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of skilful research chemists. This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience. If habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes of packages, 10c., 25., and 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Marriage a Failure?

The statisticians inform us that there is an increasing tendency toward divorce, but the very worst divorce tables show that 12 couples out of every 100 get divorced within 20 years of the marriage day. But only look at this statement from another angle. There are 88 couples who do not get divorced. And so, is marriage a failure? Hardly!

TERRIER AND THE LIONESS

Little Dog Braves Wounded Wild Beast and Saves Life of His Master.

That victory is not always a matter of size or strength was pleasingly illustrated in the case of the dog that did his duty so effectually in the incident here related.

A man named De Beer had started early one morning for a journey on foot in Matabeleland, leaving his boy to pack up and follow him. He had not gone half a mile when he heard a growl and, turning, saw an immense lioness about fifty yards away and rapidly approaching. She was within twenty paces when he fired. The shot broke the beast's jaw.

The second shot broke one of her legs. The third, fired just as she sprang on De Beer, missed altogether and the man was borne down.

In a few seconds he was mauled and bitten and his left hand severely injured. There seemed little hope that he could escape alive, for his gun was out of reach and the lion, lying on him, prevented him from moving.

But with De Beer was one companion, a little terrier. The tiny animal flew bravely at the lioness' ear, got a good hold and hung grimly on. This made the brute shift a little, and De Beer was able to reach his rifle again with his right hand and shoot the lioness through the chest. She fell dead on top of him, his left hand still in her mouth.

Roast Breast of Veal, Filling.

Have a pocket cut in the veal; wipe the meat off with a damp cloth, fill in the pocket, sew up; place in roasting pan, dust with salt, pepper, flour and one tablespoonful of drippings. Roast in a hot oven 20 minutes and baste with one cup of cold water. Add one-fourth peck of potatoes, which have been washed and pared; reduce the heat of the oven, making it moderate, and roast one hour.

Remove the meat and potatoes, add one tablespoonful of flour, mixed with a little cold water, and one cup of cold water or stock, one tablespoonful of caramel, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper; boil two minutes and strain.

Delicious Orange Pudding.

Pare and slice five oranges, lay in deep dish and sprinkle with one-half cup granulated sugar, let stand two hours. Make a custard of one pint of sweet milk, yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons of cornstarch. Stir custard to make it smooth. When cool pour over the oranges. Beat the whites to a stiff froth, add two tablespoons of powdered or granulated sugar, place over custard and brown quickly in oven. Serve hot or cold. It is delicious either way.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

THAT OLD-FASHIONED LADY

Sweet Picture That Some of Us Are Privileged to Carry In Our Memories.

Everybody loved that old-fashioned lady. And I find almost everyone past forty has, at the back of his mind, vivid impressions regarding her and the social life of which she was the center. One remembers the atmosphere of that day as one remembers the blush roses and spicy pinks of old gardens. Even yet there are gardens where blush roses grow, and I know some women not yet old, and a few young girls, whose mere presence serves today to reproduce that atmosphere. She was dauntless and sweet, that old-fashioned Lady; witty but tender; as notable a housewife as a hostess; full of gentle concern for others, with a mind ever at leisure for their affairs, and a heart whose sympathy was instantaneous in their service. She stimulated and she soothed. Fine, complicated and interesting as the old lace and finely wrought gold she delighted to wear, she was a very precious piece of porcelain. The brilliant, soft daguerreotype that has preserved her early likeness for us did not idealize her beyond her just due. Perhaps the intimate secret of her influence was the impression she gave of one whose heart is fixed, one whom the world can no longer harm.—The Atlantic

THOUGHT HE MEANT TRIPE

Mrs. Mills' Sadly Misled About Husband's Diet by Deaf Old Family Doctor.

Mr. Mills was ill, and Mrs. Mills sent post haste for the deaf old family doctor, who, responding promptly to the call, looked Mr. Mills carefully over and decided he was not going to die that time. As the physician took his leave, Mrs. Mills followed him out into the hall. "Dr. Grimes," she said, "how about Albert's diet? You didn't tell me what I should give him to eat!"

The doctor, who had his deaf side toward his interrogator, mistook her question for an inquiry as to the nature of Mr. Mills' disease and replied gruffly and shortly: "Oh, stomach, stomach—nothing but stomach."

"Dear me!" thought Mrs. Mills, who is not a subtle reasoner. "I suppose, of course, he must mean tripe. It's a singular diet, but perhaps Albert's disease is singular."

Next day when the doctor called he found the patient much worse, and at once inquired what he had had to eat.

"I gave him just what you told me to," shouted Mrs. Mills into the doctor's best ear, "nothing in the world but tripe."

Navajo Blankets.

Much unadulterated nonsense has been written concerning the symbolism of Navajo Indian blankets, and the poetry, legend, tradition and history woven by the squaw into its fabric. It is true that some designs have a symbolic meaning, but Hopi, Zuni and Apache symbols are used quite as freely as those peculiar to the Navajos. The Navajo squaw is one of the least imaginative and least poetical of human beings, and it is quite safe to say that even when symbolic designs are employed in basket weaving it is without the remotest reference to their true significance.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. P. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 335 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

To End Log Rafts.

Columbia rivermen believe that the recent disasters overtaking a number of the ocean-going log rafts which were being sent from the river to California have been the means of sounding the doom of this method of shipping lumber down the coast. In support of this conclusion it is pointed out that the steamer Carlos, on her last trip took out a deckload of piling from Stella. Heretofore the great bulk of the piling from that point has been shipped to California in the form of rafts.—Shipping Illustrated.

CRIME MYSTERY AT KANSAS CITY

"Aunt Lou" Dorsett Is Victim of a Murderer.

SMALLEST WOMAN IN CITY

Remains of the Widow Discovered by a Sister After She Had Been Dead for Several Days—Robbery the Motive.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 5.—Mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs. Lucetta Dorsett, a widow, whose body was found in her home in Kansas City, Kan., by a sister, deepened after an announcement by the coroner that the woman had been dead since last Tuesday.

Mrs. Dorsett, known to the neighborhood as "Aunt Lou," was said to be the smallest woman in the city, being slightly under four feet tall. Her body was found by Mrs. M. F. Fisher, her sister, who, after several days' absence, went to "Aunt Lou's" home in accordance with her custom to light the gas, Mrs. Dorsett being unable to reach it even from a chair. Mrs. Dorsett's skull was fractured.

No money was found in the house. Detectives worked on the theory that robbery was the motive, it being known that a considerable amount was left to her at the death of her husband, a commission merchant, recently.

AUNT DELIA IS AT WILL'S

Relative of President Taft Entertained at White House.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Miss Delia Torrey, President Taft's aunt, arrived in Washington for a stay of several weeks. She will be a guest at the White House. Every winter "Aunt Delia," as she is affectionately known here, comes to Washington for a short visit.

She expects to remain here until President Taft goes to Boston next month, when he will accompany her back to her home in Millbury, Mass.

BATTLE IN CHINA

Republicans Lose Sixty Killed in Engagement with Imperialists.

Sutsien, China, Feb. 5.—Republicans lost sixty men killed in an outpost engagement with the imperialists fifteen miles to the north of this city. Reinforcements consisting of 5,000 men of all arms are leaving here for the front and a battle is expected soon.

Chang Hsun, who is in command of the imperial forces at Suchow, has made an offer to join the revolutionary army with his followers if his personal losses are reimbursed.

A Beggar's Luggage.

When Bridget Flanigan, who described herself as "a poor lone Irish widow woman," was arrested for begging at Wells she had the following articles distributed about her person: Tea, sugar, fresh cut beefsteak, piece of bacon, two bloaters, bread and cheese, four buns, bag of biscuits, cooked fagot, two apples, onions, two clay pipes, tobacco, cigarettes and snuff.—London Evening Standard.

WEDDING GLOVE FOR BRIDE

Third Finger Is Left Unstitched So That the Ring Can Be Slipped On.

A happy era has dawned for the bride at the fateful moment when the ring is about to be placed on her finger.

Instead of the usual struggle to remove her left hand glove, she will now be able to uncover the third finger without effort and without losing her composure.

This delightful result is to be obtained by an ingenious "wedding glove" device. The inside seam on the third finger of the left glove is unstitched, so that all that the bride need do is to slip her finger through the slit to receive the ring. The finger can just as easily be slipped back into the glove after the ceremony.

The device will be greatly appreciated not only by the bride, but also by the nervous bridegroom.

The story of the origin of the wedding glove has come to light. Sometime ago a girl who had lost her right arm in the hunting field asked for a single wedding glove.

She remarked on the awkwardness of having to remove her glove with the help of her teeth, and it was then seen that matters would be greatly facilitated for the bride if she only had to uncover the ring finger.

The experiment was so successful that it aroused the interest of other prospective brides, who saw in it a boon which would save them from the usual difficulties of removing a whole glove in the moment when the ring is about to be put on.—Exchange.

HIS SPEECH WAS GREAT HIT

Pumperton Thought It Was His Wit, But His Wife Discovered the Reason.

It was late before Pumperton got home, but his wife was still sitting up for him. "Well, John," she greeted him, "how was the dinner? And how was your speech received?"

Pumperton took off his coat, smiling genially. "Oh, splendidly, my dear, splendidly! I got there a bit late, when the others were already at the table, but I just slipped in quietly and didn't make any stir."

"Well, how about the speech?" she reminded him. "Did it make as much of a hit as you expected?"

"Oh, yes—more. None of the preceding speeches had been particularly clever, and they had hardly raised a smile. But I had no more than stood up and begun when they began to laugh. I went on, my dear, and, I assure you, they simply shook. I never have seen any company so thoroughly entertained. I even expanded a little—gave them a couple of new stories that came into my mind. And when I sat down they cheered and clapped an laughed for minutes. I shall never forget how they laughed."

"Yes, I can well imagine so," his wife said sarcastically. "But the next time you are to make an after-dinner speech wouldn't it be well to put your vest on before leaving home?"

Her Idea of It.

Algie Graham Livingston is going to write a spelling book, some day, if they let her, according to a writer in the Cleveland Leader.

"How do you spell 'Yaining?'" she asked the other afternoon, as the big drops came down and spoilt her outdoor play. In parenthesis be it said that she isn't big enough to pronounce the letter "r." Hence "Yaining."

Her mother gave the desired information, but Algie, whose proper name is Elsie, shook her head. Her big brother endeavored to assist her, but Algie roguishly declined advice.

"Well," said her brother Bob, "how do you spell it?"

"H, e, double l," came the answer, like a flash.

And they wonder where she got it.

Fathers of Great Men.

The father of Samuel Pepys was a tailor. The father of James Mill was a cobbler. The father of Jules Verne was a day laborer. Oliver Cromwell's father was a brewer. Epictetus was the son of a day laborer. Socrates was the son of a day laborer. Giotto, the artist, was a peasant's son. The father of Pius V. was a shepherd. The father of Schumann was a bookseller. The father of Pius IV. was a peasant. The father of Cowley was a grocer. The father of Charles Lamb was a servant. Milton was the son of a copyist. Pope's father was a merchant. Neander's father was a carter. Homer was a farmer's son.

First to Practice Palmistry.

Gypsies introduced the practice of palmistry into England. This appears from a statute of 1531 called an "Acte concerning Egypsayans," which recites that "afore this tyme dyverse and many outlandysshe People, callynge them-selfes Egyptians, using no crafte nor faicte of marchaundyse, have comen into this Realme and gone from Shire to Shire and Place to Place, and used greate subtyll and crafty meanes to deceyve the people that they by palmestre could tell menne and womens fortunes, and have by crafte and subtyltie deceyved the people of their money."

Decided Change.

Mrs. Brown—Do you think marriage changes a man?

Mrs. Jones—Vastly. Look at my husband. He used to offer me a penny for my thoughts; now he often offers me $50 to shut up.

Perfected Dish Washer.

The invention of a Chicago hotel steward fills a long felt want. It is a machine that will wash and dry 18,000 dishes in an hour. Moreover, it needs the supervision and help of only two persons.

HE NEVER EVEN TOOK AIM

But the Tyro at Hunting Brought Down Two Birds, and Shot No More.

"Only once in my life did I ever do any shooting," said a traveling man, talking to a group in the cafe of one of the big New York hotels, "and that once I made a real hit. It was in a western town to which my trip had carried me, and the natives had arranged a prairie chicken hunt for the following day. Of course I was invited. I protested that I was out of practice, but they insisted that I go along, and some one furnished a gun for my use.

"As the only stranger in the party, they let me go ahead, following the dogs closely. I didn't even know what a prairie chicken looked like; whether they would run along the ground or fly. Suddenly I heard a tremendous whirr, the sound, as I came to know, of the birds taking wing. So excited was I that, without raising the gun to my shoulder, I pulled the trigger. 'Bang!' went the gun, and two of the birds fluttered slowly to the ground.

"'He never even took aim,' shouted one of the hunters, and my reputation was made. Thereafter I rested on my laurels, not attempting another shot throughout the day, or ever since."

MADE EQUALS BY LEARNING

With the Same Education, Men Will Lose Their Superiority Over Women.

Rev. Anna Howard Shaw said recently in Philadelphia of an opponent of co-education:

"Perhaps he objects because he is aware that equal education does away with man's superiority. The average man, of course, won't be superior to the average woman when they are both equally well educated. His assertions won't be accepted then unquestioningly.

"Indeed his assertions already are beginning to be questioned here and there. Thus there was a young chap at the seashore last month who on being refused by a beautiful girl said:

"'You have broken my heart.'

"But the girl, a medical student, laid her white hand lightly on his breast a moment, and then shook her head nad said:

"'No, there isn't the least evidence of organic lesion. I notice a slight palpitation, due, no doubt, to the excessive use of cheap cigarettes, but otherwise the organ is quite perfect.'"

JUROR FEARED THE DINNER

Conscientious Man Thought Unusually Good Meals Would Keep Him From Thinking Straight.

"The most conscientious man I ever knew served on a jury with me several years ago," said the experienced juror. "It was a criminal case and the jurors were imprisoned in a hotel during the trial. At our first dinner the man with a conscious refused to eat the excellent meal provided.

"'If I should fill my stomach with all that hifalutin grub,' he said, 'I should not be able to think straight. I am not used to it at home. No man is able to think normally immediately after a radical change in fare. It takes several weeks to adjust his mental attitude to his physical state. For that reason, every man who serves on a jury ought to eat exactly the kind of food he is used to at home, even if it takes half a dozen cooks to prepare it. If that was done, there would be fewer freak verdicts in this town.'

"There was so much sound sense in the doctrine that the 11 other jurors had a fleeting fancy for sticking to own accustomed simple fare, but the fleshpots of the hotel overcame their scruples and for three weeks we feasted sumptuously. Also, to sustain the conscientious man's theory, we returned what the public called a freak verdict."

Mixed Patriotism.

Up in the Nineteenth assembly district they are telling this story of a fallen political idol. In the rounds of his social activities he attended an afternoon entertainment given by the Outdoor Playground association. Among the vocal selections rendered by the children was "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." At the conclusion of that hymn the political idol was called upon for a few remarks. He addressed the audience with emotion.

"Children," he said, "it does my heart good to hear you. Scarcely ever have I heard 'The Star-Spangled Banner' so beautifully sung."—New York Times.

Asbestos Shingles.

Asbestos shingles are now being manufactured in this country with success, and the trade has grown enormously. The new products are of the lightest weight, and fireproof up to a temperature of 2,000 and more degrees. They are proof against acids and weather, and last as long as a concrete building will.

NURSES SHOULD NOT SNORE

One of Them Tells How the Habit Keeps Them From Holding Good Places.

"In all those months I was in the hospital somebody ought to have warned me, I think," said the trained nurse. "Of course I had it from the folks at home that I snored a little, but I never took it seriously until I went on my first case. I found then that it is a serious matter for a nurse to snore.

"I took the case from a nurse whose own health had broken down. The patient was nervous and excited over the contemplated change, and that made my ordeal more severe; a brand new case of my own would have been much easier. Still, we got along fairly well together the first half of the night. He was a kindly man, and soon after midnight he insisted that I should try to get some sleep. I didn't think I'd catch a wink, but by and by I dozed off. It was a fatal sleep for me. The next morning the patient's sister told me about the snoring.

"'James could not rest at all,' she said. 'I heard you in the next room.'

"Before night I was looking for another job. Of course I did not have to give up nursing entirely, but the hard cases, where I am required to keep awake every second, are open to me. All those soft snaps that give you a chance to sleep half the night are beyond the reach of the snoring nurse."

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910—"I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended, and from the second bottle I commenced to improve. I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles—not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try Vinol. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money.

Turn to Wooden Flooring.

The use of wooden flooring is on the increase in Italy, taking the place of the former extensive demand for marble, tiling and cement. Oak, larch and pitch pine are mostly adopted, and but little, if any maple, birch or beech has been brought to the market.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. LXI. NO. 61 TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN FRIDAY FEBRUARY 9, 1912 WHOLE NO. 4101.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

PIGEON—Winsor township, located in Huron county, has voted to bond for $50,000 to build twenty-five miles of stone roads. This with the ten miles already improved will cover nearly all the main roads leading to Pigeon. On receipt of news that the bonding proposition had carried Manager W. H. Wallace of the Michigan Sugar company wired the citizens of Pigeon that there was no further doubt as to the company building a factory here. Winsor township is the only one in the county to bond for good roads.

ALLEGAN—There was pleasure and much surprise here when it was announced that Fidus E. Fish of this city had married Clara Reeve of Bay Shore, the wedding taking place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edgar Brown of Prairieville. They were schoolmates when they were children at Orangeville, but their paths parted. Mr. Fish has served Allegan as prosecuting attorney and is now one of the leading attorneys and is also proprietor of the Allegan Brick and Tile company.

EATON RAPIDS—Poisonous gas escaping from the coal stove at his home caused the death of Stephen Evans, one of Bellevue's well known citizens. When Mr. Evans awoke in the night he was so nearly overcome with the gas that filled the house, that he was barely able to telephone to the central operator, who called a physician for him. Mr. Evans was alone in the house, and had collapsed from the effects of the poisonous fumes when the doctor arrived.

LANSING—Chairman Glasgow of the Michigan state railroad commission, reports that all railroads have expressed their willingness to hustle all coal shipments over other freight shipments until the coal famine is checked. The commission desires all localities in the state that are unable to secure prompt shipments of coal to notify the commission, and their cases will be taken up with the railroad company serving them.

LANSING—The following Michigan companies have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: Tessmer Machine and Tool company, Detroit, increase from $10,000 to $20,000; Mercantile Development company, Detroit, $35,000, principal stockholder, H. P. Rosenstock; Candler and Oehring, Detroit, increase from $5,000 to $10,000; W. F. Hurd company, Detroit, increase from $25,000 to $50,000.

LANSING—George W. Dickinson, Michigan state railroad commissioner, has written the several interurban electric companies operating in the state asking them to install a sounding bell on their right of way, similar to the kind used on steam locomotives to sound a warning before highway crossings are reached. Inspector Stephen made the suggestion.

HASTINGS—Mrs. John Mulholland, who was a prominent pioneer resident of Ithaca, is dead here at the home of her son, Arthur E. Mulholland, a local merchant. Death resulted from paralysis. She was seventy-one years old and is survived by the aged husband and three sons, Homer G. of Lansing, Arthur E. of Hastings and Everett W. of Ithaca.

KALAMAZOO—At the Kalamazoo meeting of the Michigan Corn Improvement association the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles H. Sudborough, Adrian; vice president, L. L. Lawrence, Decatur; secretary treasurer, L. J. Bradley, Augusta; directors, W. F. Raven of East Lansing, and J. J. Nyenhuis of Ionia.

TYRE—A coroner's jury which has been conducting inquests to determine the cause of death of John Wesley Sparling, Sr., and his son, Peter Sparling, decided that both men came to their death from poisoning. Dean Vaughan of the University of Michigan reported he found traces of arsenic in both stomachs.

CORUNNA—The Kerby Coal Mining Co., which was organized two years ago, whose tangible property consisted of $56,000 in coal leases on lands in this county, owned principally by Tod Tincald of Detroit, has been dissolved on application of S. C. Palver, a stockholder. The company never engaged in mining.

CORUNNA—Frank E. Welsh, who was a former county clerk, for twenty years member of the school board and editor of the Corunna Journal, and a prominent Mason, died of paralysis after an illness of several years. He was born in this county sixty-four years ago and never married.

SAGINAW—Christian Westfall, forty-five years old, who was a farmer of Spalding township, died at Saginaw general hospital as a result of being crushed under a rolling log. Mr. Westfall was loading a sleigh when one of the top logs fell, pinning him to the ground.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

President Wants Investigation of High Cost of Living.

Federal construction and federal ownership of a big trunk railroad in Alaska, and a commission form of government, with other needed legislation for the far-away territory, were among the revolutionary reforms urged by President Taft in a message to congress.

In the same document he also urges the necessity for an international inquiry into the high cost of living and asks authority to invite the nations of the world to a conference in Washington, or elsewhere, to make plans for the investigation or the "high prices that have so distressed the peoples of the world."

In another division of the message President Taft also urges the appointment of a federal commission to make "searching inquiry into the subject of industrial relations."

ROBERT BACON.

Ambassador to France Who Will Be Given Remarkable Farewell.

PARIS.—Robert Bacon, the United States ambassador at Paris, is to be especially distinguished by the interparliamentary arbitration group, which has decided to hold a special session at the senate in his honor before his departure. The date has not yet been fixed. Mr. Bacon resigned his position as ambassador to France on Jan. 11, after the nomination as a member of the corporation of Harvard university.

COMPETITION FOR TROLLEY

Grand Trunk Road to Make Push for Detroit to Pontiac Business.

Pontiac, Mich., Feb. 6. — That the Grand Trunk railway is about to put into effect the plan to compete with the D. U. R. lines to Detroit from Pontiac is a story that has gained credence here. The report is received from persons claiming to be in touch with the headquarters of the road at Detroit. Local officials do not affirm or deny it.

The plan, according to the story, is to run gasoline engines with small trains between the two cities at frequent intervals. The fares charged will be such as to compete with the electric cars.

The project will require the completion of the double tracks which have been brought as far as the city limits. Their further construction is held up in the circuit court by the mayor and city attorney. Suits are pending in the court which are expected to be settled during the next term of court, which opened Monday.

MAY BE HURT BY DEADLOCK

Soft Coal Miners of Michigan Look for Disastrous Shut-Down.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 5. — Michigan and more especially Saginaw and Bay counties, are viewing the deadlock in Indianapolis between the miners and operators with much concern, as the local district is under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers, and is governed according to what takes place in the big meeting.

While it is possible that the Michigan district may sign up a scale with the operators, it is not probable. Chances are that when the Michigan district meets here in March, a general shut-down of the soft coal mines will follow.

GIRL DEAD; DOCTOR ARRESTED

Health Officer Charged with Performing an Illegal Operation.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 6.—Dr. Samuel M. Janes, health officer of Marquette, was arrested in Ishpeming, charged with having performed an operation upon Martha C. Carlson, aged eighteen, from which she died.

The girl came here on Jan. 18 and it is alleged that Dr. Janes performed the operation in his office. Her death was ascribed to pneumonia, but investigation resulted in the physician's arrest. The action was based on an ante-mortem statement of the girl.

WOMAN IS STRICKEN BLIND

Singing in Spotlight in Theater Is Probably the Cause.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 6. — The glare of a spotlight is blamed by Dr. C. W. Ryan for the blindness of Mrs. Floyd Hamilton of this city, who was stricken while singing in a theater in Kalamazoo. While not particularly optimistic, Dr. Ryan says Mrs. Hamilton may recover her sight in time. The unfortunate woman had to take up the Kalamazoo job two weeks ago when her husband lost his position with a local undertaker.

Lumbermen to Meet in Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 6.—Four hundred wholesale and retail lumbermen will assemble here in convention this week. Charles Joslyn of Detroit will deliver an address on "Federal Suits Against Lumbermen," and there will be other speeches.

DENIES MONOPOLY

United States Steel Corporation Files Its Answer In Court.

At Trenton, N. J., the big United States Steel corporation filed its answer to the petition of the federal government, in which the court was prayed to adjudge the steel company illegal and in restraint of trade.

The answer is a general denial to the allegations of the government. It defends the organization of the subsidiary companies, denies that they were formed in violation of the anti-trust act, asserts that they were a normal and necessary development of the times, and insists that instead of restraining trade or customers, they have developed and increased the same.

LA FOLLETTE IS SCORED

His Attack on Press of Country Is Resented.

The dinner at Philadelphia, Pa., of the Periodical Publishers' association did not break up until early morning and its close was marked by a tart denunciation of Senator LaFollette by Don C. Seitz of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, who acted at toastmaster.

Senator LaFollette began his speech near midnight and spoke for nearly two hours. More than 600 diners became visibly wearied and toward the close frequently interrupted the senator. Much of his speech was devoted to the money power and an attack upon sincerity of the press of the country. When he had finished Toastmaster Seitz said:

"I shall not attempt, nor have I the time, to come to the defense of the newspapers of the country, which have just been foolishly, wickedly and untruthfully assailed."

Senator LaFollette made no sign of hearing the caustic remark uttered in a half angry tone.

DENEEN INDORSED

Cook County, Illinois, Republicans Defeat Roosevelt Resolution.

In Chicago Saturday Gov. Deneen was indorsed for renomination for governor, an effort to indorse Theodore Roosevelt for the presidential nomination was defeated, a progressive platform adopted and a county ticket nominated for the primaries April 9 at the Republican county convention.

This, in brief, is what the assembled Republicans did in a well organized meeting that recalled the days when nominations were made in convention.

PERJURY WORTH $5,000

So Detective Testifies McGowan Told Him.

Following clashes between detective William J. Burns and Elbridge Hanecy, counsel for Senator Lorimer, a sensation was sprung before the senate committee when A. C. Bailey, one of Burns' operatives, took the witness stand.

Bailey testified that McGowan had told him he had demanded $5,000 of C. F. Weihe for his testimony.

"I told him he ought to have made it ten," said the detective.

"It certainly is worth $5,000 to perjure oneself," the detective quoted McGowan as having said.

Bailey testified of "operating" on Orme Stuart, McGowan's chum. McGowan first talked to Bailey about the case, the latter said, on Aug. 12, 1911, in Saskatchewan, Canada. Bailey produced notes he had made of the McGowan conversations.

On that day Bailey said McGowan criticised Stuart, saying he had caused his trouble by talking in Chicago, and had come near "queering him with the Hines people."

McGowan mentioned a man named Shields as paying him $50 about the time he went to Washington, the witness said.

"This is the Hines' company's money," the detective quoted McGowan as saying Shields had told him and Stuart in Chicago. "They have plenty of it, and are glad to spend it."

PLUNDERS A STORE; THEN STARTS A FIRE

Ashland Man Placed Under Arrest at Ontonagon.

After Causing a Blaze in a Department Store While Robbing the Till He Turns in Alarm and Helps Fight Fire.

Hancock, Mich., Feb. 5. — Albert Holter of Ashland achieved distinction and arrest in a series of circumstances which kept the town of Ontonagon stirred from early morning until late in the day.

The accusations against Holter charge him with:

Entering a department store at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

Robbing the till.

Permitting the place to catch fire from matches which he dropped.

Sounding the alarm of fire.

Working as a volunteer fireman to extinguish the blaze.

He was arrested later as he was taking a train for Ashland.

The Ontonagon police declare that Holter confessed the robbery and that stolen property was found in his possession. J. P. Donnelly, who owned the store, said the loss was $40,000. Less than $40 was in the cash drawer before the fire.

FRANKENMUTH IN ARMS

Saginaw's Meat Ordinance Hits Village Butchers.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 3. — Frankenmuth may boycott this city as a market because of the enforcement of the new meat ordinance. Under the ordinance butchers must bring their livestock into the city and have it slaughtered in the public abattoir. At a meeting of the M. and M. association in the village strenuous resolutions were adopted calling for a modification of the city ordinance, failure to comply with the request meaning a newfield for the Frankenmuth butchers.

The year's business done by the butchers with Saginaw merchants will amount to $275,000. The butchers claim that the city discriminates against them. The farmers are not barred from killing their own stock and selling it here, which is the bone of contention of the wholesale butchers.

STATE LANDS ARE BOOSTED

Public Domain Commission Decides to Double Prices.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—At a meeting of the Public Domain commission it was decided to raise the price of all state lands, and in the future the land commissioner will practically double the price of all state lands.

It was also voted to set an additional 150 acres of trees on the state forest reserve at Higgins Lake.

Michigan Patents.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Patents granted Michigan inventors: G. H. Burgess, St. Louis, safety stand pipe for gasoline stoves; J. C. Conn, Grand Rapids, best fastener; S. W. Dumouchel, Kalamazoo, combination tool; C. W. McClure, Saginaw, hoop fastening means for silos; C. L. Samp, Chelsea, wagon loader; G. R. Schimmel, Detroit, fastener for bottle stoppers; A. Schmidt, Flint, spark plug.

BLUMENBERG OUSTED FROM HIS POSITION

Lorimer Investigation Committee Acts on His Case.

Official Stenographer's Denunciation of the Detective's Dictograph Has Resulted In Causing a Great Sensation.

Milton Blumenberg, stenographer of Lorimer senatorial inquiry, held in contempt by the investigating committee because of his conduct at Saturday night's hearing, appeared before the committee. An executive session was held to determine what action should be taken.

Blumenberg's friends declare his outburst was caused by a nervous breakdown brought on by overwork, and there was some doubt as to whether he would be able to appear.

The committee, after due consideration, dismissed Blumenberg. Pending the disposition of contempt charges against him, Blumenberg will be held as a committee witness. He is also an official reporter of the proceedings of the senate, but it is said will not be employed there until the charges are cleared up.

William J. Burns, the detective, is hurrying back to the national capital as a result of the spectacular incidents which have accompanied the introduction of testimony from his agency before the senate committee. The climax came Saturday night when Blumemberg was placed under arrest for contempt in forcing an adjournment by withdrawing his corps of assistants.

Sensation denunciation by Blumenberg of the Burns dictograph record as being a carefully prepared "fake" instead of being a record taken during an actual conversation immediately preceded the arrest. E. L. Cornelius, sergeant-at-arms, was ordered to take Blumenberg into custody, permit no one to communicate with him and produce him before the committee at 10:30 a. m.

Blumenberg is declared by stenographers to be one of the best, if not the best, in the world. His opinion as an expert has weight, and he declared to the committee that he had submitted Sheridan's notes to other experts who confirmed his opinion that they were prepared leisurely. He is one of the official stenographers of the senate and half a dozen other skilled stenographers under him report the work of the Lorimer committee.

James Sheridan, the nineteen year old stenographer-detective, who was on the stand when Blumenberg was projected into the hearing, stoutly maintains that he dictograph record is a bona fide report of the "salient points" of a conversation in which Charles McGowan admitted he committed perjury before the committee and received $1,500 from the Edward Hines people for doing so. He scoffs at the assertion that the stenographic notes were not taken down at the time the conversation occurred.

In addition to the unprecedented situation of a senate committee ordering the arrest of its own official reporter, the denouncement by Blumenberg and other facts brought out in the cross-examination of the Burns agency witnesses seriously affects the evidence they secured while in the employ of the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Burns remains under subpoena of the committee and is counted on to come back to clear up the muddle.

FAMOUS NEW YORK POLITICIAN IS DEAD

State Senator Thomas A. Grady Passes Away.

First Became Widely Known Politically Following Quarrel with Governor Cleveland—"Silver Tongued Orator."

At New York Saturday State Senator Thomas F. Grady, widely known in Democratic councils in state and nation, and familiarly called "the silver-tongued orator of Tammany hall," is dead.

The senator, for many years the Democratic leader in the state senate, had been ill for several weeks and recently underwent an operation at a [illegible] where he died. His sister, Miss Margaret Grady, was with him.

Senator Grady first became widely known politically following a quarrel with Governor Cleveland. As a result Grady opposed Cleveland's nomination for president. He bolted Cleveland and took the stump for Ben Butler, and together they toured the country. Afterward Cleveland and Grady became reconciled.

Senator Grady was spokesman for Tammany hall both in the state and national conventions.

Mr. Grady was leader of the New York Democrats in the state senate for eleven years. During that time the sole duty of the Democracy was to "kick." Grady got so in the habit of it that when Murphy announced that some one else would be senate leader during the last legislature, he stubbed his toe against the Murphy resolution. His controversy with Murphy embittered his last days.

SUICIDE OF ELOPERS

Divorced Wife of W. L. Suydam and Frederick Noble Kill Selves.

In New York city Louise Lawrence White, divorced wife of Walter Lispenard Suydam, and Frederick Noble the young man with whom she eloped and whom she later married, put an end to an unhappy marriage by lying down in front of the kitchen range in their apartment at 82 West Twelfth street and turning on the gas in all of the burners.

The double suicide came about five months after the elopment of Mrs. Suydam and Frederick Noble and twenty-five days after their marriage.

The two had little happiness together since the early days of their elopement. Mrs. Suydam had confessed frankly to friends that she did not love Noble, her husband, and that she never would love any one but Mr. Suydam, whom she had forced by her elopement to divorce her.

11 DIE IN SUBMARINE

British Diving Vessel Is Sunk by Gunboat Hazard.

A British submarine sank after a collision with the British gunboat Hazard off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight.

All the eleven men on board the vessel lost their lives by the sudden inrush of water and the rapid sinking of the vessel.

The submarine, which was carrying on a series of diving and torpedo exercises, sank like a stone immediately after her collision with the Hazard.

A big escape of gas, which was observed on the surface immediately after she sank, indicates that the vessel quickly filled with water.

The submarine lies on the Princess Shoal, almost on the same spot where the submarine "A1" was lost with all hands on March 18, 1904.

TROOPS FOR FRONTIER

Commanders Get Orders to Prepare Soldiers for Mexican Border.

Major Blake, commandre at Fort Crockett, Texas, has received telegraphic instructions directing that the 104 men of the One hundred and twenty-eight company coast artillery, be prepared to take the field, with full equipment, within twenty-four hours. The One hundred and twenty-seventh company of coast artillery also is quartered at Fort Crockett.

Colonel J. A. Irons, in command of the Twentieth United States infantry at Fort Douglas, Utah, also received orders to hold his regiment in readiness for a call to the Mexican border.

Orders have been sent to Fort William Henry Harrison in Montana for the four companies of the Fourteenth infantry stationed there to hold themselves in readiness to move on an instant's notice to the Mexican border.

IONIA—Mrs. Amelia W. Jones, who was convicted recently of attempting to murder her husband by feeding him poisoned pie, was sentenced to from five to ten years in the Detroit house of correction. Her victim, Henry S. Jones, is said to be crippled for life.

BETWEEN STATIONS

By FLORENCE COWLES

Just before the train started a tall, graceful young woman hurried into the car and pre-empted the last but one remaining seat. She was accompanied by a dainty morsel of girlhood apparently about four years of age. The morsel heaved a sigh of relief quite disproportionate to her size as she was deposited on the seat by the tall young woman.

"Ve catched it, didn't ve, auntie," she fluttered joyously.

"Yes, dear," was the quiet reply of the tall young woman, as she loosened her furs in preparation for the ride.

The Morsel wriggled a little, then settled herself to her liking and began leisurely to inspect her fellow passengers. Her bright brown eyes, under the contrasting charm of sunny, daffodil hair, flitted with interested curiosity from one to another, resting finally on all that was visible below a newspaper of an evidently masculine entity directly across the aisle.

There seemed to be something vaguely familiar to her about the legs which accommodated their goodly length as best they might to the somewhat cramped space allotted to them, for the puzzled gaze returned to them again and she tried unavailingly to obtain a peep at the face which the newspaper hid.

At last her patience was rewarded, for the paper was lowered a trifle, as the hidden reader turned a leaf.

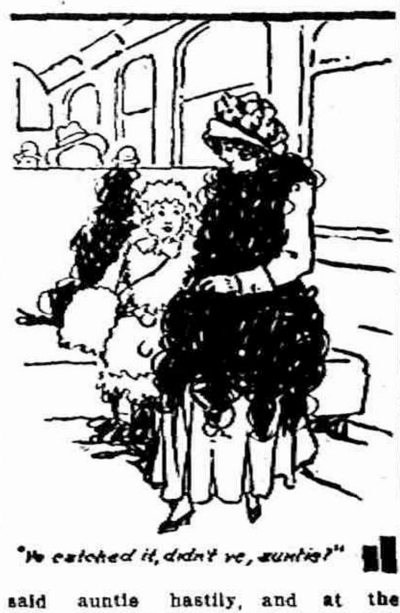
"Oh, Mr. Walph!" the Morsel cried ecstatically, "I fought it was you, but I couldn't tell for sure-tainly 'count of yat old newspaper."

"Why, good morning, Katherine," responded the young man with feigned surprise, raising his hat in response to the chilly little bow of The Morsel's companion. "You are an early bird this morning."

His attempted retreat into the newspaper was promptly thwarted by The Morsel.

"Fy don't you tum over here and talk to auntie and me?" she queried wonderingly.

"Don't annoy Mr. Gale, Katherine,"



"Ve catched it, didn't ve, auntie?"

said auntie hastily, and at the same time, "I fear I should disturb you and—your auntie," said the young man.

The Morsel was equal to both reproof and excuse.

"Why, auntie, it don't never 'noy Mr. Walph to have me talk to him." And, Mr. Walph, sedately, "auntie and I would be p'eased to see you. P'ease tum," she coaxed, "I 'sist upon it."

"Oh, well," Gale laughed, "when ladies insist of course there's only one thing to do."

A faint flush in auntie's fair face told that the double entendre was not lost. Gale reversed the seat in front of his friends, and prepared to devote himself to The Morsel. Auntie bit her lip in silent vexation.

"Now, Mr. Walph," began the tiny dea ex machina, "I is going to 'cold you."

"Scold me? Why, what have I done?" in mock terror.

His mentor summoned all the austerity at her command.

"You made my auntie c'y," she said reproachfully. "Oo—oo, auntie, don't pinch my arm so tight."

"I? Oh, no, I guess not," replied the uncomfortable Gale with a surprised glance at auntie's now very pink cheeks. The Morsel nodded vehement assertion.

"I s'ept wiv her last night and she c'ied and 'cied a long, long time when she fought I was all s'eep, and I heard her say 'Walph, Walph!'"

"Katherine!" exclaimed Auntie in an agony of mingled appeal, reproach and accusation. Then haughtily to the man: "Mr. Gale, you will make allowances for the utter irrelevance in a child's notion of cause and effect."

"I am sure Katherine and I understand each other perfectly," was the calm reply.

A new expression had dawned in Ralph Gale's gray eyes, but he forbore to scrutinize auntie's confusion. He changed the subject.

"Look here, Katherine, who is your best little boy friend?"

"Well, I fink—Cagol Hunt."

"Carol Hunt, eh? He's a fine little boy. Do you ever quarrel with him?"

"No, but sometimes he q'arrels wiv me."

Gale retreated with loss, conscious of a wicked expression in auntie's eyes. He rallied.

"But isn't the quarrel sometimes your fault?"

"Well, he didn't oughted to care if I do p'ay wiv uvver little boys sometimes," pouted The Morsel.

"Oh, fie, Katherine! and you so young! How is Carol to know that you like him best, if you play with other little boys?"

"I telled him so once, and he oughted to b'lieve me always; didn't he auntie?" The Morse appealed persistently.

"He certainly ought," confirmed auntie. But her voice was not at all aggressive; it was low and pleading.

"Two women against one poor man! The odds are overwhelming! But tell me, Katherine, how do you and Carol make up your quarrels?"

"Oh, I say, I'se sowwy, Cawol, and ven he says I'se sowwy, to Kaf'rine,' and ven it's all wight again, you see."

"Yes, I see," said Gale. It was his turn to be triumphant now, but he was merciful instead.

"Come over here and look at pictures out of the window," he invited, and lifted The Morsel lightly to his lap. The flying pictures absorbed and delighted her for awhile, and auntie devoted herself to her shopping list, obstinately oblivious of the pleading glances cast at her over the top of her niece's hat.

"Oh, look!" cried The Morsel excitedly, as they whirled past a schoolhouse. "See all ve 'ittle childs p'aying. Don't you wish you had some 'ittle childs, Mr. Walph?" turning to him in sudden pity.

"Indeed I do," was the almost reverent reply.

"Well, I'll be your 'ittle child," The Morsel assured him comfortingly, as she nestled cozily against him and slipped one soft little hand into his.

"Why, what is this, Katherine? something new?"

"Oh, yes, vat's my new wing auntie gived me. Pitty, isun't it?"

"Very pretty. Did auntie—"

"Oh-oo!" gurgled The Morsel, jerked upright by the suddenness of an exciting memory. "Did you know auntie had losted her wing, vvat pitty twinkley one?"

"Come over here, Katherine, and let me arrange your hat?" interposed auntie hastily. But The Morsel hardly heard, in her absorption, and Gale, who heard, did not heed.

"Has she, indeed? Where did she lose it?"

"In ve drawing room last night. And vis morning I cwawledd all wound ve floor but I couldn't find it, not no-'fere." And the yellow head shook disconsolately.

"Perhaps she will find it again," Gale encouraged her.

"I fraid not. She says she can't find it, not never, and she doesn't look for it."

"Katherine," coaxed auntie, with flaming cheeks, "I think there are some candies in my bag."

But Destiny's diminutive cat's-paw was oblivious to even sugary seduction in her disinterested concern for auntie's welfare.

"Perhaps, after all, you didn't look in the right place for it. I know a place where it might be," and Gale whispered something in The Morsel's shell-like ear.

She gazed at him with round, incredulous eyes, but obediently slipped her hand into a certain inner pocket of his coat. She drew it out with a shout of delight.

"Auntie! Auntie! I finded your twinkley wing!" she cried rapturously.

"No, Katherine, that is Mr. Gale's ring," said auntie with downcast eyes.

The Morsel looked dubiously at the ring and then at Gale.

"Fere did you find it?" she demanded.

"In the drawing room last night," he assured her.

"Ven it is your wing, auntie. Here!" and she thrust the ring imperiously toward her aunt.

Auntie hesitated. Then slowly she looked up and met Gale's imploring eyes.

"Bridgehaven! Bridgehaven!" roared the brakeman, letting in a chaos of sounds and cinders through the half-opened door.

The Morsel suddenly found herself on her feet, and quite neglected for a moment in the general confusion. But her bright eyes held a satisfied gleam as she saw Mr. Ralph slip the "twinkley wing" on auntie's finger, though her ears did not catch the low "I'm sorry, Ralph," "I'm sorry, too, Marjorie."

Census Statistics.

The relative increase in population is not as great as it was a century or two ago for obvious reasons. According to records of 1816 the estimated population of the United States in 1810 was 7,000,000. Statisticians of that day figured that the population would double every 23 years, but such has not been the case. Had the increase fulfilled that prediction the country would have had a population of 112,000,000 ten years ago.

These pioneer statisticians of 1816 estimated that in 1880 the country should have a population of more than 56,000,000. The official census for that year, however, put the figures at 50,155,783. The estimate for 1902—112,000,000—was also far afield, the official census of two years earlier showing a population of only 76,303,000.

Great Cleverness.

"Would you call Biggins a clever man?"

"Certainly," replied Miss Cayenne. "He is not intellectual, but he is wonderfully clever in concealing the fact from strangers."

The President Laughed.

President Taft, who has difficulty in keeping his weight down to 300 pounds, often cracks a joke or gets off a witticism about his size. One afternoon, as he was leaving the White House to take a horseback ride, he met a group of newspaper correspondents, and among them was Matthew Tighe, an old friend.

After greetings had been exchanged, Mr. Taft looked down at his legs encased in leggings which emphasized the girth of the limbs. He struck his left leg a resounding blow with his riding-crop, and, turning to Tighe, asked with a smile:

"What do you think of that, Matt?"

"That," said Tighe, grinning, "would do credit to any piano ever manufactured."

And the loudest laugh about it came from the president.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Fishing at Biarritz.

In the neighborhood of Biarritz in southwestern France an original method of taking fish from the sea has been invented by the inhabitants along shore. Two poles forty or fifty feet tall and placed eight or nine yards apart are erected on the beach.

By means of pulleys a continuous line running over the tops of the poles and attached also to the top of another pole placed 500 yards out in the sea can be alternately drawn either shoreward or seaward.

Short lines with hooks and bait hang from the main line, and when they are loaded with fish the fisherman, sitting by his little cabin on shore, draws in his "take," rebaits his hooks and by pulling in the opposite direction replaces the row of baited lines in the sea. This apparatus is called a "va et vient" or "go and come."—Youth's Companion.

Realism Indeed.

Jinks—How was the new play last night?

Minks—Biggest thing yet. One scene shows Broadway natural as life; wonderful thing, wonderful! Real wagons, real horses, real paving stones, real excavations, real dirt and genuine imported Italians digging at it.—New York Weekly.

TECUMSEH BOY A POET

We clip the following from The Sunday Chicago Examiner.

A new answer to Rudyard Kipling's attack on the "Female of the Speices" has been written by LaVerne F. Wheeler, Internal Revenue Inspector, who has offices in the Chicago federal building.

Mr. Wheeler does not spare the lash in his spirited attack on the assailant of womankind. His poem follows:

"The Female of Her Species"

By LaVern F. Wheeler.

(With Apologies to No One)

When the Russian Bear goes growling to'ards a weaker nation's throne,
And the Cossacks mount their ponies and their victims lie and moan,
Then the horrors that will follow
  when the carnage doth prevail Proves the female of her species can't be deadlier than the male.

When the British Lion rages as he casts his greedy eyes
On a neighbor's fair possession that he fancies he would prize,
And his minions scatter havoc by his ever bloody trail,
You can see that never female was as deadly as the male.

When the Turks go after Christians with no mercy for their wives;
When they burn and when they slaughter,
  caring naught for human lives,
It is never Turkish women who are fiends in human guise,
'Tis the male who gluts his passions as his wretched victim dies.

When you walk along the "levee," where you see the painted face,
And the eyes that must appall you if
  of pity you've a trace,
You will realize what brought her where no tears are of avail,
And no female of her species can be deadly as the male.

Everywhere that man has power that he wields without restraint,
You will find the most corruption with the mercenary taint,
He will sacrifice the woman 'till she rots without the pale,
And he proves that women never is as deadly as the male.

When you read of prison horrors and the jailer's cruel lash;
When you read of far Siberia, where the rifle's sudden crash
Tells that some poor wretch has fallen with a last and piercing wail,
You'll believe that never female was as deadly as the male.

Stock yard millions that are builded from a toil that each one knows
Is exacted from the poor ones that are helpless in their woes,
Proves the truth of my assertion, and
  I know it cannot fail
That the female of her species ne'er is deadly as the male.

If the female of her species sometimes steeps her soul in crime,
And no matter where she does it, and no matter where the crime,
If you trace her whole life closely,
  just as closely as you can,
You will find that nearly always you can blame it on a man.

Were it not for woman's pity and her greater moral worth
Man would soon become a demon and depopulate the earth!
I believe the boor who'd class her with the bear and the snake
Should be taught to see his error; it is time he should awake.

He it is befouls his mother who in anguish gave him birth!
Likens her unto the cobra, deadliest thing that crawls the earth!
Where's "the God of Abstract Justice" that he makes not Kipling quail
For his lying slur on women? Who so deadly as this male?

He it is whose speech is poison, he whose tongue with venom dips!
He whose smile may mean destruction as come sweet words 'tween his lips!
He the man who is the coward, fearing woman soon may rise
And confound the brazen creature who'd besmirch her with his lies!

Itching, torturing skin eruptions disfigure, annoy, drive one wild, Doan's Ointment brings quick relief and lasting cures. Fifty cents at any drug store.

A LIBERAL OFFER

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store.—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Leisurely Moose Hunting.

The most leisurely method of moose hunting chronicled during the present season is that pursued by a Mars Hill veteran hunter and woodsman, Humphrey Bridges.

Several hours' walk from camp brought him in sight of a hill on which he saw what looked like a pronged stump. He stood five minutes speculating, then crept nearer and looked again. The object did not move. Creeping six or seven rods, he saw the supposed stump moving slightly and then a large tongue flopping alongside the dark place revealed the identity of a moose.

He aimed for the neck of the animal and fired. The moose rose to his feet and ran. When Bridges reached the spot where the animal had lain he found blood. He sat down, filled his pipe and reasoned that the moose could not last over an hour. He therefore walked slowly on, keeping close to the trail, and found the moose lying down in a lumber road a mile and a half away from the place where he was shot. The moose reared on his front legs, but could not pull his hind legs under him, and half stood with head lowered for battle until another bullet ended the struggle.—Kennebec Journal.

OBITUARIES

Hannah Allen

Hannah Pennington was born Sept. 19, 1842, at Wheatland, Hillsdale Co., Michigan and departed this life Jan. 31, 1912, she was united in marriage to Daniel Allen Sept. 19, 1864 and to this union were born 4 children Frank Allen of Jackson, W. E. Allen of Britton, Laner Allen of Toledo, Mrs. Jennie Bachman of Ridgeway, two brothers Wesley and Joseph Pennington of Grand Rapids are left to mourn her loss.

She was an affectionate wife and a kind and loving mother. Her life has been one of sunshine which has made for her a host of friends. Her departing words were peaceful rest, sweet sleep, shinging stars. The days are passing, our hearts are sore, as time goes on, we miss her more.

A Precious one from us has gone,
  A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
  Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled
  The boon His love had given;
And though the body slumbers now
  The soul is safe in Heaven.

CARD OF THANKS

To the kind friends and neighbors who gave us their sympathy and aid during the sickness and death of our loved one and to all for the beautiful flowers, also the pastors for their kind words, we desire to tender our sinceje thanks preying that the blessing of him who said "bear ye one another burdens may rest upon them.

Moore Watson

Moore Watson was born in Antrim county, Ireland, in 1830, and departed this life Februrry 2, 1912, at the home of his son Smiley Watson of Macon, having reached his eighty-second year.

He was married in 1854 to Elizabeth Darrh. To this union five children were born: William, who died three years ago, James and David of Tecumseh, Smiley of Macon and Mrs. Elizabeth Usborn of Phoenix, Arizona. Mrs. Watson passed away six years ago.

Mr. Watson came to America in 1884, settling in Tecumseh, living here four years. He then moved to Macon where he spent the remainder of his life.

Mr Watson was a kind father and neighbor and was highly respected by all who knew him. His funeral was held at the home, with burial in Brookside cemetery.

COUNTY R. F. D

Met Sunday, January 3, at Adrian Post Office.

Their was a fair attendance at the social meeting of the mail carriers at Adrian last Sunday. The principle talk was by Mayor Joslin on the good roads question. This was followed by a history of the rural delivery by W. C. Moran. 1898 marked the establishment of the first rural routes in the county, Ridgeway and Tipton being first with two routs. The increase has been wonderful. After a short business session they adjourned to meet the first Sunday in May at the Tecumseh office.

Many ills come from impure blood. Can't have pure blood with faulty digestion, lazy liver and sluggish bowles. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens stomach, bowels and liver, and purifies the blood.

Finnan Haddie.

Baked—Wash the fish, put flesh side down in dripping pan covered with cold water, let stand on back of range ten minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. Place on platter, cover with milk and bake 20 minutes.

Croquettes—Prepare fish as for baked finnan haddie. Take the fish, moisten with thick white sauce. Shape in croquettes, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs, and fry in deep fat.

In Chafing Dish—Soak fish over night, then boil one hour and a half, pick and bone it and put in chafing dish cream sauce made as follows: Tablespoon butter, two tablespoons flour melted together; add hot milk, about one pint and a half (to make the right consistency), pour over the fish and heat thoroughly in chafing dish about twenty minutes.

Turkey Stew.

Cut the turkey from the bones and divide it into neat pieces. Heat the gravy left over, diluting it with hot water or with weak stock if the supply is too small. Season with salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce or catsup, and put the meat into the gravy when this is boiling hot. When the meat has simmered in it for ten minutes add a tablespoonful of cranberry or currant jelly, thicken with a little browned flour and serve either on toast or fried bread, with triangles of this arranged around the edge of the Turkey Rack Soup.

Break up the carcass of the turkey, put with it all the bits of gristle, skin and trimmings, pour over two quarts of cold water, set over the fire and simmer for three hours, closely covered. Put aside until cold, skim and strain and chop fine all the meat which may have cooked from the bones. Add to this and the soup the stuffing, rubbed through a colander, a stalk of celery, a sliced onion and a sprig of parsley. Cook together for an hour, add to it a cupful of hot milk, which has been thickened with a tablespoonful of butter, boil up once and serve.

In the turkey rack soup of my youth there were always delicious tidbits of turkey floating, which made it far more "filling" than the ordinary soup served at the first course of a dinner.

SOCIAL EVENTS

INSTALLATION OF MACCABEES MONDAY EVENING

The Knights of the Maccabees had a good attendance Monday evening for their installation ceremonies Deputy Great Commander Robert Rattray of Saginaw being the installing officer.

A short program of music and speeches followed.

Prominent among the speakers were Messrs. Hicks and Culver of Hillsdale and Dept Rattray of Saginaw.

Refreshments were served after which dancing filled in the passing hours. Miss Hazel Fisk of Clinton with Clarence Witherell and Percy Heidenreich composed the orchestra.

GRANGE MEETING.

Lodge No. 166—Saturday, February 3, 1912.

Tecumseh Grange, No. 166, had a day meeting on Saturday last about 75 members being present. The first great event on the program was the pot luck dinner which was enjoyed by all. After this was dispensed with W. M. John T. Boyce called the meeting to order and the committees for the ensuing year were appointed:

Executive — Dr. C. A. Waldron, Brothers Newsome and VanDoren.

Legislative—Bros. A. W. Mills, C. H. Bramble, and B. Hurry.

Entertainment — Mesdames Ella Sheldon, R. B. Gillespie, Milburn Keyser, Fannie Bryan and C. H. Bramble.

Finance— Bros. Harry A. Smith, Will Waldron and S. W. Cadmus.

At the close of the business a fine program was given consisting of recitation and song, with an entertaining lecture by Dr. North on the Microscope. The grange gave the Dr. a rising vote of thanks.

A special meeting of the Grange will be held this evening to confer degrees. Next regular meeting will be a day meeting on Saturday, Feb. 17.

Merry-Go-Round

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith entertained the Merry go-round at their pleasant home on Tuesday evening. Five tables of "63" were played, Mrs. Herbert Temple and Wade Jones carrying away the prizes. At the close of the games refreshments were served and the guests departed at a late hour having spent a most delightful evening.

Jolly 16.

The Jolly 16 club met with Mr. and Mrs. Guy E Belding Wednesday evening. Four tables of cards were played The prize-winners were Mrs. G. J. Ziehr and Mrs. Lester Rogers. The next on the program after the games were finished was refreshments which were enjoyed by all.

NEW AND OLD DISHES

FOR THE FAMILY DINNER OR DELECTATION OF GUESTS.

Lemon Sponge a Special Delicacy With Which to Finish a Meal—Cookies Made With Sour Cream—Beaten Steak.

For a lemon sponge mix a cupful of sugar with the juice of four lemons. Beat the yolks of four eggs and add them to the mixture. Thin out with one cupful and a half of water and cook until it begins to grow thick. Then add enough melted gelatine to stiffen it when it becomes cold. Strain the mixture into a mold, and just as it begins to stiffen fold in the whites of four eggs beaten to a stiff froth. If English gelatine is used four good tablespoonfuls will usually be enough.

Delicious cookies are made with sour cream. Beat half a liberal cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar. Add two eggs and a cupful of sour cream. Flavor with half a grated nutmeg and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Add a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a spoonful of water and half a teaspoonful of salt. Stir in enough sifted flour to make a dough that can be rolled out. Let it stand a few minutes, then lightly flour the molding board, dip out a big lump of the dough and turn it into cookies, using as little flour as possible for rolling. After this batch is cut into cookies dip out some more, and so on until all is used. In this way not so much flour is likely to be needed, as when the whole mass is turned out at once on the board, and, of course, the less flour used in rolling out the cookies the better they are.

For southern beaten steak, a cheap but juicy piece of meat is used. Cut the meat into small steaks the size of the hand. Season each piece highly with salt and pepper. Then pound each piece until it is almost literally a rag. Roll up each and dip in cornmeal. Fry in very hot suet and serve at once for breakfast, with coffee and rolls or corn pone.

For another "breakfast steak" pound a piece of round steak until the toughest fibers are broken, then rub it with lemon juice and double it over. Pound it again and sprinkle with salt. Fold it over again, pound a third time if desired, and fold yet again. It should now be about an inch and a quarter in thickness. Press it a little to make it adhere and have the edges of uniform thickness. Rub with a little flour, broil like any other steak and spread with butter.

Out of the Ordinary.

An M. P. was discussing voting frauds—impersonation and the duplication of votes generally. He instanced one duplicator, an ignorant fellow who had the stolid and unmoved look of an animal.

"When they arrested him he asked what crime lay at his door.

"'You are charged,' said the policeman, 'with having voted twice.'

"'Charged, am I?' muttered the prisoner. 'That's odd. I expected to be paid for it.'"—Watchdog. London.

NORTHWESTERN UNITED DOCTORS OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AN ASSOCIATION OF PROMINENT PHYSICIANS GIVING FREE MEDICAL SERVICES TO THE SICK AND MEDICINES AT COST.

At Hotel Barrett Wednesday February 21st One Day Only.

The Northwestern United Doctors, largest doctor specialists in the United States practicing in Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, organized and licensed by the states for the purpose of treating diseases, deformities and all curable ailments without surgical operation. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result to their friends, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted that at last treatments have been discovered that are absolutely sure and certain in their effect.

By their developed system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, kidney stones, tumors, goiter, piles or cancer. They were among the first in America to do away with the knife, blood and pain in the successful treatment and cure of these dangerous diseases.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys and bladder rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, leg ulcers, epilepsy, or fits, etc., all treated with gratifying success.

Selected cases of consumption, asthma, bronchitis and catarrhal diseases absolutely cured with combination of medicine, hygiene, diet, exercise and and the important uses and advantages of clothes, occupation, etc

Many cases of deafness are frequently cured in sixty days. Loss of sight, cataract, granulated lips and old weak watery, sore eyes treated successfully. In long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, a treatment that is absolutely certain in its effects can be had and depended on.

Eczema, salt rheum, eruptions, liver spots and chronic diseases of the skin quickly cured. An absolute guarantee in every case accepted for treatment.

Patients with cancer, tumor and tuberaular glands not larger than one to two inches usually cured with their hypodermic injection method, without pain.

Patients with growths larger than two inches are not invited to call.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others have told you, no matter what experience you have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to treat with the Northwestern United Doctors Specialists. Even if your case is incurable they will give you such advice that will relieve you and stay the disease.

Do not put off this duty you owe yourself, your friends, and your relatives, it may save your life.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble, bring a two once bottle of your urine for analysis.

Hours 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

Wednesday was the regular day for the ladies missionary meeting of the Baptist church, and that morning at 9:30 three sleigh loads of people went out to pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ives. They came with baskets laden with food for a pot-luck dinner; after every one had been well supplied in that direction, the President of the society called the meeting to order and after a short business session, Mrs. Kay presented an interested program on Foreign missions, Mrs. Helen McNiel read a paper, Miss Nettie Pierce a story ond Mrs Jessie Sheldon a select reading. Every one always has a good time when they go to this home, and Wednesday was no exception to the rule. They left for home about four o'clock, assuring the host and hostess they would surely come again another year.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

TRICKS OF DEBATERS

SUBTERFUGES TO WHICH OVER EAGER CONTENDERS RESORT.

Deliberate Misquoting of Authorities Sometimes Resorted To—Penalty for Dishonesty in College Debates Is Severe.

Debating has shortcomings, even dangers. It is easy, for example, to manufacture evidence with little likelihood of detection. However, the penalty of such dishonesty when discovered is most severe, a writer in the Century states. In a debate in 1907 one of the speakers deliberately misquoted an authority. An unusually shrewd opponent walked over to the desk of his rival, picked up the book and read the statement exactly as it had been quoted. Then he continued: "Honorable judges, the gentlemen read the sentence as if it were punctuated with a period at this point. As a matter of fact the punctuation is a comma." He then read the final clause, showing the real intent of the authority, which was exactly opposite to the interpretation given by his opponent. The result was disaster for the dishonest debater.

There are still more subtle forms of dishonesty. Dozens of requests pour in from colleges and high schools upon every prominent debating team, offering to buy, rent or borrow material. A typical letter read:

"Dear Sir: We understand that your university debated the question of commission government last spring. We shall be glad to procure a set of the speeches made and will pay any reasonable price."

Unless such dishonesty can be prevented it will soon bring deserved condemnation to an honorable sport. Reputable institutions are refusing either to sell or buy material.

A third form of dishonesty sometimes arises. Coaches too frequently are far more responsible for the argument presented than are the debaters themselves. One debating coach has made a special study of trade unions for ten years. He began in his school debates, followed it out in his college contests, and finally, taking charge of a college team, gave them three carefully prepared speeches to memorize. Thus his students received none of the value which comes of working up a case. They were parrots, nothing more. For this evil there are two possible remedies. Many colleges, among them Stanford, the University of California and Swarthmore, rightly throw the burden of preparation entirely upon the debaters, doing away with all coaching and trusting to the honor of their opponents to do likewise. Still better is reducing the time of preparation from three months to six weeks. Stanford and California pursue this method in their annual Carnot medal debates, which are models of the best debating in the country. The actual debating deteriorates under shorter preparation, but the exercise becomes far less academic and more nearly like the occasions of every day life. The debates under this system are contests not of voluminous research but of individual constructive thinking. Above all, this plan places the men upon their own responsibility, and as far as possible eliminates opportunities for dishonesty.

Accuracy and Honesty.

"Accuracy is the twin brother of honesty; inaccuracy, of dishonesty."
—C. Simmons.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 315 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 409 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

Probate Court for the County Lenawee.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian on the 31st day of January, in the year one thousand, nine hundred and twelve.

Present, HARRY L. LARWILL, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the estate of ALICE B. HARDENBURGH deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Louis M. Hardenburgh son of said deceased, praying that an instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased may be duly proved and admitted to probate, and that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner, the executor named in said instrument, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered that Monday, the 26th day of February next at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petion.

And it is further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Commissioners.

FROM PEARS AND APPLES

Two Delicious Salads May Be Made of Materials Almost Always Procurable in Some Way.

Two excellent salads are available with the pears still in market and with red winter apples. For the apples hollow some pretty ones out to form cups and let these stand in water with a little lemon juice squeezed into them until serving time. Mix some of the apple pulp with cut up celery and grapefruit and stir in some good mayonnaise. Fill the apple cups (after drying thoroughly) with this mixture. Decorate them with maraschino cherries stuffed with hazel nuts. Serve with toasted crackers and cream cheese.

For the pear version peel three or four large ripe pears, cut them in halves lengthwise and core them. Simmer gently (they must not become quite soft, but merely approach tenderness) in water containing just a little sugar. Use the sugar in proportion of one tablespoonful to two cups of water and flavor with the juice of a lemon. Drain, cool and lay the pears upon the salad mixture suggested for the apple salad, omitting, of course, the apple.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME"

By H. GUNNISON

Since his arrival at the age of reasoning Peterkins Ethelred Padlock had bitterly resented his name. Peterkins he had found impossible; Ethelred was worse, because his hair was more than auburn, and Padlock was almost as bad.

During his age of schooling he had felt its ignominious pressure and had answered principally to the name of Paddy. It was not, however, until he began his business career, with an opportunity to start on the bottom round of a mercantile ladder, that he realized the serious disadvantage his appellation might prove to him.

"Well, young man, what can I do for you?" sharply inquired the manager, leaning back for a moment in his swivel chair.

P. E. Padlock laid his card and letter of introduction before him, but the manager swept them aside impatiently.

"Those things are no use," he remarked dryly. "What can you do?"

"Well, I should like to get a chance—"

"I didn't ask you what you wanted, I asked you what you could do," sarcastically interrupted the busy man.

"I don't know whether I know how to do anything in your line at the present time, but I can learn anything there is to know," replied P. Padlock with spirit, heartily resenting what he considered the manager's impertinence.

"Your spirit's all right, anyhow. Want to go to work now? What's your name?"

"Mr. Padlock," glancing suggestively at his card, with which the manager was impatiently tpaping the desk.

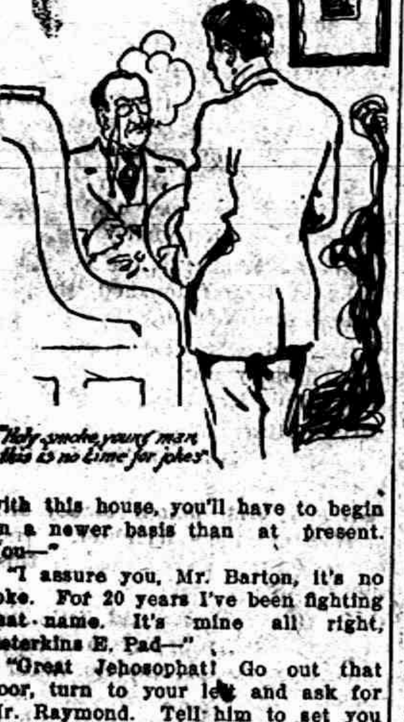
"Yes, yes; but we don't 'Mister' folks here. What's the 'P' for?"

"Peter—Peterkins."

The manager stared. "Humph!" he finally grunted. "Guess we'll fall back on the 'E.'"

"That's worse," stammered the applicant miserably. "It's Ethelred."

"Holy smoke, young man, this is no time for jokes. If you want a job with this house, you'll have to begin on a newer basis than at present. You—"



"Holy smoke, young man this is no time for jokes"

"I assure you, Mr. Barton, it's no joke. For 20 years I've been fighting that name. It's mine all right, Peterkins E. Pad—"

"Great Jehosophat! Go out that door, turn to your left and ask for Mr. Raymond. Tell him to set you to work—and tell him your name is John."

P. E. Padlock worked faithfully for three years, gaining more and more the confidence and trust of his employers. Then occurred an incident for which he was totally unprepared and which plunged him into alternate periods of bliss and despair. He fell in love.

Having asked the fatal question and being assured by the lady of his heart's choice that her affection was undying and nothing could part them, he wended his way one night to the place of her abode, with the ring which was to seal the bargain.

"Do you like it, dear," he asked, with lover-like eagerness.

"It's beautiful," she cried, and drawing his head down she whispered, "Thank you—John."

Poor P. E. awoke with a shock. He had forgotten that she did not know the horrible name which would have to be written upon the marriage records.

"Louise, dear," he began, his throat dry and his tongue reluctant, "would it make any difference to you if my name were not 'John'—if it were something not at all nice?"

"John—what do you mean?"

"Would it?" he insisted desperately.

"Of course not, but why?"

"Because it isn't. It's—it's—Peterkins."

For a moment Louise loked at him in blank amazement; then as she viewed the six feet of strong, substantial manhood before her and contrasted it with the mental picture called forth by the diminutive "Peterkins," an uncontrollable desire to laugh possessed her, and despite his downcast appearance and the fear of wounding him, she laughed until she could laugh no more.

"Please forgive me," she said finally. "I didn't mean to hurt you, but it's so funny. It doesn't matter, anyway; I'll call you by your middle name instead."

"But that's worse," rebelliously replied Peterkins, in a phraseology which had grown mechanical. "It's Ethelred."

"Mr. Padlock, are you serious?"

Poor P. E. could only nod his head in dumb misery.

"Then you may most certainly consider the engagement broken. I could not tie myself to a name like that for the remainder of my life. Of course, I know it isn't your fault, but why—oh, why didn't you tell me—before I got to loving you so. Oh! please go away!"

Blindly he staggered from the house. A numbness seemed to hold him in its grasp and he had no goal or aim.

Suddenly to his dull senses came the swift thud of hoofs, a shout of people shouting, and then he became suddenly conscious of a horse, with nostrils distended and eyes madly aflame, bearing down upon him, while beyond the animal's head he caught one glimpse of a small white face, tense and drawn with fear.

"It doesn't matter, anyhow," flashed through his awakened brain, as he made a leap for the bridle. A pull, as if his arm was being wrenched from its socket, a sickening thud of his head upon the paving, and then a blank unconsciousness fell upon him.

Upon awakening, he felt at first no surprise to find himself at home, but as memory returned, questions insistent and impatient demanded answer.

With clearer thoughts, too, came realization of his loss, and he turned his face to the wall and groaned aloud. A cool hand smoothed the damp hair from his forehead.

"Are you in pain, dear?" questioned a familiar voice. He endeavored to turn toward her, but a sharp pain and an arrangement of cords and bandages told him the truth.

"You here?" he cried in amazement.

"Yes, dear. Can you ever forgive me? But you mustn't talk and you musn't move. I cannot stay here if you do. The doctor said so."

"But, Louise, I want to know all about it. What is the matter with me. Surely I haven't got to lie here, strapped up in this confounded thing—and pretty soon you'll be going and I'll be left alone. This is the time when a fellow misses his mother."

He was rapidly working himself into a fever. The girl laid her hand upon his head and whispered to him shyly. With a look of unbelief, followed by happy surprise, he nodded his head.

"Now you are to go to sleep," she told him with a smile.

"Louise, you're not fooling me, are you, just to make me go to sleep? You wouldn't play a joke on a sick man, would you?"

"No, dear, I'm not joking. I'm quite serious," answered the girl, and with a contented smile he turned his face toward the wall and slept.

An hour later a grave and reverend person stood beside the sick bed. "Do you," he continued, after the preliminary portion of the ceremony and the sweet reply of the girl; "do you, Petered Ethelkins Padlock, take—"

Upon being corrected, the worthy man made humble apologies and again proceeded. "And do you, Peterlock Ethelkins Padred, take this—"

Mortified and ashamed, the poor man asked that the name be written down and the ceremony was completed without further incident.

Peterkins, the innocent cause of so much humiliation, for once cared nothing at all for his cognomen.

"I mind only for your sake," he murmured, as he drew her to him.

"And I mind not at all," she returned, her eyes shining, "so long as I have you."

After a few moments he asked: "Louise, what name did they put in the papers?"

"P. E. Padlock," answered his wife, smiling.

"Thank goodness, Louise, I guess you'd better always call me John."

WOMAN HAD BUSINESS IDEAS

Her Grand Opening Started Her Well on the Road That Led to Prosperity.

"Everybody who starts a new business or furbishes up an old one has an opening," a woman said. "The very nicest opening I ever attended was advertised with masterly mysteriousness. Handbills containing the announcement, 'Grand opening at 157 Blank street, November 4,' were distributed about the neighborhood. Not a hint as to what was going to be opened or who would open it, which made it all the more interesting.

"By November 4 curiosity had mounted to fever heat. Early in the morning I hurried around to No. 157. It was a well-kept tenement. In the hall stood a little girl who passed out the information that the opening was in the third floor back. The show consisted of a long table spread with the most beautifully laundered clothes you ever saw. They had been washed and ironed by the woman who engineered the opening. She wanted work.

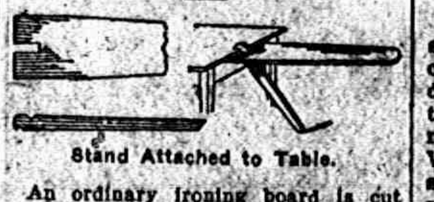
"Her husband had run away and left her to take care of four little children. Just to show what she could do in the laundering line she had done up every stitch of washable clothes she and the children possessed and offered them as samples of her skill. An accommodating neighbor had printed and distributed the handbills, curiosity drew the crowd, and before the opening was over she had enough customers to keep her busy every day in the week."

Slogans.

"Nobody says 'shop early' now."

"No," replied Mr. Growcher. "The admonition has been changed to 'please remit.'"

IRONING-BOARD STAND.



Stand Attached to Table.

An ordinary ironing board is cut square on the large end and a slot cut one and one-half inches wide and four inches long to admit the angle support. The support is placed against the table and the board is pressed down against the outer notch which jams against the table, thus holding the board rigid and in such a position as to give free access for ironing dresses, etc.—T. L. Gray, San Francisco, Cal., in Popular Mechanics.

Palatable Dish.

For individual serving, boiled cauliflower broken into suitable size to fill ramekins or scallop shells makes an attractive and palatable vegetable, each serving covered with a generous portion of white sauce, over which cheese is grated.

Cake Won't Stick.

If new cake pans are put on top of the stove until they have a bluish color, but not until they become burned, cake will not stick to them during the baking, as it usually does to new tin.

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910—"I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended, and from the second bottle I commenced to improve. I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles—not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try Vinol. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money.

FRIGHTEN BY CRY OF INTERVENTION

Effort to Induce Mexican Rebels to Lay Down Arms.

PROCLAMATION BY GONZALEZ

Acting Governor of Chihuahua Warns Against Another Reign of Bloodshed and Increase in Number of Widows and Orphans.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 12.—The spectre of American intervention is being held up to the rebels in northern Mexico in an effort to have them lay down their arms and become peaceable citizens.

Aurelliano Gonzales, acting governor of Chihuahua, issued a proclamation to the people of the revolting state and had it telegraphed to the most remote sections.

The proclamation warns of possible intervention by the United States and calls attention to the blood that was shed in the recent Madero revolution, "our late fratricidal war" he calls it, and then urges the people in the name of the fatherland they love to "lay down their arms and not again augment the number of widows and orphans."

The rebels stopped the work of repairing the Mexican National railroad south of Chihuahua, on which it is expected to bring federal troops from Jiminez to fight the rebels.

If the rebels do not lay down their arms, the government is planning to form a volunteer army, if possible, to help fight them into submission.

MURDERED BY BANDITS

German Plantation Owner in Mexico Atrociously Slain.

Vera Cruz, Mex., Feb. 12.—E. Hans Angel Mass, a German owner of a plantation called "El Porvenir," situated near Canton De Los Textlas, was assassinated in a most atrocious manner by bandits, who made an attack on the place.

As he stepped out of the place he was attacked by some twenty men and overpowered. He put up a stiff fight, however, and after struggling for some time managed to escape from his assailants. They cut off his retreat from the house and soon captured him. This time they tied and literally hacked him to pieces with machetes and knives.

BARE WILSON CHARGES

Witnesses Tell Congressmen about Everglades Scandal.

Secretary of Agriculture is Attacked by One Witness and is Defended by McCabe.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Evidence attacking James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, was offered in the investigation into the Florida everglades scandal by the house committee on expenditures in Mr. Wilson's department.

Representative Clark of Florida, whose charges against Secretary Wilson precipitated the investigation, made public a letter from Arthur E. Morgan of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Morgan Engineering company, formerly supervising engineer of United States drainage investigations, but now a special drainage engineer in the department of agriculture, charging that the dismissals of C. G. Elliott and A. D. Morehouse were due directly to the everglades controversy and that the men were being "sacrificed to shield Secretary Wilson."

Solicitor George P. McCabe recited the department's version of the dismissal of Elliott, who was chief drainage engineer, and Morehouse, who was his assistant. He declared Secretary Wilson's action was due entirely to financial irregularities charged against the men in transference of public funds, and had nothing to do with the everglades reports, which, it is charged, were suppressed.

Spends Day as Guest of Ex-Governor Franklin Murphy and Holds Two Receptions.

New York, Feb. 12.—President Taft made his formal visit to Newark today. The president was the guest of Ex-Governor Franklin Murphy at luncheon in the latter's home at 1027 Broad street.

The president held a reception at the Market street station, then went to the Murphy residence, where luncheon was served, followed by a reception.

The president in the afternoon took part in the dedication of a Lincoln monument at North Parkway, East Orange. He then was driven to the Essex County Country club, where he held a reception until he left to take the 5:35 train for New York.

The president will speak at the Lincoln dinner of the Republican club in the Waldorf Tuesday night.

STEPHENSON CLEARED

Senator Is Exonerated by the Full Committee.

Charges of Corruption in Connection with His Election to Senate Are Not Upheld.

Washington, Feb. 12.—By a vote of 8 to 5 the senate committee on privileges and elections approved the report of the subcommittee, exonerating Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin from charges of corruption in connection with his election.

Senators Clapp, Jones, Kenyon, Kern, and Lea voted in the negative and will present a minority report to the senate. They took the position that the expenditure of $107,000 in the senatorial primary raised a presumption of wrong-doing on the part of Senator Stephenson, and that they failed to find in the evidence that such a presumption had been removed.

Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Heyburn, Sutherland, Johnston, Fletcher, Bradley and Pomerene voted in favor of Senator Stephenson. Senators Oliver and Paynter were not persent.

PIPER DENOUNCES AMERICAN POLICY

Agricultural Department Investigator Back from Orient.

SAYS WE RETARD DEVELOPMENT

Through Mistaken Notion of Altruism, Professor Piper Says, We Are Keeping American Enterprise Out of Islands.

Washington, Feb. 12. — Professor Charles V. Piper of the department of agriculture gave out an interview denouncing the American policy in the Philippines.

Professor Piper has just returned from the orient, where he spent thirteen months making investigations as to the agricultural developments. An erroneous and "effeminate" policy pursued by the United States is retarding the agricultural development of the Philippines which, Professor Piper says, are among the richest and most fertile islands in the world. Professor Piper said:

"I see little hope of any rapid improvement in Philippine agriculture unless we adopt a policy that will make them prosperous. I doubt if they are any better off in this respect than under Spanish rule.

"Under the delusion that we are proving to the world that our motives are purely altruistic, we are virtually forbidding American enterprise to develop the richest islands in the world.

"I am convinced that this is a great mistake, not only because it is an effeminate, un-American policy, but because it is keeping material prosperity from the Filipinos, which it is our duty to promote quite as much as their educational and political welfare."

Professor Piper declares that American business men are needed in the Philippines to bring about the development of their resources.

HURLS AX AT MOTORIST

Farmer Arrested for Assaulting Employe of an Indianapolis Auto Co.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 12.—While Lewis Bink, a chauffeur employed by the Fisher-Gibson Automobile company of Indianapolis, was approaching Roann in a car Ora Abshire, a farmer, who was driving a wagon, suddenly arose from his seat and hurled an ax at the motorist as he was passing.

The ax missed the driver and struck one of the tires, cutting it in two. Abshire was arrested and brought here for trial. Abshire is opposed to motor cars and has had much trouble with autoists heretofore.

MODERATE WEATHER COMING

Change from Recent Intense Winter Conditions Is Forecasted.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The weather bureau issued the following weekly bulletin.

The weather map of the northern hemisphere of this date shows a general change from the intense winter conditions that have prevailed almost continuously since the first of the year, and it is probable that moderate temperatures will prevail the coming week throughout the United States.

FOLK QUITS CONTEST

Former Governor Agrees to Speaker's Proposal in Missouri.

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—Former Governor Joseph Folk withdrew as an active candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. His managers announced they would close the local headquarters and would not prosecute further his campaign.

JOSEPH W FOLK.

Mr. Folk withdrew after he had received a telegram from Champ Clark, which agreed to divide the Missouri delegation to the Democratic national convention as recently suggested by William J. Bryan. Mr. Folk not only agreed to divide the delegation, but asked his friends to make no further effort in his behalf. He released all claims that he may have had on the delegation and promised to support Mr. Clark.

DISAGREE ON CAPITAL

Negotiations in China Are Still Hanging Fire.

Yuan Shih Kai Wishes to Retain Pekin, but Republicans Prefer Shanghai or Nankin.

Shanghai, Feb. 12.—The negotiations between Premier Yuan Shih Kai and the republican leaders for a definite settlement of the troubles in China are still hanging fire.

The main difficulty seems to be as to the capital of the new government. Yuan Shih Kai insists that Pekin shall be accepted, but the republicans will not agree to this.

They prefer Shanghai or Nankin, but may offer to compromise on Tien-Tsin temporarily and leave the question of the location of the permanent capital to the decision of the national convention, which is to be called to frame a permanent form of government for China.

DIES TRYING TO SAVE WIFE

Aged Man Succumbs to Heart Trouble as Home Burns.

Seymour, Ind., Feb. 12.—While vainly trying to rescue his bedfast wife from their burning home, Charles King, aged seventy, a Civil War veteran, died suddenly.

Neighbors found King's body on the kitchen floor near a pail, half full of water, with which he evidently sought to put out the fire. Heart trouble, induced by the excitement, caused his death.

STREET CARS CONSUMED

Street Railway Company in Washington Has $300,000 Fire.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Property valued at $300,000 was destroyed in a fire that broke out in the car barn of the Washington Railway and Electric company.

The building was badly damaged and sixty-three cars and a track sweeper were consumed in the flames.

PRESIDENT HAS ALL DELEGATES

Republicans Chosen up to Date Are All for Him.

PRESIDENT'S FRIENDS SERENE

View Situation with Confidence After Hearing Reports that Opposition to Him is Hampered by La-Follette's Collapse.

Washington, Feb. 12. — All of the delegates thus far elected for the Republican national convention in Chicago, eighteen in number, are for President Taft's nomination.

They are distributed as follows: Florida, 12; Philippine Islands, 2; Fourth Oklahoma district, 2; and District of Columbia, 2.

On the eve of the president's departure from Washington an informal conference was held at the White House at which some attention was given to the presidential situation. Representative McKinley of Illinois, who has been designated to take charge of the Taft organization, was present. Senator Crane of Massachusetts and Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president, were also there.

Reports have come to Mr. McKinley from all parts of the country and he has some very favorable reports to make to the president. The information is that the opposition to the president has been seriously hampered by the physical collapse of Senator La-Follette and the uncertainty as to the Roosevelt movement. Looking back over the week, the president's friends have had much to encourage them. Their headquarters in Washington will be opened within the next twenty-four hours, either at the New Willard or in the Arlington hotel, under the direction of Chairman McKinley and John C. Eversman of Illinois, who will be secretary of the organization. Taft headquarters have been opened in Chicago under the auspices of the Business Men and the Lincoln League of Cook county, a Lorimer organization, has fallen into line to co-operate with the Business Men's Taft club.

Georgia has declared for Taft through its Republican state committee, which adopted strong Taft recommendations.

Assurances also have come to the president of a solid delegation from Virginia.

In Mississippi, the state committee adopted resolutions declaring for the president's renomination, and every county in Mississippi that has thus far elected delegates has instructed them for the president. All the twelve counties in the First congressional district of Tennesee have endorsed Taft.

The most surprising news, however, was from Iowa, where the Republican organization for the First congressional district passed resolutions endorsing the president.

JAPAN ORDERS MACHINERY

Largest Sawmills in Asia to Be Erected in Formosa.

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 12.—Japanese government engineers have just ordered at Chicago, Milwaukee, Lockport and Fitchburg machinery costing $350,000, for what will be Asia's largest sawmills.

They will be erected by Japan in Formosa to cut lumber for Formosa, Japan and China. The mills will cut 200,000 feet daily.

SAYS KIMMEL WAS SLAIN

John B. Swinney Withstands Questions in Cross-Examination.

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—John B. Swinney, ranchman, self-confessed slayer of the man whom he testified in the United States circuit court had killed George A. Kimmel, withstood the questions asked him in cross-examination by attorneys for the insurance company, who contend that Andrew J. White is Kimmel.

Swinney was the only witness of the day.

FIVE DIE IN 168-FOOT DROP

Casper, Wyo., Feb. 12.—While workmen were crossing the Platte river on an aerial tramway at the government dam, fifty miles southwest of here, the cable broke and the carrier with its human freight dropped to the rocks, 168 feet below.

Five men are reported dead and several badly injured.

King of Montenegro Flees.

Vienna, Feb. 12.—There has been a military revolt at Cettinje, Montenegro, and King Nicholas has fled to Abbazia, a health resort of Istra, Austria-Hungary, on the Bay of Fiume. The crown prince, Danilo Alexander, remains at the capital. Later information has it that King Nicholas is in St. Petersburg.

Result of Too Much Beef.

Some doctors say a regular diet of beef makes people ill-tempered and cross.

THE DAMAGED ARTICLE

By ANNIE HINRICHSEN

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

A donkey, drawing a small cart, strolled leisurely along the road. It was a winding road, which led up a long hill and lost itself on the high cliffs above the lake. The donkey followed the road to the cliffs and as his driver left his destination to his own wishes he turned into a fork that ended at a cabin built on the edge of a bluff. Here he stopped, planted his feet wide apart and refused to retrace his journey.

Miss Neale stepped from the cart and tried to turn him. Billy stood. From behind the cabin rolled a tiny bear cub. Billy, with one jump, loosened Miss Neale's hold on the bridle, turned and galloped down the road.

"My bear is harmless." A young man came from the cabin. "I am sorry your donkey has been frightened.

Mildred Neale's eyes opened wide. Well-groomed young men in tailored clothes did not inhabit the cliff cabins.

The young man looked after the departing Billy. "Is your home far from here?"

"Six miles."

"Will you let me take you there in my car?"

"A car in this region?"

"I brought a lot of my junk, including my car, with me when I moved here," the man explained. "Since my bear—I found him in the woods the other day—has chased away your steed, you will surely let me provide you with another conveyance."

"You do not belong in this part of the world do you?" he asked as the car glided away from the cliffs.

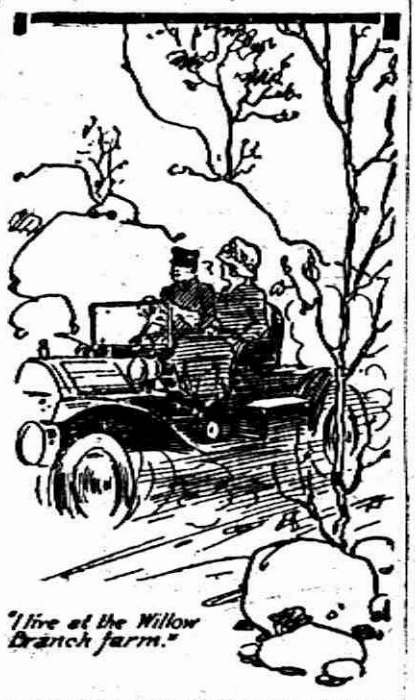
"I live at the Willow Branch farm. You know the place?"

"A model, up-to-date little farm. I have often passed it."

"I own and manage it. I am a woman agriculturist." Her brown eyes met his frankly without the wavering of self consciousness. Her voice was devoid of the accent of the locality.

"Have you always lived at Willow Branch farm?" he asked.

"No. The place was my refuge after my father's death. When his estate was settled this farm, which I had never seen, was all that was left for me. I came here to try for my fortune as a lady farmer. And you? Why are you living on the bluff?"



"I live at the Willow Branch farm."

He turned abruptly from her, gripped the steering wheel and shot the car suddenly forward. When he spoke again he had apparently forgotten her question.

Nearly every day the big car came from the cliff above the lake to Willow Branch farm. Even Billy, who at first acquaintance had feared it as greatly as he had the bear, recognized it as a familiar friend.

"No man," the cliff dweller announced, "has a right to bind a woman unless he can come to her as a whole man, sound in body and in reputation. The greater his love the less willing should be he to give her less than she gives him."

As Barnard spoke Mildred watched his face. On his forehead and around his eyes and lips were lines of mental pain."

"But suppose," she suggested, "that the woman cares for him?"

"He should not allow her to," he answered curtly. "He should go away —as—as I intend to."

"Are you going away?"

"I must. It is the only decent thing I can do. You know I love you, Mildred. But you don't know—you don't know why I must not ask you to love me."

He hurried out of the room.

A few hours later Billy trotted into the yard of the cliff dweller's cabin. He had come very fast. His driver jumped from the cart before it stopped and hurried toward the house. Barnard came to meet her.

"It is not true." Her face was white and her lips were quivering, but her voice was firm. "I do not believe a word of it. You could not have done it."

"Done what?"

She opened a newspaper she carried. It was the magazine section of a Sunday edition filled with stories of people famous and infamous. On the front page was a large picture of the cliff dweller. Beneath it were great black letters. "Remarkable Disappearance of Daring Embezzler. Man Who Wrecked Garden Bank Still at Liberty. No Clew." Several columns descriptive of the gentlemanly malefactor and his crimes followed.

The cliff dweller read the story. "So you don't believe I did it?" he asked.

"I know you did not."

"Why do you know it?"

"Because I know absolutely that you are good and honorable and true. I know it by the look in your eyes and the set of your chin and by the intuition which is given to a woman to show her the difference between truth and dishonor. I understand now why you would not ask me to care for you. You thought your wrecked reputation made you a man unfit for a woman to love. But you are not a bank wrecker, and I care for you even if you will not ask me to."

"Will you go back into the world with me if I give myself up and stand by me while I try to prove my innocence?"

"Yes."

He turned a page of the paper. The second page contained a picture of a man weak of chin and crafty of eye. Beneath it in large letters were the words, "John Morley Barnard, Young Millionaire Seeks Health in Lonely Cabin on Lake Shore. Well Known Capitalist Lives in Retirement with an Automobile and a Pet Bear." There were several columns describing the young man's brilliant business career, his nervous breakdown, his cabin and his bear.

Mildred glanced through the story. "And that is you? I looked at the first page and then came as fast as Billy would bring me to tell you I believed in you."

"The compositor of the paper in making up the edition transposed the two pictures and put my picture in the embezzler's story and his picture in mine."

"Then if you are not a fugitive from justice why did you wish me not to care for you?"

"I am a nervous wreck. You are strong and beautiful and young. You are making a success of the work you were brave enough to undertake. You have made for yourself a full and happy life. To tie you to an invalid would be a crime. A sick man is a miserable object, fit only for pity. I detest pity. I did not tell you anything about my illness because I did not want you to pity me. And I could not ask you to marry an invalid. I love you too well to place you at the mercy of a sick man's temper. But, when I am well again I'll come back to you if you will let me——"

"You poor damaged article," she laughed with happy mockery. "You are to be well and strong again with my help. You have asked me to marry you. You asked me if I would stand by you while you tried to prove your innocence and I said yes. You won't jilt me now; will you?"

SEA AS A NUTRIENT FLUID

English Naturalist Convinced That Value of Ocean's Water Has Not Been Understood.

Dr. W. J. Dakin brought forward at the British association some interesting corroborations of Putter's theory that sea or fresh water is more or less a nutrient fluid, there being more organic carbon present in solution in the water than there is in the multitudinous plankton that swarms there. Dr. Dakin has tried to estimate the amount of carbon and oxygen required by certain aquatic animals per day to cover the loss due to metabolism. On the basis of this estimate, which is probably very approximate, a sponge 60 grammes in weight would require to filter several thousand times its own volume of water per hour in order to obtain sufficient food —"an altogether unthinkable piece of work." A big jelly fish would require over seven millions of nauplius larvae per day. "It is quite impossible for such large quantities to be caught, and equally strange that remains of the creatures are so rarely found if they have been captured as food." Another striking fact, or result of calculations at all events, is that the "producers" (the plant-plankton) are insufficient for the "consumers" (the animal plankton). High alpine lakes, for instance, in which there is an outstanding production of animal plankton, are almost deserts as far as plant-plankton is concerned. What do these alpine crustaceans and rotifers feed on? Putter's theory is the only solution of the riddle. We come to the idea that the water in lake and sea is food as well as drink. There is bread in the waters—according to the ingenious showing of Dr. Dakin.

One on the Teacher.

"Willie you may correct the sentence 'Where was I at?'"

"I don't see anything wrong with it, ma'am."

"You do not?"

"No, ma'am; it's correct sometimes, anyway."

"Will you give me an instance in which it is used correctly?"

"Yes'm. 'Where was I at three o'clock yesterday afternoon?'"

Misplaced.

"Fred queered himself with Mayme when he tried to pay her a compliment on her hands, of whose smallness she is very proud."

"What did he say?"

"She led the conversation adroitly as usual to the subject of little hands, and he told her that hers were simply great."—Baltimore Star.

Three Curious Wills.

Becoming a woman hater because, as he said, his wife deserted him after inducing him to assign half his property to her, an Evansville (Ind.) man stipulated in his will that none but men should attend his funeral.

By the will of an Upper Sandusky, Ohio, man the income of $15,000 will be used for the benefit of church and university work. He provides for a fund to maintain preaching services each Sunday and Sunday school as well. The testator requested that a copy of a portion of his will be printed in large letters and hung in the church.

After directing that her body be cremated and the ashes scattered around the rose bushes in her garden a Quakeress of Moorestown provides by her will that $5,000 shall be held in trust, the income of which shall be paid annually to the National Woman's Suffrage association until such time as women shall have the right to vote at all elections in all the states. At that time the principal of the trust fund is to be paid to a niece of the testatrix.—Case and Comment.

Seek Rest in Churches.

"Quite astonishing is the number of male and female derelicts who float into church at this time of the year," observed a veteran New York sexton. "Particularly on stormy days is the attendance big and there is a line already formed before we unlock the doors in the morning. These unfortunate humans seek rest and refuge from the inclement weather. Why, it often happens that I have to awaken these friendless beings from sound slumbers. Not content with sleeping while in attitude of prayer, they frequently stretch themselves full length on rear pews, and I get my cue from the well-developed snores."

Safe.

Flubdub—Why have you never married, Singleton?

Singleton—Well, the women have always regarded me as an unfortunate fellow who wasn't bad enough to need reforming or good enough to make a desirable husband.—Life.

No Cash.

"Did you get that old miser to spend much at your charity bazar?"

"Oh, yes; he spent our time"

APPRECIATION OF OUR PRIZE CONTEST BY THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Realizing the fact that the writing of the Tecumseh High School notes has been of help and advantage to me I wish to thank Mrs. Stacy, Editor of the Tecumseh Herald for the prize given me in the contest and also I wish to show my appreciation to Mr. C. F. Field, for the kindly criticism of my work.

Blanche Snyder.

In writing school notes for the Tecumseh Herald I know it has been a great help to me. The criticism the Herald offered me I believe hits me alright and am very grateful to them for it. One who looks on from the outside might think there was not much work but there is. I thank Mr. McAlpine for looking over my papers and correcting the many misspelled words of mine. I certainly have derived a lasting benefit from it

And last but not least I appreciate the seven dollars I received as a prize for my favour from Mrs. Stacy and thank her very sincerely.

BATTLE WITH "SOL'S" RAYS

Girl Who Loved Sunshine Finally Finds Material for Cushion That Won't Fade.

"My big south bay window seat is the dearest part of my room," said a real "home girl," who is gaining much useful experience since her monthly allowance has been counted on for the adornment and "replacements" of her pretty sunshiny bedroom, "but for a few months the matter of keeping it respectable threatened to keep me poor. All the sunshine there is I want, so it comes in without hindrance, and right across the seat cushions and the pillows that I set up to lean against. The consequence was the denim covers faded almost as I looked at them. It took seven yards of 30-inch denim to re-cover the tops of those seat cushions and I couldn't get anything respectable in appearance under twenty-five or thirty cents a yard.

"I would take a half day off and have a beautiful 'spree' putting on the new covers, shaped to fit. The room would brisk up and be twice as livable as ever before, so it seemed. Then one day I would lift up one of the loose cushions and find that under it the denim was six shades brighter than out where the sun had shone on it. Nothing that I could afford seemed proof against fading until one day, when I was studying over the problem, I happened to notice that the plain ingrain filling around the edge of the big rug was just the color I wanted and always had been.

"It got just as much sun as the window seat, in that part of the room, and had not altered its hue. It took me no great while to figure out that ingrain carpet filling, even if I paid a dollar a yard for it, would outlast a dozen sets of denim covering and save the work of recovering every few weeks. So I saved up and saved up until I could afford the carpet. Work? It does! It is as nice and fresh looking now as when I put it on, six months ago."

WHY HESITATE?

An Offer That Involves no Money Risk if You Accept It

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

Constipation is commonly caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy, and are particularly good for children They seem to act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other organs. They do not purge or cause other inconvenience. We will refund your money if they do not overcome chronic or habitual constipation and thus aid to relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes 10c, 25, and 50c. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

The Man That Counts.

"Remember each of you that the chance for heroic endeavor of a rather spectacular kind does not often count; that the man who really counts in this life is not the man who thinks how well he could do some bit of heroism if the chance arose, but the man who actually does the humdrum, workaday, every-day duties as those duties arise."—Theodore Roosevelt.

RETURNING TO TECUMSEH

NORTHWESTERN UNITED DOCTORS OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AN ASSOCIATION OF PROMINENT PHYSICIANS GIVING FREE MEDICAL SERVICES TO THE SICK AND MEDICINES AT COST.

At Hotel Barrett Wednesday February 21st One Day Only.

The Northwestern United Doctors, largest doctor specialists in the United States practicing in Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, organized and licensed by the states for the purpose of treating diseases, deformities and all curable ailments without surgical operation. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result to their friends, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted that at last treatments have been discovered that are absolutely sure and certain in their effect.

By their developed system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, kidney stones, tumors, goiter, piles or cancer. They were among the first in America to do away with the knife, blood and pain in the successful treatment and cure of these dangerous diseases.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys and bladder rheumatism sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, leg ulcers, epilepsy, or fits, etc., all treated with gratifying success.

Selected cases of consumption, asthma, bronchitis and catarrhal diseases absolutely cured with combination of medicine hygiene, diet, exercise and and the important uses and advantages of clothes, occupation, etc

Many cases of deafness are frequently cured in sixty days. Loss of sight, cataract, granulated lips and old weak watery, sore eyes treated successfully. In long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, a treatment that is absolutely certain in its effects can be had and depended on.

Eczema, salt rheum, eruptions, liver spots and chronic diseases of the skin quickly cured. An absolute guarantee to every case accepted for treatment.

Patients with cancer, tumor and tuberculur glands not larger than one to two inches usually cured with their hypodermic injection method, without pain.

Patients with growths larger than two inches are not invited to call

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others have told you, no matter what experience you have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to treat with the Northwestern United Doctors Specialists. Even if your case is incurable they will give you such advice that will relieve you and stay the disease.

Do not put off this duty you owe yourself, your friends, and your relatives, it may save your life.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble, bring a two-once bottle of your urine for analysis.

Hours 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful represectations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparation and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

EARLY RISERS

The famous little pills.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE

CONTAINING HONEY AND TAR

Plum Pudding.

Two pints of bread crumbs, three tablespoons of baking powder, mixed with three pints of sweet milk. Cream one-quarter of a cup of butter, with a teacup of sugar; add half teaspoon each of salt, ground cloves, grated nutmeg and lemon extract and six well beaten eggs. Stir all into the milk and crumbs; add one pint of stoned raisins, pint of currants, cup of suet and a cup of citron cut fine. Mix well and steam four hours.

Spice Box.

A box, omitting lid, about length of kitchen table and eight inches square, lined all (except one long side, next to where lid would fasten) with white oilcloth, makes a handy place if hung on nail, above table, for spices, baking powder, etc. Cover top with colored oilcloth, allowing enough to hang over for curtain and cover ends. Brass screw eyes on each end are ready to hang kettle holders.

Kitchen Aprons.

Kitchen aprons of the same material as your wash dresses always look neater than those made of some other stuff, says a contributor to the Ladies Home Journal. Remember this the next time you have a wash dress made. Even a white dress looks prettier with a big white apron to match.

SKIN SORES

Easily and Quickly Healed

Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions know its miseries. There is no need of suffering. You can easily get rid of it by a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing remedy for eczema, pimples, running sores, wounds, burns, salt rheum, ring-worm, piles and acne. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear.

The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality you can order direct from Swanson R. C. Co. 168 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent post paid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent remedy for cracked skin and chapped hands.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill. and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 823 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels, absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Golden Gate Fogs.

The fogs of the Pacific, and especially those on the coast of California and Washington, present some characteristic features of their own. They are low lying, dense and of frequent and regular occurrence, and have been the cause directly and indirectly of a large percentage of marine disasters in the vicinity of San Francisco. Owing to the general movement of the air from the sea toward the land, and the climate of the great interior valley, fog is frequent and well marked. In summer the afternoon sea fog varies in depth from 100 to 1,700 feet, but it rarely reaches far inland.

On some afternoons the velocity of the wind at San Francisco rises with almost clocklike regularity to about twenty-two miles an hour, and a solid wall of fog, averaging 1,500 feet in height, comes through the Golden Gate, causing a fall in temperature to about that of the sea—namely, 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

The upper level of the fog can be plainly seen from the hills in the vicinity. Above the fog level the air is cloudless, and the afternoon temperature ranges from 80 degrees Fahrenheit to 90 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chance for Profit.

Considering the accommodations the young doctor thought the rental asked for the office exorbitant. He enumerated the drawbacks: no sunshine, limited space, stuffy elevator, threadbare and insufficient furniture. The agent listened in tolerant silence, then he turned and looked out of the window at the frenzied crowds dodging to protect life and limb from the onslaughts of trucks and four different car lines that crossed at that corner.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I admit all that, but just look at the opportunity for accidents."

Problem in Natural History.

"Evolution tells us," said the scientist, "that the ear is modified breathing apparatus of the fish."

"Don't believe it," replied the superficial person. "It's utterly impractical. How could the fish manage to snore without waking himself up?"

For the Dishwasher.

Besides having a pot chain and scraper you should have thick canvas cloths for the pots and pans and separate light cloths for the finer chinaware. A rubber sponge is just the thing for greasy dishes. One of these lasts a long time and gives you such satisfaction that you will never do without one once you try them. Cake tins, patty pans and all small tinware boiled in a dishpan in the water of which a handful of soda has been thrown will become fresh and clean and as bright as new.

Chicken Panada for Invalids.

Take the meat of a chicken which has been either roasted or boiled; free it from the skin and cut into very small pieces. Bruise these in a mortar with an equal quantity of stale bread, and a little salt, adding by degrees either the water in which the chicken was boiled or some beef tea, until the whole forms a paste. Put it into a pan and boil for ten minutes, stirring all the time. Serve very hot.

Cranberry Jelly.

Wash and pick over one quart of cranberries; put into agate saucepan with one cup of cold water. As soon as they come to a boil mash and add two cups of sugar. Boil five minutes and strain through a wire strainer. Pour in a mold that has been rinsed with cold water and set in an ice-cold place until ready to serve.

MADE BRUIN PEEVISH

AMUSING INCIDENT IN MOUNTAINS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Bear Has Encounter With Swinging Beetle Which He Uses as Punching Bag and Comes Off Second Best.

A Pennsylvanian once witnessed a curious incident in the mountains of his state, wherein a black bear was the principal figure.

It appears that the winter before the wood cutters of the mountains had broken the handle of one of their tools, a beetle. A rope was tied about the beetle head and it had been left hanging to the low limb of a tree. The man who witnessed the spectacle happened to be in the vicinity one summer day, and, remembering the beetle, started after it to carry it home.

As he came near the place he saw a black bear slowly circling around the hanging beetle at a distance of a few feet. He was too much occupied to notice the man, who stopped to see what bruin was about.

The bear acted as if he thought the beetle were some kind of trap. He would approach within a few feet and sniff. Then he would back off a little way, squat on his haunches and give a low snort, eyeing the tool all the time.

While was thus engaged a sudden breeze sprung up and set the beetle swinging lightly. The animal snorted again and backed off a step or two. Soon another gust struck the beetle and swayed it still more. The bear responded by a louder snort—a sort of challenge.

As soon as the beetle stopped swinging bruin got up and circled about it several times. At length he went near—then nearer. He reached out his paw and touched the thing gently. As it swung toward him he hit it, this time rather forcibly.

The beetle head was a round one of hickory, with heavy iron rings at each end. As it rebounded from the second blow of the creature's paw it hit him fairly on the nose. Angry at this, he rushed at the beetle again and gave it a sounding blow. As it came toward him he dodged a little, just enough to save his nose and receive the blow in his left eye! He hit it again, and his nose got another blow. That hurt so much that he growled angrily and rooted viciously in the leaves.

Bruin was furious by this time and went at that beetle as if he meant to annihilate it. He gave it a tremendous blow with his right paw, and the tool swung clear over the limb, came down on the other side, and struck him on top of the head. He uttered a roar that made the woods ring. Finally he caught the beetle in his paws, pulled upon it until he broke the rope, and then went to cuffing and biting the tool.

When he found that it did not fight back any more bruin let it roll to the ground. Then he shook himself and walked off into the woods.

Further Study of Mars.

Photographing through colored screens is the new method of studying Mars that has been undertaken by Tikhoff at the Pulkova observatory. Four different screens were used—transmitting respectively red, red and orange, orange and yellow, and green—and in the 30-inch equatorial telescope they produced good photographs of very small size. The red and the green filters gave strikingly different results. On the plates that were exposed under the red, the continents are much brighter than the south polar cap, while the seas are very dark and the canals are best seen. The pictures that were taken under the green show the south polar cap as the brightest object, and the seas are grayish. A study of the polar cap has made it appear greenish instead of white. The interesting conclusion has been reached that at the time the photographs were made the cap was ice instead of snow, and this view has been confirmed by experiments on the absorption spectrum of ice and in photographing sand, snow and ice.

Bowing in 1780.

If you bow to anyone passing by, do it in this manner: Raise the right hand to your hat gracefully.

Put your forefinger as far as the crown, and your thumb under the brim, and then raise it from your head gracefully and easily.

Look at the person you bow to, and hold your body gently forward.

Hold your left arm straight down at your side, neither drawing it forward nor backward.

Move the right leg, if the person goes by on the right side, and keep the other firm.

If the person goes by on the left side, move the left leg, and keep the right firm.

Let your body be bowed moderately, not too much.—November Atlantic.

Penalty of Initials.

"It has been my observation," said the pretty girl, "that the greatest difficulty a girl experiences at a co-educational college is disposing of the quantities of shaving soap sent her by manufacturers who copied the names of the entire student body from lists where boys and girls alike are registered by their initials, and distributed the samples of soap impartially with the request that the recipient write a testimonial to the effect that it is the best shaving soap she ever used."

A neighbor tried to express his sympathy, but was interrupted.

"He suffered much," said Karl.

"THE FAT EARS"

By Chester William Dowling

"Say, Cynthy, is George Trimble comin' over here tonight?"

"Yes, pa."

"Seems to me he comes mighty often."

"Only once a week, pa."

"Well, it's a right smart ways he has to come, an' I reckon he ain't comin' jist fur exercise."

Cynthia Morrow was silent. She knew a storm was brewing, but saw no way to avert it.

"See here, Cynthy," continued the father, "there aint' no use beatin' round the bush, I might jist as well tell you onct fur all that I don't set no great store by George Trimble."

"Do you know anything against him, father? His habits and character are good, aren't they?"

John Morrow knew that when his daughter addressed him as father she was taking the matter seriously.

"Know anythin' agin him?" he repeated, "well, I can't say as I do, fur as good behavior is concerned. But then a feller can't live on good behavior, nor love, neither, Cynthy, though young people nowadays seem to think so.'

"But, father, George has a good education, and you know he is not lazy."

"Now, Cynthy, that's one of the very things I've got agin him, his goin' to college!"

"But it was to an agricultural college," replied the daughter.

"Don't make no difference. I say if a feller wants to learn farmin', why jist farm! and not go off somewhur and listen to another feller, who don't own a foot o' land, tell how to do it. Writin' books about farmin', and tellin' how to raise corn and hogs is one thing, but rollin' up yer sleeves an' gittin' out an' hustlin' is another."

Seeing that it was useless to argue this point, Cynthia took another turn.

"George bought a farm last week."

"Whur?"

"Up in the hills! Dick Dalton's place.'

"That!" sniffed John Morrow. "Why them worn out hills ain't got 'nuff soil on 'em to raise black-eyed peas."

"George got it very cheap, and he says he knows how to make it as productive as these bottom lands," she said enthusiastically.

To his astonishment it was George Trimble

"Now, Cynthy, that proves what I said. He's chock full of how-to-do-it, but he ain't never done it yit. Why, I kin raise four times as much corn or oats or wheat or anythin' on this bottom land as he kin on them hills. If I can't I'll give him the whole blamed outfit."

John Morrow had a section of as rich land as could be found in the Missouri river bottom. For centuries the river with its occasional overflow had been spreading a deep rich loam over the level lands below the bluffs. The owners of this "gift of the river" had only to tickle the soil to obtain a bountiful harvest.

These good fellows laughed at all "farming methods" and chaffed their neighbors who were trying to "squeeze a living" out of the clay hills. These patient toilers, it is true, occasionally turned the laugh when the angry river rushed out of its banks over the level lands, and drove the proud owners to the bluffs for safety.

On this fat land John Morrow lived and prospered. As a rule, he had the biggest potatoes, the tallest corn, and the finest wheat shown at the annual county fair.

His broad acres were, perhaps, first in his affections, but the welfare of his only daughter was a close second. He had hoped for an alliance between her and Fred Fenton, the son of a prosperous neighbor.

These two young people had been great friends for years. But Morrow had, as he thought, made a fatal mistake by sending Cynthia to boarding school. After her graduation she seemed to care little for Fred and the other boys of the neighborhood.

A few months after coming home from the seminary she had paid a visit to a school friend up in the hills, and had there met George Trimble, who was fresh from an agricultural school. The ripening of their friendship was the occasion of the conversation above.

During the months following this conversation with her father, Cynthia saw little of George Trimble, partly because of Morrow's coolness towards him, but largely because he was very busy with his theories and his new farm.

The summer was ideal from the farmer's point of view. Sunshine and shower followed each other as opportunely as if they had been at the beck and call of these tillers of the soil. John Morrow was sure he could see his corn grow and hear the wheat build up its tall graceful heads.

Long before the season was over he sought out the finest hills of potatoes, the longest heads of wheat, and the thriftiest stalks of corn, and encouraged them by special cultivation, for they were to represent his prowess at the county fair in the early autumn.

In due time the specimens were carefully gathered and sent in charge of the hired man to the agricultural hall of the county fair, some 10 miles away. John Morrow, having no interest in the races and other attractions at the fair, did not go over until the last day when the awards for farm products were to be made. An accident on the road delayed him so that he did not reach the grounds until after the judges had rendered the decision.

He had won first on wheat and second on potatoes, but was very much disappointed because the prize par excellence was wanting—that on corn. He had taken the blue ribbon on this product for several consecutive years.

Immediately he began to look about in an excited manner for the winner. He soon caught sight of the ribbon across the hall and rushed over to investigate. At once he noticed that the stalks were not so tall and fine as his and remarked about it.

"But see," said someone at his side, "how fat the ears are!"

He was forced to admit that he was beaten. Then he put on his spectacles to read the name of the winner. To his astonishment it was George Trimble.

Later in the day he put his carriage in charge of his farm hand, took the latter's horse and rode around through the hills. A little before sun down he came up to George Trimble's house and found him "doing up the chores."

"See here, George, whur did you git that thare corn?" he called out before bidding him good-day.

"I raised it, Mr. Morrow."

"Whur?"

"Here on my place."

"Got any more like it?"

"Yes."

"I'd like to see it."

George took him across a meadow to a small field of corn some distance from the highway. The old farmer was dumb with astonishment at the sight of the fine large ears. Finally he recovered himself enough to ejaculate:

"Well, I never! By gannie, I can't believe my own eyes! George, how the dickens did you do it?"

"In the first place," George began with enthusiasm, "I got some seed from the farm at the college. It is scientifically selected and will yield 25 per cent more than ordinary seed. Then I inoculated the ground."

"Did what?" asked the stupefied listener. "That sounds mighty like you was talkin' of small-pox."

"It isn't very easy to explain," George went on, "but it is a process we learned last year at the agricultural college. It enables the soil to draw right down out of the air what is necessary to make the corn grow."

"Well, it beats my time!" said the old man, nodding his head thoughtfully. Then he put his hand kindly on the young fellow's shoulder.

"Say, George, hitch up yer hoss, and we'll ride over and tell Cynthy about it."

FINISHED TRIP ON SUBWAY

Father Finally Got Tired of Acting as Bureau of Information to His Small Son.

It was evident to the other passengers on the roof of the Fifth Avenue 'bus that the fat little man in the front seat had been to New York before, but that his small son seated at his side was viewing the sights for the first time.

"O-o-o-o, papa!" cried the boy, pointing with a rigid finger, "what's that big house?"

"That's St. Peter's Cathedral, son."

"Does he live there?"

"Does who live there?"

"St. Peter."

"Of course not—it's a cathedral, a church."

"Who runs it?"

"The Catholic church."

Silent ecstasy for several enchanted blocks, then:

"What's that big house, papa?"

"The Carnegie Lyceum."

"O-o-o-o, Carnegie! Does he live there?"

"What a silly question. No, he doesn't. That's the building he put up for the lyceum."

"What's a lyceum?"

"Er—a, well it's a place where they have lectures and music and things."

"Chee, papa, let's come tonight and hear Carnegie sing!"

The back of papa's neck became very red and he reached over suddenly to press the signal button.

"What does that bell mean, papa?"

"It means," answered the father firmly, "that we're going to get off here and finish this trip in the Subway."—New York Times.

Philosopher.

"My! you wanted fried potatoes, didn't you?" said the careless waitress as the customer in the restaurant finished his meal and rose to leave.

"That's all right," answered the patient man. "I've wanted so many things all my life that I didn't get, I'm used to it."

ALL AROUND the HOUSE

Equal parts of linseed oil and cider vinegar makes an excellent dressing for linoleum.

To keep lettuce fresh after washing put it in a brown paper bag and twist the top of the bag tightly to exclude the air.

A dingy looking rug may be brightened by rubbing it well with a cloth which has been dipped in gasoline and wrung dry.

When purchasing a roast of veal have the butcher lard it with salt pork. This will make the meat juicy instead of being dry, and it will have a fine flavor that will be had in no other way.

A horseshoe nail in the pocket of the work apron is a valuable asset to the housewife. It will remove dust from corners, meat from cutters and will clean utensils with corners or holes easily and effectively.

Coal dust is wasted unless the mistress sees that it is burned, and yet it makes beautiful fires. Have a galvanized iron scuttle for the purpose. Add sufficient water to the coal to make it moist. When a fire is burning brightly bank it up with this wet dust and you will have a clear fire which will last for hours.

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910—"I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended, and from the second bottle I commenced to improve. I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles—not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try Vinol. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money.

LORIMER INQUIRY REACHES ITS END

Judge Hanecy Introduces Pleas Res Adjudiciata.

Three Senators Said to Oppose Illinois Senator and Four to Favor Him, with Senator Jones of Washington Undecided.

After dragging since last June, the Lorimer investigation has come to an end. The closing of the case brought relief, not only to the members of the committee, but to senators generally.

It looks now as if the sub-committee of the senate committee on privileges and elections, which conducted the investigation, will be about equally divided. Although nothing definite is known of the tenor of the questions put to witnesses in the last few weeks it was indicated that Senators Kenyon, Kern and Lea are against Lorimer and Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Johnson and Fletcher in favor of him. The belief is expressed that Senator Jones of Washington is in doubt. Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Johnson and Fletcher were members of the old senate committee on privileges and elections which cleared Lorimer.

The closing act of the Lorimer investigation was the introduction of pleas re adjudicata. Judge E. C. Hanecy, counsel for Lorimer, announced that if permitted the senator would interpose the plea that he had already once successfully defended his title to his seat in the senate before that body and the validity of his title could not be attacked the second time on the same charge.

The committee agreed to permit this plea to be submitted. It will not only be passed upon by the committee, but also by the senate.

The committee in executive session put J. E. Sheridan, the detective stenographer, who has figured in the charges of perjury against Charles McGowan, a Hines-Lorimer witness, to a test of his ability to record conversations over an electrical apparatus, while concealed from the speakers.

Two committee stenographers took notes with Sheridan and the test ended in a wrangle. The Lorimer lawyers maintained that Sheridan "had not made good." Representatives of the other side declared he "had done as well as could be expected."

Immediately after the test Sheridan was put in the witness chair and had no difficulty in reading his notes. There were frequent breaks, but it was said they represented parts of sentences which he did not record because he had been instructed to take only conversation relating to the Lorimer case.

Edward Hines denied absolutely before the committee that he had tried to bribe Miss Helen Seavers, telegraph operator in a local hotel, to show him a message Detective Bailey had sent H. E. Kerr.

MARINES IN HONDURAS

United States Bluejackets Seize Wharf and Railway.

There has been a clash between Honduran authorities and the United States over enforcement of a government decree directing representatives of W. S. Valentine, an American, to surrender to government authorities the railroad, wharf and other properties held under lease by the Valentine syndicate, at Puerto Cortez, Honduras.

Seventy-five marines from the United States gunboat Petrel landed and seized the wharf and railroad. Honduran troops were then ordered to stop all trains. The governor has filed a protest.

Found Dead in Woods.

Perry, Mich., Feb. 12.—Charles C. Carr, a farmer of sixty-two years, who lived alone near Perry, was found dead in the woods on his farm by neighbors who were attracted to the place by the kicking of horses in the barn. Carr had evidently gone to the woods to cut some firewood. His body was thoroughly frozen and there were indications that it had lain on the ground for three days. Carr is believed to have been overcome by heart trouble.

CALUMET AND HECLA MUST PAY DAMAGES

Jury Awards Verdict to an Injured Workman.

Man Who Refused to Accept a Settlement and Took the Case Into Court Is Awarded Damages of $6,154.

Houghton, Mich., [illegible] 13.—Although for a quarter of a century the Calumet and Hecla Mining company has been the largest single employer of labor in the upper peninsula of Michigan, never until the present term of Houghton county circuit court has that corporation been made defendant in a personal injury suit. The twenty-five-year record was broken when a jury returned a verdict awarding $6,154 to Victor Aspland, who was injured by a fall of rock while at work in one of the Calumet and Hecla shafts. Aspland refused to accept a settlement.

A unique personal injury case to be tried at the present term of court here is that of John Toth vs. the Osceola Consolidated Mining company. The first day Toth worked for the company he went to a supply office and was provided with a pick. While breaking rock with it a piece of stone flew up and destroyed one of his eyes. The claim for damages is based on the contention that the company was negligent in not providing Toth with a sharper pick.

SPECIAL SESSION EXPECTED

Governor Osborn to Call Lawmakers Together for Three Objects.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 12.—That Governor Osborn will issue a call for a special session of the legislature is regarded as practically certain among state house politicians. Further, they are telling what matters will be included in the call. They say that three subjects are now about determined on. They are: The presidential primary, the bonding company composed of brewers who furnish saloon sureties, and the passing of an act that will prohibit brewers from owning stock in any saloon.

ESCANABA LOSES RESERVES

Naval Division Ordered Mustered Out Because of Inefficiency.

Hancock, Mich., Feb. 12.—Orders have been issued by the state military board for the mustering out of the Escanaba division of the Michigan naval reserves on account of inefficiency. It is believed Marquette will succeed to Escanaba's place in the ranks.

The order will not effect the standing of Grant Stephenson, who recently was elected commander of the battalion. He will continue in charge and act as commanding officer of the training ship Yantic.

MANCHU DYNASTY ENDED.

Pekin, Feb. 12.—After occupying the throne of China for nearly three centuries, the Manchu dynasty, represented by the child emperor, Pu Yi, abdicated today.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Anniversary Is Celebrated on a Broad Scale in Illinois.

In Illinois, the state which gave him to the nation, Lincoln's birthday was celebrated on a broader scale than in any other commonwealth, but the nation generally observed the occasion. Schools, banks and such business houses as usually observe holidays were closed. Six hundred societies of the Christian Endeavor union, Epworth league and Baptist Young People's union sent delegates to the Lincoln celebration in the new First Congregational church. Dean Sumner and Bishop Fallows were the principal speakers.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court presided at a Lincoln dinner given at the Auditorium hotel by the National Union. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey held the political spotlight of the nation in Chicago as the Lincoln birthday guest of the Iroquois club.

STEPHENSON CLEARED

Senator Is Exonerated by the Full Committee.

At Washington by a vote of 8 to 5 the senate committee on privileges and elections approved the report of the subcommittee, exonerating Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin from charges of corruption in connection with his election.

Senators Clapp, Jones, Kenyon, Kern and Lea voted in the negative and will present a minority report to the senate. They took the position that the expenditure of $107,000 in the senatorial primary raised a presumption of wrongdoing on the part of Senator Stephenson, and that they failed to find in the evidence that such a presumption had been removed [illegible].

Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Heyburn, Sutherland, Johnston, Fletcher, Bradley and Pomerene voted in favor of Senator Stephenson. Senators Oliver and Paynter were not present.

KEEP HANDS OFF CHINA

Secretary Knox Gives Warning to the German Ambassador.

The United States government has once again been put in a prominent position as protector of the integrity of the Chinese empire, by a note to the German ambassador from Secretary of State Knox.

He has placed this government on record in favor of a policy of "hands off" during the present political upheaval in China. The publication of the note is regarded here as in effect a declaration to the world that the United States and Germany will be found acting together against any "grabs" in China by other powers.

Airship Factory Wants to Move.

MANCHUS ABDICATE THE CHINESE THRONE

Imperial Proclamation Is Issued from Pekin.

Princes Declare They Will Work to Prevent Republic Unless Yuan Shi-Kai Is Made President of the New Regime.

A London dispatch says: The imperial edict proclaiming the abdication of the throne of China by the Manchus was issued in Pekin at noon, according to advices received by the Exchange Telegraph company's Tientsin correspondent. The provisions and stipulations of the edict are said to be almost identical with these previously reported.

Mongolian princes who have been leaders in the antiabdication agitation at the court have cabled to Dr. Sun Yat Sen insisting that unless Yuan Shi-kai gets the presidency they will consider themselves entitled to take further measures against the establishment of the republic.

A dispatch from Shanghai says assurances are given there that Yuan Shi-kai, the imperial premier, is now in full accord with the republicans and is actually advising with respect to future plans for the effective coalition of all the provinces and factions and the arrangement of the machinery of the republican government.

WHEAT PROTECTED BY SNOW

State Crop Report Says that Breadstuffs Crop Is All Right So Far.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 12.—The monthly crop report issued from the office of the secretary of state indicates wheat has not suffered from any cause during the month of December. Of the 632 correspondents asked for an opinion ninety-one are of the opinion wheat has suffered, while 541 give a decided negative answer. The covering of snow that is general throughout the state protected wheat from the excessive cold.

The total number of bushels of wheat marketed by farmers in January was 645,670. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in the six months, August-January, is 8,500,000. Sixty-four mills, elevators and grain dealers report no wheat marketed in January.

FORMER SENATOR IS DYING

Blood Poisoning Affects Heart of John F. McHugh.

At LaFayette, Ind., John F. McHugh, a leading Lafayette attorney and at one time a Democratic member of the Indiana senate, has suffered a relapse and is now in a dying condition at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Two weeks ago a toe of his left foot was amputated with the hope of relieving blood poisoning which developed from a small bruise on his foot. The poison has affected his heart and he is rapidly growing weaker.

MR. AND MRS. MORSE.

Former Banker, Who Is Now in New York, and His Faithful Wife.

NEW YORK.—Charles W. Morse, the former banker and financier, who was recently pardoned by President Taft, will leave for Bad Nauheim in a few days, according to his present intentions. After a long rest there his friends say that if his health continues to improve there is a likelihood that he will be back in Wall street.

"I am very happy," said Mrs. Morse. "Mr. Morse is growing stronger all the time, and I believe he will soon be entirely well. His recovery is due to his release from prison."

ROOSEVELT BOOMERS

Governors from Six States and Politicians Meet in Chicago.

At Chicago Saturday six governors and seventy other representatives of twenty-four states met in secret conference at the Congress hotel to plan a campaign to nominate Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency at the Republican convention in Chicago next June.

The governors present were Hadley of Missouri, Aldrich of Nebraska, Bass of New Hampshire, Vessey of South Dakota, Carey of Wyoming and Stubbs of Kansas. All declared the sentiment in their states was overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

HERRICK GOES TO FRANCE

Nominated As Ambassador to Succeed Robert Bacon.

The nomination of Myron T. Herrick of Ohio to be ambassador to France was sent by President Taft to the senate.

He will succeed Robert Bacon, resigned to become a fellow of Harvard university. An effort will be made to secure immediate confirmation.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Called by Gov. Osborn to Begin Monday, February 26.

Presidential Primary Proposed as the Chief Purpose of the Session—Other Measures Also to Be Considered.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 13.—A special session of the state legislature, to begin Monday, Feb. 26, has been called by Governor Osborn.

Following is the governor's proclamation convening the legislature:

"This is an era in this country during which government by the people is becoming a reality. The tendency is to have the governmental function exercised on the part of the people as directly as possible. This is in [illegible] that is applied to the solution of problems involved by the science of government. It is equally the result of a demand on the part of the people that their actions shall not be subject to embarrassing or harassing scrutiny and that the rights of those who are living in subordinate capacity shall not be trespassed upon, or in any manner endangered or selfishly directed by those in positions of strength and influence over them and about them. Any condition that makes for unfair competition in exercising the rights of citizenship causes both oppression and suppression.

"If this nation and this state, under God, are to be perpetuated as lands of liberty where worthy humanity of all the world shall find asylum and the insurance of equal rights, there must be provided the fullest and fairest means of expression of these rights. This is necessary if these rights are to exist at all and to be in any sense meaningful. A state of mind that relies upon all the people for the defense of our country in time of war; that is willing to sacrifice the lives of our citizens without regard to number or value in the service of the country, and in peace withholds from all or any citizens their most sacred privileges, or trammels them with difficulty in their use, is intolerable.

"Because of the growing appreciation of this sentiment the legislature in Michigan and legislatures in other states have improved and are still improving methods of election. In Michigan at this moment there exists an extraordinary condition and occasion which have never been paralleled. Thousands of voters in both of the great political parties, and many in parties of less magnitude as well, demand an opportunity to vote directly upon presidential candidates. If this, which is their right, is withheld at this time, there can be no exercise of it for four more years, even if obtained by legislatures in regular session during that time. No candidate and no party should wish to obtain a privilege through a minority.

"Believing fully that it is the right of the citizens of Michigan, irrespective of political affiliations, to immediately have a presidential preference primary law, I have decided to convene the legislature in special session. Acting under the authority of section 7, article 6, of the constitution of the state of Michigan to meet in extraordinary session on Monday, the 26th day of February, A. D. 1912, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of enacting a presidential preference primary law and for the consideration of such other matters as shall be submitted by special message."

The concluding paragraph of the proclamation clearly indicates that the governor will put up to the legislature several other important questions for consideration during the special session.

In connection with the call Governor Osborn issued the following statement:

"The cost of a special session will be less than a one-cent postage stamp for each person in Michigan and is so inconsiderable when distributed as to be unworthy of serious consideration, and especially when thought of in connection with the great benefits which may be derived. The administration has put into effect economies resulting in saving the state over a million dollars.

"The question of a presidential preference primary law is not a partisan one. Nevertheless, the complexion of the legislature is overwhelmingly Republican and that party will properly receive the credit for whatever prompt legislative work is done and all good results, and likewise there will attach to the Republican party all the blame for failure, omission, personal malice, undignified procedure and all or any unworthy actions. It is to be hoped that all of the members of the legislature will subordinate every personal feeling and only permit public patriotism and highest principles to occupy their minds during the session. If this is the rule, a short, effective session will be the result.

"There is no reason why the presidential primary law may not be given immediate effect and if very prompt action is taken by the legislature the presidential plebiscite might easily be arranged for at the statewide spring election on the first Monday in the coming April."

LEAP YEAR VALENTINE PARTY

February 14, 1912

GRINNELL'S ORCHESTRA OF ADRIAN

The Valentine Party of Wednesday evening was the event of the season. No pains were spared to make the hall a bower of beauty. It is estimated that over 3000 hearts were used in the decorations. Hearts were hung from the ceiling in long festoons caught up every eight or ten feet by a large heart pierced with a dart. The electric lights were hidden by heart shaped shades thus making the light subdued and beautiful.

The curtains at the windows were also hung with hearts making a very pretty decoration. The orchestra was screened by a curtain of hearts above a bank of evergreen. The evergreen was also used in decorating the walls. Cozy corners were invitingly arranged with couches and fancy screens. A lounging room with easy chairs was also decked with hearts and was a very pleasant resting place.

The reception room was provided with easy chairs and tables. Here also hearts abounded and if anyone is minus a heart after this it was not because the supply was limited. And then the crowd, the beauty and the chivalry of the town were present and the beautiful dresses, the happy faces all conspired to make this an evening long to be remembered.

The Rebekahs furnished the refreshments in the dining room above these were daintily and nicely served and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Grinnell's Orchestra of Adrian rendered most delightful music. A number of out of town guests were present.

The Delta Sigma Phi Sorority deserve much praise for the success of this party they have been most untiring in their efforts, sparing neither time or expense.

Among the out of town guests were Albert Foster, Toledo, Ohio. Mrs. Inez Thorp-Barker, Dayton, Ohio, Miss Purnelle Lowe, Blissfield, Alice and Fern Lowe, Ridgeway, Mr. Treat, Tipton, Will Clack, Clinton, Miss Carrie Palmer, Ridgeway.

RESEARCH CIRCLE

An open meeting of the Research Circle was held Tuesday evening at the pleasant home of Mrs. Thomas McCann. The evening was devoted to St. Valentine and the ladies were in costumes gentlemen, ladies, old maids and bachelors. Pantalon in his vari-colored suit, the Queen of Hearts and cupids were all present, a quartette composed of Mesdames McCann, McCoy, Kendrick and Miss Mingay sang most delightfully. Valentines were passed to all and a responsive exercise between the President and members was answered by song or maxim.

Mrs. E. M. Coller was the Queen of Hearts and Wiley and Harold McCann were her attendant cupids the boys also distinguished themselves as dancers entertaining the company with a number of specialties. The rooms were made so attractive and the company was so jolly that everyone was glad that they were there to share in the pleasure.

A most delightful luncheon was served during the evening. This being Leap Year it is needless to remark in closing that every available bachelor was captured by the old maids.

JOLLY 16

Miss Anna Cutting was hostess to the Jolly 16 Club Thursday evening, and a merry time was enjoyed by all. At the close of the games it was found that Mrs. Ida Freeman and Mrs. Alice Barrett were the prize winners.

The refreshments were most excellent and daintly served. The company departed at a late hour well pleased and thanking their hostess for a very pleasant evening.

Merry-Go-Round

Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. were entertained Merry-go-Round Club at their home north of town Monday night. Two sleighloads of 40 of the merry ones made up the party. As the result of the games of cards played, Miss Geddes carried off the ladies prize, and Dolph Heesen that for the gentleman.

A fine 4 course dinner was served which was highly appreciated by the crowd, as was proven by the way they partook of it.

The time past most pleasantly until the hour for returning to their homes when good nights were said and the merry crowd started, but alas, the return trip was not so lucky to one load, for suddenly, without word of warning over went the load bobs and all, and those are fortunate who have not some scratch or bruise to tell the story, but none were seriously hurt, and this would not have been a genuine sleighride without some excitement on the way.

VALENTINE SOCIAL

The B. Y. P. U. had a most delightful party at the church parlors, Tuesday night. A post office was the most prominent feature, Rev. W. B Hartzog acted as Postmaster. Miss Marie Bramble Assistant, Miss Lillian Cole presided at the Stamp window, four free delivery Scouts were also busy Misses Lula Stahler and Phoebe Knight sold valentines by the dozens, Cocoa and Heart Cakes furnished refreshments.

They cleared about $6, and as no valentine was over six cents, this was surely doing well. The pleasure the young people had in making ready for this party quite offset all the work.

RESEARCH CIRCLE

A sleighride! A sleighride! Where? Out at Mrs Willis Smith's. When? Next Tuesday. Meet at Belcher's store and Mrs. A. C. Bryan's at 9:30 a. m. Pot luck dinner.

Little "Patty" Patterson was hostess at a Valentine party Tuesday afternoon. A very merry little company were present, and enjoyed the games and the dainy refreshments. The little lady was a charming hostess and made everyone happy.

TECUMSEH CLUB DINNER

Mrs. P. W. A. Fitzsimmons was hostess at the dinner given at the Tecumseh Club Tuesday night. A five course dinner was served. Hearts were in evidence for decorations Cards and dancing furnished entertainment until a late hour thus closing a most delightful evening.

Mrs Inez Barker and Will Hicks were the prize winner.

DINNER PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Lester VanDoren entertained at Tuesday those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gillespie, Mrs J. F. N. Bowen, Mrs. Fannie Rector and Miss Nannie Kyle. Albert VanDoren came for the crowd with his automobile and made a quick trip. A most appetizing dinner was served and a social afternoon was enjoyed by all.

NO NAME CLUB

The No Name Club were pleasantly entertained at the home of Kenneth Hay and wife on Tuesday evening.

Pedro was the chosen game. Mrs. (Dr.) Hendershott secured the 1st prize for the ladies, and Fred Aldrich for the gentleman.

At the close of the games a fine lunch was served. The guests in parting voted Kenneth and Sadie royal entertainers.

Nerissa Fitzsimmons entertained a number of her young friends at a Valentine party, Wednesday evening. Games were played and valentines were exchanged which caused much merriment among the crowd. Light refreshments carrying out the valentine schemes were served in the evening. At eight o'clock they dispersed for their homes well pleased with their evening's entertainment.

Chantilly Potatoes.

Prepare some nicely seasoned, light, mashed potatoes and mound on a platter. Beat one-half cup cream until stiff, add one-half cup soft cheese, grated and seasoned with salt and paprika. Pile lightly onto the potato and set on the top grate of the oven until the surface is nicely browned. Be sure that the oven is very hot.

Doughnuts With Fruit.

Prepare a sponge with one pint of milk, one-half of a yeast cake dissolved in a little warm water, one scant teaspoonful of salt and sufficient flour to make a drop batter. Beat hard for five minutes, cover and set aside until light. Add three eggs well beaten and one-half of a cupful of butter creamed with one cupful of sugar. Mix thoroughly, set aside until risen a second time, then sift in sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Knead for five minutes, cover and set aside again until doubled in bulk, then roll out on a well-floured board. Cut into thin rounds. Have ready about two cupfuls of seeded raisins or any preferred fruit; put a teaspoonful on each round, wet the edge, cover with a second round and press the two together. Let stand for twenty minutes, then drop, a few at a time, into smoking hot fat and cook until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper and roll in powdered sugar.

Much More Expensive.

Downs—Why is it your friend Chownes is always down at the heel? Does he lose his money on horse races?"

Jownes—He never bets on a horse race. He loses more money on the human race.

Downs—Eh?

Jownes—He has nine children.—Stray Stories.

Sweet Pickle for Hams.

One gallon of water, 1½ pounds rock salt, ½ pound sugar, ⅛ ounce saltpeter. Boil, skim and cool.

Nature's Washrooms.

On a tiny, rocky isle in Clear Lake, California, there is a perpetual soda fountain, from which gushes better soda water than the chemists can produce. Furthermore, here are natural wash tubs and washing machines and, in some places, even ready-made soap. In the Yellowstone National Park the family wash may be put into a stout bag that may be hung in one of the boiling springs and left there while the owner goes about his business. When taken out the clothes are so clean and white that no rinsing is necessary.

SNAPSHOTS AT LOCAL NEWS

A LETTER TO PARENTS OF TECUMSEH HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

For the present there will be no more school parties. This decision is not given because of any lack of sympathy with the interest of young people but because of a conviction that two undesirable results are caused by the turn these parties have taken. Teachers have urged upon me seriously that the scholarship of many students is affected decidedly by too much attention to week night parties. Teachers and parents have both complained that in many cases the conduct of students during these parties is not such as it should be. Personally I would urge that neither teachers nor pupils can keep up their work as they should while devoting evenings and early mornings to foreign interests of any sort. At any rate, I can vouch for the drain upon the teacher's strength.

I think, in connection with any consideration of school parties, the parents of children in school should seriously investigate the extent which they are personally touched by any of the following points. A considerable amount of information can be furnished from this office and many more facts may, doubtless, be learned by a frank talk, on the part of parents, with their own children and their children associates.

(1) Many pupils in ninth and tenth grades are failing in school work. Such pupils can not afford the time for outside diversion until their school work is in better shape.

(2) Several pupil parties have been rather spoiled by the silly conduct of a number of Juvenile couples. Just at present, with spring in prospect, there promises to be an epidemic of this highly contagious malady. I cannot imagine how the father or mother of any boy or girl of High School age can be indifferent to the opportunity of making the period of the child life, one of ideal purity. I am sure that such a result is not attained by exchanging sentimental notes many of which convey somewhat questionable sentiments, by indulging in unchaperoned parties "pared off" by parading the streets arm in arm, by indulging more or less in "spooning," or by attending any kind of party through the expedient of deceiving ones father or mother.

It is not true that the majority or any large percentage of our pupils are guilty of any of the improprieties mentioned above, but there has been enough of it to spoil school parties for many of our pupils! and is, it seems expedient to my teachers and to me, to check them for the present. This is done with a genuine desire to stop some abuses. It will not be effective in doing so, however unless the father and mother of our high school pupils make it their personal business to be sure that their own children are not concerned in any of the practices which has moved me take this step.

One more word. It is a failing of parents of which I am doubtless as guilty as any, not to believe what is told them regarding their own children. If free from this failing we are apt to go to the other extreme of fruitless unsympathetic severity. I am sure of the first, though having tried to tell fathers and mothers some things I thought they ought to know. As I see it, about the most effective thing any parents can do, is to get the facts, let his child know that he has done so, and then give a reasonable support to any move intended to better matters.

From what I have said it may be inferred that some of our pupils are not developing the train of character they should, such is precisely the case and I hope to have requests for information from some homes.

Superintendent.

Prize Snake Yarn.

The Prevaricators' Society of Ballarat and Woolloomooloo was proceeding in peace and harmony till the snake story man spoke. "Some people," he said, "consider the snake hasn't got any sense; but they're wrong. For instance, once when I was in India, I saw a Hindu mother place her year old baby outside the hut to sun himself, and to keep his spirits up she gave the little chap a big feeding bottle of milk. Well, as I watched, I saw a snake insinuate itself close up to that child. My heart was in my mouth. I feared for the baby. But, bless you, the snake was only after the milk! He just slipped the teat out of the child's mouth and into his own, and then the thoughtful and kindly reptile put the end of his tail into the child's mouth by way of a comforter!"

With a great sob the president of the society arose and handed the laurel which encircled his brow to the snake-story man.

And then they passed silently into the night.—Tit-Bits.

This Age of Nerves.

The tendency of modern civilization has been to transfer the burden of breadwinning from the muscles to the nerves.—Exchange.

OUR UNIVERSITY LETTER

The Hill Auditorium

Building operations on the new $400,000 auditorium, bequeathed to the University by the late Regent Hill, will soon be under way. Architect Kahn's plans and specifications have been accepted and the contract has been awarded to James L. Stuart, of Pittsburg, who agrees to complete the structure within seven months after ground is broken. Hugh Tallant, the greatest accoustics engineer in America, will have charge of the interior arrangements so far as they affect the sounding properties of the hall.

With a seat capacity of 5500, the auditorium will, when completed, be large enough to meet every demand when great crowds are entertained, as during the May Festival series of concerts and commencement week, occassions when University hall, the present auditorium proves wholly inadequate.

Naturally enough, fond parents who have journeyed weary miles to Ann Arbor to witness the graduation of a son or a daughter, are somewhat disgruntled to learn, upon their arrival, that the incapacity of University hall will make it necessary for them to linger outside while the ceremonies are in progress. Mere friends and sweethearts might bear this disappointment with fortitude, and some have done so, but a parent's sense of the general fitness of things is sure to be outraged by such a prohibition.

Time was, however, when the 3000 seats in old "U Hall", as it is familiarly called, afforded ample accommodation. In those earlier days, when the graduates filled only a few front seats and their parents and friends had plenty of room in the remaining space on the main floor, the gallery was available to the promiscuous small boy, who munched peanuts during the solemn procedure and wondered what it all meant. But times have changed. The graduating classes from the seven great departments—there were a thousand graduates last year—now nearly fill the entire lower floor, the Faculty being crowded upon the small platform and in obscure corners about the hall, while the seats in the gallery are apportioned, through an elaborate process of elimination, to a few choice individuals who happen to be lucky. Hence the urgent need for the new hall.

The Hill auditorium will be 171 feet wide and 174 feet deep, and will contain a stage 75 feet wide and 30 feet deep, large enough for the staging of grand opera, or for accomadating the large chorouses that sing in the Choral Union concerts. The great Columbia organ will occupy a gallery just above the stage on a level with the balcony. In general shape, the assembly hall will resemble the lungitudinal section of a megaphone, arrangement which insures the best results in accoustic properties. A foyer, 25 feet wide and 170 feet long will afford opportunity for the delightful intermission promenade of the continental theatre. The one regret is that this splendid structure will not be ready for use next June, when the University celebrates the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding.

HAIR HEALTH

If You Have Scalp or Hair Trouble, Accept This Offer

When we promise your money back for the mere asking if Rexall "93" Hair Tonic does not do as we claim it will, you certainly have no reason for even hesitating to try it. We do not ask you to obligate yourself in any way.

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if it did not do all we claim. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

Therefore, when we assure you that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, you may rest assured we know what we are talking about.

We honestly believe that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do more than any other human agency toward restoring hair growth and hair health. It is not greasy and will not gum the scalp or hair or cause permanent stain. It is as pleasant to use as pure cold water. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store,—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

Most Furs Wear Long With Care.

Most furs are durable, experts say, and will last for a long time if guarded from moths, high temperatures and spring sunshine. A less durable fur is broadtail, as it is taken from young animals. Chinchilla and ermine are also delicate, both in color and texture, and should be carefully treated. Places that make a specialty of storing furs keep them at a uniform winter temperature.

A BRAVE WOMAN

When the disastrous fire swept the business portion of Morenci early Tuesday morning, it was a woman who roused the people about 2:20 a. m. She noticed the glare of the fire on the sky, and ran a quarter of a mile from her farm home to the village, and rang the bell in the town hall. By her fearless heroism, she doubtless saved many homes from destruction. The loss is estimated at $35,700.

MILAN LEADER CHANGES HANDS

The Milan Leader so long under the management of Mr. Gates changed hands a week ago much to the surprise of its readers, as the paper has been run by Mr. Gates so long no one had thought a change possible. Regret is felt on all sides that a change was necessary. As Mr. and Mrs. Gates are held in the highest esteem in the community and it is hoped they will not leave Milan the new incumbent. Mr. Johnson in his announcement says the policy of the paper will be made in any direction while we regret the withdrawal of Mr. Gates from the newspaper field, yet we welcome Mr. Johnson and wish him all success.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.

Allows Forty Days for Appeal.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 15.—Judge Kelley S. Searl filed his decree in the charter revision case, and granted an order for a forty-days stay in the proceedings to allow the defendants to perfect their plea for the supreme court. During the forty days the city is restrained from submitting a draft of the charter or paying any money to the commissioners in salaries or expense.

Out From Obscurity.

Jones had had a leg up in the world and was mighty proud of his new position. Not long since he met a man who in his submerged days had been his chum, but who had remained in the old rut.

"Hallo, Brown!" said Jones, smirking at his friend. "You haven't been to see my new house yet. Can you come on Friday?"

Brown expressed pleasure at the thought.

"Yes," continued Jones, "we're having a small party. Er—my daughter's coming out, you know."

Brown scratched his head meditatively. His mind wavered. A stab of sudden recollection came to him.

"I've just remembered, old chap," said he. "Our Jim's coming out on Friday. He's had 15 days."

Jones looked pained.

"But," added his old friend, "how long's your daughter had?"—Exchange.

AMUSEMENTS

THE BIGGEST EVENT IN THE THEATRICAL HISTORY OF TECUMSEH

The Big Musical Production "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" Coming Here February 29

Contracts were signed last Tuesday with the Leffler-Bratton Co. of New York where by Tecumseh theatre goers will have the pleasure of seeing that great musical comedy "The Newlyweds" in their own city.

This is the biggest company of any kind ever seen here and was secured through the efforts of the local management at a guarantee of $400. the only term the company would consider to play as small a town as Tecumseh as they claim their actual running expences amount to that much.

The people of Tecumseh want high class attractions and here is one of 'the very best' so its up to the people to support it. The management is always willing to book the very best possible to obtain no matter what the cost, as is shown by the above guarantee.

ODD FELLOWS HALL

While taking a peep at Witherell's Hall, before the dance Wednesday evening we were also invited to view Odd Fellows Hall, which deserves special mention, as the rooms have just been newly decorated. The walls of the parlor are in a deep red with dado of light green beautifully stenciled the ceiling is also in the green.

The dining room is buff with cream dado and ceiling also stenciled. The hall itself being in old rose and cream All these being done in oil paint. The Odd Fellows may well be proud of their surroundings.

Infant Mortality.

Infant mortality is the most sensitive index we possess of social welfare of sanitary administration, especially under urban conditions. A heavy infant mortality implies a heavier death rate up to five years of age; and right up to adult life the districts suffering from a heavy child mortality have higher death rates than the districts whose infant mortality is low.—Neusholme in the National Food Magazine.

RETURNING TO TECUMSEH

NORTHWESTERN UNITED DOCTORS OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AN ASSOCIATION OF PROMINENT PHYSICIANS GIVING FREE MEDICAL SERVICES TO THE SICK AND MEDICINES AT COST.

At Hotel Barrett Wednesday February 21st One Day Only.

The Northwestern United Doctors, largest doctor specialists in the United States practicing in Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, organized and licensed by the states for the purpose of treating diseases, deformities and all curable ailments without surgical operation. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result to their friends, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted that at last treatments have been discovered that are absolutely sure and certain in their effect.

By their developed system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, kidney stones, tumors, goiter, piles or cancer. They were among the first in America to do away with the knife, blood and pain in the successful treatment and cure of these dangerous diseases.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys and bladder rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, leg ulcers, epilepsy, or fits, etc., all treated with gratifying success.

Selected cases of consumption, asthma, bronchitis and catarrhal diseases absolutely cured with combination of medicine, hygiene, diet, exercise and and the important uses and advantages of clothes, occupation, etc.

Many cases of deafness are frequently cured in sixty days. Loss of sight, cataract, granulated lips and old weak watery, sore eyes treated successfully. In long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, a treatment that is absolutely certain in its effects can be had and depended on.

Eczema, salt rheum, eruptions, liver spots and chronic diseases of the skin quickly cured. An absolute guarantee in every case accepted for treatment.

Patients with cancer, tumor and tuberacular glands not larger than one to two inches usually cured with their hypodermic injection method, without pain.

Patients with growths larger than two inches are not invited to call.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others have told you, no matter what experience you have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to treat with the Northwestern United Doctors Specialists. Even if your case is incurable they will give you such advice that will relieve you and stay the disease.

Do not put off this duty you owe yourself, your friends, and your relatives, it may save your life.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble, bring a two once bottle of your urine for analysis.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills.

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

EARLY RISERS
The famous little pills.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP
KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE
CONTAINING HONEY AND TAR

Cheese and Coffee.

Place on the table a plate of crisp cheese wafers. With them serve a tart jelly or thin preserve, such as gooseberry or crab apple. The preserve known as bar le duc is suitable for this purpose, and the taste of the cheese and wafers is greatly improved in combination with the fruit.

Strong, fragrant coffee is served with this simple desert.

Aniseed Cookies.

Rub to a cream one-half cupful of butter and a cupful of powdered sugar and when light stir in the well beaten yolks of three eggs. Add the stiffened whites alternately with a pound of flour, or enough to make a stiff dough, and stir into the flour a teaspoonful of aniseed. Roll thin and cut into rounds and bake.

Beefsteak Dumplings.

Line a deep dish with pie crust, cut up two pounds of stewing beef in small pieces, add salt, pepper, chopped onion, water, one-half teaspoonful poultry dressing and a little butter. Put top crust on and steam for three hours.

Shoe Scratches.

Scratches on your shoes should be rubbed gently with a little vaseline before polishing them. The marks will scarcely be noticeable then, while it puts the leather into better condition.

SWANSON'S PILLS
Best Remedy for Constipation, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Belching and Liver Troubles. 25c Per Box at Druggists

SKIN SORES
Easily and Quickly Healed

Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions know its miseries. There is no need of suffering. You can easily get rid of it by a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing remedy for eczema, pimples, running sores, wounds, burns, salt rheum, ring-worm, piles and acne. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear.

The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality you can order direct from Swanson R. C. Co., 160 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent postpaid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent remedy for cracked skin and scalp humors.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly people suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them so again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle, free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wilber's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullers of 125 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels. Absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Chinese Talleyrand.

Every Chinese is an enigma to the western mind, but the greatest enigma of them all is the man who has been called to the helm of state in this storm, the only man, if there be any, who can save the empire from shipwreck, Yuan Shi-Kai. He has been suspected and trusted alternately by Manchu and Chinese, reformer and conservative, foreign and native. The late emperor, who had made him his chief adviser, cursed him with his last breath as a traitor and cause of all his misfortunes. The late empress dowager, who had favored him above all others, denounced him at her last council. The present regent, his bitter enemy, has now made him virtually dictator of the empire. He is a possible intermediary between Manchus and rebels, because each party believes he is on their side; the Manchus trust him to support the dynasty, the rebels trust him to promote reform. Trained in the school of devious diplomacy under that consummate master of the craft, Li Hung-Chang, he has pursued a tortuous course through the troubled waters of Chinese politics ever since. His career would make the plot for a melodrama were it not too sensational and improbable for the stage.—New York Independent.

How to Clean a Waist.

Put two cupfuls of flour into one quart of gasoline and stir well. Put waist in this and let remain a couple of hours, shake and stir around, but do not rub; give a second bath of clear gasoline, put a clean corset cover over a form or pillow; stretch waist on this to dry, then brush with a soft brush to remove any remaining flour. The waist will look like new and the beads will be bright. The seams, only, need pressing.

Mince and Egg.

This is a nice lunch dish. Cut a thick slice of bread for each person, cut into rounds with a large biscuit cutter; toast them nicely; butter while hot. On each round put a layer of hot minced meat (beef, mutton or veal), seasoned well; on this lay a poached egg. Serve very hot.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

KAIPING BOMBARDED

Republican Troops Shell the City and Set It on Fire.

Kaiping, China, Chili province, was subjected to a severe bombardment by the revolutionary troops. According to the latest reports the town is in flames. The attacking force of republican troops brought twelve heavy field guns into action and for several hours fiercely shelled both the city and the fortress.

Twenty-three officers belonging to the garrison of the city were executed by the general in command without trial on suspicion of collusion with the revolutionary commander.

TROOPS FOR FRONTIER

Commanders Get Orders to Prepare Soldiers for Mexican Border.

Major Blake, commandre at Fort Crockett, Texas, has received telegraphic instructions directing that the 104 men of the One hundred and twenty-eight company coast artillery, be prepared to take the field, with full equipment, within twenty-four hours. The One hundred and twenty-seventh company of coast artillery also is quartered at Fort Crockett.

Colonel J. A. Irons, in command of the Twentieth United States infantry at Fort Douglas, Utah, also received orders to hold his regiment in readiness for a call to the Mexican border.

Orders have been sent to Fort William Henry Harrison in Montana for the four companies of the Fourteenth infantry stationed there to hold themselves in readiness to move on an instant's notice to the Mexican border.

ROB ROCK ISLAND TRAIN

Five Men Do the Job at Bridge Near Hurlburt, Ark.

Five men held up Rock Island passenger train No. 43, near Hurlburt, Ark., dynamited the safe in the express car, looting it, and robbing the mail car of the registered mail.

The train left Memphis shortly after midnight and crossed the bridge an hour later. As soon as the train cleared the bridge it was stopped and within a few minutes a fusillade of shots was heard, followed by several blasts of an explosive.

A posse from a Memphis detective agency, which had just crossed the bridge on a switch engine, saw the robbers, who took to the brush, going in the direction of the Mississippi river.

MOOSE CLOSS LAKE ON ICE

Seen at Keweenaw Point, Mich., After Tramping Superior Ice Field.

Lake Superior, for the first time in years, is frozen over from Eagle river to Isle Royale, a distance of forty miles, and it is the belief of residents of Eagle River that the ice field extends clear across the big lake.

Keweenaw Point people report that moose have been seen in the Keweenaw wilds during the last few days and if this is so the animals must have crossed on the ice from Canada, as there have been no moose on Keweenaw point for many years. The winter has been unusually severe, there being no letup in low temperatures since the cold snap set in about the first of the year.

THINK POST WAS THREATENED

Arrest of "Black Hand" Suspect Believed to Confirm Rumor.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 12.—The arrest of Clinton Sommers on a "black hand" charge at Battle Creek is reported as confirming the story that C. W. Post, cereal food manufacturer, had been receiving threatening letters despite the denial of his secretary. Mr. Post's daughter, Mrs. E. B. Close, had also been threatened.

The United States marshal refuses to disclose the name of the complainant. The letter demanded $500, which was to be placed in a designated spot. A roll of blank paper was placed there as a bait. Sommers called for it and was arrested.

EDWIN HAWLEY DEAD

Railway Magnate Expires in New York After a Long Illness.

In New York City Edwin Hawley, president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, and one of the leading railroad magnates and financiers in this country, died at his home after an illness of several weeks.

Edwin Hawley was credited with being the dominating influence in over 16,000 miles of railroad, capitalized at nearly $700,000,000. The Hawley lines included the Chicago and Alton, the Frisco, the Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and a number of smaller roads.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

EATON RAPIDS—The special committee appointed by the local fruit growers' association to examine the orchards in this section of the state, finds, after an investigation of two weeks, during which many orchards in Eaton, Ingham, Jackson, Clinton and Barry counties have been visited, that the peach buds have been almost completely destroyed by the extreme cold weather. Plums and all varieties of small fruits have shared practically the same fate. Apple orchards showed that only small damage has been done to buds of most varieties, but some of the less hardy ones have suffered to a considerable extent.

PORT HURON—Making allegations that their father has treated them as young children and has repeatedly asked whether they have been put to bed and other questions showing that he considered them still in their childhood, Bessie Elizabeth Brooks, Lillian May Hoffman and Mary A. Smith have filed a petition in probate court here for the appointment of a guardian for Ferdinand Hoffman. They say the father, has been engaged in the saloon business in the city for five years and was previously in business outside the city limits. His property is valued at $14,000.

HASTINGS—When Railway Conductor Clark of the eastbound local passenger train pulled the rope to let off a passenger who forgot to leave the train here he did not know he had averted a serious wreck. As the train slackened speed to stop the locomotive failed to clear a car of coal which a freight train had just left on a siding. In the ensuing crash the locomotive and baggage car were damaged. As the accident took place on a curve with a steep embankment, a frightful wreck would have resulted had it been going at its usual speed.

SAGINAW—Suffering most severely from exposure and hunger, a man known as S. W. Rogers, about fifty years old, died on the highway near the Day brick yards in Jamestown. Two persons were driving along the road and saw the man stagger from side to side. He fell and when they reached his side he was dead. A letter from Chicago, written in a strain similar to what might be common with a brother and sister, was found in his pocket. It was signed "Jennie."

JACKSON — One of the officers from Jackson prison has gone to Walla Walla prison, state of Washington, to get Edward Bishop, who was released on parole here, June 17, 1907, and was convicted there in December, 1910, and given a term of from one to two years. Bishop's return to Jackson for violating his parole means that he will have to serve out the full term of fifteen years given him by the circuit court judge at Washtenaw county in October, 1905, for burglary.

FLINT—A spirited horse driven by Fred Vosberg ran away when the cutter was overturned in the car track. Breaking loose from the cutter the horse ran south on North Saginaw street and dashed through the plate glass in the door of Seiner's dry goods store. People in the store were thrown into a panic and scrambled in all directions to escape the wildly plunging animal which came to a stop at the rear of the store where Patrolman Parrish caught him.

MENOMINEE — As the direct result of being hit over the head with a hockey stick about a year ago, Henry Fibbert, aged fifteen, died at his home here of softening of the brain. Every effort was made to save the boy's life. He was paralyzed, dumb and blind and an operation was performed to relieve the pressure of the bone on the brain, but without avail.

LANSING—The Downey House, a famous hotel which for many years had been the headquarters of Michigan legislators and political gatherings, was destroyed by fire. The loss was $400,000. At the time the fire broke out a convention was in progress and the hotel was crowded.

KALAMAZOO — Little Susie B. Dustin, an eight-year-old girl, died from blood poisoning which resulted from an ulcerated tooth. The girl was brought from her home to a hospital in this city and her condition rapidly grew worse until she died.

SAULT STE. MARIE — Ivan W. Dunbovitch, working in an excavation beneath the plant of the Canadian Soo Gas company, was killed when a heavy derrick fell upon him. He was crushed into about four inches of water and it is thought he drowned.

PORT HURON—Judge Law has just sentenced Henry Jackson and Nettie May Davis, accused of a serious crime, to pay fines of $50 and $25 respectively or serve sixty-five or thirty days in the Detroit house of correction.

CADILLAC — Beginning on date of March 20, the Swedish Lutheran church will hold a conference in this city. The conference includes all of the churches of the denomination in Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana.

CADILLAC—The family home of Ben Koomis, near this city, and its contents were destroyed by an early morning fire. Loss, $2,000; little insurance. The family escaped in their night clothes.

"DRIVE YOUR TRAIN ALONG"

Advice of Man Thrown Down Embankment by Big Four Flyer.

Muncie, Ind., Feb. 12.—The crew of a fast Big Four passenger train, feeling the impact when the engine struck some object and noticing parts of a buggy on the pilot of the engine, backed the train to a crossing near Yorktown where they found, in a field, Daniel Howell, aged twenty-one, a school teacher, trying to bandage a few small bruises on his horse's leg.

Howell had been hurled down a thirty-foot embankment, with the horse, when the train going fifty miles an hour had struck him; but neither was hurt enough to require assistance.

"Just drive your train right along, and don't mind us," Howell is reported to have told the trainmen. "I'm busy trying to fix up this horse." Howell did not miss an hour of school teaching.

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite, I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allsbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allsbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

ATTACK KIMMEL STORY

Defense Seeks to Break Down Swinney's Testimony.

Witnesses Show Snyder Could Not Have Seen Killing in West as Sworn To.

St. Louis, Feb. 19.—The defense in the Kimmel case opened before Judge Amidon. R. M. Snyder, Jr., son of the Snyder who was said by John B. Swinney to have been present when George A. Kimmel was shot dead in Oregon, took the stand.

The testimony of Swinney, the receiver of a defunct bank at Niles, Mich., was that Kimmel was killed in R. M. Snyder's presence Aug. 14, 1898. Young Snyder showed the attorneys for the insurance company telegrams he had received from his father from New York under the date of Aug. 13 and 15.

Al White was in court ready to testify that he is "Turkey" White. A witness for the plaintiff had testified that the claimant in the case was "Turkey" White.

The plaintiff closed his side of the case with a deposition of Henry T. Kimmel, father of the missing man. The claimant, Andrew J. White, while confined in prison, told Mrs. Edna Bonslett, according to this deposition, that he buried his father in Pennsylvania. Kimmel's father lives in Wisconsin, but has not lived with his wife in thirty-nine years. Mrs. Kimmel, mother of the missing man, gave the last oral testimony. In cross-examination her direct story was unshaken.

DEMOCRATS IN CHICAGO

Meet to Consider the Presidential Situation in Illinois.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Chairman Charles Boeschenstein of the Democratic state central committee and Vice Chairman Arthur Charles of Carmi are in Chicago participating in important conferences that have to do with the presidential situation in Illinois.

Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic national committee, also is here and reports he may have some influence in directing the course of the Illinois leaders in the presidential contest.

Mother Dies in Boys' Quarrel.

LaSalle, Ill., Feb. 19.—Efforts to separate her two sons, who were quarreling, resulted in the death of Mrs. Thomas When. The boys quarreled over a necktie. A shotgun one held was discharged accidentally, killing the mother.

180,000 MINERS MAY STOP WORK

Anthracite Workers Demand 20 Per Cent More Pay.

OPERATORS SHOW DEFIANCE

Union Will Present Terms to Displace Scale Made by Roosevelt Board—Both Sides Firm and Confident.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 19.—The anthracite mine workers' special committee will present to the operators in New York city Feb. 27 demands for a new working contract.

On the operators' answer hinges the question whether there will be a strike of the 180,000 mine workers in the hard coal region.

If such a strike is declared it will affect not only the 180,000 mine workers, but thousands of railroaders, teamsters and others, and will deprive the coal region of wages amounting to about $10,000,000 a month.

For nine years the mine workers have been working under an agreement made by the Roosevelt strike commission, appointed in 1902. The agreement has been made for three years, but has been renewed twice. It granted the mine workers a 10 per cent increase in wages and a nine-hour day, with a sliding scale based on the sale price of coal at tidewater. The latter has given the men an average monthly advance in wages of almost 4 per cent.

The miners demand now a 20 per cent increase in wages, an eight-hour day, recognition of the union and incidentally collection by the coal companies of the union dues from the mine workers, abolition of the conciliation board, payment for mined coal by weight instead of by the carload, a one-year agreement and minor concessions.

The demands will be presented by a committee consisting of the national president, John D. White, and District Presidents Dempsey, Kennedy and Fahey. These men will be accompanied by other officers, who may advise them in any extended conference the operators may desire.

The operators will be represented by George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company, who was their chief spokesman and leader during the seven months' strike of 1902. They say they will grant the mine workers no concessions.

The mine workers declare with equal positiveness that they will strike unless their demands are granted. They say that in the last nine years there has been a marked increase in the cost of living without any increase in their wages; that mining is steadily extending to deeper and smaller veins, and that it is only fair that they should be paid by weight for all coal mined instead of by the carload, the cars being of varying sizes and coal, in some sections, being harder to mine than in others.

On the other hand, the operators declare there has been no change in mining conditions; that the demands, with the exception of the one for the 20 per cent increase in wages, are the same as those which the strike commission considered and settled, and that it is useless to go over them again. They admit there has been an increase in the cost of living, but point out that the mine workers are making much better wages now because work is more steady.

AVIATOR GILMOUR KILLED

British Airman Drops 380 Feet with Aeroplane Near London.

London, Feb. 19.—Graham Gilmour, one of the best known young British aviators, was killed by a fall with his aeroplane from a distance of 380 feet. He was testing a new machine and was traveling sixty miles an hour when his machine suddenly buckled up and dropped to the ground.

When eye witnesses reached the spot they found the aviator dead, entangled in the wreck of the machine.

REICHSTAG AND KAISER AT OUTS

Emperor Refuses to Receive Radical Deputy Kaempf.

SITUATION IS UNPRECEDENTED

Socialists Who Are in Majority Regard Action as Effort of Throne to Compel Election of Another President.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—The trouble which it was foreseen would result from the election of Philip Schiedemann, a Socialist, as first vice president of the Reichstag, has already broken out.

The Kaiser, on the advice of Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg, has refused to receive Johannes Kaempf, the radical deputy from the emperor's own district, who was elected president of the Reichstag when Dr. Spahn declined to serve with a Socialist, and Heinrich Dove, the radical second vice president, because Herr Scheidemann declined to join them in the customary application for an audience with the emperor.

This application, as is usual, was made after the officers of the Reichstag had been elected. The Socialist party does not recognize court functions and for this reason Herr Schiedemann refused to append his name to the official application.

The situation is unprecedented and no solution of the difficulty can be foreseen at present. The Socialists interpret the action of the emperor as an attempt to prevent the ratification of the election of Herr Schiedemann, a formality which is necessary a month after he has been chosen by the Reichstag, and to compel the election of some member other than a Socialist in his place. It would, however, be unprecedented to have the strongest party in the Reichstag unrepresented among the presiding officers.

FOOD PRICES TAKE TUMBLE

Chicago Housewives Quit Buying and Butter and Eggs Fall.

Chicago, Feb. 19. — Chicago housewives have won a victory. As a result they have South Water street down on its knees yelling for help.

No demand sent butter and egg prices scooting downward last week like the undisturbed fall of a leaden plummet. The supply, however, kept pouring in.

The result can best be seen by a comparison of prices for a pound of butter and a dozen of eggs of now and two weeks ago. Then butter was quoted at 40 cents; now it is 28. Eggs, that then were 45 cents, now are quoted at 30.

AEHRENTHAL IS DEAD

Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister Expires in Vienna.

Vienna, Feb. 19.—Count Alois Lexa von Aehrenthal, Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, is dead.

The Count von Aehrenthal had been suffering for the last month from leucocythaemia, a disease characterized by profound changes in the blood and internal organs and no hopes were entertained for his recovery.

While it is acknowledged by Austria that Count von Aehrenthal had done more than any of his immediate predecessors to raise the prestige of the country, his latter days were embittered by attacks from Christian Socialist journals, which disliked the minister's sympathy for Italy and his alleged lukewarmness for Germany.

COUNT VON AEHRENTHAL.

ESCAPE OF SECTION MEN

Handcar With Eight Passengers Strikes Open Switch.

Albion, Ind., Feb. 19.—Following a disastrous wreck on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Kimmell, a small town about six miles west of Albion, in which an extra west bound freight ran into a regular train on a siding and demolished a number of cars, eight members of a section gang who were summoned to help clean away the wreckage, were thrown from their handcar when it struck an open switch just east of Kimmel.

The men were on their way back to Albion, and four of them were nearly killed.

GRAFT AT NAVAL STATION

Sensation Caused by Ousting of Chief Yeoman Nathan Miller.

Waukegon, Ill., Feb. 19.—Chief Yeoman Nathan Miller of the Great Lakes naval training station was dismissed from the service without honor for grafting.

The case has caused a sensation at the station. It is one of the most important steps yet taken by the authorities in the campaign inaugurated a week ago against petty grafters and loan sharks. The court martial was secret and the details have not been given out.

WASHINGTON EN ROUTE

Armored Cruiser to Carry Secretary of State Knox.

Intention is to Have Secretary Visit President Madero of Mexico, Unless Disorders Prevent.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 19.—The United States armored cruiser Washington left the navy yard here at 8:30 a.m. for Palm Beach, where Secretary Knox and his family will come aboard for his official tour of the Caribbean sea and Central American republics. Several newspaper men and Captain Powell Clayton, military aide to Secretary Knox, are on board. The rest of the party will be taken on at Palm Beach next Thursday.

According to the present itinerary Secretary Knox will visit Mexico. Should conditions in Mexico, however, became so disturbed as to make it seem inadvisable for Mr. Knox to visit that country in his official capacity the call there will be omitted.

The plan now is to make Vera Cruz the last stopping place of the trip. The Washington will probably arrive there April 21 and remain until the 25th. Secretary Knox will go to Mexico City by rail and make a call upon President Madero and the other officials of the Mexican government. Leaving Vera Cruz about April 25, the Washington will proceed to Key West, where the trip will come officially to an end April 28.

MEXICO ASKS A LOAN

French Bankers, at First Favorable, Are Warned Against Making It.

Paris, Feb. 19.—It is alleged in financial circles that the Mexican government is making an attempt to negotiate an important loan in France, where the leading banks are said to be willing to take it up.

On the other hand the latest diplomatic and consular advices from Mexico received here say the situation there is in too critical a state for foreigners to make any loans and that it would be sheer folly for French bankers to advance any money. Business men send word that Mexico is still upside down and advise France to follow Germany's action and send a gunboat to Vera Cruz.

POLL FAVORS ROOSEVELT

Nebraska Voters Express Overwhelming Preference for Colonel.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 19. — A presidential conference poll taken by the Nebraska State Journal show this result:

Roosevelt, 1,720; LaFollette, 374; Taft, 310; Cummins, 9; Beveridge, 10.

Each signer of a ballot was asked to express a second choice. Roosevelt was the second choice of 474 voters, while LaFollette was the second choice of 759 ballots. Taft was on 320, Cummins on 121 and Beveridge on 32.

Undertaker Commits Suicide.

Indianapolis, Feb. 19. — Stepping from the office into the chapel of his undertaking establishment, Frank W. Flanner committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. An employe found him on the floor before the altar. Flanner, who was fifty-eight years old, had been despondent from ill health.

TRIP OF KNOX IS MARRED BY SNUB

Representative of Colombia Sends Hostile Note.

CONSEQUENCES MAY BE GRAVE

Should Attitude of Minister Espina Be Supported by Government Diplomatic Relations May Be Severed.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Secretary of State Knox's trip to Central and South American republics for the purpose of developing friendly and cordial relations has been marred at the outset by an official snub from the diplomatic representative of the Columbian government in this city, Senor Pedro Nel Espina.

The minister has advised Acting Secretary of State Wilson that Secretary Knox's proposed visit to Colombia is "inopportune," which is the diplomatic method of saying that Mr. Knox is not wanted in Colombia. The minister explained, however, that he was acting on his own initiative in making this suggestion and will ask his government for definite instructions. He based his action upon the failure of the state department to make a reply to a diplomatic note which he submitted to the state department about three months ago, requesting the arbitration of the pending questions between the United States and Colombia. The principal question in dispute between the two governments relates to the boundary line between Colombia and Panama, which has been unsettled since the secession of Panama from Colombia in 1903.

In view of the Colombian minister's note, Secretary Knox probably will abandon his proposed visit to Colombia.

If the Colombian government upholds the stand taken by its minister, it will create a serious situation between the two governments which may result in the breaking off of diplomatic relations. If the Colombian government repudiates the action of its minister it will not remove entirely the embarrassment created by the minister's note. While officials of the state department declined publicly to comment upon the note, they say that Mr. Knox probably will not visit Colombia as a result of the untoward incident.

This action, it was predicted in diplomatic circles, will most likely lead to the minister's recall. The language of the note may be decided by the state department as a personal affront to the secretary of state, in which case the Colombian government will be notified that he is persona non grata. If this action should be taken and the minister's position should be supported by his government, it would mean the severance of diplomatic relations and the minister would promptly be given his passports as in the case of the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires two years ago.

COULON GETS DECISION

Chicago Boy Retains World's Bantam Championship.

Opponent, Frankie Burns, Falls Down in Twentieth Round and Referee Calls It Knock-Out.

New Orleans, Feb. 19.—Johnny Coulon, bantam champion of the world, retains his title, but there are at least twi-thirds of the 12,000 fight fans who witnessed the bout between the Chicago boy and Frankie Burns of New Jersey who believe the latter punch wellder deserved something better than a defeat.

Referee's Stout's decision in awarding the verdict to Coulon was met with a round of hisses, but this made little difference to the "windy city" artist, who accomplished what his late father was always anxious to see—that being a decision over the Jersey boy, a lad whom he always feared would wrest the title away from "Johnny Boy."

The decision hinged on the twentieth round, or that is what Referee Stout announced after the bout. Previous to this Burns had held his own in every round, especially from the tenth round on. In the twentieth and last round, Coulon held him even, but Burns was unlucky enough to slip and fall during this session, which might have been overlooked by the referee, and counted as a clean knockdown for the champion.

Former President's Son a Student.

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Rutherford P. Hayes, the son of Rutherford B. Hayes, former president of the United States, is a "short horn" student in fruit culture and dairying at Cornell university. Mr. Hayes has a big farm near Asheville, N. C., and came here to get in touch with the latest phases of agricultural improvement.

MARCIA'S PENITENCE

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"It's a dream." Marcia Newbury stood before the soft, clinging white frock she had just taken from the dressmaker's box. "But my old slippers will never do. Let me see; it's Thursday, and my next month's allowance comes in five—no, in six—days."

Marcia went to her desk, opened her purse, and did some figuring. "I've got six-ninety-seven. That will leave almost two dollars for carfare, and church, and odds and ends, if I pay five dollars for a pair of slippers. I'll do it. There are some beauties at Jo——"

She was interrupted by the knock of the maid.

"A gentleman, Miss Marcia, for your father. I said he was out of town, so the gentleman said you'd do. His name's Brown."

Marcia went downstairs picturing herself floating about at Mrs. Bronson Jenk's dance that evening in a filmy white gown and dainty white slippers.

"Good morning, Miss Newbury," said a good-looking, middle-aged man, coming toward Marcia with outstretched hand as she entered the room. "I'm Mr. Brown, of New York, —an old friend of your father's."

"Good morning, Mr. Brown," said Marcia, shaking hands with the stranger. "I'm sure father will be very sorry to miss you. I expect him home this afternoon—on the four-fifty-six from New York."

"Well, well," said Mr. Brown. "Just my luck. I've got to take the four-thirty-six back to New York to keep an appointment."

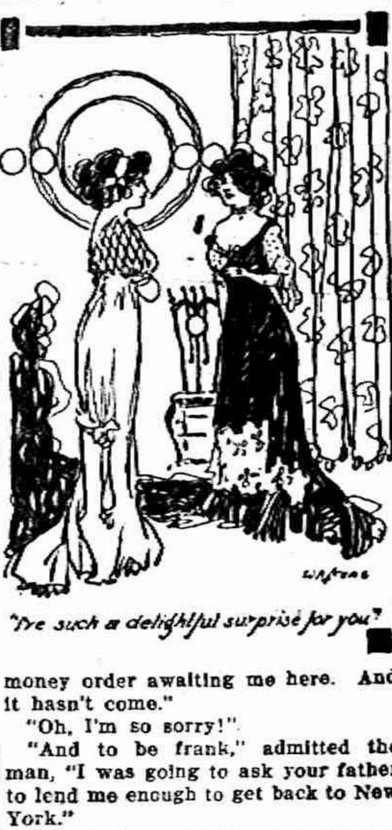
"My father will be sorry," repeated Marcia.

"Well, so am I," replied the man easily. "But to get right down to the bottom of the matter, Miss Marcia—I'm in a fix. I depended on your father to help me out——"

Marcia looked up with real concern.

"Could I—is it anything I could do?" she ventured.

"I hardly like to ask you," said the man. "You see, I expected to find a money order awaiting me here. And it hasn't come."



"I've such a delightful surprise for you"

"Oh, I'm so sorry!"

"And to be frank," admitted the man, "I was going to ask your father to lend me enough to get back to New York."

The vision of the new slippers danced before Marcia's eyes. Following them two rather worn black slippers hurried along.

"Would you let me?" suggested Marcia impulsively. "I haven't much cash about—but if five dollars would help—"

A few minutes later Mr. Brown of New York left Judge Newbury's house with Marcia's five dollars, promising to send it back the minute he reached New York. A few minutes afterward Marcia started downtown to buy a package of shoe polish and ribbon enough for new bows on the old slippers. On her way home she met Mrs. Benson Jenks.

"Marcia," said Mrs. Jenks, "I had the funniest experience this morning. You know Benson's away from home. A man—a Mr. Brown of New York—an old friend of Benson, he said—came to his house and I lent him five dollars. He was just strapped and hadn't enough to buy a ticket home. But, you know, Marcia, I think he was a cheat. I don't know why, but—"

Marcia gasped. "Mr. Brown—of New York—five dollars? Why, the fraud came to our house, and I did the same thing!"

When Marcia got home she found a young man pacing back and forth. He stopped as she came up the steps.

"Miss Newbury?" he queried. "I'm Mr. Shipley—Peter Shipley—of Boston, and an old friend of Judge Newbury's," he explained.

Marcia eyed him icily. "Oh, are you?" she questioned, her back against the door.

"The maid says the judge is away," said the man nervously.

"Well," said Marcia, looking at him out of steely eyes.

"Well," with difficulty, "you see, I'm in a hole. I'm strapped. I haven't any money—and I was going to ask the judge—"

Marcia laughed cynically. "Really were you?" she said.

The young man reddened. "It is a queer fix. The judge is the only person I know in this town. I've been away and thought I'd stop to see him on my way home. So I telegraphed my partner to forward a money order to me here. It hasn't come. I've got to catch the 12:03 for Boston to keep an important business engagement; and I have only a quarter."

By this time Marcia was in the hall, holding the door half shut. "I'm really sorry, Mr. Brown, or Shipley, or whatever else your name is. But I positively don't see how you dare talk in this way," she said, and slammed the door.

"Father," said Marcia that evening at dinner—she was wearing the new frock and the old slippers—"a Mr. Brown of New York, an old friend of yours—was here this morning and I let him have five dollars."

She watched her father. She knew the joke was on her.

"Brown? Of New York? I don't remember any such man. Still, it's not an uncommon name."

"Of course you don't," laughed Marcia. She told the story in detail, and told of Mrs. Jenk's experience. The judge laughed heartily. He always called Marcia soft-hearted.

"Never mind the five dollars, dear," he consoled her. "Take it out of the housekeeping accounts and give us rice pudding for dessert until it's paid back."

"But father," said Marcia, ready now to enjoy herself, "did you ever know a Mr. Shipley of Boston—Peter Shipley?"

"Peter Shipley? I should say so. One of the finest young men in the world. Prouts—the Boston lawyer—has just taken him in as junior partner. What about Shipley, daughter?"

It was a somewhat crestfallen Marcia that appeared at Mrs. Benson Jenk's dance that evening. She had foregone a pair of new slippers; she had been foolish enough to let a cheat impose on her; and, worst of all, she had failed in hospitality and courtesy.

"Although," she consoled herself, "I really didn't have any money left for the second borrower."

"Oh, Marcia," exclaimed Mrs. Jenks when Marcia went into the drawing-room; "I've such a delightful surprise for you. Just before dinner—I had to rush downtown again for something I'd forgotten—I met an old friend of mine from Boston, Peter Shipley, wandering up and down in front of the post office. He said he was expecting an important letter that hadn't come yet. And, as he hadn't planned which hotel to go to, I persuaded him to come here. You see, he's an old friend of your father and he is crazy, for some reason, to meet you. He's awfully nice, Marcia. Do be good to him."

Mrs. Jenks continued oblivious to Marcia's gasp of surprise and flush of embarrassment; and just then Peter Shipley, very good looking in an out-of-date evening suit borrowed from his host, and with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, came up, was introduced to Marcia, and claimed her for the first dance.

"It's the least you can do," he laughed as he led her away.

"I'll do anything you want me to do, really, Mr. Shipley, to convince you that I am penitent."

A few months later, when Peter Shipley paid one of several visits to Judge Newbury's home, he reminded Marcia of her words at Mrs. Jenks' dance.

"I'll never be convinced that you are really penitent for the way you treated me on that first day, Marcia, less you will stand by your word and do anything I want you to do. I want you to marry me, Marcia."

And Marcia stood by her word.

The Pope's Triple Crown.

The tiara, or triple crown of the Pope, was originally a plain high cap, much like those in which the Doges of Venice are so often represented in old pictures and medals. It was first introduced by Pope Nicholas I. in 860.

It is doubtful when the first coronet was added, but the second was placed by Pope Boniface VIII. in 1295 and the third by Pope Urban V. about 1368.

It has been held that the three crowns refer to the Holy Trinity, though that evidently could not have been the original idea or they would not have been added one after the other, with an intervening interval in each case of many years.

Others affirm that they denote the threefold royalty of the Bishop of Rome, one being the symbol of the temporal power over the Roman states; another, the spiritual exercised over the souls of men; and the third the authority over all the kings and potentates of Christendom.

Muffled Knocks.

"Rivers, you've been doing some good work in your department of the paper—lately."

"Sure, Mrs. Flickinger, we'll be glad to come out and spend a day with you some time. I know we'll enjoy the ride there and back, anyway."

"How much you resemble your excellent father, Hossulkus! Your nose is a trifle one sided, and your legs are curved, just as his were."

"Barber, your wife must be a splendid cook; I can tell that you have been eating some mighty fine onions."

"We are willing to accept this juror, your honor. He seems to know nothing—about this case."

AMONG LOSERS OF THINGS

The Advertisements of the Careless Present a Most Interesting Study in Psychology.

Even when you haven't lost or found anything do you ever turn to the column advertising for lost articles? If you do not, try it occasionally. You'll find the lost article column brim full of touches of nature that make the whole world kin.

Among other interesting things you'll learn that Kansas City is chuck full, almost overflowing, with cows. No one who hasn't read the lost article ads realizes the magnitude of the bovine population of Greater Kansas City. Never a day passes but some Kansas City family, usually a number of them, is regretting the loss of Bossie and is asking some one to bring her back. It's merely a case of won't stay put, that's all. Bossie strays every day, every hour, almost every minute in Kansas City.

Dogs, however, are the most frequently lost article. Usually another case of won't stay put. Towser is a gregarious nomad.

The lost article column is as seasonable as the market column, too. Just now its muffs, fur neckpieces, overcoats and shotguns that are being left in street cars, dropped from motor cars or forgotten somewhere, for this is their season.

Umbrellas, eyeglasses, watches, lockets, pins and brooches are lost all the year around without regard to season.

Horses are lost frequently, but mules rarely.

The other day a man lost a laundry—so the caption of the ad. would lead one to believe, but later on the ad explained that it was a package of laundry the man lost.

One woman lost a pillow cover this week. She had taken it to a matinee to embroider between acts.

Women may now and then lose parcels of dress goods, lace and other materials while shopping, but staid lawyers, careful business men and physicians aren't immune to the affection, as lawyers lose abstracts, valuable papers and books, while business men lose suitcases, bags, pocketbooks and papers, and doctors sometimes leave medicine cases, parcels and books where they didn't intend to.

A pair of red house slippers were lost the other day, presumably by a minister or a woman.

SQUIRRELS OR TREES?

SERIOUS PROBLEM CONFRONTS EXPERTS IN FORESTRY.

Little Animals Cause Serious Trouble Wherever Forest Service Has Tried to Reforest Cut-over or Burned Areas.

Whether we have squirrels or forests in the United States is a question that is now presenting itself urgently to the department of agriculture. Dr. H. H. Henshaw, chief of the biological survey, has just returned to Washington after a tour of the west, where the forest service is worried over this problem.

The squirrels that are forcing themselves into the balance against the trees are the gray squirrels of the west and the Pacific coast. There has been an immense amount of trouble wherever the forest service has tried to reforest either cut-over or burned areas from the small rodents that ate the seeds before they sprouted. The gophers, field mice and ground squirrels have been the worst offenders, and it has been found necessary to exterminate these little pests over large areas before reforesting was at all successful.

This has been done in some cases with the aid of the biological survey, and in cases where from 75 to 80 per cent. of the seed were formerly eaten within 36 hours after planting, it has been found possible to kill off the small ground animals and get a good stand of new timber. In fact, in the Cochapaw forest of Colorado it is probable that the stand of young trees will have to be thinned out to give room the trees ought to have.

But now comes the gray squirrel and presents a new problem to the forester. In most of the reforesting areas the seed of the yellow pine is the most desirable seed to be planted. The gray squirrels, it is found, not only eat the seed that are planted, but if the seed crop is at all light they eat the seed before the foresters can collect them for planting. The rangers have tried the experiment of watching the squirrels and find they frequently can locate the hoards of the little red squirrel, getting as much as a bushel of seed sometimes from a single granary. But the gray squirrel does not hoard the seed. He either eats as he goes or else buries scattered seed so it is useless to look for them.

The biological survey does not want to exterminate the squirrels, and does not intend to poison them, at first at any rate, but will send out hunters to kill them off by shooting in the worst infested regions to see whether they can be held in check till the new trees get a start.

Doctor Henshaw said he made a visit to the national bison range, where 20,000 acres have been fenced on the Flathead Indian reservation, and found the herd of bison installed there doing well and taking kindly to their new surroundings. The Flathead Indians have several thousand acres of land they want to irrigate, and they cannot readily get water to do it without running an irrigation ditch across the bison park. They are willing to do the work of ditch digging themselves or pay the department of agriculture for having it done, but the department does not want to risk this invasion of the bison territory, and the method by which the question shall be settled has not yet been worked out.

Fairness in Fishing.

Between men who fish for fish and those who fish for sport there is an irreconcilable difference. The former is merely a killer, while the latter is a chivalric adversary who pits his skill with rod and reel against the strength of the fish under conditions which give the latter a fair chance for his life.

Anglers of both of these general classes figure numerously among the visitors to the great national park of the Yosemite. The fish-killers appear to have predominated, however, and their greed has persuaded the government to modify the park regulations relating to fishing. Heretofore a visitor was permitted to take a maximum of 50 fish a day from the waters of the park, but it has been ordered that henceforth the daily limit for an angler shall be 20 fish.

A most commendable order. The fish in the Yosemite are large and full of fight and 20 a [illegible] are enough for any right-minded sports-

AMUSEMENTS

"The Newlyweds and their Baby" the big musical production which comes to the Bradley Opera House, Thursday February 29th is playing all this week in Detroit. They go from there to Toledo for a four days engagement and come here direct from Toledo.

Some people seem to think that the production will not be given here the same as 'put on' in the big cities but Mr. Mark will see the piece in Toledo next Sunday and gives his personal guarantee that the entire production will be given here exactly as presented there.

The company comes here on a guarantee of $400 so it makes no difference to them how big the town is or any else, They get the big production complete

Mr. Mark has posted the original letter from the Leffler-Bratton Co. of New York on the frame down town so anyone who doubts that "The Newlyweds" get $400 can see for themselves That was the only terms that they would consider and rather than loose the attraction contracts were signed to that effect.

"The Newlyweds" is the biggest attraction of any kind ever playing her is the only Musical production booked for this season.

About 3.30 they adjourned to the house where refreshments were served They went home voting that they had had a fine day and thank Mr. and Mrs. Waldron for their hospitality. About twenty were there and enjoyed the fun.

ALL THESE PIES ARE GOOD

Four Suggestions Housewife Will Do Well to Try When Looking for Something New.

Mix well together two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, moisten with a little cold water and cook five minutes. Add one-half cupful of raisins, seeded and chopped, and one and one-half cupfuls of chopped cranberries. Simmer for 15 minutes, pour into a baked crust, cover with white of an egg beaten stiff with one tablespoonful of sugar, and brown lightly in the oven. The pie has the flavor of cherries.

One cupful of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, one pint of mashed sweet potato, yolks of four eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half a nutmeg, little salt. Mix and bake with one crust. Cover with meringue or spread while hot with strained honey.

Take two large tablespoons of cornstarch, dissolve it in cold water to a smooth paste, pour on one-half pint of boiling water and stir until it thickens. Remove from the fire and add one cup of sugar, two apples grated juice, rind of one lemon and a teaspoonful of butter. Bake in two crusts. Will make two medium-sized pies. Very nice.

Bake an old-fashioned raisin or funeral pie, in which you can bake some tiny symbols, as a button for the thrifty wife or husband, a penny for the rich one and a pumpkin seed for the man or woman who will not make his or her mark in the world.

On the Clothes Line.

Always boil a clothesline before using it. It makes it smoother and easier to handle.

Thrifty Squirrel.

Alfred McHenry has a park of several acres, in which a score or more of gray squirrels have taken up their abode. The other day Mr. McHenry bought two bushels of walnuts to be fed to the squirrels during the winter. He left the bag with the nuts in the back part of his buggy, which was pushed into the carriage shed.

Two days later when the occasion required the use of the buggy again he went to remove the two bushel bag of walnuts, when, lo and behold! there wasn't half a peck of the walnuts there. But there was a hole in the bag and an excited squirrel that chattered on a beam overhead seemed to have more than the ordinary amount of interest in McHenry's movements. The latter watched the squirrel and when he discovered that it had its home behind one of the rafters he climbed up a ladder and investigated. He not only found the squirrel's nest but all the stolen walnuts as well. The squirrel had transferred the nuts from the buggy up under the rafters all within 14 hours of daylight.—Williamsport Correspondence Philadelphia North American.

Elasticity of Human Skull.

Fortunately the human skull, although composed of bones, is elastic—much more so than one would think. The average male adult skull, in fact, is so elastic that it may be compressed laterally in diameter by a blow or pressure applied at the center of area at right angles to the surface at that point by 1¼ centimeters, or about six-tenths of an inch; recovering its original diameter and form without breakage. The material of which our bones are made is so highly resistant that a cylindrical piece thereof only one square millimeter or 0.00155 square inch in area—i. e.; only 1.128 millimeter or 0.044 inch in diameter, has a tensile strength of 15 kilograms or 33 pounds avoirdupois, figuring out at about 21,300 pounds per square inch. A similar sample of hardwood tested in the same manner held only ten kilograms—that is, bone has 50 per cent. more tensile strength than wood. A single bone fiber is shown in the hygiene exhibition, Dresden, supporting a weight of five kilograms or 11 pounds avoirdupois.

New York Uses Much Water.

In the whole world there are only about 1,500,000 people. An inch of rain on our watershed normally would give two gallons of water for every man, woman and child on the surface of the earth. Put it another way: If every man, woman and child on the face of the earth should walk up to the lakes, reservoirs, etc., which hold New York city's water supply, and each pour in two gallons of water, it would not be enough to last that city ten days.

McKINLEY CLUB BANQUET

About 600 republicans gathered for the McKinley Club banquet in Adrian, Wednesday evening. This was pronounced one of the very best ever held, and was full of political pyrotechnics. Senator Townsend was at his best and was cheered most heartily, Rep. Caleb Powers told of his political fights and imprisonment in Kentuckey. Rep. Morse spoke in defense of his friend, Senator LaFollette, and toastmaster Scalin put in the finishing touches to make the celebration a fine one.

The feast of reason was supplemented by a feast of good things for the inner man, and the crowd dispersed at a late hour, more than satisfied with their evenings entertainment.

RETURNING TO TECUMSEH

NORTHWESTERN UNITED DOCTORS OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AN ASSOCIATION OF PROMINENT PHYSICIANS GIVING FREE MEDICAL SERVICES TO THE SICK AND MEDICINES AT COST.

At Hotel Barrett Wednesday February 21st One Day Only.

The Northwestern United Doctors, largest doctor specialists in the United States practicing in Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, organized and licensed by the states for the purpose of treating diseases, deformities and all curable ailments without surgical operation. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result to their friends, and thus prove to the sick and afflicted that at last treatments have been discovered that are absolutely sure and certain in their effect.

By their developed system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, kidney stones, tumors, goiter, piles or cancer. They were among the first in America to do away with the knife, blood and pain in the successful treatment and cure of these dangerous diseases.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys and bladder rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, leg ulcers, epilepsy, or fits, etc., all treated with gratifying success.

Selected cases of consumption, asthma, bronchitis and catarrhal diseases absolutely cured with combination of medicine, hygiene, diet, exercise and and the important uses and advantages of clothes, occupation, etc

Many cases of deafness are frequently cured in sixty days. Loss of sight, cataract, granulated lips and old weak watery, sore eyes treated successfully. In long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, a treatment that is absolutely certain in its effects can be had and depended on.

Eczema, salt rheum, eruptions, liver spots and chronic diseases of the skin quickly cured, An absolute guarantee in every case accepted for treatment.

Patients with cancer, tumor and tuberanlar glands not larger than one to two inches usually cured with their hypodermic injection method, without pain.

Patients with growths larger than two inches are not inclined to call.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others have told you, no matter what experience you have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to treat with the Northwestern United Doctors Specialists. Even if your case is incurable they will give you such advice that will relieve you and stay the disease.

Do not put off this duty you owe yourself, your friends, and your relatives, it may save your life.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble, bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for analysis.

Hours 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

"Dad."

"Dad" and "daddy" were well known in this country in the sixteenth century; "papa" did not come in, borrowed from abroad, until the seventeenth century was well advanced. Florio, at the end of the former century, defined the Italian "pappa" as "the first word that children are taught to call their father, as ours say 'dad,' 'daddie' or 'bab.'" "Dad" seems to be the commoner to [illegible] of the two. Nausicaa in the "Odyssey" calls her father "[illegible]," dear papa; but Greek has "tata" also, and Welsh has "tat," and Irish "daid."

COON HUNTING ON DECLINE

Conservation Is Proving Very Unpopular to Those Who Delight in This Sport.

Coon hunting is on the decline over in southern Illinois, according to a report from Owensville, because the farmers and land owners have become timber conservationists and refuse to allow their trees to be cut.

It used to be that a coon hunt was not a success unless the coon was treed in a monarch of the forest, the tree subsequently being cut down by the ready axes of the hunters to effect the capture of the game. In days when timber was plentiful the land owners were not so particular, and it was not uncommon for a hunting party to chop down half a dozen fine trees in a single night. The hunting party that would commit such a trespass nowadays probably would find itself in serious trouble with the courts. For trees such as the coon hunters used to cut now have a big market value. They are growing scarcer all the time, and the wise land owner is realizing the necessity of husbanding his resources in the timber line.

"In the good old days" an incalculable amount of good timber was destroyed in this way. It was not missed at the time, for trees grew almost everywhere, and lumber was not so much of an item as it is at present. The forests had to go in order to blaze the way for agricultural development. There was no especial demand for timber, and vast areas of it were cut down and burned that the land owner might prepare for growing corn or tobacco. Much of this timber might have been saved if the farmer had cleared his land on any systematic plan, and would have made him independent in his later years. He did not realize the importance of conservation, so he cut and slashed indiscriminately, and the coon hunters helped him, along with the hickory nut hunters, the chestnut hunters, the grape gatherers, the seekers after slippery elm bark and a great variety of hunters engaged in denuding the wooded lands of their products.

It is well that the farmers of southern Indiana and the farmers elsewhere are beginning to take notice of the conservation movement. If the coon hunter must needs chase coons let him catch them on the level or climb the tree for his booty.

Prize Steers Not Good Meat.

The meat of more than one prize steer has proved disappointing in the eating, though fine to look at. In the development of the animal for competition his flesh is sometimes, if not always, seamed with small veins of fat which are dilated by cooking into tough strings. Hence, the range-fed steer, not nursed into prominence, affords the better steak or roast.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh. Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the imflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute, For sale by all druggists.

Penochi.

Two cups brown sugar, one cup of white sugar, two-thirds cup of milk, piece of butter about as large as an English walnut. Cook until it forms a waxy ball when dropped in cold water. Have half cup walnuts and three or four figs put through chopper ready to add when needed. Just before taking sugar, etc., from stove add a small pinch of cream tartar, as that tends to make penochi creamy. Take from stove and stir until it begins to grain under the spoon. Then add vanilla, nuts and figs and pour into buttered platter. Cut into squares when cool.

"Will you take tart or pudding, asked Tommy's papa.

"Tart," said Tommy promptly.

His father sighed as he recalled the many lessons on manners he had given the boy.

"Tart, what?" he queried kindly.

But Tommy's eyes were glued on the the pastry.

"Tart, what?" asked the father again sharply this time.

"Tart first," answered Tommy triumphantly.—Cleveland Press.

SWANSON'S PILLS Best Remedy for Constipation, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Belching and Liver Troubles. 25c Per Box at Druggists

SKIN SORES Easily and Quickly Healed

Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions know its miseries. There is no need of suffering. You can easily get rid of it by a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing remedy for eczema, pimples, running sores, wounds, burns, salt rheum, ring-worm, piles and acne. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear.

The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality you can order direct from Swanson R. C. Co., 168 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent prepaid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent remedy for chafed skin and scalp humors.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 328 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

RULES FOR MAKING GOOD TEA

Follow These and a Delightful and Exhilarating Beverage Will Be the Result.

A good cup of tea is something too infrequently met with when one considers the prevalent use of tea as a beverage. The fault often lies less in the tea than in the manner of its making. Here are some of the rules which, if observed, will prove the quality of the product:

Don't use water that has been boiled a long time in brewing tea.

Don't use water which has not yet reached the boiling point.

Don't allow the tea to brew for more than five minutes.

Don't make tea in a cold teapot. Rinse with hot water before placing the leaves in the pot.

Don't pour a second water over the leaves when the first brew is exhausted.

Don't allow tea to grow damp in the caddy.

Don't buy too cheap a quality of tea and expect good results.

Here is the Japanese method of making a delightfully refreshing beverage: Heat the earthen or china teapot thoroughly with boiling water, then empty out the water and put in the tea, pour in freshly boiled water, let it stand for five minutes and serve.

A teapot never touches the stove. A tiny tea cozy of Japanese paper is put over the teapot the moment the water is poured on and a delicious cup of tea is thus secured without having extracted the injurious ingredient—the tannin.

Always use a porcelain or earthware teapot. Tea experts tell us that the fragrant leaf should never touch metal.

Explaining a Resentment.

"I am an American citizen," said the man who got into trouble abroad. "Well," replied the Oriental official, "in that case you can consult some of your own statesmen and understand our resentment of pernicious activity in politics."

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

Mrs. Charles Westgate underwent a successful operation on Tuesday.

Mrs. Herman Schwart and daughter Ida are recovering from their illness.

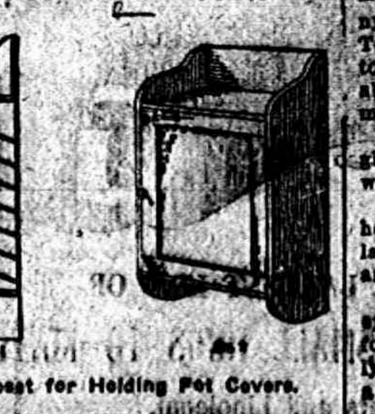
ALL MADE FROM CORN FLOUR

Expert Has Demonstrated the Possibilities of This Material, So Much Cheaper Than Wheat.

Mrs. S. T. Rorer, well known as a cooking authority, gave a series of practical illustrations with corn recipes some time ago. To persons who think only of yellow and white mush, Johnny cake, "pone" and Indian pudding as possible from corn flour, it may be a revelation to read merely a list of the dishes which Mrs. Rorer prepared. She made corn bread with yeast, southern rice bread, Louisiana corn bread, Adirondack corn bread, Victoria corn gems, mush gems, hoe cakes, corn dodgers, waffles, plain boiled hominy, blanc mange, cream of cornstarch pudding, strawberry starch with meringue, Heaton pudding, strawberry float, vanilla souffles, hominy, fondue, cornstarch cakes, blankets, plain chicken and hominy, fried cream, mush croquettes, cream pie and Boston brown bread.

"And in all these recipes," declared Mrs. Rorer, "I have not used one ounce of wheat flour. Corn flour has been used every time."

POT-COVER CLOSET.



Closet for Holding Pot Covers.

The sides of the cover closet are cut as shown in Fig. 1 and shelves are nailed between them at a slight angle. No dimensions are given, as the space and the sizes of the covers are not always the same. The back is covered with thin boards placed vertically. The front can be covered with a curtain or a hinged door as shown.—Gilbert A. Wehr, Baltimore, Md., in Popular Mechanics.

UNESSENTIALS

By MAUD J. PERKINS

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"Truth is stranger—I won't finish that; it's banal. But it's the only thing that fits the case."

Nora Melbright resumed the study of two letters that had come by the morning's post. One was from DeLancey Crane, the sculptor, the other from John Withington, manufacturer. Each was a proposal of marriage.

The two men were to be over-Christmas guests at her brother-in-law's home and each had asked for a sign on Christmas eve to indicate whether he had been accepted or rejected.

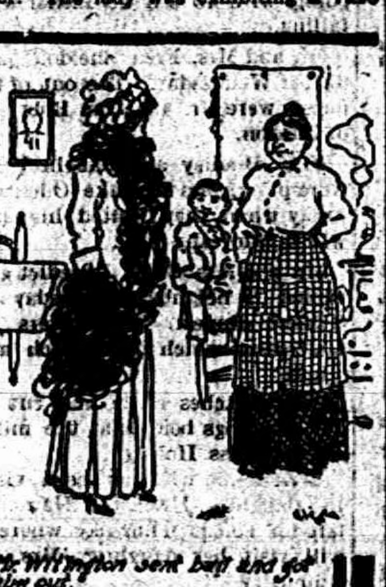
"It's positively uncanny," mused Miss Melbright, "that both of them should be struck by the same idea at the same instant. Here we are, an hour from the city. DeLancey could have run down and stated his case—though I don't know what I'd said if he had. And Jack Withington lives here in Brookhurst. He's been away for a few days, but he could have asked me any time within the past three months."

They were, if not remarkable men, at least above the herd. Grist had called DeLancey Crane "the most promising American sculptor." For the past two years he had been making great strides in his art. Success had not spoiled him, in the ordinary sense of the term, but, and she sighed, if he were only not so fond of money! If only he cared more for sculpture and less for what it brought him!

There were excuses for him. He had never, until now, known anything but poverty. He had scrimped and toiled for his high school education, economized to the last penny to make his way through college, and had starved for his art education in Paris. Could he be blamed for seeing only motor cars and country houses in each block of marble?

And Jack Withington—if only he were not so clumsy! His rare forays into society were agonizing to Withington and embarrassing to his friends. An irrepressible smile curved her lips at the memory of Withington's last martyrdom.

It was at Mrs. Millister's—"Mrs. Millionbucks," they had privately called her. The lady was exhibiting a vase



"Mr. Withington sent bail and got him out."

she had picked up abroad, and of which she was very proud. One after another examined it with murmured compliment for Mrs. Millister's taste until it reached Withington. Somehow it slipped through his fingers and tinkled musically into hundreds of pieces on the polished floor.

She recalled the misery on Jack's face, and the horried "It is of no consequence," more cutting than a dagger-thrust, from the outraged Mrs. Millister.

"If it weren't for Jack's clumsiness—" said Nora.

Of the two young men, Withington was most in her mind during the week that followed—the week before Christmas. His deeds spoke for him, as she made her charity calls.

There was the case of the Biggses. The husband and father, a droopy, discouraged young man, seemed always out of work. It had been, for some time, Nora's unavoidable duty to provide them a Christmas dinner.

This year, however, the house was swept and garnished, and Mrs. Biggs was singing to the baby. "Abner's at work," she proudly informed Nora. "He's at Mr. Withington's factory and likes it ever so much. Mr. Withington told him not to worry about Christmas, because he always gives his men a basket with turkey and things. Oh, we'll have a fine Christmas dinner this year!" she exclaimed.

Nora braced herself for the next call—on old Mrs. Slovak, whose son Benny was oftener in trouble than out. Today, however, the youngster, known to the police as "Benny the Rat," was absorbing gratefully the heat of his mother's kitchen.

"Why, Mrs. Slovak!" cried Nora in glad surprise. "I thought Benny was—"

"In jail!" completed the woman in her broken English. "He was. But last night Mr. Withington sent bail and got him out."

"The Rat" himself, whose furtive eyes harbored most frequently fear for the just or stealing looked up briefly with quite a new expression. "He's a good guy!" he said.

"The Gang" gathered the day before Christmas for its annual frolic. There were Sam Wallace, the illustrator, DeLancey Crane, Withington, the Cameron girls, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Mullane. This year they were guests of the Catlins and Nora at Brookhurst.

Christmas eve was the big time; things happened so satisfying then. First, there was the joy of arriving; then the noble dinner and the Christmas tree—not to mention "The Jinx."

"The Jinx" was the big feature of the reunion. It was a peculiar institution, taking a different form each year. It might be a song, set to a popular air, a poem, or a satirical story, or even a painting. But it always must be clever, and illustrate the foibles of some member of the group.

Nora's secret misgivings proved groundless. She had dreaded the coming of Christmas eve. She feared the two young men would watch her foolishly for sign of token.

DeLancey Crane had been elected to manufacture "The Jinx," and there was keen anticipation when dinner had been cleared away and a brown paper parcel placed before him. With a mischievous smile he cut the cords, stripped off the paper and pushed "The Jinx" forward into public view.

There was an immediate shout of appreciation and laughter. "The Jinx" was a wooden figure about a foot in height, beautifully carved. It was a likeness of Jack Withington—a likeness so patent as to be instantly discernible. There was a smile on his face and his hands were outstretched.

Below, suspended in midair on a wire all but invisible, was the falling vase of "Mrs. Millionbucks."

The little statue passed from hand to hand amidst delighted comment.

"That's just the way you looked, Jack!" cried Tommy Mullane.

"Really, DeLancey, it's a splendid piece of work," said Mrs. Catlin, admiringly.

"It's a wonder he hasn't sold it for a thousand dollars!" contributed Wallace, and they laughed at Crane's expense. He laughed, too, good-naturedly enough, for he made no secret of his determination to secure from art the last cent it would yield.

Nellie Cameron was shy, herself; she knew the tortures of shyness. None but she and Nora saw the pain back of Jack Withington's smile as he balanced the manikin in his palm.

"Really, DeLancey," she said, sharply, "you put too much emphasis on unessentials."

"A Danieless come to judgment," grinned Crane. "Meaning the vase, I presume?"

"Yes—that's just what I meant. It would be perfectly lovely without that old thing tumbling down there."

"Why," shouted Crane, "the vase is its excuse for being! Without that, you little simpleton, it wouldn't be a Jinx!"

That was it, thought Nora: "Putting too much emphasis in unessentials!" They were all doing that; she had been doing it until Nellie's inspired sentence lighted her path like a lightning flash.

DeLancey Crane was putting too much emphasis on the unessential of money. She had been putting too much emphasis on the unessential of Withington's clumsiness and unease. She had permitted it to blind her to the fact that he was a kind-hearted, generous gentleman—and that she loved him.

The manikin came to her, amidst a little hush. "I agree with you, Nellie," she smiled. "Let us forget the unessentials."

With deft fingers she twisted free the wire and vase, and tossed them into the grate.

The statue stood alone—Withington at his best, as he appeared tonight, as he appeared always among his friends—dignified, friendly, and companionable.

And both men had their answer.

CONCOCTIONS OF RICE

MANY WAYS IN WHICH EDIBLE MAY BE PREPARED.

One of the Healthiest and Not Altogether Properly Appreciated Articles of Food—Chocolate Pudding Will Be Found Delicious.

Persons who have lived in Mexico, says the New York Sun, have acquired a taste for rice polenta, which calls for a cupful of rice, a tablespoonful each of butter, vinegar and molasses, a tablespoonful of mustard, a teaspoonful of onion juice, salt and pepper. Boil the rice until tender and drain. Then rub it through a sieve and mix with the other ingredients. Cook all together about ten minutes and serve as a vegetable.

For Spanish rice, brown half a cupful of rice in hot fat, add an onion chopped fine, a tomato and a mashed clove or garlic. Cover with hot water, season with salt and pepper and cook in the rice until it is tender, adding water as it is needed, but not stirring.

For rice tortillas, mix a cupful of flour, a cupful of rice, half a cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of butter and a little salt. Knead mixture thoroughly, break off pieces and pat into cakes until each cake is large and very thin. Bake on a griddle until brown.

To make cheese cakes, bring half a cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls of butter to a simmer, and then stir in a tablespoonful of flour mixed with three tablespoonfuls of boiled rice. When the milk is all taken up gradually four eggs thoroughly beaten and a cupful of grated cheese. Season highly with salt, pepper and cayenne. Take from the fire, make into cakes and fry in hot fat.

Minced ham and boiled rice mixed together and filled into individual baking dishes with an egg on the top make an excellent luncheon dish. Fill the little dishes about half full of the rice and ham mixture and put them into the oven until they are heated through. Then remove, drop an egg into each with bits of butter, salt and pepper over the top, and bake until the white is set.

Cakes made of corn meal and cold, boiled rice make a variation in the breakfast breads. Use a cupful of rice to two cupfuls of the meal and mix in a tablespoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, two beaten eggs, two cupfuls of milk, a tablespoonful of butter and two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in gem tins for 20 minutes.

For rice pudding without eggs turn half a pound of well-washed rice into a buttered dish with three cupfuls of cold milk. Sweeten and flavor to taste, grate a little nutmeg over the top and scatter a few bits of butter, and bake for three hours at least in a very slow oven.

For rice chocolate pudding soak half an ounce of gelatine in a cupful of cold milk and meanwhile grate three ounces of chocolate into a pint of scalding hot milk. Stir the chocolate and milk over the gelatine, and when the gelatine is dissolved stir in a cupful of sugar, the whites of four eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla. When the mixture is very cold whip it to a froth, turn it over cold boiled rice and

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite, I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allsbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allsbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

MONROE—The large stable and feed barn of the I. E. Ilgenfrits Sons company, located on Willow street in this city, was totally consumed by fire. It is stated that employes were engaged in repairing the gasoline engine when the fuel became ignited. Frank Poupard, Aloysius Vernoeven, Benk Bank, Steve Christ and Willie Basso, the latter three Slavs, were severely burned about the face, hands and body as a result of the explosion. Bank was saved from incineration by being plunged into a watering trough, but was so seriously burned that his recovery is doubtful.

DETROIT—State Senator Guy Miller, who is a political opponent of Governor Osborn, declared that he will try to block the enactment of a presidential primary law at the special session of the legislature, the call for which the governor has issued. Mr. Miller's plan is to introduce a resolution calling for an inquiry into alleged efforts of Chairman Knot of the Republican state committee to induce Tax Commissioner Shields to increase the assessments of mine owners $20,000 to aid the Osborn campaign fund.

YPSILANTA—Quite a considerable number of Ypsilanti citizens were in Ann Arbor as witnesses in the replevin suit of Weinberg vs. Carr. The jury disagreed, and the case is set for retrial Feb. 23. The replevin suit grew out of the officers of this city taking a mule and putting it into Carr's keep. Weinberg was arrested and convicted in the local municipal court for cruelty to animals, the same mule figuring in this case.

LANSING—Attorney General Kuhn of Michigan has been notified of the commencement of a suit by the iron mining companies of the upper peninsula to set aside their taxes which they have paid under protest. The basis for the suit is that other property in the assessment districts has not been raised to the percentage of increase which was placed on their iron mines under the Finlay appraisal.

MANISTEE—Frank Finder, of this city, had a narrow escape from scalding to death while working in the salt block of the state lumber company. He slipped and fell into a salt grainer full of hot brine. He managed to pull himself out, but was badly scalded on one side from shoulder to knee. He will probably recover. He is forty-five years old and has a wife and seven children.

PITTSFORD—This pretty little village has been at the mercy of the "icy blasts of winter" and the Lake Shore railroad for ten days or more. A coal famine has put the inhabitants on the anxious seat. Wood is about as hard to get as coal and much higher in price. Local dealers have had orders in for coal for more than a month and have been daily expecting cars of coal.

DETROIT—Three jurists, Judges Murphy, Hosmer and Mandell in circuit court declared the Detroit United railway to be a trespasser and a nuisance in streets where franchises have expired and held that the city is absolute owner of the streets and has a right to oust the railway at any time upon refusal to pay rental for the use of streets where it has no franchises.

PITNEY TO SUPREME COURT

President Taft Appoints New Jersey Chancellor to Position.

At Washington Monday the nomination of Mahlon Pitney, chancellor of the state of New Jersey, to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Harlan, was sent to the senate by President Taft.

Other nominations sent to the senate were Ferdinand A. Greiger of Cassville, Wis., to be judge of the United States district court for eastern Wisconsin; Julius M. Mayer, to be judge of the United States district court for southern New York.

WILLIAM M. LANNING.

United States Circuit Court Judge Who Is Dead at Trenton, N. J.

TRENTON, N. J.—William M. Lanning, United States curcuit court judge, died at his home of heart trouble.

Judge Lanning was to have sat with Circuit Judges Gray and Buffington in the government suit against the United States Steel corporation and its subsidiaries.

FOUR DEAD IN WRECK

Limited Train on Pennsylvania Meets with Disaster.

Four were killed and many injured when ten cars of the Pennsylvania Limited were overturned at Warrior's Ridge, Pa., four miles from Huntingdon and thirty miles east of Altoona.

The train ran into a freight and three of the cars went into the Juniata river. All the physicians of Huntingdon were summoned. Physicians were also called from Tyrone and went to the scene on a special train.

Overturned cars crashed into the telegraph poles and the wires are all down. The train was eastbound from Chicago. It consisted of two engines and eleven cars.

LONE TRAIN ROBBER

He Gets [illegible],000 in Money and Jewelry from Pullman Passengers.

New York and St. Louis express train No. 1, west bound, was robbed by a highwayman at 10 o'clock at night, while climbing the eastern slope of the Allegheny mountains, on what is known as the seventeen-mile grade, forty miles west of Cumberland, Md., and the occupants of a Pullman were looted of about $1,000 and jewelry estimated at about the same value.

The robber climbed on the train while it was in motion and running eight miles an hour, swinging to the rear Pullman car.

Entering the car, he held a revolver in the faces of the conductor and flagman and then, firing two shots to terrorize the passengers, calmly relieved the occupants of the car of their money and jewelry, went to the front end of the car and swung off near Alvermont station, disappearing down the mountain side.

Fight Duel Over Business.

Hancock, Mich., Feb. 20.—Jacob Ehler, a prominent merchant, and Ernest Henrickson engaged in a revolver duel here. Both emptied their revolvers, three shots hitting Henrickson and inflicting serious wounds. Ehler was unhurt. They quarreled over business affairs.

THRASHERMEN WILL GATHER AT LANSING

Sixth Annual Convention To Be Held at Capital.

Officers of Michigan Thrashermen's Association Have Hopes That Theirs Is Largest Organization in Country.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 19. — Several hundred members of the Michigan Thrashermen's association are expected in Lansing when the sixth annual convention is held in the new headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce, Feb. 28 and 29 and March 1. An effort will be made at that time to strengthen the county organizations of the association by the adoption of some plan whereby an organizer can be sent into every county in the grain growing section of the state.

When the last annual meeting of the association was held here, a year ago, its membership and the attendance at its sessions was next to the largest of any state association in the United States, Kansas holding first place. During the past twelve months so many new members have been added that the officers hope that Michigan now stands at the head of the column.

ILL LUCK TRAILS FARMER

After Being Crippled for Life, His Wife Becomes Fatally Ill.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Feb. 20.—Bert E. Joyce, of Richmond, holds the record for being the most unfortunate man in Macomb county. A year ago last December Joyce was driving a load of furniture to Detroit when a motor car driven by Leslie Ullrich crashed into him, killing one of his horses and nearly killing him. He was a patient in St. Joseph sanitarium for several weeks.

Joyce finally recovered sufficiently to return to his home. Ever since receiving his injuries he has been unable to walk, being compelled to go about in a wheel chair. He then brought suit against Ullrich for $15,000. A jury awarded him one-half that amount and in summing up the case Judge McKay gave him the alternative of accepting $3,500 or undergoing a new trial. He accepted the lesser amount, which has been paid.

Following closely upon the receipt of the amount, two physicians brought suit against Joyce to collect for an alleged medical examination. The suits are still pending.

During Joyce's illness his wife has watched over him constantly until now, when her health has given out and her death is momentarily expected. A few days ago Joyce and his wife lost an infant.

CADILLAC—F. L. Miller, a farmer who lives near Farwell, received injuries that resulted in his death two hours later. He was struck by an Ann Arbor train two miles from Summit. His horses were killed outright. The accident is said to have been the result of Miller's own carelessness.

TRAVERSE CITY—The city of Flint was decided upon as the place for the convention of the Michigan Retail Dealers and General Merchants' association in 1913, winning over Grand Rapids by only two votes.

CHARLES B. LEWIS.

Famous Humorist Who Is Honored by Friends on 70th Birthday.

NEW YORK — Charles B. Lewis, better known as M. Quad, the humorist, celebrated his seventieth birthday and was the victim of a birthday party held in the McClure newspaper syndicate offices.

BOUND AND ROBBED IN HOME

Farm Hand, Near Perry, Is Victim of Two Thugs.

Perry, Mich., Feb. 19.—Earl Meyers, a farm hand working for Bert Kenyon, four miles southeast of here, was bound, gagged and robbed while the family were away at a social.

Mr. Meyers was dozing in his chair about 10 o'clock and hearing a noise turned around and saw two middle-aged men in the room. He sprang at one and knocked him down, but before he could strike the other, he was knocked senseless.

The two men bound and gagged him, then proceeded to take his watch, chain and money, about $20. The house was ransacked.

When the members of the family returned Mr. Meyers was on the couch with a handkerchief saturated with chloroform tied over his head and a quilt fastened over all. It took the rest of the night for physicians to bring him back to consciousness.

CALUMET—Joseph Cazura, a Calumet man, aged forty-five, while intoxicated in bed, placed a leather belt about his neck and tied it to the bed post, then rolled out of bed and was strangled to death. Cazura was a married man and was supposed to have been deranged over the death of a daughter.

LANSING—Charles S. Pierce, a citizen of Lansing, announced that he would be a candidate for clerk of the house in case Paul H. King does not return for the special session. It is understood here that Mr. King will not return. Pierce was clerk of the house during the sessions of 1903, 1905 and 1907.

BOYNE CITY — The frightened family of Thomas Nelson was forced to flee for their lives when Nelson awakened and found his home a mass of flames. He had great difficulty in getting his five children out safely. The house was entirely destroyed. The loss is $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

STABS ASSAILANT IN FEUD

George Shue Jailed at Port Huron—Victim Dying at Capac.

Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 20.—With fifteen knife wounds inflicted in different parts of his body, slight hopes are being held out for the recovery of Evo Carro, aged twenty-seven, a Belgian beet worker, who is lying at the point of death at the Rotunda hotel in Capac, as a result of a stabbing affray about sixteen miles west of this place.

George Shue, aged twenty-one years, of Braddock, Pa., is lodged in the jail in this city, awaiting the result of Carro's injuries. The stabbing occurred as a result of a grudge held against Shue and a friend of his, Frank Harvey, by the wounded man and his brother.

ETHERIZED SIX MONTHS

Michigan Patient Regaining Senses After Chicago Operation.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 18.—Dorothy Grabower, sixteen years old, daughter of Louis Grabower, a merchant of this city, is coming from under an anaesthetic and within two or three days, it is expected, will have fully recovered, after having been under the influence of ether for six months, since she submitted to an operation on her foot in Chicago.

Up to three days ago the girl was constantly under the influence of the anaesthetic, all efforts of physicians to remove the ether from her system being without result. Three days ago Miss Grabower began recovering from the influence of the drug and the critical point has been reached.

STRICKEN IN HIS OFFICE

Dr. J. W. Morton of Ann Arbor Is Suddenly Summoned.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 18.—Dr. John W. Morton, one of the oldest and best known practicing physicians of this city, died suddenly after an illness of but a few minutes. While in his office attending to patients he was taken with a severe cramp in one leg and ordered a carriage to take him home.

Once there, his heart failed and he died before another physician could be summoned. Dr. Morton was sixty-six years old and leaves a widow and two sons.

Presque Island Tired of Prohibition.

Millersburg, Mich., Feb. 19. — It is pretty safe to predict that Presque Isle county will return to the wet column this spring. Disgust at the widespread selling of liquor and failure to secure convictions prevails.

HOLLAND — Hope college's first team in the triangular debating contest with Alma and Oliver, scheduled for March, was picked from a preliminary contest between the Knickerbockers and Fraternals, in which the former were victorious. The successful candidates are Harry Hoffs of Nospero, Ia.; Gerrit De Motts of Brandon, Wis., and Anthony Luldens of Holland.

TRIP OF KNOX IS MARRED BY SNUB

Representative of Colombia Sends Hostile Note.

Should Attitude of Minister Espina Be Supported by Government Diplomatic Relations May Be Severed.

Marred by an official snub from the diplomatic representative of the Colombian government in Washington, Senor Pedro Nel Espina, is Secretary of State Knox's trip to Central and South American republics for the purpose of developing friends and cordial relations.

The minister has advised Acting Secretary of State Wilson that Secretary Knox's proposed visit to Colombia is "inopportune," which is the diplomatic method of saying that Mr. Knox is not wanted in Colombia. The minister explained, however, that he was acting on his own initiative in making this suggestion and will ask his government for definite instructions. He based his action upon the failure of the state department to make a reply to a diplomatic note which he submitted to the state department about three months ago, requesting the arbitration of the pending questions between the United States and Colombia. The principal question in dispute between the two governments relates to the boundary line between Colombia and Panama, which has been unsettled since the secession of Panama from Colombia in 1903.

In view of the Colombian minister's note, Secretary Knox probably will abandon his proposed visit to Colombia.

If the Colombian government upholds the stand taken by its minister, it will create a serious situation between the two governments which may result in the breaking off of diplomatic relations. If the Colombian government repudiates the action of its minister it will not remove entirely the embarrassment created by the minister's note. While officials of the state department declined publicly to comment upon the note, they say that Mr. Knox probably will not visit Colombia as a result of the untoward incident.

This action, it was predicted in diplomatic circles, will most likely lead to the minister's recall. The language of the note may be decided by the state department as a personal affront to the secretary of state, in which case the Colombian government will be notified that he is persona non grata. If this action should be taken and the minister's position should be supported by his government, it would mean the severance of diplomatic relations and the minister would promptly be given his passports as in the case of the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires two years ago.

FIVE DIE ON GALLOWS

Four Whites and One Negro Executed in Chicago.

Five men expiated their crimes on one gallows in the Cook county jail at Chicago.

The men were Ewald Shiblawski twenty-four years old, Frank Shiblawski, his brother, aged twenty-one Phillip Sommerling, thirty-four, Thomas Schultz, nineteen, and Thomas Jennings, negro, aged thirty-four.

Ewald and Frank Shiblawski were hanged first. Their necks were broken by the drop. Both were killed instantly, but their bodies were allowed to hang several minutes before the jury of physicians officially pronounced them dead.

Then Phillip Sommerling and Thomas Schultz were led to the gallows together. In a short time they, too were pronounced dead.

The negro, Jennings, was the last to be hanged.

The white men were convicted of murdering Fred W. Guelzow Jr., a truck gardener, and the negro of the murder of Clarence Hiller, chief clerk of the freight department of the Rock Island railroad.

Not since the hanging of the anarchists has there been so much interest shown in executions in Chicago.

AVIATOR GILMORE KILLED

British Airman Drops 380 Feet with Aeroplane Near London.

At London, Eng., Graham Gilmour, one of the best known young British aviators, was killed by a fall with his aeroplane from a distance of 380 feet. He was testing a new machine and was traveling sixty miles an hour when his machine suddenly buckled up and dropped to the ground.

When eye witnesses reached the spot they found the aviator dead, entangled in the wreck of the machine.

RIGHT CHILDHOOD IS MODEST

Well-Bred Youngster Does Not Think That It Knows Everything, Says Ruskin.

The first character of right childhood is that it is modest. A well-bred child does not think it can teach its parents, or that it knows everything. It may think its father and mother know everything—perhaps that all grown-up people know everything; very certainly it is sure that it does not. And it is always asking questions, and wanting to know more. Well, that is the first character of a good and wise man at his work. To know that he knows very little; to perceive that there are many above him wiser than he, and to be always asking questions, wanting to learn, not to teach. No one ever teaches well who wants to teach, or governs well who wants to govern; it is an old saying (Plato's, but I know not if his, first), and as wise as old.

Then, the second character of right childhood is to be faithful. Perceiving that its father knows best what is good for it, and having found always, when it has tried its own way against his, that he was right and it was wrong, a noble child trusts him at last wholly, gives him its hand, and will walk blindfold with him, if he bids it. And that is the true character of all good men also, as obedient workers, or soldiers under captains.—Ruskin.

Fortunate Pribiloff Islanders.

A curious and interesting people are the Pribiloff Islanders in Bering sea. When the United States government took over the islands, along with Alaska, the Russian colonists became in a measure wards of the nation, but they have remained true to the influence to which they were first subjected, and in some respects are today more Russian than American at heart. All of them are members of the Russian church, and all of them have Russian names, selected for the most part from among the nobility. The United States government has in this instance been a faithful guardian of a primitive people. The result is that today they are the most highly civilized, best clothed, best fed, and most healthy of all the natives of Alaska.

Home Influence on Writing.

Environment has been held responsible for many human frailties, but it is only lately that it has had to shoulder the blame for poor handwriting. "Even more than temperament and copy books environment influences a child's handwriting," said a handwriting expert. "If he sees a fashionable writing or a clear business hand on tables and desks at home he will imitate that unconsciously. If only an uneducated scrawl meets him there, he, too, will scrawl, let his instruction at school be ever so thorough."

Friday Dickens' Lucky Day.

Charles Dickens was not superstitious concerning Friday. It was on Friday that many of the good things came to him, and it was on that day that he entered upon and took possession of Gads Hill, the one thing he cherished more than all his other possessions. It was Gads Hill that he had gazed upon when a wee bit of a boy, with a hope then giving little signs of fruition, that he might live to own it some day; and it was Gads Hill that he walls he covered with mirrors in almost Oriental magnificence.—Boston Record.

BEAUTIFUL SNOW

Tecumseh has been practically cut off from the outside world for the past few days no railway service the farmers to wise to start out in the face of the storm that raged so fiercely. It hat been many a year since we have had such a winter. If this is an indication of the way March is to enter, all right for that is a promise of an early spring.

Bradley Scudder was stalled in town during the fierce storm that has been raging this week.

Many of the school boys and girls have been kept at home for the same reason.

While there has been heaps of snow yet that was the great trouble the wind drifting the snow, and leaving the ground bare in many places. The snow plows and scrapers were kept busy Thursday cleaning the walks and the gutters down Chicago street.

Mrs. Richard Caldwell

For many years a resident of Tecumseh passed away Tuesday morning at 1:30. She was striken with a chill Wednesday of last week and grew steadily worse until death came to her release.

She was born in County Autrim, Ireland. Her maiden name was Helen Houston. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss. Will Caldwell of New York City, Thomas of Adrian and Martha of Tecumseh. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the home, her pastor Rev. B. R. Weld officiating.

REFLECTIONS OF A SPECIES

I'm a quiet man and peaceful keeping far from care and strife
And I seldom think or ponder on grave problems of this life
But there's one that got me going when we read the other night,
How the female of the species is always bound to fight.
And there's ruction in our family if I even intimate
That there's truth as well as poetry in what Kipling chose to state
But he must have had experience and I'll bet that Kipling knows,
When he says the female species is the fiercest thing that grows.
But I want to be fair minded and give credit to the sex
In a question so momentous, in a question so complex,
And I wander back to childhood to the land of another day,
To see if this worrysome problem
works out the self same way
Now when mother used to chasten for the pranks I used to play,
I didn't seem to mind it and was on the job next day.
But when father caught me napping and said "come hither lad"—
Well, for many days thereafter I was feeling mighty sad.
And in school I didn't care so much if the lady teacher there
With a rule that wasn't the golden one gave what she thought I'd bear.
But when Prof. called me down to the office for some unpardonable digression
I still call to mind with sadness a ferocious and striking impression,
But late in life grave problems on the family man must fall
And I drag from the past with a shudder, the most fearsome species of all.
Yes, I actually stutter and stammer, with the sinking heart of a sinner
When I venture to tell our "lady" cook ther'll be extras in for dinner,
Then I call to mind a species who was in a special class
She always traveled with a hatchet and was long on breaking glass
And they never will cease talking of that terror of creation
I'm sure you will remember, about our Carrie Nation.
Now there are strong minded women who are awful deadly dead
And I feel that Ruddie Kipling must had one of these to wed
So when husband meets with husband and comfirms the others wail
The female of THEIR species is more deadly than its male.
But when female sits with female for a quiet little chat
And a talk about the weather and the whys of this and that They'll sure come down to husbands and confirm each others talks
That the he-male of the species is the fiercest thing that walks.
And I can't sleep nights a thinking who is wrong and who is right
And whether female gender's always longing for a fight,
I think with a sigh that few of us are 18 karats fine
And of the many, many shortcomings that I easily claim as mine.
Coming down to the gist of the problem, and when all is done and said
We all on occasions are deadly, whether man or maid
And I'm sure that in his household, when Rudyard wrote that lay
The female of the species had HER deadly day.

The Big Musical Production Coming to the Bradley Opera House, Thursday Feb. 29

"NEWLYWEDS" AT THE LYCEUM

"The Newlyweds and Their Baby," based on George McManus cartoons which delighted a crowded house at the Lyceum Sunday afternoon, is just as funny as the pictures and a little bit more. The company is hand picked and the piece well-staged.

Daniel L. Murphy is the big "scream" as Adolph Nichol, the waiter and Charles A. Morgan as Newlywed not only acts the part, but looks it. Olga VanHatzfeldt as Mrs. Newlywed, might have been the original of the McManus "lovey" and is a beautiful woman with a good voice and figure which fits the cartoon portrayal to a nicety. Earl Knapp, who plays the part of Napoleon, Newlywed and Major Knot-Much, is a clever little fellow whose personal resemblances to the Newlywed youngster is striking.

John M Dyer, as Tom Travers, and Mabelle Janot, as Dolly, furnish the love theme, and offer some good song numbers. Milton Dawson plays Prof. Nichol, I. W. Carter is cast as Dr. I. Curam, and Celia Sylvester play

The Kidnaping of the Newlywed youngster and the impersonation of the "fond hope" by the diminutive major, furnish most of the complications.

Miss Hatzfeldt scored heavily in "Slumber My Little Love," and "My Sweitzer Bride" while Mr. Murphy brought down the house in "An Operatic Solution." Miss Sylvester has two good song numbers and scored in both, "Every Baby is a sweet bouquet," and "Girls Who Want to Go on the Stage."

The troubles of the Newlyweds will be at the Lyceum all this week with the usual matinees, and it looks like a "standing room" engagement, many being turned away at the Sunday performances.

"The Newlyweds" is the Biggest attraction of any kind ever in Tecumseh. Get your seats early.

G. A. R. ENTERTAINMENT

Washington-Lincoln

A large crowd was in attendance Monday evening for the G. A. R. and Auxilary. The evening was devoted to Washington and Lincoln.

The first on the program was "America" sung by all present. Invocation by Rev. W. B. Hartzog. Mrs. Ruthruff favored the audience with a beautiful solo which was followed by a recitation by Miss Nellie Rathbun. Mrs. R. S. Moore gave a pleasing solo, Mrs. B. J. Pulver being the pianist for the evening. Rev. W. B. Hartzog then took the floor and gave a very fine address on "Washington as a Man and a Statesman." This was a masterly speech and was loudly applauded by the audience.

H. W. Stavers followed with the "Sword of Bunker Hill." Miss Nellie Minray gave a recitation "Mr Dooley and the Microbe" in her own delightful manner and responded to an encore "Aunt Jemima's Courtship." H. C. Daniels was then called upon and spoke of "Lincoln as a Man Among Men" and related some personal experiences with the great President. The evening was delightful throughout and the committee have the thanks of all who listened.

LUCIUS LILLEY

Feb. 21 marked the 89th milestone on the journey of life for Mr. Lucius Lilley. Considering his advanced age he is in remarkably good health, and keeps himself well informed on the leading events of the day, and enjoying a chat with the many friends who drop in upon him with all the life of former days.

He keeps closely in touch with his business interest at the Bank, and his advice is found good on every financial question. May he live just as long as he can enjoy living.

WIT AND WISDOM

The Regular meeting of the Wit and Wisdom Club was held Monday evening at the home of Prof. and Mrs. McAlpine, with a fine attendance this being an original evening every one prepared for the occasion. The first on the program was given by Mrs. Weld an original poetical bit at the various members, each illustrated by Rev. B. R. Weld, later these were presented to the members. Two songs by Prof. and Mrs. McAlpine of an original character were then given followed by a story by the Rev. G. N. Kennedy on the "Conversion of Old Skinflint." Prof. and Mrs. McAlpine again favored the audience with two original songs. Roll call followed, each one responding with an original poetical verse creating much amusement.

Refreshments then followed with a social chat, completing a most delightful evening.

HILLSDALE—LENAWEE TEACHERS INSTITUTE

Friday morning a two days session of the Hillsdale-Lenawee Counties' Teachers' Institute opened in the Adrian High School building. It is estimated that there were 500 at the opening session.

The meeting was conducted by Prof. Henderson of the University of Michigan. He was ably assisted by O. C. Corson of Columbus, Ohio and Prof. Keeler who were the speakers for Friday.

Dr. J. W. Gray County Superintendent, commented most favorably on the large attendance of teachers at Friday's session their being 363 teachers present 103 of whom headed by Supt McClave of Hillsdale County were from the Hillsdale county schools.

The afternoon session opened with music by Prof Lagerquist also some flag songs by a chorus of the grade schools led by the Professor.

Supt. Mickens presided over the afternoon session.

Book agents from various parts of the county were quite in evidence and worked faithfully in the interest of of their various companies.

The sessions Saturday were largely attended and much interest was displayed by all in attendance. The afternoon session closed early to give some of the Hillsdale teachers a chance to catch the early train.

Published in Tanana, Alaska, Geo. M. Hill, Publisher.

We have before us the Yukon Valley News a four page sheet 11x15 inches. It is printed on book paper in clear good type and for its size is a very interesting paper. It contains twenty one ads. Has one column devoted to telegraphic news, also one and a half column to "News of the World."

The paper date December 30, 1911 and has an account of the Christmas entertainment. The program was given by the children of the public schools, Santa Claus had presents for everyone.

Should anyone wish to take this paper no doubt Mr. Geo. S. Tiffany would take subscriptions. The terms are $10.00 a year, $5.00 for six months, $1 one month and 25c. single copy.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A merry party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred O'Neil to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Dora Babcock. A fine dinner was served covers being laid for sixteen. Cards, music and good chat filled in the afternoon hours, when supper was served. The festivities were prolonged until a late hour.

Those out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Babcock, Alta and Marie of Napoleon, Mrs. Harry Crane and baby of Clinton, Mr and Mrs. Harry Hines and three children of Ridgeway and Miss Mattie Wilson. Mrs. Babcock expects to leave for Chinook, Montana, March 10th. She was the recipient of several beautiful presents money being the most prominent gift.

Editor's Mean Revenge.

An editor of uncertain age, but positive bank account, was cut out by a gentleman from a neighboring town, who won the affections of his sweetheart. Whereupon the editor sought a mean revenge by heading the account of her wedding: "Another Old Resident Gone."

FREE IF IT FAILS

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

UNIFORM RANK, KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES

At a regular meeting of the K. O. T. M. M. held Monday evening a uniform rank was organized with about 30 members. The officers were elected as follows:

Capt.—Harry Scott
1st. Lieut.—George Hoag
2nd. Lieut.—George Witherell
Sec. and Treas.—Floyd Waring
1st Sergeant—Arthur Harding
2nd. Sergeant—A. S. Titus
Chaplain—Geo. Hawks.

Ray Kills Bacteria.

A method for sterilizing milk without heating or adding preservatives is claimed to have been effectively demonstrated recently in Holland. An apparatus has been constructed, it is explained, whereby the milk is flowing in a thin stream along an electric light, the ultraviolet beams of which work on the bacteria. The theory is that the quality of the ozone formed under the influence of the light.—The Argonaut.

Her Own Hat the Obstruction.

A woman in a Vienna theater came out after the first act and requested to have the price of the ticket refunded, on the ground that a woman in front of her refused to remove her hat. She had held it on her lap, and it obstructed her own view of the stage.

Must Have Been Her Lucky Day.

In a lot of old papers and magazines that Mrs. T. G. Payson gave to the Salvation army at Jersey City the other day was an envelope containing $225 in bills that Mrs. Payson had overlooked. After a search by the officers in the army's waste paper pile, Mrs. Payson looking on, the money was found and restored to her.

Scotch Alarm Clock.

A tourist in rural Scotland took refuge for the night in the cottage of an old lady. He asked her to wake him early in the morning, warning her that he was quite deaf. Upon awaking the next morning he was surprised to find that the old lady, with the forethought of the proprietress, had slipped a piece of paper under the door on which was written: "Sir, it's half past eight."

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United Sates.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

KNEW THE CODE HIMSELF

Former Telegrapher Corrected the Error of Two Young Men in a Memphis Hotel.

One whose ear has been trained to read intelligently the click of a telegraph instrument sometimes puts this training to the test under strange conditions. An instance, which resulted in embarrassment, apologies, and finally in a pleasant acquaintanceship among the persons concerned, is told by a certain Ohio farmer who spent his early years in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company.

Some years after impaired health had driven him from the telegraph office to the farm, he and his wife were spending a short vacation in the south. While they were dining in a hotel in Memphis two young men entered and seated themselves at the same table with the couple from the west.

After a survey of the strangers, one of the youths took up his fork, and tapping it in an apparently careless way against the edge of his plate, spelled out in the Morse code:

"Do you think they are bride and groom?"

"Yes, surely," tapped his companion. "Just watch how soft they are."

Immediately, to the dismay of the young men, the fork of the supposed bridegroom joined in the conversation. With great rapidity it tapped out:

"Gentlemen, you are mistaken. We have been married five years, and have three children."—Youth's Companion.

ALL WASTE NERVOUS ENERGY

Everywhere People Squander Their Force Needlessly Instead of Carefully Husbanding It.

People should be as careful of their nervous energy as of their money, says an English writer. Yet we all waste it. At the telephone people talk twice as loudly and energetically as is necessary. That is to say, they use up twice as much nerve energy as they need. Three-fourths of those who have to catch trains every morning spend as much nervous force in one day as should last a week.

Then, in the streets, watch how people jostle and push, and what a lot of nerve-force they spend at dangerous crossings. Why not walk slowly when there is obstruction, and wait for the quiet moment, which always comes, at the crossing? Everywhere people hurry without need, getting into a state of nervous tension when leaving theaters, boarding omnibuses, going to lunch, and especially when leaving for a holiday.

Bird's Home Instinct.

Spectators at a fire witnessed an interesting, if tragic, example of the actions of a bird which was guided only by the instinct that its home was in danger. The flames had begun to creep along the edge of the tower and every shingle on the roof was puffing a little jet of flame, when down wheeled a pigeon which had been dislodged from the tower and lit in the midst of the fire and smoke. Picking its way along, utter oblivious to the flames that must have been singeing its feathers, the pigeon went straight for its nest. A tongue of flame leaped out and the pigeon soared into the air. Then, as if irresistibly drawn into it, the bird dived into the furnace beneath and disappeared from sight.—Pasadena News.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. P. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullet's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.400 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

THINK TOO MUCH OF MONEY

Many Persons Lose Chance of Happy Marriage by Exaggerating the Value of Wealth.

Scores of people lose their chances of being happily married through making an unnecessary obstacle of money. The importance of it is often exaggerated. Many a man hesitates to propose to a girl because of his small income. Very often much misery, misunderstanding, and tangled lives result from the silence. More unfortunate love affairs are the result of what has not been said than of spoken words.

When a man has a small, sure income, and a prospect of increase, there is no legitimate reason for his not speaking of his love; no reason, for that matter, to prevent marriage. People are so desperately afraid, though, of beginning married life in a small way. They fear the sacrifices which they will be called upon to make—of the criticism to which they will be subjected. Many years of happiness are lost in this way. It is such a mistake for young people to want to start marriage in the state that their parents are ending it.

To delay marriage until a "comfortable" income is available is to prove something lacking in the love.—An-

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice received and be well.

In Syracuse, N. Y.—E. E. Phillips, former secretary of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' union; John Carroll, to whom Phillips' books were turned over when he ceased to act as secretary.

In Cincinnati, O.—Ernest G. W. Basey, former business agent of International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. Basey's home is in Indianapolis, where he was connected with Local No. 22 of the iron workers; Edward Clark, former assistant business agent of the same union.

In Rochester, N. Y.—Clarence E. Dowd, organizer of the International Machinists' union at Mansfield, O.

Fear Well Founded.

"I fear," sadly said the postage stamp, when it found itself fastened to a love letter, "that I am not sticking to facts."

Polly's Pancakes

By Dorothy Blackmore

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press)

"It does seem too bad that some nice man doesn't find Polly," remarked Mrs. Earlington.

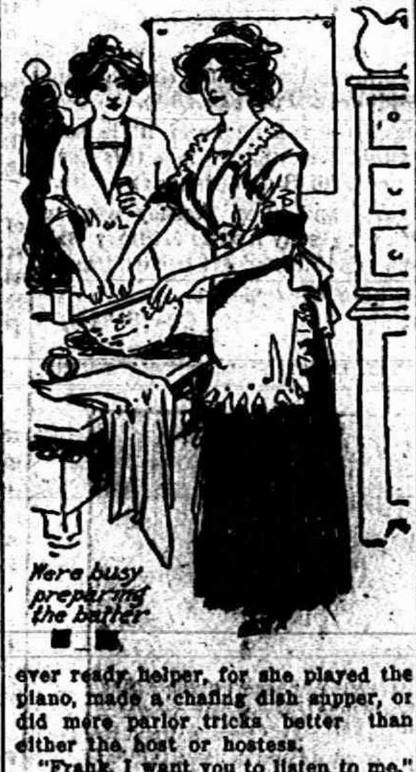
"She is destined for an old maid, my dear; I told you that long ago," her husband answered consolingly. "And the sooner she accepts the inevitable and stops struggling, the better."

"You're absolutely heartless, Frank, and Polly is the best friend either you or I have in the world, and you know it."

Mrs. Earlington's eyes filled with tears as she bent over her crocheting. She was a sympathetic little woman, and every time she thought of the difficult and lonely life of her dearest friend, Pauline Bates, her heart overflowed with compassion for the girl.

Pauline—Polly, they called her—did tutoring in and about the small village of Glenville, and most of her income was sent back home to support her widowed mother and two younger sisters. She was a wholesome, womanly, attractive girl, well out of her teens, and although every one, men and women, liked her, no man who was worth while seemed to have fallen in love with her. And yet there was not a girl in the little circle of young people in Glenville who would have made so admirable a wife.

Mrs. Earlington had known her for years, and the cozy home of the Earlingtons was always open to Pauline. In fact, as Mrs. Earlington frequently remarked, she didn't know how they could keep house without Pauline to call on. If the nurse were out, or ill, Pauline always managed to be on hand to help with the children. If the cook left, Pauline never failed to drop in to help prepare the meals. If Frank had to be out of town, Pauline came to stay with Mrs. Earlington. If the Earlingtons entertained, Pauline was the ever ready helper, for she played the piano, made a chafing dish supper, or did more parlor tricks better than either the host or hostess.



We're busy preparing the batter

"Frank, I want you to listen to me," began Mrs. Earlington, opening the subject again.

Her husband looked up from his rural journal. He was deep in the mysteries of how to prune fruit trees, but he suppressed a sigh and looked across the reading table toward his wife.

"I'm serious about Polly—we must find a husband for her."

"Did she say so?" asked the man, blandly.

Mrs. Earlington withered him with a look. "Does Pauline ever say anything foolish?" she asked.

"Not often enough—that's one of her faults."

"Her principal fault, so far as I can see, is being entirely too good and conscientious and capable for any mere man. No one appreciates her," retorted Mrs. Earlington.

Her husband rolled his precious magazine into a tube and frowned. "Well? What can we do? I can't go around the world dragging men out here to meet her and extolling her virtues. You know how a man takes to the sort of girl you have to do that for."

"Of course not—but there must be subtle ways of getting at it," Mrs. Earlington said vaguely.

"You'll have to do anything subtle that's done in our family, dear. I'm as far from being subtle as—as a blow on the head."

His wife did not hear him; she was thinking. Suddenly a smile flashed across her face.

"Polly is a grand cook!" she said.

"But who knows it?" asked Frank.

"No one but you and me, and—her family, perhaps. Most of Polly's charms—if cooking may be called a charm—are hidden under the proverbial bushel," sighed Mrs. Earlington.

Her husband agreed with her.

"And I think—oh, Frank, couldn't you invite the boys and men of the choir of St. Paul's to a—we'll say, a pancake supper, and we'll have Polly make the pancakes?" Mrs. Earlington's eyes fairly danced at the prospect.

"I—could," Frank said, half-heartedly.

"You could very well. As a member of the vestry, it would be only natural that you show a little attention to the choir—especially before Christmas, when they are doing such good work."

"Very well, dear—it's your party. I'm willing. And what than?"

"You goose—Polly will make such delicious pancakes—it's one of her very best stunts—that the men will—well, you know a man when something appeals to his inner self."

"Yes—it isn't every wife who can make good pancakes or teach her cook to do likewise," admitted the man. "And I'm to ask the choir to a pancake supper—here—to eat Polly's pancakes?" he asked.

"Not at all—say nothing about Polly. That would spoil it all. Merely ask them to a pancake supper next Wednesday night."

In due form the choir of St. Paul's was invited to the Earlington home to eat pancakes and almost in a body it accepted. The small boys and the men were always glad of an opportunity to spend an evening in this hospitable little home.

Mrs. Earlington and Pauline were busy preparing the batter for the feast and a pile of hot plates was already on the top of the great range when the telephone bell rang long and loudly.

"Won't you answer, Polly, dear?" asked Mrs. Earlington.

Polly rushed to the 'phone, a glad light in her eyes. Her heart beat quickly as she took up the receiver. "Could it be he?" she asked herself, over and over.

For a few minutes she talked earnestly over the wire and when she returned to the kitchen a bright spot of red burned in each cheek. Mrs. Earlington thought she had never seen the girl so pretty. To herself, she commented that the combination of polly's pancakes and her beauty ought to bring some one of the half-dozen unmarried men in the house to her feet tonight.

"I took the liberty of asking an old friend who has just come to town from back home—here tonight," Polly said.

Mrs. Earlington looked at her earnestly. "Why, of course, dear. Who is it?"

"Arthur Fisher—a boy I used to play with when I was little and—"

"And what, Polly? Why do you hesitate?"

"Well, when we were—oh, dreadfully young—I quarreled with him because he wanted me to marry him and settle down in that little town and keep house. I was ambitious and wanted to do something else in the world—then, I told him I couldn't keep house and wouldn't cook and—"

"And you blush because he's going to find you baking pancakes for a whole regiment of hungry men now? Oh, Polly, why didn't you tell me of this Arthur before?"

"I thought he had forgotten me until I had a letter from him the other day saying he would be in this neighborhood tonight. I wrote him that I would be here tonight and that if he came he might call me up. It would seem so good to see some one from home," she ended lamely.

"I think he's more than 'some one,' Polly," said Mrs. Earlington, pointedly.

"Perhaps—but we must get these pancakes on the table. Isn't that enough to start on? I don't know how they are—I did not try them and I mixed the batter hastily," Polly said as she hurried into the dining-room with a platter full of round, hot griddle cakes.

She placed them before Mr. Earlington, whose wife had just supplied him with a pile of hot plates, and then—the doorbell rang.

Without ceremony, Polly rushed to answer it herself.

"You found the way?" was all Mrs. Earlington heard, and then, for a long minute there was silence.

Mrs. Earlington hurried to the kitchen, where she and the cook kept the griddle hot and tried to make pancakes enough to supply the hungry men.

Presently Polly returned to the kitchen—she had stopped to introduce Mr. Fisher to her host.

"Did—you need me?" asked Polly, innocently.

"Oh, no," Mrs. Earlington said, "the pancakes are of no consequence—now," she said, with a meaning that was discernible only to herself.

Clean Paint and Good Health.

Great care should always be taken in the cleaning of paintwork and baths, especially as this is often neglected on account of the trouble and danger of discoloration and wearing the paint which is caused by the use of strong soaps and unnecessarily hard scrubbing. There is an excellent cleaner now on the market specially made for saving labor, which at the same time preserves the paint, and should prove to be a great boon to a woman whose greatest aim in life is to see her house clean and the paint always spotless. It is also highly efficient for cleaning silver and plated ware, and answers a double use, and should always be in the store-cupboard.

LITTLE NELL WAS ORIGINAL

DeQuincey's "Our Lady of Tears" Did Not Suggest the Character to Dickens.

It is remarked of Charles Dickens that no modern writer was less open to the charge of having received suggestions from the characters and plots of his novels from others than was he, and this for the reason that his plots and characters were chosen, not from books, but from people and incidents in the living world about him. Some time ago, however, an English author thought that he had found in DeQuincey's essay, "Our Lady of Tears," the suggestion for the beautiful pathos of Little Nell, in "The Old Curiosity Shop." A little investigation, however, showed that DeQuincey's essay was published in 1845, while "The Old Curiosity Shop" was published five years before. The extract here given from DeQuincey's essay is interesting:

"The eldest of the three sisters is named Mater Lachrymarum, our Lady of Tears. The sister it is that carries keys more than papal at her girdle, which open every cottage and every palace. She, to my knowledge, sate all last summer by the bedside of the blind beggar, him that so often and so gladly I talked with, whose pious daughter, eight years old, with the sunny countenance, resisted the temptations of play and village mirth, to travel all day long on dusty roads with her afflicted father. For this did God send her a great reward. In the springtime of the year, and whilst yet her own spring was budding. He called her to himself. But her blind father mourns for ever over her; still he dreams at midnight that the little guiding hand is locked within his own, and still he wakens to a darkness that is now within a second and deeper darkness."

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite. I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allsbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allsbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

Peculiar Distinction Accorded Miss Jane Addams of Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—The national vice crusade, which has centered in Chicago, is to take a new and spectacular form in connection with the Men and Religion Forward movement, it was announced.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House has been asked to make a frank statement of the social evil and a man's responsibility therefor to the Christian men of America, through the conservation congress of the organization, to be held in New York city, April 19-24.

MISS JANE ADDAMS.

The only woman speaker on the program will be Miss Addams, and she will be, it is announced, the only woman present at any of the sessions.

COLOMBIAN INCIDENT CLOSED

Minister Turns Over Office at Washington to First Secretary.

Washington, Feb. 26. — The Colombian incident was closed when the state department received a letter from the Columbian minister, Pedro Nel Ospina, saying he had turned the legation affairs over to Senor Don Roberto MacDouall, first secretary, who will act as charge d'affaires

Similar word was received from American Minister Dubois at Bogota, which in addition said that the American legation there had been officially informed of Minister Ospina's recall.

FINDS RUBBER SUBSTITUTE

Young Russian Scientist Has Product Cheaper and Just as Good.

Moscow, Russia, Feb. 26. — Dr. Ostromislensky, a young professor in the technical school of chemistry, has discovered a process of making a substitute for rubber. The elasticity and resiliency of the substitute are described as being equal to that of rubber.

The new rubber is selling at 31 cents a pound. The price of rubber in the English market ranges from $1,10 to $1.30 per pound.

ROOSEVELT SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT

Makes Public Reply to Seven Republican Governors.

MATTER RESTS WITH PEOPLE

Hopes that Voters Will Be Given Opportunity to Express Their Preference Through Direct Primaries, If Possible.

New York, Feb. 26. — Theodore Roosevelt's reply to the seven Republican governors is given out for publication. [illegible] states that he will accept the Republican nomination for the presidency if it is tendered him by the national convention of the party. His letter follows:

"New York, Feb. 24, 1912.

"Gentlemen—I deeply appreciate your letter and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts upon me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several states

"I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preference of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whole. I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered to me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference.

"One of the chief principles for which I stood and for which I now stand, and which I have always endeavored and always shall endeavor to reduce to action, is the genuine rule of the people; and therefore I hope that so far as possible the people may be given the chance, through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the Republican presidential convention.

"Very truly yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The following is the letter from the governors:

"Chicago, Feb. 10, 1912.

"We, the undersigned Republican governors, assembled for the purpose of considering what will best insure the continuation of the Republican party as a useful agency of good government, declare it our belief, after a careful investigation of the facts, that a large majority of the Republican voters of the country favor your nomination, and a majority of the people favor your election, as the next president of the United States.

"We believe that your candidacy will insure success in the next campaign. We believe that you represent, as no other man represents, those principles and policies upon which we must appeal for a majority of the votes of the American people, and which, in our opinion, are necessary for the happiness and prosperity of the country

"We believe that in view of this public demand you should soon declare whether, if the nomination for the presidency comes to you unsolicited and unsought, you will accept it.

"In submitting this request we are not considering your personal interests. We do not regard it as proper to consider either the interests or the preference of any man as regards the nomination for the presidency. We are expressing our sincere belief and best judgment as to what is demanded of you in the interests of the people as a whole. And we feel that you would be unresponsive to a plain public duty if you should decline to accept the nomination coming as the voluntary expression of the wishes of a majority of the Republican voters of the United States through the action of their delegates in the next national convention.

"Yous truly,

"William E. Glasscock, West Virginia.
"Chester H. Aldrich, Nebraska.
"Robert P. Bass, New Hampshire.
"Joseph M. Carey, Wyoming.
"Chase S. Osborn, Michigan.
"W. R. Stubbs, Kansas.
"Herbert S. Hadley, Missouri."

THUGS MURDER FARMER

Head Severed from Body by His Assailants.

Home of the Victim is Robbed and Burned in an Attempt to Cover Up the Crime.

Gallipolis, O., Feb. 26.—Peter Serrier, a well to do farmer living near this city, was brutally murdered and his home robbed and burned in an attempt to cover up the crime.

Serrier's head was severed by his assailants. It was found several feet from the body, which was lying on a bed in the farmer's home.

Following a searching investigation by Sheriff Jones and deputies, in which bloodhounds were used, two negroes living in the vicinity were arrested. They are Milton and Elias Smith and they will be held pending further investigation.

$14,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY

Safe Blown in a Maiden Lane Store in New York City.

New York, Feb. 26. — The Maiden Lane jewelry district is in alarm over the announcement of another diamond robbery which occurred some time during the day in the heart of the supposedly burglarproof section of the city. Despite the watchfulness of the police and numerous private detectives who are constantly on guard there, the robbers gained entrance to the vaults of the building at 49 Maiden Lane, and walked away with a handful of gems valued at $14,000, from the safe of Emanuel S. Rose, wholesale jeweler.

The burglars worked quickly and skillfully. The were compelled to use an explosive in getting into Rose's private safe, but no one has been found who heard the muffled explosion, or suspected that anything was wrong.

JAUREZ WAITING TO BE ATTACKED

Rebel Force in Camp Twelve Miles South.

WILL TRAIN CANNON ON TOWN

Shots to Be Fired Parallel with Rio Grande River in Order that They May Fall on American Soil.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 26.—Juarez will not be attacked for several hours at least.

The rebels camped at Bauche, twelve miles south, are only about 700 in number, and Inez Salazar, their leader, has not yet reached the camp. No attack will be made, they declared, until he comes up and bring more men.

The rebel chieftain in command declares that they will first demand the surrender of Juarez and that if the surrender is not made then they mean to attack. They have cannon with them, he says, and will plant the cannon northwest of Juarez and fire down the river parallel with El Paso, just as Madero did, so that none of the shots will fall in El Paso. If any of the shots fall in El Paso, it is said, they will be from the rifles or rapid fire guns of the defenders of the town.

The leaders say that it is their intention to take Juarez and hold it as a port of entry and then march southward to Chihuahua, Torreon and eventually Mexico City, if their revolution does not triumph before they reach the national capital. He declares that the men in arms south of here in Chihuahua, in the Laguna district and elsewhere will join them in their march against Mexico City and that it will soon be a formidable army.

FAMOUS NURSE DEAD

Last of Band with Florence Nightingale in Crimean War is Gone.

Paris, Feb. 26.—The death has occurred at Berne of the last of the little band of nurses who accompanied Florence Nightingale to the Crimean war in 1856. It was that of Mrs. Marie Rodney Morgan, who was a daughter of Admiral Robert Winthrop of the British navy and the widow of Colonel Evan Morgan of the British Royal artillery.

Mrs. Morgan was in her ninety-fourth year. She was stationed at the Scutari hospital during the Crimean war and in recognition of her splendid work there was presented with a magnificent diamond crescent brooch by the sultan of Turkey.

CENSUS EVERY FIVE YEARS

Director Durand Declares Enumeration Should Be Taken More Often.

Philadelphia, Feb. 26.—E. D. Durand, director of the federal census, before the City club declared the scope of the government census has reached its limit unless it be taken more frequently and the enumeration of population be separated from the many other lines of information now compiled.

He said he favored taking a population census every five years, as is now the case with manufactures and agricultural matters.

MONEY TRUST INQUIRY

National House Votes, 270 to 8, to Hold One.

Question Whether Hearing Will Be Whitewash Rests with the Banking Committee.

Washington, Feb. 26.—An investigation of the money trust on the conservative lines prescribed by the Democratic caucus was ordered by the house of representatives.

Whether the inquiry will be a whitewash, as predicted by the Progressive Republicans, or a thorough airing of Wall street methods of controlling the nation's credit will be determined by the Democratic majority of the banking and currency committee, to which the matter was committed.

The attempt to squelch the investigation completely was defeated by publicity, which may in the end also prevent the skillful application of the whitewash brush.

The compromise resolution directing the investigation was adopted by a vote of 270 to 8. The votes against the investigation were cast by the following Republicans:

Austin, Tennessee; Gillett, Massachusetts; Thistlewood, Illinois; Cannon, Illinois; Henry, Connecticut; Tilson, Connecticut; Dalzell, Pennsylvania; Higgins, Connecticut.

OPERATORS THINK STRIKE CERTAIN

Anthracite Miners Likely to Go Out April First.

DEMANDS WILL BE REFUSED

Bosses Say They Can See No Reason for Increasing Wages or Granting Any Different Working Conditions.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 26.—Most of the anthracite coal operators in this section believe there will be a strike following the expiration of the existing agreement on March 31.

They expect that the operators' committee, which is to have its first meeting with the mine workers' leaders in New York Tuesday, will refuse to grant any of the demands that are to be presented and that the same attitude will be maintained at subsequent meetings. This, they say, will result in the mine workers' leaders ordering a suspension of work starting April 1 for the express purpose of impressing the operators with their power while they give as the reason for it their desire to continue negotiations with the operators. When they find definitely that no concessions are to be granted, it is expected the union leaders will order a strike.

The local operators say there is no legitimate reason why there should be any change in the working conditions, or increase in the rate of wages, and they don't mean to be coerced into granting any of the demands. If the mine workers want to strike, then the results are of their own seeking, the operators say.

That the operators are well prepared for a strike is evident. One of them, asked what truth there was in the recent assertion of union leaders that an investigation had shown the operators had not more than a million tons of coal stored in anticipation of a strike, replied, "Why, I know of one company alone that has more than a million tons stored."

Many of the local operators will leave today to attend the New York conference.

JURORS EXAMINE CLAIMANT

Witness Parades Before Men Who Will Decide Case.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 26.—Jurors in the Kimmel identity mystery case on trial in the United States district court left their chairs and crowded about Andrew J. White, the claimant, when he was asked to [illegible] himself during six hour cross-examination by counsel for the plaintiff, the receiver of a defunct bank of Niles, Mich.

The claimant was asked by Attorney Taylor to stand before the jury. He walked to the jury box while the jurors crowded against the rail. The jurors' attention was called to the profile of the claimant and the scar on the back of the neck. "Now show your thumb," Taylor commanded. The claimant held up his left hand, showing the maimed member, the first time the jurors had seen it. They examined it eagerly. The members of the jury also carefuly inspected the witness' damaged ear.

PROTEST WAR IN AIR

Petition Is Issued by International Arbitration League.

London, Feb. 26.—A petition signed by 200 notable people has been issued by the International Arbitration league protesting against the use of aerial vessels in war.

The signatories appeal to all governments to foster an international understanding which shall preserve the world from "a new hideousness of warfare" and deprecate the suggestion that aerial warfare, by reason of its horror, must frighten men from war, and that the art of flying will never reach full development without the stimulus of war.

KNEW THE CODE HIMSELF

Former Telegrapher Corrected the Error of Two Young Men in a Memphis Hotel.

One whose ear has been trained to read intelligently the click of a telegraph instrument sometimes puts this training to the test under strange conditions. An instance, which resulted in embarrassment, apologies, and finally in a pleasant acquaintanceship among the persons concerned, is told by a certain Ohio farmer who spent his early years in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company.

Some years after impaired health had driven him from the telegraph office to the farm, he and his wife were spending a short vacation in the south. While they were dining in a hotel in Memphis two young men entered and seated themselves at the same table with the couple from the west.

After a survey of the strangers, one of the youths took up his fork, and tapping it in an apparently careless way against the edge of his plate, spelled out in the Morse code:

"Do you think they are bride and groom?"

"Yes, surely," tapped his companion. "Just watch how soft they are."

Immediately, to the dismay of the young men, the fork of the supposed bridegroom joined in the conversation. With great rapidity it tapped out:

"Gentlemen, you are mistaken. We have been married five years, and have three children."—Youth's Companion.

ALL WASTE NERVOUS ENERGY

Everywhere People Squander Their Force Needlessly Instead of Carefully Husbanding It.

People should be as careful of their nervous energy as of their money, says an English writer. Yet we all waste it. At the telephone people talk twice as loudly and energetically as is necessary. That is to say, they use up twice as much nerve energy as they need. Three-fourths of those who have to catch trains every morning spend as much nervous force in one day as should last a week.

Then, in the streets, watch how people jostle and push, and what a lot of nerve-force they spend at dangerous crossings. Why not walk slowly when there is obstruction, and wait for the quiet moment, which always comes, at the crossing? Everywhere people hurry without need, getting into a state of nervous tension when leaving theaters, boarding omnibuses, going to lunch, and especially when leaving for a holiday.

Bird's Home Instinct.

Spectators at a fire witnessed an interesting, if tragic, example of the actions of a bird which was guided only by the instinct that its home was in danger. The flames had begun to creep along the edge of the tower and every shingle on the roof was puffing a little jet of flame, when down wheeled a pigeon which had been dislodged from the tower and lit in the midst of the fire and smoke. Picking its way along, utter oblivious to the flames that must have been singeing its feathers, the pigeon went straight for its nest. A tongue of flame leaped out and the pigeon soared into the air. Then, as if irresistibly drawn into it, the bird dived into the furnace beneath and disappeared from sight.—Pasadena News.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullar's of 825 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

THINK TOO MUCH OF MONEY

Many Persons Lose Chance of Happy Marriage by Exaggerating the Value of Wealth.

Scores of people lose their chances of being happily married through making an unnecessary obstacle of money. The importance of it is often exaggerated. Many a man hesitates to propose to a girl because of his small income. Very often much misery, misunderstanding, and tangled lives result from the silence. More unfortunate love affairs are the result of what has not been said than of spoken words.

When a man has a small, sure income, and a prospect of increase, there is no legitimate reason for his not speaking of his love; no reason, for that matter, to prevent marriage. People are so desperately afraid, though, of beginning married life in a small way. They fear the sacrifices which they will be called upon to make—of the criticism to which they will be subjected. Many years of happiness are lost in this way. It is such a mistake for young people to want to start marriage in the state that their parents are ending it.

To delay marriage until a "comfortable" income is available is to prove something lacking in the love.—An-

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience —a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice received and be well.

Polly's Pancakes

By Dorothy Blackmore

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"It does seem too bad that some nice man doesn't find Polly," remarked Mrs. Earlington.

"She is destined for an old maid, my dear; I told you that long ago," her husband answered consolingly. "And the sooner she accepts the inevitable and stops struggling, the better."

"You're absolutely heartless, Frank, and Polly is the best friend either you or I have in the world, and you know it."

Mrs. Earlington's eyes filled with tears as she bent over her crocheting. She was a sympathetic little woman, and every time she thought of the difficult and lonely life of her dearest friend, Pauline Bates, her heart overflowed with compassion for the girl.

Pauline—Polly, they called her—did tutoring in and about the small village of Glenville, and most of her income was sent back home to support her widowed mother and two younger sisters. She was a wholesome, womanly, attractive girl, well out of her teens, and although every one, men and women, liked her, no man who was worth while seemed to have fallen in love with her. And yet there was not a girl in the little circle of young people in Glenville who would have made so admirable a wife.

Mrs. Earlington had known her for years, and the cozy home of the Earlingtons was always open to Pauline. In fact, as Mrs. Earlington frequently remarked, she didn't know how they could keep house without Pauline to call on. If the nurse were out, or ill, Pauline always managed to be on hand to help with the children. If the cook left, Pauline never failed to drop in to help prepare the meals. If Frank had to be out of town, Pauline came to stay with Mrs. Earlington. If the Earlingtons entertained, Pauline was the ever ready helper, for she played the piano, made a chafing dish supper, or did mere parlor tricks better than either the host or hostess.

Were busy preparing the batter

"Frank, I want you to listen to me," began Mrs. Earlington, opening the subject again.

Her husband looked up from his rural journal. He was deep in the mysteries of how to prune fruit trees, but he suppressed a sigh and looked across the reading table toward his wife.

"I'm serious about Polly—we must find a husband for her."

"Did she say so?" asked the man, blandly.

Mrs. Earlington withered him with a look. "Does Pauline ever say anything foolish?" she asked.

"Not often enough—that's one of her faults."

"Her principal fault, so far as I can see, is being entirely too good and conscientious and capable for any mere man. No one appreciates her," retorted Mrs. Earlington.

Her husband rolled his precious magazine into a tube and frowned. "Well? What can we do? I can't go around the world dragging men out here to meet her and extolling her virtues. You know how a man takes to the sort of girl you have to do that for."

"Of course not—but there must be subtle ways of getting at it," Mrs. Earlington said vaguely.

"You'll have to do anything subtle that's done in our family, dear. I'm as far from being subtle as—as a blow on the head."

His wife did not hear him; she was thinking. Suddenly a smile flashed across her face.

"Polly is a grand cook!" she said.

"But who knows it?" asked Frank.

"No one but you and me, and—her family, perhaps. Most of Polly's charms—if cooking may be called a charm—are hidden under the proverbial bushel," sighed Mrs. Earlington.

Her husband agreed with her.

"And I think—oh, Frank, couldn't you invite the boys and men of the choir of St. Paul's to a—we'll say, a pancake supper, and we'll have Polly make the pancakes?" Mrs. Earlington's eyes fairly danced at the prospect.

"I—could," Frank said, half-heartedly.

"You could very well. As a member of the vestry, it would be only natural that you show a little attention to the choir—especially before Christmas, when they are doing such good work."

"Very well, dear—it's your party. I'm willing. And what then?"

"You goose—Polly will make such delicious pancakes—it's one of her very best stunts—that the men will—well, you know a man when something appeals to his inner self."

"Yes—it isn't every wife who can make good pancakes or teach her cook to do likewise," admitted the man. "And I'm to ask the choir to a pancake supper—here—to eat Polly's pancakes?" he asked.

"Not at all—say nothing about Polly. That would spoil it all. Merely ask them to a pancake supper next Wednesday night."

In due form the choir of St. Paul's was invited to the Earlington home to eat pancakes and almost in a body it accepted. The small boys and the men were always glad of an opportunity to spend an evening in this hospitable little home.

Mrs. Earlington and Pauline were busy preparing the batter for the feast and a pile of hot plates was already on the top of the great range when the telephone bell rang long and loudly.

"Won't you answer, Polly, dear?" asked Mrs. Earlington.

Polly rushed to the 'phone, a glad light in her eyes. Her heart beat quickly as she took up the receiver. "Could it be he?" she asked herself, over and over.

For a few minutes she talked earnestly over the wire and when she returned to the kitchen a bright spot of red burned in each cheek. Mrs. Earlington thought she had never seen the girl so pretty. To herself, she commented that the combination of polly's pancakes and her beauty ought to bring some one of the half-dozen unmarried men in the house to her feet tonight.

"I took the liberty of asking an old friend who has just come to town from back home—here tonight," Polly said.

Mrs. Earlington looked at her earnestly. "Why, of course, dear. Who is it?"

"Arthur Fisher—a boy I used to play with when I was little and—"

"And what, Polly? Why do you hesitate?"

"Well, when we were—oh, dreadfully young—I quarreled with him because he wanted me to marry him and settle down in that little town and keep house. I was ambitious and wanted to do something else in the world—then, I told him I couldn't keep house and wouldn't cook and—"

"And you blush because he's going to find you baking pancakes for a whole regiment of hungry men now? Oh, Polly, why didn't you tell me of this Arthur before?"

"I thought he had forgotten me until I had a letter from him the other day saying he would be in this neighborhood tonight. I wrote him that I would be here tonight and that if he came he might call me up. It would seem so good to see some one from home," she ended lamely.

"I think he's more than 'some one,' Polly," said Mrs. Earlington, pointedly.

"Perhaps—but we must get these pancakes on the table. Isn't that enough to start on? I don't know how they are—I did not try them and I mixed the batter hastily," Polly said as she hurried into the dining-room with a platter full of round, hot griddle cakes.

She placed them before Mr. Earlington, whose wife had just supplied him with a pile of hot plates, and then—the doorbell rang.

Without ceremony, Polly rushed to answer it herself.

"You found the way?" was all Mrs. Earlington heard, and then, for a long minute there was silence.

Mrs. Earlington hurried to the kitchen, where she and the cook kept the griddle hot and tried to make pancakes enough to supply the hungry men.

Presently Polly returned to the kitchen—she had stopped to introduce Mr. Fisher to her host.

"Did—you need me?" asked Polly, innocently.

"Oh, no," Mrs. Earlington said, "the pancakes are of no consequence—now," she said, with a meaning that was discernible only to herself.

Clean Paint and Good Health.

Great care should always be taken in the cleaning of paintwork and baths, especially as this is often neglected on account of the trouble and danger of discoloration and wearing the paint which is caused by the use of strong soaps and unnecessarily hard scrubbing. There is an excellent cleaner now on the market specially made for saving labor, which at the same time preserves the paint, and should prove to be a great boon to a woman whose greatest aim in life is to see her house clean and the paint always spotless. It is also highly efficient for cleaning silver and plated ware, and answers a double use, and should always be in the store-cupboard.

LITTLE NELL WAS ORIGINAL

DeQuincey's "Our Lady of Tears" Did Not Suggest the Character to Dickens.

It is remarked of Charles Dickens that no modern writer was less open to the charge of having received suggestions from the characters and plots of his novels from others than was he, and this for the reason that his plots and characters were chosen, not from books, but from people and incidents in the living world about him. Some time ago, however, an English author thought that he had found in DeQuincey's essay, "Our Lady of Tears," the suggestion for the beautiful pathos of Little Nell, in "The Old Curiosity Shop." A little investigation, however, showed that DeQuincey's essay was published in 1845, while "The Old Curiosity Shop" was published five years before. The extract here given from DeQuincey's essay is interesting:

"The eldest of the three sisters is named Mater Lachrymarum, our Lady of Tears. The sister it is that carries keys more than papal at her girdle, which open every cottage and every palace. She, to my knowledge, sate all last summer by the bedside of the blind beggar, him that so often and so gladly I talked with, whose pious daughter, eight years old, with the sunny countenance, resisted the temptations of play and village mirth, to travel all day long on dusty roads with her afflicted father. For this did God send her a great reward. In the springtime of the year, and whilst yet her own spring was budding. He called her to himself. But her blind father mourns for ever over her; still he dreams at midnight that the little guiding hand is locked within his own, and still he wakens to a darkness that is now within a second and deeper darkness."

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite, I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allsbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allsbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

Peculiar Distinction Accorded Miss Jane Addams of Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—The national vice crusade, which has centered in Chicago, is to take a new and spectacular form in connection with the Men and Religion Forward movement, it was announced.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House has been asked to make a frank statement of the social evil and a man's responsibility therefor to the Christian men of America, through the conservation congress of the organization, to be held in New York city, April 19-24.

MISS JANE ADDAMS.

The only woman speaker on the program will be Miss Addams, and she will be, it is announced, the only woman present at any of the sessions.

COLOMBIAN INCIDENT CLOSED

Minister Turns Over Office at Washington to First Secretary.

Washington, Feb. 26. — The Colombian incident was closed when the state department received a letter from the Columbian minister, Pedro Nel Ospina, saying he had turned the legation affairs over to Senor Don Roberto MacDouall, first secretary, who will act as charge d'affaires

Similar word was received from American Minister Dubois at Bogota, which in addition said that the American legation there had been officially informed of Minister Ospina's recall.

FINDS RUBBER SUBSTITUTE

Young Russian Scientist Has Product Cheaper and Just as Good.

Moscow, Russia, Feb. 26. — Dr. Ostromislensky, a young professor in the technical school of chemistry, has discovered a process of making a substitute for rubber. The elasticity and resiliency of the substitute are described as being equal to that of rubber.

The new rubber is selling at 31 cents a pound. The price of rubber in the English market ranges from $1,10 to $1.30 per pound.

ROOSEVELT SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT

Makes Public Reply to Seven Republican Governors.

MATTER RESTS WITH PEOPLE

Hopes that Voters Will Be Given Opportunity to Express Their Preference Through Direct Primaries, If Possible.

New York, Feb. 26. — Theodore Roosevelt's reply to the seven Republican governors is given out for publication.

In response to their inquiry he states that he will accept the Republican nomination for the presidency if it is tendered him by the national convention of the party. His letter follows:

"New York, Feb. 24, 1912.

"Gentlemen—I deeply appreciate your letter, and I realize to the full the heavy responsibility it puts upon me, expressing as it does the carefully considered convictions of the men elected by popular vote to stand as the heads of government in their several states

"I absolutely agree with you that this matter is not one to be decided with any reference to the personal preference of any man, but purely from the standpoint of the interests of the people as a whole. I will accept the nomination for president if it is tendered to me, and I will adhere to this decision until the convention has expressed its preference.

"One of the chief principles for which I stood and for which I now stand, and which I have always endeavored and always shall endeavor to reduce to action, is the genuine rule of the people; and therefore I hope that so far as possible the people may be given the chance, through direct primaries, to express their preference as to who shall be the nominee of the Republican presidential convention.

"Very truly yours,
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The following is the letter from the governors:

"Chicago, Feb. 10, 1912.

"We, the undersigned Republican governors, assembled for the purpose of considering what will best insure the continuation of the Republican party as a useful agency of good government, declare it our belief, after a careful investigation of the facts, that a large majority of the Republican voters of the country favor your nomination, and a majority of the people favor your election, as the next president of the United States.

"We believe that your candidacy will insure success in the next campaign. We believe that you represent, as no other man represents, those principles and policies upon which we must appeal for a majority of the votes of the American people, and which, in our opinion, are necessary for the happiness and prosperity of the country

"We believe that in view of this public demand you should soon declare whether, if the nomination for the presidency comes to you unsolicited and unsought, you will accept it.

"In submitting this request we are not considering your personal interests. We do not regard it as proper to consider either the interests or the preference of any man as regards the nomination for the presidency. We are expressing our sincere belief and best judgment as to what is demanded of you in the interests of the people as a whole. And we feel that you would be unresponsive to a plain public duty if you should decline to accept the nomination coming as the voluntary expression of the wishes of a majority of the Republican voters of the United States through the action of their delegates in the next national convention.

"Yours truly,
"William E. Glasscock, West Virginia.
"Chester H. Aldrich, Nebraska.
"Robert P. Bass, New Hampshire.
"Joseph M. Carey, Wyoming.
"Chase S. Osborn, Michigan.
"W. R. Stubbs, Kansas.
"Herbert S. Hadley, Missouri."

THUGS MURDER FARMER

Head Severed from Body by His Assailants.

Home of the Victim Is Robbed and Burned in an Attempt to Cover Up the Crime.

Gallipolis, O., Feb. 26.—Peter Berrier, a well to do farmer living near this city, was brutally murdered and his home robbed and burned in an attempt to cover up the crime.

Berrier's head was severed by his assailants. It was found several feet from the body, which was lying on a bed in the farmer's home.

Following a searching investigation by Sheriff Jones and deputies, in which bloodhounds were used, two negroes living in the vicinity were arrested. They are Milton and Elles Smith and they will be held pending further investigation.

$14,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY

Safe Blown in a Maiden Lane Store in New York City.

New York, Feb. 26. — The Maiden Lane jewelry district is in alarm over the announcement of another diamond robbery which occurred some time during the day in the heart of the supposedly burglarproof section of the city. Despite the watchfulness of the police and numerous private detectives who are constantly on guard there, the robbers gained entrance to the vaults of the building at 49 Maiden Lane and walked away with a handful of gems valued at $14,000, from the safe of Emanuel S. Rose, wholesale jeweler.

The burglars worked quickly and skillfully. The were compelled to use an explosive in getting into Rose's private safe, but no one has been found who heard the muffled explosion, or suspected that anything was wrong.

JAUREZ WAITING TO BE ATTACKED

Rebel Force in Camp Twelve Miles South.

WILL TRAIN CANNON ON TOWN

Shots to Be Fired Parallel with Rio Grande River in Order that They May Fall on American Soil.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 26.—Juarez will not be attacked for several hours at least.

The rebels camped at Bauche, twelve miles south, are only about 700 in number, and Inez Salazar, their leader, has not yet reached the camp. No attack will be made, they declared, until he comes up and bring more men.

The rebel chieftain in command declares that they will first demand the surrender of Juarez and that if the surrender is not made then they mean to attack. They have cannon with them, he says, and will plant the cannon northwest of Juarez and fire down the river parallel with El Paso, just as Madero did, so that none of the shots will fall in El Paso. If any of the shots fall in El Paso, it is said, they will be from the rifles or rapid fire guns of the defenders of the town.

The leaders say that it is their intention to take Juarez and hold it as a port of entry and then march southward to Chihuahua, Torreon and eventually Mexico City, if their revolution does not triumph before they reach the national capital. He declares that the men in arms south of here in Chihuahua, in the Laguna district and elsewhere will join them in their march against Mexico City and that it will soon be a formidable army.

FAMOUS NURSE DEAD

Last of Band with Florence Nightingale in Crimea War Is Gone.

Paris, Feb. 26.—The death has occurred at Berne of the last of the little band of nurses who accompanied Florence Nightingale to the Crimean war in 1855. It was that of Mrs. Marie Rodney Morgan, who was a daughter of Admiral Robert Winthrop of the British navy and the widow of Colonel Evan Morgan of the British Royal artillery.

Mrs. Morgan was in her ninety-fourth year. She was stationed at the Scutari hospital during the Crimean war and in recognition of her splendid work there was presented with a magnificent diamond crescent brooch by the sultan of Turkey.

CENSUS EVERY FIVE YEARS

Director Durand Declares Enumeration Should Be Taken More Often.

Philadelphia, Feb. 26.—E. D. Durand, director of the federal census, before the City club declared the scope of the government census has reached its limit unless it be taken more frequently and the enumeration of population be separated from the many other lines of information now compiled.

He said he favored taking a population census every five years, as is now the case with manufactures and agricultural matters.

MONEY TRUST INQUIRY

National House Votes, 270 to 8, to Hold One.

Question Whether Hearing Will Be Whitewash Rests with the Banking Committee.

Washington, Feb. 26.—An investigation of the money trust on the conservative lines prescribed by the Democratic caucus was ordered by the house of representatives.

Whether the inquiry will be a whitewash, as predicted by the Progressive Republicans, or a thorough airing of Wall street methods of controlling the nation's credit will be determined by the Democratic majority of the banking and currency committee, to which the matter was committed.

The attempt to squelch the investigation completely was defeated by publicity, which may in the end also prevent the skillful application of the whitewash brush.

The compromise resolution directing the investigation was adopted by a vote of 270 to 8. The votes against the investigation were cast by the following Republicans:

Austin, Tennessee; Gillett, Massachusetts; Thistlewood, Illinois; Cannon, Illinois; Henry, Connecticut; Tilson, Connecticut; Dalzell, Pennsylvania; Higgins, Connecticut.

OPERATORS THINK STRIKE CERTAIN

Anthracite Miners Likely to Go Out April First.

DEMANDS WILL BE REFUSED

Bosses Say They Can See No Reason for Increasing Wages or Granting Any Different Working Conditions.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 26.—Most of the anthracite coal operators in this section believe there will be a strike following the expiration of the existing agreement on March 31.

They expect that the operators' committee, which is to have its first meeting with the mine workers' leaders in New York Tuesday, will refuse to grant any of the demands that are to be presented and that the same attitude will be maintained at subsequent meetings. This, they say, will result in the mine workers' leaders ordering a suspension of work starting April 1 for the express purpose of impressing the operators with their power while they give as the reason for it their desire to continue negotiations with the operators. When they find definitely that no concessions are to be granted, it is expected the union leaders will order a strike.

The local operators say there is no legitimate reason why there should be any change in the working conditions, or increase in the rate of wages, and they don't mean to be coerced into granting any of the demands. If the mine workers want to strike, then the results are of their own seeking, the operators say.

That the operators are well prepared for a strike is evident. One of them, asked what truth there was in the recent assertion of union leaders that an investigation had shown the operators had not more than a million tons of coal stored in anticipation of a strike, replied, "Why, I know of one company alone that has more than a million tons stored."

Many of the local operators will leave today to attend the New York conference.

JURORS EXAMINE CLAIMANT

Witness Parades Before Men Who Will Decide Case.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 26.—Jurors in the Kimmel identity mystery case on trial in the United States district court left their chairs and crowded about Andrew J. White, the claimant, when he was asked to allow himself to be examined at the close of a grilling six hour cross-examination by counsel for the plaintiff, the receiver of a defunct bank of Niles, Mich.

The claimant was asked by Attorney Taylor to stand before the jury. He walked to the jury box while the jurors crowded against the rail. The jurors' attention was called to the profile of the claimant and the scar on the back of the neck. "Now show your thumb," Taylor commanded. The claimant held up his left hand, showing the maimed member, the first time the jurors had seen it. They examined it eagerly. The members of the jury also carefuly inspected the witness' damaged ear.

PROTEST WAR IN AIR

Petition Is Issued by International Arbitration League.

London, Feb. 26.—A petition signed by 200 notable people has been issued by the International Arbitration league protesting against the use of aerial vessels in war.

The signatories appeal to all governments to foster an international understanding which shall preserve the world from "a new hideousness of warfare" and deprecate the suggestion that aerial warfare, by reason of its horror, must frighten men from war, and that the art of flying will never reach full development without the stimulus of war.

My Vision

A Girl Sees Herself and Fears Her Mind Is Giving Way

By Edna T. Wilcox

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

There is a moment in my life that I can never forget. Can you guess what it is? A death scene? No. A proposal of marriage? No. A terrible accident? No. Well, what is it?

The seeing of my own individual self in duplicate.

I was sitting at a typewriter in an office where I was at the time employed and, happening to look out into the court, there on the other side of the quadrangle at a window one story beneath me stood my own individual person. The only difference between my other self and me was in the dress. I, sitting at my typewriter, was in plain office costume; I in the other part of the building was richly clad in street dress.

I dropped my work, rose from my seat and, pale and trembling, went to my employer and asked to be excused for the rest of the day. He saw by my appearance that something of moment had happened and at once granted my request. He asked me if I would tell him what had troubled me, and I said:

"ONE DAY I SAW IT AGAIN."

"Shortly before coming to your employ I suffered a nervous breakdown and passed several months in a sanitarium. I was discharged as perfectly well, but a few moments ago I suffered a relapse."

"How were you affected?" he asked.

"I saw— Oh, don't ask me. I can't tell you what I saw. It was something ordinary, but it was awful."

Now, my employer, Edward Wheeler, had treated me since I came into his service with great consideration. Indeed, it seemed to me at times that I was becoming more to him than merely his typewriter. We were in his private office with no one else present, and, seeing that I needed soothing, he spoke to me in a quiet voice, taking my hand in his. The touch rather than the words quieted me. Placing me in an easy chair, he said:

"Tell me more about this matter."

I told him how I had seen myself at an opposite window.

He attempted to reassure me by saying that I had seen another person. I told him that if this was the explanation there would have been some difference between the two, however slight. Was it not more reasonable to suppose, since I had suffered from similar visions before, that this one was the effect of a physical weakness?

He did not assent to this, but refrained from arguing with me, saying that if I desired it he would call a carriage and send me home, but he thought it would be better for me to occupy my mind with my work. If I had had any relative in the world, any home to go to, I would have declined his advice. As it was I accepted it. He recommended my remaining where I was for awhile, and as there was a comfort in having him near me I was glad to do so. He handed me a newspaper, then went on with what work he had before him. I sat there for half an hour, during which persons came and went. Then, feeling better, I returned to my desk and to work.

Mr. Wheeler did not mention this matter to me again for several days; then one morning when standing beside me with some papers he wished me to copy, looking out into the court, he said:

"At which window did you see your double?"

I pointed to the window, but he made no further remark and, turning, went away.

Very gradually my vision, as I called it, ceased to trouble me, or, rather, came more and more rarely into my mind, and when it did I was better able to put it away from me. I had quite recovered when one day I saw it again.

When I say that I met my other self on the street, that my other self passed me, reflecting my own look, and that I was again seized with terror, it must be remembered that I was in an overstrung condition. It is easy for a normal person to say, "Why didn't you go to her and say something?" My answer is that I believed her to be a creation of my own brain, an evidence that I was again suffering from what I feared might result in madness.

I was out at lunch at the time and on my way back to the office. As soon as I reached it I went to Mr. Wheeler and, sinking into a chair, said in an almost inaudible whisper:

"I have seen it again."

This time he gave me a different treatment. Instead of the sympathetic soothing I had received from him before he treated me with severity.

"Nonsense!" he said. "You've seen a real person. You are working yourself up to a frenzy by thinking your brain is in an abnormal condition."

"How could this be when my other self reflected the expression on my own face?"

"The other person was doubtless as much astonished as you."

I declined to be convinced.

"I was in hopes," he added, "that you would not see the person for awhile, for I believe that an explanation is forthcoming. I have only this morning come upon an advertisement which I think bears on the case."

"An advertisement!" I exclaimed.

"Yes. I was debating with myself whether if I should speak to you about it I would throw you into hysterics: Why should it?"

"Oh, you are all nervished up and ready to twist anything into evidence that you are losing your mind. Sit down there," pointing to a chair. "I wish to ask you some questions."

I seated myself, wondering what was coming.

"Did your aunt ever tell you anything about your parentage?"

"Not much. I was very sensitive. She died when I was quite young. I knew there was something very unpleasant—a family skeleton—and I dreaded to know it."

"You are Edith Webster, and you were called Polly by your father and mother."

"How do you know that?"

"Never mind. Your father and mother were divorced about a year after you were born."

"Is that the skeleton?"

"You were retained by your mother, who died when you were four years old. Do you remember her?"

"No."

"Your aunt took you at your mother's death. Your father disappeared, supposedly to get rid of paying the alimony fixed by the court at the time of the divorce. Your aunt had nothing to leave you; consequently you are earning your living as a typewriter."

"How did you come to know all this?"

"I came to know it from my interest in you. When you told me that you had seen your double I felt sure you had seen some real person who resembled you. You may remember that I asked you at what window you had seen your vision. Well, I went into the office to which that window belongs and made inquiries."

"What did you find out?"

"Not all I wish to know. You are too emotional for me to give you all my confidence just at present. I can only say now that I expect to prove that the person you saw is a woman and not a creation of your brain."

I begged him to tell me more, but he would not, and I was forced to go to work unsatisfied. I consequently blundered all the afternoon. Though I was reassured, one thing troubled me—Mr. Wheeler's severe treatment of me. And yet I felt that it had done more to enable me to shake off my nervousness than when he had sympathized with me. Indeed, he told me afterward that he knew I needed just such treatment.

A few days later Mr. Wheeler came to my desk and told me to come into his private office. At the same time he looked at me with a kindly smile and added:

"I have a surprise for you. You mustn't let it shock you."

Wondering, I went with him. I found in his office a man and a woman.

Great heavens! The woman was my vision.

She came toward me with outstretched arms. I drew back in fright.

"Don't be afraid of me, Polly. I'm Dolly, your twin sister. Father often talked to me about you and said that 'when his ship came in' he would find you for me. He died just as the ship came in, and I have been hunting for you ever since."

She put her arms about me, and my head sank down on her shoulder. She patted me affectionately and said:

"I don't wonder you have been wrought up over seeing me. When we met on the street the other day, although I have been long looking for you, I was so startled that I let you pass. I turned back at once, but had lost you in the crowd. You don't seem as strong as I am, but you won't have to work any more. We're rich. Father left half to you—that is, if you were alive and I could find you. When father and mother separated mother took you and father took me. You have the same rights as I."

As soon as my sister and I withdrew from our embrace I turned to look at Mr. Wheeler. His eyes were bent on me with an expression that went straight to my heart. I put out my hand to him impulsively and returned his glance with one of the same kind.

"Without his interest in the matter I doubt if we would have ever got together," said my sister.

Gradually all the details came out, and I heard how Mr. Wheeler had learned of my sister's presence in the city and had seen her advertisement for me. Dolly and I are both now married. I married my employer. I am in excellent health and have no fear of seeing any more visions.

My experience goes to show the power of the mental faculties over the bodily. I verily believe that had the matter not been brought to a climax I should have been a nervous wreck.

Better Keep the Boy.

At nightfall the junior partner's exultation of the day changed to chagrin and he clamored noisily for the errand boy's dismissal.

"Better think it over," the senior partner advised.

"Why waste time in thinking," the junior retorted, "when he's got to go? Here I am, lying awake every night for a week planning an effective window decoration, which is turned into a laughing stock the first day by the stupidity of that boy, who leaves three yards of blue woolen dust rag draped around silver tankards and trays of diamonds."

"Well," said the elder jeweler, "people stopped and looked, didn't they?"

"Yes, but what of it? That dust rag?" growled the junior.

"That's why I advise you to keep the boy," advised the senior mildly. "If it hadn't been for him I am afraid nobody would have looked at all."

In Praise of Courage.

Certain virtues are divided from vices by so narrow a line that we must discern very clearly to see the difference. Few men can distinguish pride from vanity; perseverance from stubbornness; economy from avarice. The same is true of courage as distinguished from effrontery. The courageous man must have ambition, not merely dream of what he would like to have. The audacious have been found fault with for their brutality in overcoming all obstacles—but force is necessary to accomplish any real purpose.—Chicago American.

Two Pickerel on One Line.

A humble and honest fisherman who set his traps for pickerel on a Maine pond the other day is ready to make affidavit as follows: "I hereby declare on oath that I did catch two pickerel on one hook. The first pickerel swallowed the bait and didn't like it. Apparently he tried to cough it up. At any rate he spewed the hook out under his gills and it floated off in the water to be grabbed by a second pickerel. Thus there came up two pickerel, all strung on a line.—Lewiston Journal.

Tecumseh Grange

The year 1912 promises to be a very prosperous year for Tecumseh Grange. On Saturday February 3 we had a day meeting with dinner. Good attendance and after dinner we had some excellent songs by Brethern Wilson and Canys, followed by a talk by Dr. North subject, "The Microscope", Dr. North's talks are always interesting and instructive and this one seemed especially so.

We certainly learned much about the powerful agency of the microscope in overcoming and preventing disease. The Doctor proved to us, beyond question that the Panama Canal could never have been dug without its aid.

We found it necessary to hold a special meeting Friday night February 9 to receive candidates who were in waiting. It was a bitter cold night but we had a good time and with the aid of some hot oysters we managed to keep very comfortable.

On Saturday February 16 the Grange gave a chicken pie dinner which was a great success. The chicken pies were the real thing made from choice Buff Orpington and Rhode Island Red pullets, fattened on rich, home grown yellow corn, with an occasional Johnny cake made from Brother Mill's Alfalfa meal properly moistened with Floyd Bryan's Jersey cream. And the ladies of Tecumseh Grange are not only good lookers, they are also good cookers.

At 2:30 P. M. Worthy Master Boyce called the meeting to order and Brother Harrie A. Smith, secretary of Lenawee County Pomona Grange to be held at Onsted on Thursday, March 7.

The meeting was then in the hands of, Mrs. George Sanford, who announced as the first number on the program a vocal solo by Mrs. Weld which was greatly enjoyed and she responded to an encore.

Then Mrs. Weld's other half, not better half, gave us his illustrated lecture, "The Star and Crescent" being an account of his tour through the Orient.

Members of Tecumseh Grange are always glad to hear Pastor Weld. A traveled cultured man, with a very pleasing personality, to know him is to be his friend.

Our people pay 50 . each many times to hear a lecture of less value than "The Star and the Crescent".

Next Saturday March 2 there will be an all day meeting at Grange Hall with a pot luck dinner and in the afternoon the good roads question will be settled. All other discussions of the subject in the county, will probably be called off after next Saturday because when Clem Bramble and the other spell binders get through with their "spiels" we shall know where we are at.

As goes Tecumseh Grange, so goes Lenawee.

Tinfluenza.

The tin had crumbled in a gray dust, but the plumber was not in the least nonplused.

"It caught cold," he said. "That's all. Tin is very liable to catch cold if it gets in a temperature under 60 degrees. As a rule it recovers, but a tin cold often turns to influenza, and then the case is hopeless. Nothing can be done. The tin loses its luster, decays, and finally crumbles to a gray powder like this here.

"These tin colds are contagious. A tin dipper will give a cold to a saucepan, and a tincup has been known to contaminate an organ pipe.

"Only pure tin catches cold. For that reason, when tin is to occupy an exposed position or to encounter a low temperature, we alloy it with lead. Only alloyed tin is free from tinfluenza."

Temperatures of Volcanoes.

Scientists have recently secured an accurate measurement of the temperature of boiling lava in a crater. The experiment was a very dangerous one, and it was considered a triumph of precaution no lives were sacrificed in making the test.

The crater of Kilauea in Hawaii was selected for examination. The work progressed very slowly. For a long time it was impossible to obtain results, but after several thermometers had been destroyed a pyrometer was substituted to advantage. The temperature recorded was 1,010 degrees centigrade, which is the same as 1,850 degrees Fahrenheit. Iron is still unmelted at this heat, but gold, silver and copper become a molten mass at a lower temperature.—Harper's Weekly.

Practically Immune.

Curacoa, the most important of the Dutch West Indies, is without fire insurance and a fire department, though the island has a population of over 50,000. The buildings in the town are all of stone, hence this happy condition of affairs. Recently the first sawmill was installed, being furnished by an American firm. "It is hoped," says a consular report, "that this will not increase the erection of wooden buildings and necessitate insurance and a fire department."

SCHOOL NOTES

Who said Class Party?!!!

Mr. McAlpines class in Teachers' Course are given a drill in writing Teachers' examination each week.

The Y. W. C. A. held a "Hearts' Desire Party" at the home of Geneva Satterthwaite last Thursday evening. The girls had a jolly time and at the close of the evening frozen angels food and wafers were served.

Due to the fact that lectures, examinations, and class parties, have interrupted the Y. W. C. A. meetings it is not prophetic of the future however and a meeting scheduled for February 29 is a misson study on Alaska, for March 9, an Art Talk will be given by Miss Alice Cutting as soon as possible a schedule of the meetings to be held for the remainder of the year will be published. We are anticipating interesting study and discussion hours, jolly social evenings and splendid talks and lectures.

Clara Critchett who has been filling vacancy for Miss Marie Bramble in the Pink district returned to her High School duties, Monday morning.

Donald McCine returned to school Thursday morning after being absent for a few days suffering from an attack of the grippe.

Mr. Smith's classes in chemistry are doing splendid work. The pupils in chemistry are two weeks in advance of classes before this year. The experiments in heat worked out by the physics class are good. Excellent results have been obtained.

Ray Binns and Elsie Sanford were in Adrian Saturday, February 17 attending the County Teachers' Institute.

Mr. W. M. Abbot of Hillsdale took a photograph of the pupils in each room of the Tecumseh Public Schools Wednesday morning and afternoon.

Gerald Conlin visited the High School Friday.

David Watson of the eighth grade is suffering from appendicitis.

Hermann Seitz of the seventh grade has returned to school after his severe illness.

On account of the recent heavy snow storm, very few nonresident pupils were present Thursday morning. The condition of the roads making it impossible for them to get here.

KILBUCK CLUB

The Killbuck Pedro Club met last Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Hines: It being Washington's birthday the rooms were gay with flags and bunting. The prizes were carried off by Mrs Victor Linden and Mrs. John Wells. A delightful evening was passed in social visiting and later a fine spread was served. This was the last meeting for the season.

Merry-Go-Round

The Merry-go-round Club was entertained at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs Leon Rosacrans last evening there were nine tables of 63 played Mrs. Will Meyer of Detroit carried off the ladies prize and R. S. Moore that for the gentlemen.

A fine two course supper was served at the close of the games.

Interesting Antiquities.

One of the huge stones of the Avebury Druidical circle, which is much larger and older than Stonehenge, has fallen owing doubtless to the effects of weather. Aubrey, who acted as guide to Charles II. on a visit to this district in 1663, declared that Avebury as far surpassed Stonehenge as a cathedral does a parish church.

The rampart and fosse enclose nearly 30 acres, but of the original 600 stones there are now only 18 standing, the number in 1722 being 44. In addition to the circle Avebury possesses an interesting church dating from before the Conquest and an Elizabethan manor house, while a mile away is Silbury hall, the largest artificial mound in Europe, being 135 feet high and having a base which covers five acres.

Bunting Thoroughly Tested.

In very truth a modern battleship does, in modern phrasing, carry some bunting. About $150,000 is spent by the United States navy for flags each year. Every case of bunting costs the government $560; every roll costs $11.25. The bunting comes from Massachusetts. Every piece is subjected to the most severe test. It must weigh five pounds to every forty yards and stand the weight test of seventy pounds to two square inches. It is steeped in salt water for six hours and then exposed to the sun for the same period of time. If after this treatment it continues to be bunting of a distinguishable color it is pronounced fit for service.

Snakes in Plaster.

In a small part of a South Carolina swamp represented on the second floor of the American Museum of Natural History is included a snake group among the logs, vines and water hyacinths. The group shows side by side poisonous snakes, the water moccasin, and the non-poisonous, the brown water snake.

An example of the deadly moccasin water snake of the south is made from a wax cast by James C. Bell, with color work by Frederick H. Stoll. It is extremely lifelike and realistic, quite enough to give the visitor an acquaintance with the species.

Perfect Analogy.

FARMERS' UNION

The Farmers' Union met with Mr and Mrs Schnerer on Tuesday last. About fifty were present. A picnic dinner was served at noon, after which came a program on corn, samples of which were brought in for exhibition, for seed corn Mr. Sudburough of Adrian, gave a very interesting talk on corn, and giving a thorough examination of the samples presented. A most profitable and also pleasant afternoon was spent by all present.

TECUMSEH FLOUR FOR TOLEDO POOR AT COST

Toledo, Feb. 23.—The Mayor Whitlock club, a new organization, with the motto, "Help one another," commenced operations yesterday afternoon by offering best-grade flour in 25-pound sacks at cost price.

A car load was ordered from Wm. Hayden Milling Co., of Tecumseh, Mich.

The milling company enters into the practical Christianity of the project and writes: "For the purpose you mention, to supply the laboring people at cost, we will give you our lowest sale price and also deduct the commission price to brokers."

TIME COPY AT A PREMIUM

The Hudson Post sums up last weeks situation as follows:

We Beg Pardon

This issue of THE POST is up against a peculiar proposition. In the first place the country has been snowbound and there has been but little news since our Tuesday paper. Secondly the roads blockded and but little country correspondence reached us. Thirdly, trains were abandoned and delayed and the mails failed to bring copy. Fourthly, yesterday was a holiday and the postoffice was closed. This, makes the business up hill work, and accounts for a lack of the essentials of an interesting newspaper.

Thanks to the time copy held for occasions like this. The Herald was enabled to make a fairly decent showing.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it does not cost the user a cent if does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies, These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is is odorless, tasteless, and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pniver.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Tecumseh Residents Enthusiastic

No wonder scores of Tecumseh citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Tecumseh by Doan's Kidney Pills.

E. A. Hodges, retired carpenter, W. Gumming St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I cheerfully confirm my former public endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and I found them to be a tonic for my kidneys and very effective in relieving aches and pains in my back. Other members of my family have taken this preparations and it has done good work in each instance."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

How Colds Affects the Kidneys

Avoid taking cold if your kidneys are sensitive. Cold congests the kidneys, throws to much work upon them, and weakens their action. Serious kidney trouble and even Bright's disease may result. Strengthen your kidneys, get rid of the pain and soreness, build them up by the timely use of Foley Kidney Pills. Tonic in action, quick in results.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. For sale by all druggists.

A Warning Against Wet Feet

Wet and chilled feet usually affect the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, and lagrippe, bronchitis or pneumonia may result. Watch carefully, particularly the children, and for the racking stubborn coughs give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It soothes the inflamed membranes, and heals the cough quickly. Take no substitute. For sale by all druggists.

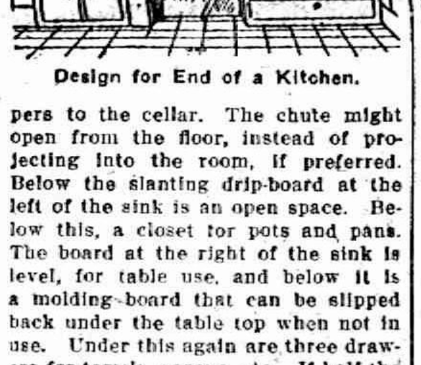
SOME KITCHEN HINTS

BEAUTY AND CONVENIENCE ARE HERE COMBINED.

Thoughtfulness in Laying Out Most Important Room in the House Will Be Well Repaid in Saving of Time and Labor.

When beauty and convenience can be combined, as they are in the present design for the end of a kitchen, we have the chief end of house-planning fulfilled, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. The space between the chimney, which stands in the corner, and is connected with the range a few feet away, and the opposite side of the room, is entirely filled with cupboards, framing in two rather high windows. At the top of the space are four doors, which open on shelves where the stores are kept which are little used; the extra soap, the extra dish towels; canned goods provided in case of emergency, and so on. Below these store shelves are two cupboards for spices, flavorings, sugar, tea and coffee. The board that forms the bottom shelf of these cupboards runs all along under the window, giving a place for a pot of bright flowers. This sill is kept sufficiently narrow so that it will not interfere with the use of the sink, drip-board and table space below it. The space under the sink is kept open, of course, except for a chute provided to take papers to the cellar. The chute might open from the floor, instead of projecting into the room, if preferred. Below the slanting drip-board at the left of the sink is an open space. Below this, a closet for pots and pans. The board at the right of the sink is level, for table use, and below it is a molding-board that can be slipped back under the table top when not in use. Under this again are three drawers for towels, aprons, etc. If half the space proved sufficient for drawer room, the rest could be profitably used for a flour bin. It is to be noted that in this kitchen the sink is easily seven inches higher than the plumber wanted to put it, and the owner, who had to argue for an hour to gain her point, never ceases to rejoice that she insisted on her own way. The extra height saves hours of backache from bending while working in the kitchen.



Design for End of a Kitchen.

One provision that should always be made for a kitchen is a cold-pantry. This should be a small closet, as far away as possible from the stove and from the radiators, and opening toward the north, if possible. If it can be put in one side of a north entry that opens from a screened porch, so that it will be most useful. The refrigerator should be built in, if possible, and should have a door opening on this same screened porch, so that it may be filled from the outside, without tracking up the kitchen.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cutler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W B Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

STATE OF MICHIGAN. The Probate Court for the County of Lenawee.

At a session of said Court held at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, in said County, on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1912.

STRIKE CRISIS TOMORROW

English Mine Operators Not Inclined to Confer with Men.

London, Feb. 26.—Tuesday will be a fateful day in the coal strike situation. The miners' federation will meet in London on that day to determine whether they shall postpone the strike ordered for March 1.

Meanwhile the government is doing its utmost to bring the mine owners to consent to negotiate with the miners over the demand for a minimum wage. The owners are not inclined to agree, contending that the struggle is bound to come sooner or later, and it might as well come now. They apparently do not believe a concession of this demand would be certain to bring about a lasting peace.

EIGHT ON 50-CENT INCOME

Four Adults and Four Children Live on Meager Earnings.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Feb. 26.—When Henry F. Dilger, probation officer, went to Henryville to investigate an alleged charge of neglect against Benjamin Burke, whose family was said to be starving, he found eight people, including four adults, trying to live on an income of 50 cents a day, Burke's earnings.

The family included his wife's infant, her father, stepmother and three stepbrothers and sisters. The step relatives are from Vermillion county and will be returned.

FIND $57,000 GOLD THIEVES

Officials Told by "Trusty" of Robbers of Alaska Steamer.

Salem, Ore., Feb. 26.—Through information given Governor West by one of his "honor" prisoners, discovery of the men who robbed the Alaska steamer Humboldt of $57,000 of gold bullion in September, 1910, has been made, and $7,000 of the bullion was recovered by government secret agents.

The bullion was buried in four feet of earth not far from Salem. It is believed the officials are ready to arrest those implicated by the confession.

Almost Tickled to Death.

Unable to stand being tickled by a girl friend, R. J. Watkins, an employee of the locomotive works at Richmond, Va., lost his balance and fell down a flight of stairs at his boarding house the other night, breaking an artery in the stump of his left arm which had been amputated about eighteen months ago. His injuries were attended to by Dr. R. E. Watts of the city ambulance, who decided, however, to send the young man to the Virginia Hospital.

Watkins was standing at the head of the stairs joking with the girl when she playfully tickled him in the ribs. Watkins dodged back, lost his balance and went headlong down the stairs, hitting the stump of his left arm in his descent. Doctor Watts worked with him for over an hour before he stopped the bleeding.

Traveler's Test.

The eminent traveler, James Bruce, was highly touchy whenever his veracity was called into question. It happened that, when dining out one day at a friend's house, one of the guests observed "that it was impossible that the natives of Abyssinia could eat raw meat." Without making any reply, Bruce forwith left the table, and before long returned from the kitchen with a piece of raw beefsteak, peppered and salted in the Abyssinian fashion. Placing this in front of the guest who had doubted his word, he said: "Sir, you will eat that or fight me!" The guest preferred the former alternative, thereupon Bruce calmly observed, "Now, sir, you will never say again that it is impossible."

Remarkable.

"I've driven my car for over a year now," said Bilkins, "and I've never run down anybody."

"That's nothing," said Mrs. Bilkins. "I've attended the meetings of our sewing circle for five years and have never run down anybody."—Harper's Weekly.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

BUSINESS IS THEIR LIFE

Thousands of American Men Seem to Be Wholly Uninterested in Their Wives.

There are thousands of American men who are merely indifferent to their women. They are proud of them, but supremely uninterested, and ask of their wives only to be let alone. Their business is their life; it is their life after they are married just as it was before. They are playing a tremendous game, and in this country a man has got to win or go to the wall. It makes no difference whether a man is married or a bachelor; it is not the women of the country who determine if a man must work at the great rate of speed at which they labor—it is the pace of the country itself which demands it. Our men give generously and indulgently to their women folks; they like to see that they have "everything in the world," as the saying is. It pleases their vanity to see their houses well-appointed and their women well dressed; they like the luxury of it for themselves. What is to be expected of young girls whose fathers have had no influence in their bringing-up, but have merely paid the bills—young girls, who have never been taught the use of money nor any details of any business whatsoever, and whose whole duty in life is to dress with the extreme perfection of which our women are past masters, and to keep in good physical condition and talk amusingly? These are the prices of success, success being measured in this country, as elsewhere, in terms of marriage and attention.—Woman's Home Companion.

WHAT WE OWE TO WOMEN

Ever They Have Been the Makers of the Home and Providers of Comfort.

Social progress with primitive women was stimulated and encouraged by their relation to home life, to dress and to manners. We have already alluded to the women as the authors of the home or shelter. It is the female bird that makes the nest, the female mammal that digs the burrow for her young and the female bee that makes the honeycomb as a home for hers. The human female more than all the rest created her home. But not only is this true, but she differentiated the home, and all parts of the most elaborate establishment were instituted by her or on her account.

The first homes were cheerless caves. Fire could not be made in them because of the smoke, so women sought out a cave with an opening in the rear, or a rock shelter with a high curved roof. When she became a dweller in a tent she searched for the oldest wood, learned the mysteries of the fuel problem and even invented the coral to induce the wind to draw a little of the smoke therefrom and to increase her comfort.

To the women of the household we are indebted for the oven, the chimney and the chimney corner, the kitchen, the dining room, the family room, the separate bed chamber. It has been a wonderful evolution, resulting in comfort, taste and morality.—Otis T. Mason, "Woman's Part in Primitive Civilization."

Black and White vs. White and Black.

For many years a large department store has spent thousands of dollars on placards with which almost every article of merchandise is ticketed throughout the store, and only within a short time did they realize the amount of money that was being wasted in using the white cardboard with black lettering.

These white cards soon became soiled and shop worn if allowed to remain in place any length of time. The cards, which are handled by customers in bins, trays, etc., are even more so. By substituting the black cardboard with white lettering this store has overcome this difficulty to a very great extent. The show cards are always clean, fresh and bright-looking and they last many times as long, saving the firm several hundred dollars in the course of a year.—Business.

"Grandfather" Clock 200 Years Old.

A remarkable hand made clock is in the possession of the Swedish Lutheran Orphanage at Avon, Mass. It is one of the old "grandfather" type and consists of 15,000 pieces. It was made about 200 years ago by Henry Haven and is still running. The works are of wood, the case a handsome checkerboard of inlay work, the material mahogany and white boxwood. Henry Haven was several years completing it. Two heavy weights and two bob weights are the only metal in the works. The clock was in the possession of the Blanchase estate of Avon for generations. When the property was sold for a Swedish orphanage the clock went with other furniture to the new owner.

Big Trade in Frozen Meat.

Argentina supplies 90 per cent. of the frozen beef and frozen mutton consumed in Sheffield, England. Australia and New Zealand provide the remainder. Its use is constantly increasing. Frozen meat is never sawed, but it chopped with a cleaver. The retailers receive the meat in quarters which they chop into angular blocks, from which the quantities desired by customers are cut. These blocks afford material for fine window displays, and the windows of frozen-meat shops are generally piled high with all sizes and shapes of solid red beef.

Wooing A Star

By Louise Merrifield

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

Hamilton swung up on the steps of the sleeper. The rescue portion of the train crew had started its twelve-mile push through the snowdrifts down the track to Moosehead, the nearest telegraph station. There was one chance in fifty that they might meet a relief gang working toward them. And it was Christmas eve.

"We won't get through, sah," said the porter cheerfully. "Suttinly looks most unpromising for Santa Claus tonight."

"Never can tell, Sam. You'd better hang up your sock," Hamilton returned. "I'm sorry for the poor devils in the day coaches and tourist cars. How about that private layout we tacked on at Boise City?"

"Private car, sah—Mme. Helene Cesare."

The name struck a chord that had been Hamilton's dominant strain for ten years. He knew Helene Cesare. Back in the lean years, when she had been a slender, eager-eyed girl with a golden voice, who frankly hailed from Omaha, he had met her at one of his sister's musicales in the east. Kit Murray, they called her then. She was about seventeen, with a mass of reddish hair, framing a tense, determined face, with big, dreamy, almost resentful eyes. She had been resentful, too, of his proffers of friendship and assistance so far as her career was concerned. She would win, she had told him, win by sheer work and effort. It had not been with her consent that his sister had bent all her influence toward her success. Yet she had been grateful, too, and had never known how much of it she owed to Hamilton's love for her.

On his way to the private car he met the conductor.

"About six hours anyway, sir, possibly more," he answered Hamilton. "Tough on the people in the cars ahead. There's nothing to feed them with, and a lot of kids, too."

Hamilton went on to the last car. He met madame's secretary at the vestibule and gave his card. When he entered the drawing room section, she had risen to greet him, her fur trimmed lounging cloak slipping back from her shoulders, her eyes full of the same luminous eagerness he remembered well.

She had risen to greet him.

"Ah, but this is kind of you," she said. "And I am so lonesome, and bored. How much you look like yourself!" The absurdity of her own remark dawned on her, and she laughed richly, happily. "I mean as I remember you, Hugh. Tell me of yourself. Sit there. We will dine presently."

"But we must not, not yet, please," he interposed. "I have come to you for two reasons; first to see you. You know how I have wanted to."

"But we were on the same little earth, my friend."

"Half a world away, and more. You were a planet, child, and I a star worshiper. So—well, I have worshiped as a star should be worshiped."

She looked at him questioningly, at most anxiously.

His eyes regarded her hungrily. This was not the girl of seventeen whom he had loved tenderly, protectingly; this woman with the curved lips and well-poised head, the sure, clear gaze, and voice that stirred old memories into life.

Yet, gazing at the white perfection of her throat and shoulders, her jeweled head, the exquisite lines of her velvet dinner gown, he thought of the mass of warped humanity on the rest of the stalled train, hungry, bitter, stunned by the prospect of a snowbound Christmas.

It made no difference to Cesare, her car would be as warm, as brilliantly lighted, her dinner as perfectly served as if she were in her own Parisian apartment. And suddenly he resolved to throw all his chances on one single number. It would prove to him whether any tenderness, any womanliness still lay dormant under that breast.

"I'm awfully sorry, but I simply cannot stay with you, not with those poor devils ahead stranded. There are children, too, they say. You know what that means, Kit—"

The old name slipped out unthinkingly, and she smiled.

"It is kind of you to give me the chance to share with them," she said. "We will send in all that I have, except our own dinner tonight. Does that content you?"

"Will you come with me, and sing them Christmas carols?"

"Why not?" She caught the infection of the thought gayly. "I was to sing tonight at some city; where was it—my secretary knows—for five thousand. What then? We will pour the voice out to your day coach pilgrims, Hugh. I hope they will like me."

With her hand laid lightly on his arm, she went ahead through the train, and the word spread like fire. The great singer would give her voice as freely to them for their Christmas eve as she gave from her larder to feed them.

Hamilton never forgot the picture she made as she stood in the aisle of each of the crowded coaches, head lifted, lips smiling, singing old heart songs and carols that left her audiences in tears. And she enjoyed it as the girl of ten years ago would have done, every minute of her progress, while the children reached to rub their cheeks against her velvet gown and the soft fur, and baby hands were lifted longingly toward her violets. She wore no corsage bouquet by the time they had returned to the private car.

There in the cold vestibule they faced each other. Hamilton knew that fate had given him a second chance after ten years.

"I thought there was only the soul of the artist left in you, Kit," he said, gripping both her hands in his warm grasp. "I believed the years had killed all sentiment in you, and here you go with me and give your golden voice to those poor devils. You never looked so beautiful in your life as when you lifted that baby in your arms, the one that cried for your diamond necklace. Do you know it, do you?"

"I know that I have missed the better part of life, Hugh. They say a woman who gives her whole heart to art can follow only the one master. I used to believe that when I was a girl, but no more. One cannot be a great artist and interpret the emotions until one has suffered oneself, has—loved, perhaps."

"Love is not always suffering, dear."

"No?" She smiled at him with eyes filled with tears. "I found it so when I wakened after years of work, and found you gone, and only success to carry me on. I found it was most bitter suffering, Hugh."

The fur cloak slipped back from her throat as he held her in his arms, kissing the full, perfect lips and tender eyes. There was a sudden commotion outside in the darkness, shouts and waving of lanterns. The train crew were returning with a relief party. Somebody yelled that the snow plow was pushing its way through the drifts, and the train would be moving in half an hour.

"We will reach Helena by daylight. Then," said Hamilton, "I am going straight through with you to New York, and we will be married there, before the new year. Does that interfere with your engagements, Kit?"

Madame Cesare laughed softly, and gathered her cloak about her as she preceded him into her car.

"I shall never say it that way again. Hereafter it shall be, do my engagements interfere with you, Hugh?"

"Better not," he flung back. "I shall claim all the light of my star if you do."

"When one has won a star, is it not his?" Cesare's eyes were proud and happy as she answered him. "I have had ten years of all the world can give. Now I ask—only you."

"I'M LITTLE, BUT I'LL TRY"

Brave Child of Section Foreman Saved Train and Set Example for All Others.

She was only seven years old, Eileen Martin, the section foreman's daughter, as she stood reaching up to a telephone at the little town of Alta, Cal., telling the agent at the nearest station that a rail was broken. Childlike, she knew the semaphore signals, had come to the track to see the Overland Limited whirl by and had watched the long finger drop, letting the train into the block.

"I'm pretty little, but I'll try," she said, when the station agent asked her if she could not stop the train that was past him, and started out with her sister of fourteen who had just appeared. They ran down the track, stopped the train and saved a wreck.

Pretty much every primary school in the city ought, within the next week, to hear of Eileen's "I'm pretty little, but I'll try." The alert attention which knew the semaphore signal, the quick wit which understood what a broken rail meant, the decision and initiative which alone sought the telephone, the courage with which she and her sister started up the track, waving their aprons to stop the big Overland Limited as it bore down upon them—these are the qualities which through life bring self-help, for others, success and happiness.

And she was only seven years old, "pretty little," but ready to "try."—Philadelphia Press.

WORKED LONG FOR SUCCESS

Mrs. Stannard Wrote Steadily for Years Before "Bootle's Baby" Made Its Hit.

It is interesting to recall just now that the late Mrs. Stannard, otherwise "John Strange Winter," once described herself as a woman writer but not a "woman's righter." Yet there was certainly no lack of character or brain power about the author of "Bootle's Baby," who was indeed an eminently capable woman with a clear, well-balanced intellect, much robust common sense, and a great capacity for organization, which served her in good stead when she turned from literature to commerce.

Struggling authors may be interested to know that it was only after ten years of incessant work that Mrs. Stannard, who lived to write something like one hundred books, scored her first real success. And even this might not have been achieved but for a little piece of luck, for "Bootle's Baby," the work in question, had then been rejected by six London publishers and cast aside as hopeless. Mrs. Stannard's husband, however, happened to pick up the manuscript one day, read it, liked it, and suggested that he should send it to the Graphic. Mrs. Stannard answered: "Send it anywhere you like," and no one was more astonished than herself when in due course the Graphic took it.—Westminster Gazette.

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite, I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allsbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allsbrook it will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on these terms.

"THE NEWLYWEDS AND THEIR BABY" MADE A BIG HIT.

The "Newlyweds have come and gone, they brought a roar of laughter with them and a roar of laughter will follow them.

Earl Knapp as the baby and with his Da Da Da won the house and as Major Not Much brought forth peals of laughter. Celia Sylvester the baby's nurse and Danial L. Muryhy were favorites at once. Mr and Mrs Newlywed sustained their characters to perfection.

The costumes, the dancing, the play a success from start to finish and with the house so sold out, practically the first day is a great encouragement for Mr. Mark to continue to bring good attractions to Tecumseh.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Contains Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth when Properly Combined

Resorein is one of the most effective germ destroyers dver discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs. Pilocarpin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingerdient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely invaluable medical agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed, shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness that is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93 per cent of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular, better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. MRS. JOHN R. ROSEBRUGH

Mrs. Julia E. Rosebrugh passed away at White's Sanitarium Freeport, Ill., on Sunday evening Feb. 18, of Cardiac Asthma. She was born in Manlius N. Y., Feb. 14 1832, and had just completed her eightieth year on Valentine day.

After the death of her mother, she lived with her uncle, Moses Wright of this place, and was married in St. Peter's church Nov. 9 1852 to John R. Roshbrugh. In 1860 they removed to Freeport, Ill., where most of her life has been spent.

Her only son, Harry died in Elgin Jan. 3 1904, and her husband passed away Jan. 10, just one week after the death of the son, leaving her doubly bereft.

She spent a few weeks in Tecumseh last summer, and her many friends will look back upon that visit with pleasure, as she seemed so bright and cheerful while here. St. Peter's church was always very dear to her, as she was comfirmed in it many years ago.

She was stricken with disease in December and has been in the Sanitarium until the time of her death. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs Helen Rosebrugh and her niece, Miss Mary Hosmer were with her when she slept the sleep that knows no waking.

The casket bearing all that was mortal of this their loved one, was taken to the home of hea sister-in-law, Miss Frances Rosebrugh, and from thence to Grace Episcopal church where her rector performed the last solemn rites of the church, after which she was laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery.

Bird and Beast Sanctuary.

Remote from all large centers of population a bird and beast sanctuary has been established in the Upper Engadine in Switzerland. This is the Val Cluoza, near Zernets and not far from the Ofen Pass. It is a well wooded spot of considerable area carefully watched, and in the summer continually patrolled by keepers.

One of these, who has just returned to St. Moritz from a visit, found the park completely snowed under to a depth of more than four feet. In it were five herds of chamois, one of which numbered 147 head, besides a great number of roebuck and deer, together with bears, foxes and other smaller Alpine animals. Flocks of snow hens were also wintering in the sanctuary with numerous crossbills, titmice and other small birds.

It is hoped that the establishment of this reserve will prevent the threatened extermination of wild beasts and birds in the Alps.

Waste in Coal Range.

Economic waste, represented by the coal range, was strikingly illustrated in tests made recently at the London electrical exposition. Demonstration proved that the shrinkage of meat when cooked in a coal range is surprisingly great. A leg of mutton weighing eight pounds and eight ounces showed a shrinkage of two pounds and eleven ounces when cooked in the coal range, whereas a leg of mutton weighing nine pounds showed a loss of one pound and four ounces when cooked in an electric oven. The shrinkage for the gas oven was two pounds and four ounces on an eight-pound leg of mutton.

MRS. GURDON B. GARLINGHOUSE

Minnie Garlinghouse departed this life Monday February 26, 1918 after an illness extending over nearly a year at the age of 56 years.

She was born in Olcott, Niagara Co, N. Y. Sept. 3, 1855, When three years old she with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K Gates moved to Portland, Mich. Later Mrs. Garlinghouse attended the Frances Shuman Ladies Seminary at Mt. Carroll, Ill, where she was one of the graduates.

In 1879 she was was united in marriage to Gurdon B. Garlinghouse of Holloway and passed the first years of their married life in that vicinity later moving to the farm residence a mile south of Tecumseh finally they moved to Tecumseh, which has been their home for a number of years. Four children with the bereaved husband are left to mourn her early death Clarice May Wilson of Detroit, Ethelyn Virginia of Tecumseh, Otto G. of Detroit and Dr. Arnet J. of Charlotte.

The funeral services were conducted by her pastor the Rev. W. B. Hartzog, Mrs. R. S. Moore was soloist, Burial at Brookside.

She was a faithful member of the Baptist church and the Eastern Star and has been an active member of the Monday Club and several social clubs of the town. She was noted for her hospitality. Her home instincts were strong, and her affection for her husband and children was tender and abiding.

When duty called she was always ready to do her part working on her committee at the church and Star when tired nature was almost too weak to stand the strain.

She has led a busy and useful life died as she has lived, honored, trusted and loved.

FIRST JAPANESE IN AMERICA

He Was a Shipwrecked Lad and Was Brought to This Country in 1841.

The first Japanese who ever came to America, as far as is known, was Manjiro Nakahama, a 14-year-old lad, who was picked up by the captain of an American fishing vessel in 1841, twelve years before the coming of Commodore Perry to Japan.

Nakahama with four companions had sailed out into the ocean on a fishing expedition, their boat had been wrecked by a storm, and they were finally washed ashore on a desert island in the northern Pacific. Three months of dire privation were passed on the island before the little party was rescued by the American vessel.

His companions were left in Hawaii, but Nakahama, who became a great favorite of the captain, was brought to the United States and sent to a New England school. And when Commodore Perry came to Japan, Nakahama was able to act as interpreter in the negotiations carried on between the American envoys and the Japanese feudal government authorities. —Dr. Jokichi Takamine in the Oriental Review.

THE INDI AN NWS

The Tecumseh Herald is in receipt of the India Times published in Bombay, Jan. 10, 1912. The paper is 18x24 twelve pages and is very interesting in every detail. The amount of advertizing is wonderful and the reading matter is well selected and varied, under the head of "A New Busines Tone" we find a picture of Harry Selfridge and his business achievements in London, from which we glean a short history of his success.

Two years and a half ago Mr. Selfridge set up a great drapery establishment on Oxford Street, London quite resented the invasion, as they felt the had big shops enough of their own, and did not wish to be taught new ways or be crowded out of business by an American. For many months his fate hung in the ballance, but by steady perseverance and energy, he has come out ahead. He has run his shop in club lines. Has a Post Office, a reading and writing room, a silence room, a roof garden. A reception room, a theatre ticket office, a cooks tourist office and a ladies hairdressing He practices the golden rule with his assistants, employing about 2000 with four or five hundred extra at Christmas time

The secret of his great success seems to be his personal magnetism and personal encouragement to each one with whom he comes in contact.

Mr. Selfridge has many friends in Tecumseh where he has visited so many times with his uncle, B. L. Baxter and family in his boyhood days,

THE EAGLES SPREAD THEIR WINGS?

Monday night was the culmination of a contest between the two sides of the order, to secure new members. G. J. Ziehr was captain on one side, and Ed Everette on the other side, the losing side giving a banquet to the crowd. Captain Ziehr and his followers were the losers, and gave an elegant spread. The menu was as follows: Apex rose ham, chicken patties, scalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, mixed pickles, cheese, brown and white bread and butter, coffee and doughnuts.

This was followed by a smoker. According to all reports the evening was one continued round of fun and laughter. A class of fourteen were initiated into the order. For the short time this order has been in existence it has had a rapid growth and is still gaining.

NO NAME CLUB

The No Name Club met with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Montgomery on Tuesday. A six o'clock dinner was served, after which cards were the evening's. O. G. Hunt was the lucky winner of first prize, and Mrs. John Murphy the consolation. Dr. and Mrs. Hendershott will entertain the club at their next meeting.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by the constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to a normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE TOY MAN

By VIRGINIA BLAIR

Peggy told her mother about him.

"Are you sure you are telling me the truth?" Mrs. Danforth asked. "Of course I do not want to doubt your word, Peggy, but you know you do weave fairy tales sometimes, and this sounds like one."

"No, this is a really and truly man," Peggy insisted, "and he lives in a big house on top of a hill, and you go in by a little gate and there is a walk with holly trees on each side of it, and at the end there is a door, with a brass knocker with a funny face, and you knock, and the man opens the door, and shows you into a long room that is almost dark except at one end where there is a window with a lot of colored glass in it, and all around the room are toys, and the man wears a velvet coat and he has a lovely smile, mother."

"But how," Mrs. Danforth demanded, "did you happen to go there, Peggy?"

"All the children do," Peggy declared. "When we go home from school we run up the path and bang with the knocker and see the toys, and he never scolds, but just seems glad to have us."

"Well, don't you go again," Mrs. Danforth said, "until I find out about him, Peggy. It is a strange kind of man that wanted to bother with all the small boys and girls from your school."

"They don't all go, mother," said Josephine, who was Peggy's sister, nineteen, and very pretty. "I went to meet Peggy yesterday and there is a colored porter who stands at the gate and he does not let all the children in, just the littlest ones like Peggy."

"Yes, just the littlest ones like me," said Peggy, complacently, "and I asked him who the toys were for and he said he was making them for good children for Christmas."

Josephine laughed. "Do you think you're going to get some?"

Peggy nodded.

"I am going to be as good as good," she said.

When Peggy had left the room Mrs. Danforth asked, "Is it the new tenant at the Oaks that she is talking about, Josephine?"

"Yes. He moved in a week ago, and it is a funny household, mother. There is just the toy man with two old servants, two wolf-hounds and a white cat."

"Does he make the toys?" Mrs. Danforth asked.

Josephine nodded. "Yes, he carves all day, so the teacher told me. I met her the other day when I went for Peggy."

The next afternoon Peggy did not get home on time. Her apologies when she did return were profuse.

"The Toy Man was waiting for me and I just had to go."

"But I told you not to," Mrs. Danforth said.

"He asked me and asked me, mother," Peggy said, "and you wouldn't want me to be not polite, would you?"

"The next time you must tell him that mother does not want you to go in. Now, remember, Peggy."

The next day Peggy came home with a rueful countenance.

"He came out and asked me to go in," she stated, "and I did not feel very nice to tell him you wouldn't let me."

"I wonder why he wants Peggy more than the other children?" Mrs. Danforth asked Josephine.

"Goodness only knows," said Josephine, and that afternoon, moved by curiosity, she made her walk take her in the roadway that led to the Oaks.

Thus it happened that she met the gentleman with the nice smile and the velveteen coat face to face. He was standing at the gate, and as the children passed he asked them to come in, selecting, as Peggy had said, the littlest ones. Josephine joined Peggy as the little maid said, regretfully, "I mustn't come in. Mother won't let me." Then she questioned Josephine, "Don't you think I could, Josey?"

Josephine hesitated. "Maybe if I went, too."

"Would you?" asked the Toy Man eagerly. "I should be so glad to have you."

He led the way to the big door with the brass knocker and Josephine and a group of little folks followed. Josephine found that Peggy had not half told of the beauty and charm of the big room where the toys stood in shadowy corners, and the stained-glass window gave a mysterious light.

They were strange toys, some of them little green gods with yellow eyes, little ivory elephants, whose heads nodded, Chinese mandarins, bronze lions.

"Surely you do not make these," Josephine said.

He shook his head. "These are what I make," he said, and brought down from a high shelf a little figure at the sight of which Josephine exclaimed, "Why, it's Peggy!"

It was only in the rough clay, and a tiny thing, but it was Peggy to the life, poised on tip-toe, curls flying, eyes wide with mystery of childhood.

"They do not know," he said, "when they play with my lions and my little old gods that they are my models. I work briskly, and tell them I am making toys; otherwise they would be self-conscious."

"Do you use only children for models?" Josephine asked.

"I like them best—yet I have thought that my masterpiece will be the figure of a girl, half child, half woman. 'Where the brook and river meet.'"

"You should have a very beautiful model," Josephine said. "Won't it be hard to find?"

He smiled down at her. "I have found my model," he said.

But Josephine did not understand the significance of his tone.

"I wish I might watch you work," she said.

"I hope you will watch me many times," he said. He hesitated, and then asked, "Do you think your mother would let you sit for me? I should like to do you as you are now with that big muff and fur, and with that three-cornered hat on top of your curls. You seem the very spirit of youth; your vividness almost lights up this dull room."

Josephine had never been called pretty, and there was something in this man's tone that made her feel that he meant what he said. It was not flattery, but rather the satisfied estimate of one who has found what he wants.

"I am afraid mother wouldn't let me come here," she said, "but if you could work at our house."

"I will ask her," he told her.

That night he pleaded so eloquently that Mrs. Danforth consented, and every day after that Josephine sat for him, with Peggy and the little folks, and the statue grew under his deft fingers.

It seemed to Josephine in these days that life took on new meanings. This man, with the slender, white fingers and the kind smile, became so much a part of her thoughts and her daily life that when one morning he announced that the statue was finished and his sojourn at the Oaks ended, she gave a little gasp of dismay.

"Are you going to leave us?" she asked.

He did not look at her as he said, slowly, "I must. I cannot stay here any longer; I must not."

She didn't dare ask him why; some instinct told her that it was because of her that he was going. Because she was a woman she must let him leave in silence. The children expressed their regrets; they did not know how they were to get along without their dear Toy Man.

"Aren't we ever going to come and knock at the knocker and see the mandarin and the lions?" Peggy wailed.

"Josephine shall have the key," he said. "Perhaps she will come here sometimes and let you play. Will you?" he asked and Josephine said, "Yes."

After he had gone, however, she found that it was not easy to visit the big empty room. The spirit of the man who had presided was lacking, the children were restless without his quick suggestion and tactful planning. It gradually came about, therefore, that the boys were left alone in the big room, and the children played out of doors in the winter sunshine.

Josephine drooped and lost her brightness, and at last Mrs. Danforth sent her to visit an aunt in the city. Then a round of sight-seeing and of excitement began for Josephine.

One day she came to an art exhibit and was startled to find her counterpart in white marble in the center of the room. It was a beautiful figure and was surrounded by an admiring crowd. Josephine, gazing at it, forgot her surroundings. Then some one said, "Hush! here comes the sculptor," and she turned and faced the Toy Man.

"You—at last," he said, and drew her away from the crowd. In a secluded corner of the room he asked her many questions.

"Did you think me cruel to leave you?"

Josephine's face flamed. "I didn't dare think," she said.

"If I had not seen you here," he told her, "I was going back tomorrow to the Oaks to find you, and you know why I want you Josephine?"

"I am not sure," she faltered.

"There were things that kept me from you," he explained.

"I had had great money failures, and the old furniture in that house was the extent of my possessions. Everything depended upon my ability to make good with this statue. I was to receive a contract for larger work, if I could produce something besides the tiny figures over which I had wasted so many years. If my statue of you had failed I would have had no right to ask you to marry me for ruin would have faced me, but now—now I can go back, and we will work together."

The children in the little town welcomed back their Toy Man with enthusiasm. He was too busy now to have them every day, but once a week they were welcome, and just before Christmas he and Josephine were married. After the wedding there was a strange departure from the usual custom, for instead of a reception at the bride's house, there was a house warming in the big living room at the Oaks. Only children were invited, and each child as it went away received a toy, and Peggy rapturous and smiling assisted in the distribution.

"It is perfectly lovely," she announced, "to have a Toy Man for a brother-in-law, it is almost like being in the same family with Santa Claus. It's just the nicest thing that ever happened, isn't it Josephine?" and Josephine, standing radiant by her husband's side, agreed.

A Queer Habit.

"I'm sure that my husband doesn't drink," said the bride.

"That so?" asked the old-timer.

"Yes, but he has one very peculiar habit. He's terribly fond of cloves."—Detroit Free Press.

Part Played by Heredity.

Heredity plays an important part not only in tuberculosis and cancerous affection, but likewise in diabetes, rheumatism, gout and many other diseases. We do not inherit tuberculosis, but we do inherit a lessened vitality, or a tendency to contract tuberculosis infection. Underweights are usually people who have inherited such a lessened vitality, and they run the further risk of infection from their underweight brothers or sisters who are apt to be infected.

Fortunes Spent in Trousseaux.

The elaborate trousseaux of members of the smart set would have made a queen bride of a century ago open her eyes with amazement. It is an ordinary thing for the daughter of a millionaire on getting her bridal finery ready to order 20 or 30 hats, trimmed with ostrich and other feathers, to harmonize with as many gowns. Every gown needs a distinct hat. The equipment of a rich bride is looked on as incomplete if it does not contain at least 30 gowns and such a trousseau does not mean the bride will get no more dresses for a year. When lingerie and little ornaments also are taken into consideration, it is plain a young girl in New York's smart set must spend many thousands of dollars for her outfit and several women have spent $80,000 to $100,000.

Treatment of Wet Shoes.

If you get caught in the rain with a good pair of shoes on, remove them as soon as you enter the house, and if you do not possess a pair of trees, stuff them tight and hard with tissue paper, squeezing it well into shape. Wipe off all the mud with a soft rag. Place the shoes in a draught, soles upward, and let them dry slowly. On no account put them to dry by the fire.

Never forget to place your shoes on trees or to stuff them with paper when they are not in wear.

HOW INSECTS WALK ON WATER

Hairs on Their Feet Inclose Enough Air to Enable Them to Float.

Even a solid rod of iron may be made to float provided it is small enough. Take a fine needle, wipe it with an oily rag, but do not leave any visible trace of oil on it, and then lay it gently on the surface of water in a basin. It will float and continue to float for some little time.

The cause of this is the fact that a quantity of air adheres to the needle sufficient to buoy it up. Moreover, as the cohesion between the particles of water is considerable, and as water has no attraction for a perfectly dry piece of steel, the cohesion of the water is greater than the weight of metal, and so the latter is supported.

In the same way insects are enabled to walk upon the water. The hairs on the end of their feet inclose an amount of air that enables them to float. As each foot is put down it forms a sort of cup-like depression in the water, and the liquid thus displaced is sufficient to float the insect. —Harper's Weekly.

SKIN SORES
Easily and Quickly Healed
Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions know its miseries. There is no need of suffering. You can easily get rid of it by a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing remedy for eczema, pimples, running sores, wounds, burns, salt rheum, ring-worm, piles and acne. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear.
The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality order direct from Swanson R. C. Co., Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent postpaid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent

New Yorkers and "the West."

If we lived in New York we could easily settle the question which is said to be disturbing the minds of the western governors—as to what is the dividing line between the east and the west. Everybody in New York knows that it is the Hudson river.—Wheeling Register.

There Are Hundreds of Tecumseh People Similarly Situated

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Tecumseh residents? After you have read the following, quickly answer the question.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte and E. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich. says: I cannot say to much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the great benefit I have received from their use. I never used another remedy that did me so much good. Since 1906, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills on several occassions, getting my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and they have acted as a tonic to my kidneys. The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp, shooting pain accross the small of my back which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, and I did so, getting them at Wright & Son's Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, my pains and aches dissapeared and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me, in fact I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so."

Backache Almost Unbearable

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill. says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were most unbearable I gave Foley's Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me Today I can do a hard day's work and not feel the effects."

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat N. J., was troubled with a severe La Grippe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. I bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat." For sale by all druggists.

SEEMED TO NEED A DOCTOR

Varied Ailments of the Somewhat Afflicted Family as Catalogued by the Mother.

"Yes, Doc," said the mother of a family of nine to the young doctor who had ridden 16 miles into the backwoods in the dead of night, "we are a somewhat afflicted fam'ly, an', as home doctorin' don't seem to do no good, I thought I'd send for you an' see if you could straighten us out. Janey here, she's got something wrong with her bronical tubes so she don't breathe like she should. I been keepin' a rag spread with goose grease an' sprinkled with red pepper an' mustard on her front chist, but it seems to add to her ag'ny. Jake, he's got a mis'ry all up an' down his spinal bone, an' I been usin' ker-sene both external an' internal; but it ain't done him no good. Lizzie Belle, she's about ready to give up with plumbago, an' her sister Nancy has been feelin' mean for a week. I think that it's skiatic roomatiz that ails Nancy, but she's afraid it's the new disease they calls appendeshetus. The old man has been turrible slimsy for some days, an' Rube, our oldest boy, is all broke out with a rash that shows his blood ain't all right. He had a turrible spell las' night, an' I thought he was in for cholery infantum. He's had it off an' on ever since he was 16 years old. I reckoned he'd outgrown it, but it grabs him as hard now that he's 24 as it did when he was younger. Wisht, Doc, that you'd just turn yourself loose an' see if you kin sort o' straighten us out."—Judge.

Remarkable Popular Ignorance.

Some one has remarked that at the height of Napoleon's fame there were men in the back alleys of Paris who had never heard his name. This illustration of popular ignorance was recalled by a judge who was examining candidates for citizenship in New York city recently. He asked one of these prospective citizens, "Who is the head of your native country?" "The king." "Who becomes the head when he dies?" "His son." "And who is the head of this country?" "The president." "And who would become the head if he died?" "His son." And yet, as the judge remarked, all these men know enough to earn their daily bread—the rest is a matter of schooling.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. C. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R.500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

HIS RECOVERY WAS SUDDEN

Passes to the Ball Game Worked a Speedy Cure of Mr. Jackson's Ailments.

Dan Lane, the well-known stock broker, and also a director of the Armory club, was commenting on the actions of a fighter in some nearby town. The fighter in question had apparently been all in up to the last round, when he came back and put out his man.

"What do you make of it?" asked the friend.

"It's like a friend of mine named Jackson," replied Mr. Lane. "Jackson's wife had a habit of thinking up little odd jobs for him to do on his day off, so he concocted a scheme by which he should be sick on his day of rest.

"Everything went well until after dinner and he was allowed to stay in bed. Early in the afternoon his wife entered the room and asked him if he didn't feel a little better.

"No," he answered, "I'm a sick man; too sick to go puttering around the house, putting on screen doors and other such things."

"It isn't that, dear," she replied, "but Jones is out here with two passes for the ball game."

"I, er-er, I am, er, I am feeling a little better," he said, getting out of bed.—Boston Traveler.

CHARACTER SHOWS IN BACKS

Straight and Upright Carriage Means You Are Determined, Energetic and Reliable.

If your back is straight and upright you are correspondingly straight in your conduct. You will hold your head up, for you are not afraid to look the world in the face.

Even when you're sitting you keep your back straight. There is an air of real strength about you—both physical and mental. In short, you have plenty of backbone. You are determined, energetic and to be relied upon.

If your back is stooping and rounded you are a creature as weak as you look; you are prone to lolling about and too lazy or too feeble to take a front rank in the battle of life. The tramp is an excellent example.

If you are a criminal, your back is stooped or round, but the scholarly stoop of the bookworm must not be confounded with the foregoing. There is a difference which is difficult to describe, but it is readily recognized by the close observer.

If you are mean and covetous your back is narrow and rounded and your shoulders are high. You are sly—very sly. You generally have the appearance of drawing yourself up into as small a compass as possible. You are always yourself, so to speak, and people should give you the cold shoulder.

Are you too straight backed? That is, do you hold your head so high that there is a preposterous fall in the small of your back? Then you are so puffed up with self-esteem that you carry your chest out so far it's absurd.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery —the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

The Little Marcy

By M. J. Phillips

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"The little Marcy!"

John Burden smiled as he said it to himself. Geraldine Marcy succumbing to the craze and buying Christmas presents! He had supposed her almost as immune to such frailties as himself; but there was no question that she had succumbed.

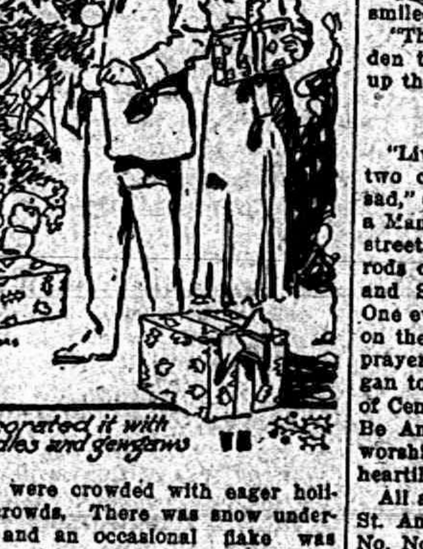
Abrahams' great store had engulfed Burden, drawn him in and tossed him about among the bewildering aisles with thousands of others like a chip in a whirlpool. He had come in search of his particular brand of drawing pencil. Presently he found himself drifting past the handkerchief counter, where the current of eager women shoppers fairly boiled.

There he had seen the familiar little tailormade figure, and his heart gave a throb of recognition. He had passed close to her—had almost brushed her shoulder as he struggled to free himself from the entanglement of women. She had just completed her purchase. It was a heart-shaped box of handkerchiefs, the cover decorated with sprigs of holly. The clerk was handing her a card for the address—a Christmas card which would inevitably be recognized as coming from the store of the canny Abrahams, since one corner had been cut off.

Burden worked his way to the exit and out into the crisp winter air, just fading into dusk. "The Little Marcy!" he repeated again. He could not reconcile the Christmas frivoling with her daily air at dinner among the babbling, cheery actor-folk that made up, with the exception of Miss Marcy and himself, their boarding-house circle.

She would sit there like a weary princess, engrossed in her own thoughts, the piquant little face masked by indifference. Occasionally the childish bickerings or equally childish display of vanity of the actor-folk brought a flicker of mischievous mirth to her eyes. When Burden surprised that look he wondered whether he really understood the girl after all.

Burden loitered in the streets for a time before going home to dinner.



Decorated it with candles and geegaws

They were crowded with eager holiday crowds. There was snow underfoot, and an occasional flake was floating down. He had never seen so many smiling faces in the city before. He found himself smiling, too, and feeling vaguely excited, though he expected neither to buy nor to receive any presents.

Every one was in high spirits at dinner. The actor-folk had been through a matinee and were soon to hurry back for the evening performance, but they babbled constantly of the Christmas tree which was to be set up in the dining-room "after the show." Even Miss Marcy had a light in her indifferent eyes, and a delicate color in her cheeks. Burden realized with a start that when she looked like that she was pretty.

He did not feel in the mood to go out, so he retired to his room with a book. But in half an hour the landlady came knocking. She demanded his help to set up the tree, decorate it, and arrange the various presents. "We'll surprise them poor things," she said, with more kindliness than grammar; "they'll be all tired out when they come in, and it's quite a task to dress a tree."

So they set up the tree, decorated it with candles and geegaws and started to arrange the packages. The sight of a familiar one attracted his attention. It was a light, heart-shaped box, decorated with sprigs of holly. The card on it—a card with one corner lopped off—bore these words: "To Miss Geraldine Marcy, with best wishes for a merry Christmas."

Burden excused himself abruptly. Donning hat and coat he went out into the street. So she had to buy her own Christmas presents. No friends to send her trinkets; no joyous looking forward to the holiday season! In the glow of pity for her loneliness he quite forgot that he was similarly situated, and that there would be no present on the tree for him.

He came to a resolution swiftly. It was to buy "the little Marcy" everything which a young man can with propriety buy for a young woman who is almost a total stranger and who passed him on the stairs or encountered him at dinner with the briefest and most formal of salutations.

First, there were flowers. He purchased a prodigal box of them. Next candy, plenty of candy, for did not all girls like to nibble at chocolates? Then music; Miss Marcy occasionally played on the boarding house piano. He invested in half a dozen popular songs, of varying degrees of inanity and tunefulness. And, last of all, he bought a book.

Ah, that book! It was a volume of love and dreams and longings in verse. He remembered it from his childhood days. He had wanted to possess a copy, but never dared to buy it, because it seemed incongruous for a man to care for poetry like that. Yesterday it would have seemed incongruous for Miss Marcy even. But in the light of that box of handkerchiefs, and all its purchase implied—yes, "the little Marcy" would like that book, he felt.

The tired actors and actresses came trooping home. They whooped with delight at sight of the blazing tree and the heap of presents. Wraps were tossed aside, Billy Cummins, the comedian, by reason of age and authority, assumed the role of Santa Claus. Never did he play a part more unctuously or sympathetically.

Burden watched the door furtively until Geraldine Marcy came in, head held high, the unwonted color still in her cheeks. There was a little touch of defiance in her manner to receive the box of handkerchiefs. Burden was afraid she would leave then, but she was a plucky little thing. She sat down, determined to stay until the end.

When her name was called again, a few minutes later, only Burden noted the start of surprise. When the great box of flowers was placed in her arms by the courtly Billy, there was a little clatter of applause. The actors, keen of perception where sentiment is concerned, saw something out of the ordinary in the glance of misty brilliancy she turned swiftly on Burden. As for that young man, his heart bumped suffocatingly for a second or two. How did she know so quickly, and so surely it was he who remembered her? How pretty she was!

They encountered each other in the hall when it was all over, and went up the stairs together. With an absurd sense of elation Burden was carrying another copy of the book he had bought for Miss Marcy. It had been a wonderful evening—and that was not the least wonderful feature of it—that she should not only have known and loved the book, but guessed unerringly that he knew and loved it, too.

At the first landing she paused and faced him, opposite her own door. So changed was she by the clear flush in her cheeks and the happy light in her eyes that Burden wondered. He tried to recall and could not how she had looked in that mask of scornful, weary indifference, which was but lonesomeness after all. Now she was bright with the gayety which is girlhood's heritage and very lovable.

"I can't thank you," she began; "you have made this my happiest Christmas in years. I have been alone so long. I left the old home when my parents died and came to the city—and I've been among strangers ever since. And these—" She gazed down on the armful of his gifts.

"It was nothing—nothing," said Burden, hurriedly. "You've thought of me. This book, now—I've always wanted it, and I couldn't bring myself to buy it." There was a pause, awkward on Burden's part. Then he stumbled on. "By the way, I believe in giving one's self a treat on Christmas. I have tickets for 'The Buccaneer' tomorrow night—or rather, tonight. Would you care to go?"

Miss Marcy did not speak; but she nodded, while her eyes overflowed. With a sudden impulsive gesture she hugged his gifts to her breast and smiled through her tears at him.

"The little Marcy!" whispered Burden to himself, tenderly, as he went up the stairs. His heart was singing.

A Hymn Answered.

"Living on a street where there are two churches need not make a man sad," observed a Yonkers commuter to a Manhattan friend. "I live in Morris street between and within a dozen rods of the Central Methodist church and St. Andrew's Memorial church. One evening last summer I was sitting on the porch with my family. It was prayer meeting night, and there began to float out of the open windows of Central church the song 'Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?' The worshippers were singing it right heartily.

All at once there came a song from St. Andrew's church. 'No, Not One; No, Not One,' ran its chorus. If the musicians had timed those pieces they could not have bettered the effect, as this combination continued to ring out: 'Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?' 'No, Not One; No, Not One.' They were fine hymns, but their solemnity was lost on my family and me forever."

Negative Announcement.

"You said you were not a candidate."

"Yes," replied the statesman. "I'd rather take a chance on being contradicted in that form of assertion."

The Reason.

"The money that fine house was built with came from selling dried apples."

"I suppose that accounts for its being such a swell affair."

WHERE RELIGION IS OPEN

Its Observance in Public Is Common Among Eastern Christians, as Among Mohammedans.

The Bishop of London has been praising the openness with which Mohammedans practice their religion. He would like to have mats in the athenaeum for bishops to kneel on to say their prayers in public. Eastern Christians, as the bishop must have observed when in Russia, are quite as open in religious observance as Mohammedans. Nobody thinks it eccentric for a man to kneel down in a crowded street in order to say his prayers before some icon. Passengers cross themselves when their train or tram starts. No man ever passes through the Gate of the Savior, leading into the Kremlin at Moscow, without uncovering. In Poland the common greeting of the country people one meets on the lonely roads across the sad plains is "May Jesus Christ be praised," and it is the custom to reply, "For ever and ever." In Vilma people are to be seen kneeling in the street before the Ostrabramska gateway to pray before the picture of the Virgin and child, seen through a window high in the gate. This shrine is a Catholic one, but even the orthodox bare their heads to walk up the narrow and crowded street leading

GREATEST MEDICINE ON EARTH

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes:—"I was ill for five months with a pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors. I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend I tried Vinol, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Vinol, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

We want every one in this vicinity who is troubled with chronic colds, coughs, or pulmonary troubles, to come and get a bottle of Vinol. If it does not go to the seat of trouble, heal the inflammation and stop the cough, we will cheerfully return every cent paid us for it. This shows our faith, and proves that you take no chances.

SAMUEL ALSCHULER

He Wishes to Be Democratic Governor of Illinois.

THINKS TAFT ECLIPSED

Kansas Governor Says Name Will Not Even Be Considered.

Presidential Primaries, He Continues, Will Show Sentiment Overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

New York, March 4.—Governor Stubbs started westward after his second visit to the east, believing, he said, that President Taft's name wouldn't even be presented to the Chicago convention

"Here's what, in my judgment, will elect Roosevelt," continued the governor. "In those states that have a presidential primary the vote will be so overwhelmingly for the colonel that Mr. Taft's friends will see a great light and will not dare to let himself stand for renomination. Those states are New Jersey, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Oregon and California. Whatever they say in the primaries will express the popular sentiment of the Pacific coast, the middle west and the east. Probably Illinois will have a primary, too, and possibly Massachusetts, which has a primary bill before the legislature now will be added to the list. In Kansas we hope to have a preferential primary."

Governor Stubbs is to speak for Roosevelt in Pittsburg Monday night, and in Akron, O., Tuesday.

AMERICANS IN DANGER

Warned Out of Mexico by Proclamation of President Taft.

Washington, March 4.—The gravity of the situation in Mexico caused President Taft to issue a proclamation virtually warning American citizens to refrain from entering that country and those now resident there to leave when conditions threaten to become intolerable.

The proclamation was augmented by a telegram addressed by the state department to Ambassador Wilson in the City of Mexico. The ambassador was instructed to inform Americans in peril there to withdraw across the border, leaving their effects in the care of the nearest United States consul. Copies of the telegram were sent also to all consular agents.

Lieut. Commander Thomas Buried.

Newport, R. I., March 4.—With full naval honors the body of Lieutenant Commander Samuel Brown Thomas, U. S. N., who died at Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9, two days after his wedding, was buried in the Berkley memorial church yard in Middletown.

Chicago, March 4.—Samuel Alschuler of Aurora has opened headquarters here and is hard at work in an effort to get the Democratic nomination for governor. The contest will be decided at primaries, April 9.

CHURCH VISITOR BURNS TO DEATH

Suffocated In Fire In New York Boarding House.

MANY SPECTACULAR RESCUES

Scantily Clad Men and Women Walk Narrow Ledges to Safety or Are Taken to Street by Firemen.

New York, March 4.—Mrs. Ella White, for twelve years a church "visitor" for the Madison Avenue Reformed church, at Madison avenue and Fifty-Seventh street, and secretary to the pastor, the Rev. Dr. William Carter, was suffocated and burned to death in a fire, during which there were ten or more spectacular rescues by firemen and police, and which destroyed the boarding house run by Mrs. Ann Reynolds at 696 Madison avenue. Mrs. White was the widow of a Wall street broker. She was sixty years old.

Shortly after the fire was discovered the windows of the boarding house, which is a four-story and brown stone basement building, soon began to fill with scantily clad men and women who tried to escape by walking along narrow window ledges to adjoining houses. All were either rescued or climbed along the ledges and escaped into adjoining residences.

Mrs. White had an apartment on the top floor with a fire escape running from her bed room window, which was at the rear of the house by which she might have escaped. But for some reason she had left the bedroom and had worked her way to the front of the house, where her body was found after the fire.

During the progress of the fire, Fire Lieutenant Parcell of Engine Company No. 8, sustained a dislocated hip and injuries to his back by the collapse of a staircase. His condition is serious.

BASS AIDS FOR TAFT

Thirty-Eight Will Not Join Governor in Roosevelt Movement.

Concord, N. H., March 4.—Thirty-eight leading associates of Governor Robert P. Bass in the campaign of the progressive Republicans that resulted in the overturning of the politics of the state last fall have decided not to follow the governor into the Roosevelt movement.

They have organized themselves as the Taft progressives. Their platform is stated in a series of resolutions favoring the renomination of Presient Taft. A letter of indorsement from Dr. William J. Tucker, president emeritus of Dartmouth college, was read at the opening conference of the new organisation.

BOY SCOUTS TO ENGLAND

Colin H. Livingston Is Planning a Trip for Several of Them.

Washington, March 4.—Plans for a tour of England, Ireland and Scotland by several hundred American boys during the summer vacation this year are being made by Colin H. Livingston, head of the Boy Scouts in the United States.

It is proposed to send the boys over accompanied by competent scoutmasters and physicians as soon as the schools close. The youngsters will be drawn from all parts of the country, and if a sufficient number take the trip a steamer will be chartered. The plan also contemplates a trip to the United States by British boys on the same steamer.

Trapeze Fall May Prove Fatal.

Huron, S. D., March 4.—Professor John Sjaards, a school principal, who was hurt by a fall from a trapeze is believed to be near death.

Labor Candidate Convicted.

Boston, March 4.—Augustus Seaver, labor candidate for governor of Massachusetts at the last state election, was found guilty on twenty-four counts of filing forged nomination papers.

FOREIGN SOLDIERS IN PEKIN

Foreign Missions Guarded by Battalion of American Infantry

Pekin, March 4.—American, French and British reinforcements for the legation guards arrived here and more are on the way. A detachment of legation guards to the number of 700 paraded the streets. The display was intended for a moral effect on the restless element. It evidently had the desired effect.

The summary beheading of looters caught here continues, and it appears to be extremely efficacious in checking the sacking of stores and shops.

A battalion of American infantry is guarding the foreign missions.

A telegram from Pao Ting Fu says some missionaries were murdered during the riots there. The movement at Pao-Ting-Fu is largely against foreigners.

LAKE BOAT IN PERIL

Held Prisoner by Ice Off Lake Forest, Ill.

Chicago, March 4.—Alarm is felt for an unidentified steamer with smoke pouring from her funnel sighted seven miles off Lake Forest, evidently making desperate efforts to break through the ice that held her prisoner. Residents of Lake Forest from whence the steamer could be seen, hurried to the lake front and watched the imprisoned vessel straining against the ice.

All afternoon the boat remained where first sighted, and a stiff northeast wind piled the ice up toward shore, adding to the peril of the ship and the people on board. Her position was not changed at nightfull.

N. E. A. IN CHICAGO

Ella Flagg Young Makes Announcement for July 8-12.

Chicago, March 4.—The National Education association of the United States, familiarly known as the N. E. A., is to have its next meeting in Chicago July 8-12. This announcement was made by Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of public schools.

In connection with the N. E. A. convention the National Playground association will meet in Chicago.

PALLBEARER ARRESTED

Florida Man Is Taken on a Warrant Charging Murder.

Gainesville, Fla., March 4.—As he was preparing to act as pallbearer at the funeral of Dr. H. C. Spencer here, Harry G. Welsh was arrested on a warrant charging him with the murder of Dr. Spencer.

Welsh is a native of New Haven, Conn., but has been living at the Spencer home for several years. His is the sixth arrest made in the case growing out of the murder of Dr. Spencer. The coroner's jury is still in session.

Recover Body from Well.

Cumberland, Wis., March 4.—After digging for thirty-six hours the body of Adolphe Hoppe, a well digger, who was caught in a cave-in on a farm near Turtle Lake, Wis., was recovered. It was hoped to rescue Hoppe alive.

More Suffragette Monkey Shines.

London, March 3.—A suffragette lighted a bundle of paper saturated with petroleum in the general postoffice and then smashed a plate glass window. She then surrendered to the police and was locked up.

MOBS PILLAGING TIEN-TSIN CITY

Incendiary Fires Burning in Many Districts.

PEKIN CONDITIONS ALARMING

Chinese Soldiers Loot and Burn Pao-Ting-Fu and March on Capital—Railroad Torn Up to Impere Progress.

Tien-Tsin, China, March 4.—With the mobs pillaging the native city, incendiarism rampant and an attack expected by the mutinous soldiers from Pekin, affairs here are worse than can be imagined.

The pillaging of Saturday night, which began in the native city, extended to the foreign quarter, but it has now ceased.

The consular body met and decided to place everything in the hands of the military commanders, as it is feared that the foreign settlements may be attacked.

Reports from Pekin say that the conditions there are alarming.

Pao-Ting-Fu has been burned and looted by the Chinese soldiers of the Sixth division, who are now marching on Pekin. The authorities have torn up a portion of the Pekin and Hankow railway in an effort to impede their progress.

At a meeting of the diplomats at Pekin it was decided to increase the legation guards by 1,000 men.

There has been some incendiarism and shooting at Pekin, but everything is quiet at the foreign concessions at the capital.

Fires are raging in Tien-Tsin on both sides of the river. The Pekin mutineers are reported to be nearing the city and at last accounts were only three miles from the native city where the pillaging is still going on.

One hundred and fifty men of the Somerset (British) infantry entrained for Pekin.

There are now indications that the trouble here is becoming anti-foreign.

MRS. CUDAHY TRAPS MAN

Visitor Says He Is Bidden to Kill Her Unless She Signs Paper.

Pasadena, Cal., March 4.—Chief of Police Woods arrested in Mrs. Jack Cudahy's home a man whom she identified as the masked invader who was routed from the same place three nights ago.

The prisoner refused to give his name, but told Mrs. Cudahy he had been offered $500 to get her to sign a certain paper or to kill her Girl Hurt Rescuing Cat.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., March 4.—Alice M. Hopping, aged twelve, was painfully injured when she ran in front of an electric car on the Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg and Aurora railway, near the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary A. Bledsoe, to save the life of her pet Angora cat.

Miners Strike Over Lamp Order.

Pittsburg, March 4.—Eight hundred miners employed in the Jumbo mine of the Pittsburg Coal company at McDonald, Pa., struck when ordered to use locked safety lamps under a regulation of the state mining department.

SACRIFICES FOR LENT

Seventy-Six Women Give up Appendices in Cleveland.

Many Pass Days of Penance in Cleveland Hospitals After Operation.

Cleveland, O., March 4.—No less than seventy-six women are spending Lent in local hospitals after having had their appendixes removed. In addition to this number who have found this new way of spending the dull lenten days there are approximately a score of society women in Cleveland hospitals from nearby cities.

These cases all have been received since Ash Wednesday, milady apparently having figured it out that Lent is a good time to spend in convalescence

Among the unique "parties" of the Lenten season is that of three social leaders of Ashland, O.—all three now appendixless and doing Lenten penance in adjoining rooms at Huron Road hospital—Mrs. M. Setzer, Mrs. Thomas Reaser and Mrs. Dwight Sheets.

NO COLD WAVES COMING

Easy Return to Normal Temperatures to Mark the Week.

Washington, March 4.—The weather bureau issued the following weekly bulletin:

The general distribution of atmospheric pressure over the northern hemisphere is such as to indicate that there will be no cold wave to cross the country during the coming week, and that there will be a general, though gradual, reaction to normal temperatures over the region east of the Rockies Tuesday and Wednesday and moderate temperature until the close of the week

Disturbances that now cover the west and southwest will advance slowly eastward and cause a continuation of unsettled weather with rains in southern and snow and rain in middle and northern states east of the Rocky mountains during the next several days

Bull Gores Man to Death.

Elyria, O., March 4.—An enraged bull gored to death John Hyman, an inmate of the county infirmary. Hyman was fifty-five years old.

Veteran Actress Dies.

New York, March 4.—Annie Yeamans, the actress, is dead.

CONCENTRATION IS PLANNED

Italians Fear Massacres of Countrymen by Fanatics.

Rome, March 4.—There was something akin to consternation here over the announcement that Turkey, instead of expelling all Italians from that country, has decided to establish concentrated camps in the provinces, similar to those conducted by the British in South Africa during the Boer war.

The newspapers protest against this on the ground that, apart from the fears that these camps will prove to be unsanitary, it is doubtful if Turkey can spare enough troops to protect Italians concentrated in them from the fanatism of the Musselmen and that, therefore, massacres are probable.

SAY ROOSEVELT CHANGED MIND

Claim Made that He Promised Not to Be Candidate.

LETTER GIVEN AS EVIDENCE

Administration Said to Have Deemed Him Out of Race by Reason of Assurances Given Cabinet Members.

Washington, March 4.—Despite disclaimers from Oyster Bay, documentary evidence is said to be in existence demonstrating that Colonel Roosevelt gave assurances to Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Meyer that he would not be a candidate for the presidential nomination this year in opposition to Taft.

This evidence is in the form of what purports to be a letter written by Colonel Roosevelt under date of June 27, 1911, of which the following is an extract:

"I have expressed myself perfectly freely to a large number of men in this matter, always to the effect, telling you, for instance, personally, and those who were with you at lunch at my house, and telling Gifford Pinchot, Jim Garfield and Congressman Madison, and Billy Loeb, and Secretary Meyer and Secretary Stimson, all alike, just exactly that I have said, always, that I would not be a candidate in 1912 myself, and that I had no intention of taking any part in the nomination for or against any candidate.

"Sincerely yours,
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

It is altogether probable that the full text of the Roosevelt letter of June 27, 1911, will be made public before the political campaign has proceeded very far.

For many weeks prior to the primal announcement of Colonel Roosevelt that he would go before the Chicago convention as a candidate for first honors members of the administration felt convinced that the colonel would not be a candidate against Mr. Taft. They had reached this conclusion because of assurances that had been given the Messrs. Stimson and Meyer, it is claimed.

STATEMENT BY ROOSEVELT

Says that Context Probably Gives Different Meaning to Letter.

New York, March 4.—The extract from the letter was read to Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and he handed out the following written statement:

"I will say nothing unless the name of the recipient of the letter is given and the letter published in full; probably the language is not correctly given. Certainly all the context in which I said I would not refuse the renomination is suppressed. The letter published in the Chicago Evening News a month ago contained substantically what I said in all these letters."

MARRIAGES AND DIVORCES

Total Number of Licenses for 1911 Reaches 29,962.

Indianapolis, March 4.—The total number of marriage licenses issued in Indiana during 1911 was 29,962, a decrease from the preceding year of 2.3 per cent. The total number of divorces in the state in the year was 4,781, an increase of 3.2 per cent. Thus the marriages decreased and divorces increased.

In 1911 the ratio of divorces to the number of marriage licenses issued was 15.9 per cent. In 1910 it was 15 per cent.

Pays $3,500,000 for Coal Land.

New York, March 4.—It was learned that the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company has purchased 85,000 acres of coal lands in Montgomery county and the adjacent coal fields of Illinois for $3,500,000.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by the constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to a normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

LUCIUS LILLEY

THE PASSING AWAY OF TECUMSEH'S OLDEST AND MOST PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN AND BANKER

Whose Sudden Death Occurred Friday Afternoon, March 1, at 3:30

LUCIUS LILLEY

The news of Lucius Lilley's death which occurred Friday March 1st, came as a shock to everyone, not even his immediate family realizing that he was in any danger. For the last week he had been suffering with an attack of the grip, but Friday at noon he grew suddenly worse, and sank quietly to rest at 3:30 p. m. He had just completed his 89th year, Feb 21, celebrating with a family dinner. At the holiday time he was able to be in his usual place at the Lilley State Bank, where for fifty-six years he has greeted his friends, and just one year ago at the opening of the re-modeled Lilley State Bank, he was the prominent figure in receiving the guests. Mr. Lilley was an unusual man, with an unusual mind and in command of every faculty up to the last.

Mr. Lilley's first experience in the banking business in Tecumseh was with Perley Bliss & Co., in 1860, Mr. Lilley acting as cashier. In 1880 he organized the bank of Lilley Bidwell & Co. of which he was President In 1893 Albert Brewer became associated with Mr. Lilley, and the bank was organized as a State Bank. Mr. Lilley's banking policy was very conservative and prudent, but one that would inspire confidence.

He was born in Homer, Courtland County N. Y., February 21, 1823, remaining with his father until 1840 when he became clerk in the Weddle House, afterward owning a half interest in it. In 1850 he sold out and was appointed as the Cleveland agent of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana line of steamers. In the fall of 1853 he was engaged in the office of the general ticket agent of the company at Buffalo, and subsequently came to Adrian to take the same office there.

July 18, 1848 he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah McEachron of Cleveland. To this union two children were born, J. Raynor and Julia G. now Mrs. Albert Cummins.

Mr. Lilley is a man who who will be greatly missed in every walk of life and by none more than the poor of our town. The churches who owe much to his liberality, the King's Daughters, of which he was an honorary member in fact everyone felt at liberty to call on Mr. Lilley to help them in any good cause for he was never known to turn them away empty handed and his death will come as a personal loss to many of us, who feel that one of our best friends on whom we could always depend has left us.

The funeral service was held at his late home Monday, March 4, at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. Weld reading the Episcopal burial service, Mrs. Richard Mead and Mrs. Ella Hodges rendered "When The Strife was ended" and "Evening" The pall-bearers were the directors of the Lilley State Bank, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, R. A. Heesen. Frank Temple, Dr. D. W. Reed, L. I. Bidwell and F. E. Bradley.

It was the request of Mr. Lilley that Mr. Fred Fagan, who had served him so faithfully for the past twenty-one years should drive his team which would bear him to his last resting place.

The Kings' Daughters of which he was an honorary member, accompanied the body to Brookside where he was interred in the family lot.

The profusion of flowers attested to the high esteem in which he was held by his many friends. Beautiful floral pieces from the Lilley State Ban , Tecumseh State Savings Bank, Masonic Order, TecumsehClub, Kings' Daughters, Trustees of Presbyterian church, Ladies of St. Peter's church, Baptist Ladies' Society.

He was survived by two children, Raynor Lilley of New York, and Mrs. Albert Cummins of Tecumseh.

Mr. Lilley left one of the largest estates ever accumulated in this county. A very substantial amount was given to his son and daughter, by placing it in trust to be delivered at his death, the remainder of the estate is given to the Detroit Trust Company to pay the income to his son and daughter during their lives, after their deaths this balance is to be gradually exhausted for the benefit of the poor of Tecumseh Township and Lenawee county with special attention to poor children.

His Definition

A Southern Congressman recently met for the first time in some years an aged darky who, was formerly in the Representative's service. During their converse, the Congressman learned the interesting fact that his old servant had, in his advanced age learned to read.

"Well, now, Sam," remarked the former master, "that makes things interesting for you, doesn't it? You should find pleasant companionship in books and papers"

"Yessah," oracularly assented the old man. 'Readin' is shore a great thing, sah. I has given de matter considerable consideration, sah, an' I is prepared to say, sah, dat readin' is de power of hearin' with de eyes.

ISAAC GANOUNG

Issac Ganoung was born in Seneca Co. New York March 3, 1844 and died at his home in February 10, 1912.

His parents came to Michigan in 1849 and purchased the farm on which he lived till called away,

He was married to Adelphia Buck January 5, 1876. To them three children were born, Fred and Adah at home and Blanche of Detroit.

They mourn the loss of a kind husband and loving father.

The funeral was held, in the home he loved so well, February 15.

After a short service conducted by Rev, Pollock the remains of our much respected friend and neighbor, surrounded by many beautiful floral tokens and followed by many sympathizing friends was borne to his last resting place in Macon cemetery by his six sorrowing nephews.

Ideal Temperature of Room.

An ideal room temperature for the sedentary is that between 66 and 70 degrees. Below these temperatures the heat regulating apparatus of the body finds it necessary to close up the peripheral vessels more or less, internal congestion slowly begins and the conditions for a cold are secured.

"ME-SMITH" IN THE NEWS

Splendid Western Story Starts in Michigan's Greatest Daily March 6.

"Me-Smith," a thrilling western story by Caroline Lockhart, will begin in the Detroit News, afternoon edition, Wednesday, March 6; morning edition, Thursday, March 7 This is one of the best novels of the great plains that has been written in many years and it will appeal to all classes of readers. A charming love story run through the novel, and this will be particularly pleasing to the women. For the men, "Me Smith," the bad man, stands out as a striking character, as also does Ralston, the deputy sheriff and hero of the yarn.

FREE IF IT FAILS

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or decending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to the healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in Tecumseh only at our store—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver.

TECUMSEH BOY PROMINENT IN HOTEL BUSINESS IN THE WEST.

We clip the following from the "Western Hotel Reporter" printed in San Francisco, California. Mr. Geo. F Smith is a former Tecumseh boy and has many friends here who will be interested in his career.

Geo, F Smith and Alfred H. Johnson have leased for a term of ten years at a total rental of $62,280 all of the new concrete building now under construction on East Street, 91 feet south of Mission Street, in this city. The building has a frontage on East and Steuart of 46 feet and a depth of 137½ feet. The Steuart Street entrance is opposite the new S. P. R. R. Company's three million dollar depot, which will be completed by 1915.

The hotel will have over 80 rooms, each of which will contain hot and cold water and telephone, many with private baths, and is to be steam heated. The entrance on East Street facing the Ferry Building will have a marble entrance with an elaborate marquee. The floor of the lobby will be of terrazo marble, the office to have all modern improvements, including the Acme Locking Hooks, the new checking system. The store, which is 17 feet by 70, will be used as a first-class cafe under the management of Mr. Johnson, who for over twelve years was chief steward of the Bohemian Club. With Mr. Smith, who is a successful hotel manager as well as owner of the St. Yvonne Apartments and Mr. Johnson as a caterer, together with the location, there will be no question as to the success of their new venture. The hotel, which is to be called the Commodore, is to be completed by April first 1912.

VILLAGE ELECTION

Notice is hereby given to the qualified Electors of the Village of Tecumseh, State of Michigan That the next ensuing Annual Election will be held at the council building within said Village, on Monday, March 11 A. D. 1912, at which election the following officers are to be chosen, viz:

There Are Hundreds of Tecumseh People Similarly Situated

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Tecumseh residents? After you have read the following, quickly answer the question.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte and E. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich. says: I cannot say to much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the great benefit I have received from their use. I never used another remedy that did me so much good. Since 1906. I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills on several occassions, getting my supply at Wright & Son's Drug Store and they have acted as a tonic to my kidneys. The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp, shooting pain accross the small of my back which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. someone advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and I did so, getting them at Wright & Son's Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, my pains and aches disapeared and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me, in fact I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so."

EARLY RISERS
The famous little pills.

Backache Almost Unbearable
Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were most unbearable I gave Foley's Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me Today I can do a hard day's work and not feel the effects."

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP
KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE
CONTAINING HONEY AND TAR

How Cold Causes Kidney Disease
Partly by driving blood from the surface and congesting the kidneys, and partly by throwing too much work upon them. Foley Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys, give tone to the urinary organs and restore the normal action of the bladder. They are tonic in action, quick in results Try them. For sale by all druggists.

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat N. J., was troubled with a severe La Grippe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. I bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat." For sale by all druggists.

25 Years for Young Parricide.

Chicago, March 4.—Joseph Vacek, Jr., seventeen years old, was sentenced to serve twenty-five years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael L. McKinley for the murder of his father, Joseph Vacek, Sr. He shot and killed his father in their home, Aug. 3 of last year. His defense was that he committed the murder because the father had asked him to kill his mother.

Child Asphyxiated by Cat.

Eveleth, Minn., March 4.—Asphyxiation, due to having her breath stopped by the house cat, was the verdict of the coroner's inquest held over the body of Ellen, the five-month-old daughter of Walter S. Gordon, who was found dead in bed beside her twin brother. The child was perfectly healthy.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill. and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr W B Caldwell, R 400 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles
Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.
A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.
Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.
You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

PARADISE FOR THE ACTOR

Australia Is the Place Where the People Make Real Gifts to Stage Favorites.

The actor, bronzed from a long sea voyage, was praising Australia, whence he had just returned.

"Australia's the place!" he cried enthusiastically. "If a pretty actress makes a hit over there, the warm-hearted Australians aren't content with passing flowers over the footlights to her. No, no. They pass her a box of gloves, a dozen pairs of silk stockings, a turkey, a fur muff, or a case of wine. Why, in Milparinka my wife got passed a Callot dress, a Lewis hat and ten pounds of writing paper.

"As for me—"

The actor made a great gesture of arm and shoulder to indicate modesty.

"As for me," he said, "I don't want to brag. I was never one to boast. At the same time, this I will say. No jeune premier ever made the hit I did in Parrabetta, Quirindi and the other one-night stands. Do you see these pants? Passed up to me by a distinguished society matron of Murrumburrah. How do you like this shirt? It's one of a half dozen that I got from a Mudgee girl. And this fur-lined coat, my boy, is the real thing—none of your cheap and natty imitations—but real rat—genuine Australian rat. I thought I'd drop when a Gulgong usher passed it over the footlights with the compliments of the Gulgong Bachelor Girls' Social."

STRANGE SPREAD OF RUMOR

It Is So Mysterious That Greeks and Romans Made of It a Deity.

The phenomena of Rumor—its mysterious origin and marvelous spread—so impressed the ancient Greeks that they made of it a deity, Phoeme, to whom altars were raised. This deity, however, was not so completely personified as the later Roman Fama, but considered rather as a divine voice—the Vox Dei, as Grote puts it, passing into the Vox Populi. The classic case is the news of the Greek victory over the Persians at Plataea, in Boeotia, which Phoeme was said to have communicated to the Greeks as they went into action at Mycale on the other side of the Aegean, a few hours later, although there was no telegraphy in B. C. 479. Grote compares Michelet's account of the storming of the Bastile, which more than once emphasizes the fact that nobody proposed it; the whole populace seemed simultaneously inspired.

Wife Who Nags.

The worst thing that the bad fairy could wish upon a man is a nagging, fault-finding wife. The most savory of the dishes prepared by her hand tastes flat and stale if served up with the sauce of her complaints, and the cosiest of homes is a place of unrest if it is the storehouse of her recriminations. Even if there is just cause for jealousy, nagging is an aggravation rather than a cure.

It breeds the spirit of antagonism and the case of the injured party is hurt rather than helped.

The only safe cure for straying affections is to make oneself so attractive, so agreeable, that the desired love and attention is irresistibly held to its original moorings. Sometimes sudden evidence of indifference awakes the errant one to the fact that the straying may be mutual. Sometimes renewed outbursts of affection, of care and interest, is the tonic of weakened ardor. Sometimes splendid results are accomplished by wearing smart and becoming clothes and brushing up the wits and vivacity.

Swift's Joke on Partridge.

Partridge, the almanac maker, who taught Old Moore his business, will be remembered as the victim of an extraordinary practical joke played on him by Dean Swift.

Against Partridge's almanac for 1708 the dean published a rival almanac, predicting Partridge's death on March 29, about 11 at night, of a raging fever. And on March 30 appeared a pamphlet giving an account of the almanac maker's death with his confession that he was an impostor. This was followed by Swift's "Elegy on the Death of Mr. Partridge," which so completed the deception that the Stationers company struck Partridge off the rolls and applied for an injunction against the publication of almanacs in his name.

Partridge advertised that he "was not only alive, but was also alive upon March 29." But no one believed him.—London Chronicle.

"Nervy" Woman.

A prominent citizen says the "nerviest" woman he ever saw was one who, instead of boarding the car promptly, inquired for the conductor. The conductor was inside the car collecting fares, but hurried to the rear platform.

"I beg your pardon," began the woman, "but is that car coming yonder as crowded as this one?"

"I can't tell from here," returned the conductor, almost savagely, as he gave the signal for the car to proceed.—Indianapolis News.

Courteous Rejoinder.

"I wonder why Solomon was considered the wisest man?" asked Mr. Meekton's wife.

"Probably, my dear, because he had so many wives to give him good advice."

DRUSILLA'S PATIENCE

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press)

"Patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet." Drusilla Ford repeated the lines of her motto with quivering lips. "It's the bitterest thing there is in life," she added, picking up her sewing once more.

Drusilla pulled her needle so sharply that the thread snapped. Her life was rather lonely, for her aunt was old and deaf, and as she made dresses for her friends and neighbors there was plenty of time for reflection, and Drusilla meditated so much that she grew quite morbid and bitter.

Five years before Emmet Blake had departed from Laurel Cove with Drusilla's shy maiden kiss upon his lips and a great resolve swelling his soul. Was not Drusilla Ford the prettiest girl in Laurel Cove and had she not promised to wait for him and be married when he came back from his uncle's sheep ranch in Montana? If Emmet liked ranch life he intended to purchase a half interest in his uncle's place and after the wedding he would take sweet Drusilla to the west.

But the years had passed until five had marked the round of Emmet Blake's absence. He wrote regularly—twice a month as the girl in the postoffice testified to curious inquirers—and as poor Drusilla opened each envelope her hopes arose only to fail at his ready excuses for delaying the return.

Some people said he had married in the west and was afraid to tell Drusilla the truth; others said he had tired of the girl he left behind and was only waiting for her to break off the engagement.

Drusilla had not received her usual letter and its non-arrival embittered her usually sweet disposition. She knew that the girl in the postoffice watched her sensitive face as Drusilla approached the window each day, and she tried to school her features to calm repose at each disappointment. Two weeks had passed over the usual letter day and so Drusilla stayed away from the office rather than suffer humiliation from encounters with the village gossips.

The deaf old aunt with whom she lived came into the room. To Drusilla's annoyance her Aunt Betsy kept an accurate record of her niece's correspondence and by reference to her own almanac could tell if Emmet's letters were a day ahead of time or two days late in arrival. Now she was a-tilt with excitement and vague speculation.

"Drusilla," she said in the loud tone she always used, "how long since you been to the postoffice?"

"Three days," returned Drusilla.

"When are you going again?"

"I don't know." Drusilla's voice was markedly careless. "Here are some pretty pink pieces for your bed quilt, Aunt Betsy."

"Put 'em in my basket," shouted Aunt Betsy, obstinately. "I guess I'll go over to Mrs. Buell's a little while." She jerked on her sunbonnet and went out, leaving the screen door to slam noisily.

"I hope she won't go to the postoffice," Drusilla mused, as she threaded her needle. Then her thoughts flew to her negligent lover and she wondered if he might not be sick.

An hour later Aunt Betsy came hopping back again, brimming with suppressed irritability. She sank into a rocking chair and fanned herself with her calico sunbonnet.

Drusilla Ford—there ain't a letter today. What do you think is the matter with Emmet Blake?"

Drusilla paled. "Aunt Betsy, you haven't been to the postoffice?" she asked sternly.

Aunt Betsy tossed her head defiantly. "I have been over to Mrs. Buell's and Lulu came home to dinner while I was there, and so I asked her if there was any mail in our box—I thought mebbe Emeline might have written—"

"You had a letter from Emeline three days ago and you havn't answered it yet," interrupted Drusilla coldly.

Her aunt blushed and hesitated then went on rapidly: "Lulu said there wasn't any mail, but she was full of news."

Aunt Betsy watched her niece closely, but Drusilla did not respond to the tentative remark.

"News about Emmet Blake," insinuated Aunt Betsy.

It took Drusilla off her guard. She grew quite pink and then paled again "He—isn't sick—or—anything?" she stammered eagerly.

"I guess not!" retorted Aunt Betsy "He's going to get married—just as everybody said he would—the worthless scamp!"

Drusilla sat as if turned to stone. At last the blow had fallen and it seemed as though the shock had torn the heart from her body, for she felt no grief, no pain, at this evidence of her lover's perfidy. There was merely a feeling of icy coldness and a strange lightness in her head.

"If that isn't just like you, Drusilla Ford! Sitting there dumb and quiet, while most girls would either faint dead away or tear their hair or something." Aunt Betsy was plainly outraged at being deprived of the dramatic scene she had conjured up in her fertile brain.

Aunt Betsy did not spare a word—she told how Emmet Blake's uncle had sent a Montana newspaper to a relative in the village and in the Windy River news was a marked paragraph which stated that "we understand that our esteemed neighbor, Mr. Emmet Blake, of Olympia ranch, is about to bring a bride to the handsome residence he has erected there."

"I expect her name is Olympia and he named the ranch after her," commented Aunt Betsy, breathlessly, in closing.
